Description of Na Leo O Hawai'i's Organizational Structure

Management Bios:

Donna Dunham General Manager

Donna was recently promoted to the General Manager position in January 2012. She had been Na Leo O Hawai'i's Assistant General Manager for the past eleven years, overseeing activities at the Kailua-Kona facility. Prior to joining Na Leo, she and her husband were distributors and contractors of a polystyrene building system for residential and commercial construction. Prior to that, she was a marketing executive for TeleCheck Services, Inc.; marketing director for Corporate Video Services in Colorado Springs, Colorado; and Promotion Assistant at KCNC-TV (NBC affiliate) in Denver, Colorado. Donna received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Communications/Multi-Major/Broadcasting and a minor in Public Relations from Metropolitan State University in Denver.

Pomai Brown Operations Manager

Pomai brings 10 years of television and film experience to Na Leo O Hawaii, Inc. and began learning about TV productions at Kamehameha Schools. He is a certified producer at both 'Olelo community television as well as here at Na Leo and has served on Na Leo's Board of Directors as its secretary. His job duties include community outreach to public and private schools throughout the Big Island as well as local non-profit organizations. Pomai earned a BS in business from Hawai'i Pacific University.

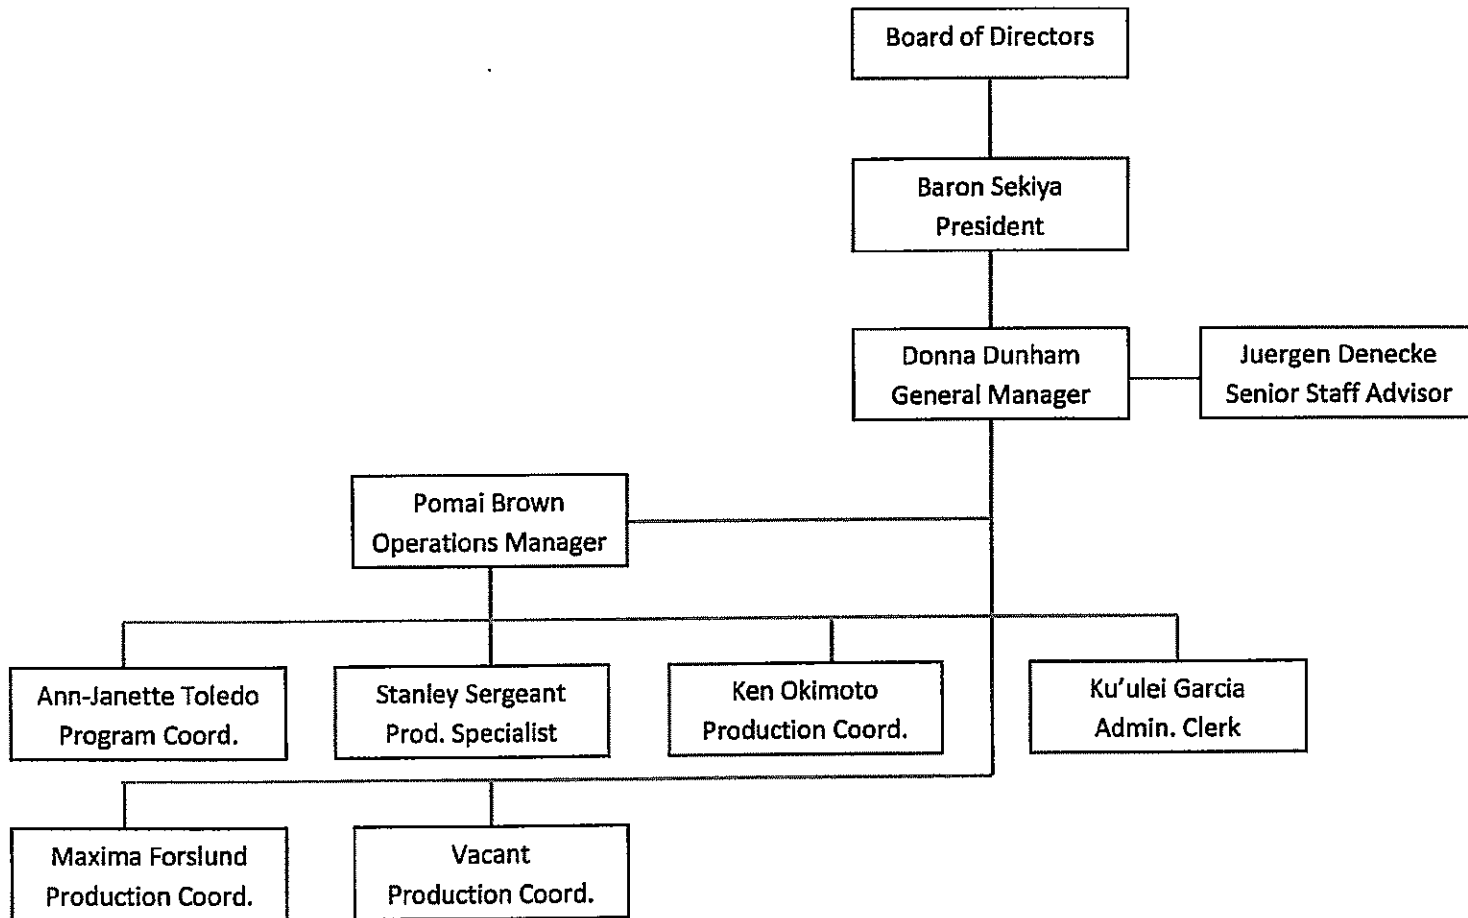

Juergen Denecke Senior Staff Advisor, Operations and Logistics

Juergen has been involved with cable television since 1982 when Hawaiian Telephone Company was ordered by the FCC to divest itself of all cable television properties. He started as an installer, was promoted to Chief Technician, then Manager and finally President of Hawaiian Cablevision Corporation of Lahaina, Maui, Hawai'i. He tripled the subscriber base, introduced computers to handle billing and served as a consultant to Camp television to prove the feasibility of using microwave to provide Honolulu TV station programs to the Big Island.

He left Maui when a partner in the Lahaina system asked him to establish a television station in the Netherlands Antilles. He was recalled to the U.S. to help with building a UHF station in Seattle, Washington. He returned to the Caribbean and was assigned to Lima, Peru where the company wanted to build a Pay TV station. The project was abandoned when the Peruvian government, under pressure from the International Monetary Fund, banned all repatriation of monies. He remained in the Antilles until the TV station was sold to a local investor. After a short stay in Maui, he was assigned to the United Kingdom where the company and its partners had just won franchises for the new CATV service. While in England, his main focus was developing business plans/projections for the newly acquired areas of service.

He returned to Maui and in 1993 was chosen to be the General Manager of the newly formed Na Leo O Hawai'i Corporation. Juergen retired from his position as General Manager in December 2011. He remains on the staff working part time to increase organizational productivity and efficiency as well as provide management transition assistance and continuity.

