Data sharing is a two-way street

Responsibilities of data providers:

- Provide the most accurate data at the time and update the data when new or more accurate info becomes available
- Provide the data in format(s) or application(s) which makes the data available to the broadest range of users
- Don't redistribute other people's data without checking – the data source and the data itself

Data sharing is a two-way street

Responsibilities of data consumers:

- Use the data within the intent and map scale in which the data was created
- Use the most current version of the data
- Provide feedback to the data provider in order to correct errors and improve the quality of the data
