United States® Census 2020

YOUR OHANA COUNTS!

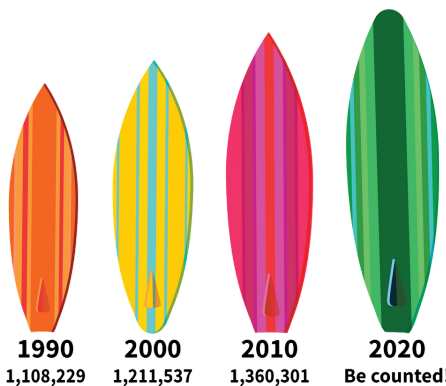

Anyone living in Hawaii on April 1st needs to be counted!

Respond at: <https://my2020census.gov/>

2020 Census Advice:

1. The census counts who lives in the home; not who owns it.
2. Living arrangements -- including the number of people in the home or the number of units on a property -- are never shared with government agencies, law enforcement, or landlords.
3. If you have questions about who to count on the 2020 Census, call the Census Bureau help line at 844-330-2020.
4. When in doubt, talk to the people you live with and renters or landlords that live on the same property -- Make sure that everyone is counted the right way.

Where am I counted?

People are counted where they live and sleep most of the time.

Who is included in your household?

Both relatives and nonrelatives in a household should be counted where they live and sleep most of the time. This includes:

- Babies born on or before April 1, 2020, and all children living in the home
- Spouses, close relatives, and extended relatives
- Unmarried partners, housemates, or roommates
- Roomers or boarders
- Live-in employees, such as caregivers or domestic workers

Children in shared custody or other arrangements need to be counted where they live and sleep most of the time. If a usual residence cannot be determined, they should be counted where they are staying on Census Day (April 1, 2020).

If someone cannot determine where they live and sleep most of the time, they are counted where they are staying on April 1, 2020.

How should renters respond to the 2020 Census?

Renters count themselves if they have a private entrance and they do not share common areas like a kitchen, bathroom, or living room. Otherwise, landlords should count renters in their household.

- A duplex is considered two separate households.
- Roommates that share common living areas are counted as one household.
- If you rent out a room in your house and your renter shares your kitchen, living room, or other common areas, they are counted as a part of your household -- even if they are a student who lives somewhere else during breaks.

Military in Hawaii

Military personnel and their families who live in military housing (on or off base) or in civilian housing in Hawaii should be counted at their Hawaii address only. They can respond online, by phone or by mail. Military personnel living in barracks will be counted by their administration offices.

People stationed or assigned outside of the U.S. on Census Day

Military and civilian employees of the U.S. government, as well as any dependents living with them outside of the U.S., will be counted as part of the U.S. federally affiliated overseas population, using administrative data provided by federal agencies.

People living in Group Quarters

People who live in group quarters such as military barracks, dormitories, and correctional facilities will be counted by the administration offices.