Description of the specific PEG access services Na Leo is proposing to provide to the public, educational institutions, and governmental entities

The specific and primary purpose of Na Leo O Hawai'i is to plan, design, manage and promote the creation, production and cablecasting of noncommercial programs by and for the people of the Island of Hawai'i.

Such programs will be aimed at the preservation, development and enhancement of the diversity of thought, culture and heritage. Through these activities Na Leo O Hawai'i will facilitate access to lifelong learning and participation in the democratic process.

To this end Na Leo O Hawai'i shall:

- maintain those cable channels dedicated to public, educational and governmental use in a manner that is equitable and free of censorship and control of program content, except as necessary to comply with State or Federal law,
- provide a range of resources for the planning, production and distribution of noncommercial programs for the users of these channels,
- develop and enforce such rules and policies that will ensure equitable access to these channels and production consistent with applicable State or Federal laws,
- maintain planning and research functions to keep abreast of new technologies which will improve the quantity and quality of communications among the communities of Hawai'i.

Additionally, Na Leo provides monthly video production training classes, refresher classes, blue screen and advanced techniques. A studio production class is offered at the Hilo facility. Na Leo's basic training program consists of 14 hours of courses. Certified producers may reserve equipment packages at both the Hilo and Kona locations. Na Leo Production Coordinators assist the public, educational and governmental sectors with storyboarding, scriptwriting, location selections (studio and field), talent, voice-overs, music selection (adhering to copyright regulations) and more.

Na Leo has a 10 year working relationship with Kealakehe High School in the production of "Kealakehe Daily Broadcast". Originally, programs were delivered to Na Leo on VHS format. Today Kealakehe submits their programs from their campus directly to Na Leo's FTP server with ease and efficiency. Na Leo has also worked with students at the University of Hawai'i at Hilo and West Hawai'i and Hilo Community College. Students have served internships at Na Leo as part of their course curriculum. Cameras and tripods were donated by Na Leo to the Hilo Community College Women's Center. Over the last two years, Makua Lani Christian High School students received training and produced programs that aired on Na Leo. Na Leo has also trained students from Hawai'i Academy of Arts & Science, a Pahoa Charter School, and provided funding for a field trip to the Hawai'i Legislature to visit Big Island Legislators. HAAS is currently part of a PBS statewide program (see Appendix A & B).

One of Na Leo's outstanding successes is a young Hawaiian man who won statewide recognition for his work, won an internship to WGBH-Boston and was subsequently invited by the premiere PBS station in the nation to develop a program. Another client was successful in having her dance program shown on commercial television.

In conjunction with the County of Hawai'i and First Hawaiian Bank, Na Leo sponsored the "Big Island Youth Video Contest" providing video production training classes to students on the Big Island that culminated with winners in elementary, middle and high school divisions. "Film Boot Camp" was held by Hawai'i Community College, its University of Hawaii Center, West Hawai'i and its Educational Talent Search Program in partnership with Na Leo O Hawaii to engage 6th through 9th grade students in purposeful summer activities (see Appendix C & D).

Na Leo currently produces "Hawai'i Island's Most Wanted" a project of Crime Stoppers Hilo, Inc., which is a partnership of the business community, the media and the police. The show was inspired by the national TV show, "America's Most Wanted" (see Appendix E). We have produced numerous public service announcements (PSAs) for various departments of Hawaii County including an informational video for the Kona Civic Center. Na Leo filmed and edited the 2012 Hawaii State Association of Counties Annual Meeting (HSAC). Over the years, Na Leo has filmed and edited the Kona-Kohala Chamber of Commerce Focus Luncheons with Governor Neil Abercrombie and Mayor Billy Kenoi as well as candidate forums. Additionally, Kona Town Meetings are filmed and edited by Na Leo.

Na Leo O Hawai'i has provided grants totaling $225,000 to the County of Hawai'i for filming and closed-captioning of County Council meetings.

"Big Island Video News," a daily broadcast (Monday through Friday) is a welcome addition to Na Leo's list of programs since 2010. It provides valuable local news information on what is happening on the Big Island.

Na Leo is the only entity whose cameras are allowed to film the Hoike night at the Merry Monarch Festival in Hilo each year.

Na Leo proposes continued and enhanced working relationships with the aforementioned entities of the Public, Educational and Governmental sectors of Hawai'i Island. We also commit to continued outreach for "The Voices of Hawai'i" which have yet to be heard.

Na Leo O Hawai'i's short-term and long-term plans for PEG access services in a designated franchise area

Short-Term Plans:

- Increase community outreach to non-profits, schools, youth groups, seniors and governmental agencies by hiring additional personnel to make personal contacts by visiting the targeted entities in person.

Our specific plan would begin with Waiakea Elementary and Middle Schools. The students from these schools will be given the opportunity to get 'hands-on' experience in the handling of a camera and tripod in addition to being the actual 'talent' for each video production. With the permission of the principals from each of these schools we will begin a monthly series entitled "Kid Talk" where students would be given one minute of air time to express themselves. These productions will be shot during the recess break so as not to intrude or interrupt with their academic curriculum.

Our short term goals for building Na Leo's relationships with non-profit agencies will begin with looking at which non-profit agencies share the same mission statement with us in addition to their committed involvement with our local communities. Our plan includes designing Public Service Announcements that will bring awareness to each respective non-profit organization. This purpose is to share the goals and objectives of these organizations with the general public while at the same time create a cohesive bond between our two organizations.

We also plan to work closely with Hawaii County governmental agencies to see how we can alert the Big Island communities about all of the different departmental agencies and the services which are available to Hawaii County residents.

- Continue monthly Video Production Training and provide additional workshops at the beginner, intermediate and advanced levels. With these offerings already in place, the next year's goal is to focus-in on what our current producers' needs are and how we can best accommodate them to make their video production presentations more efficient. In addition to offering our standard camera operating lessons, video edit training and studio production classes, we intend to delve into other technically related offerings to include specialty lighting, advanced studio productions, acting and directing workshops and new editing programs utilizing specialty graphics and text.

- Increase in-house production capacity. We are preparing for an increase in community video presentations through our new use of Robotic Technology that will allow community residents to book a reservation for use of a studio that has been pre-set to accommodate quick ‘turnaround’ use. We will be able to get more video productions done in a shorter amount of time. Our clients will be able to come in at a designated time and leave our facility with their project ‘in-hand’.
- Train, identify and assemble studio and field production crews by emphasizing the advantages of more professional looking videos if done in a team environment using the studios. Having a well-prepared crew will bond our in-house producers and instill a sense of pride throughout both of our facilities. Utilizing the technologically advanced ‘Newtek’ systems we will be able to ‘stream live’ direct from our studio to the worldwide web and increase our presence accordingly.
- Implement social media strategies to communicate with clients about classes, workshops, community events and other news. We have already begun using the social media sites, Facebook and Twitter in addition to the constant promotion on our Na Leo website. We feel that our focus with these sites will not only be more informative to new users but using all new social media will bring the needed visibility and accessibility to our current producers who may need information as it happens. Our intent is to provide classes on acting, directing, lighting and editing to help enhance the video projects of all of our producers.
- Exchange/share programs primarily with neighbor island PEGs, and also mainland PEG productions, if appropriate. We have built strong relationships with the other PEG facilities in Maui, Oahu and Kauai over the last few years with the help of our ACM seminar provider. Many programs produced at our neighbor island PEG centers feature a great deal of cultural, political, entertainment and spiritual insights that fulfill many needs of the general public.
- Implement live location broadcasting. With the purchase of the Newtek 8000 system we will be able to get information out to the community in real time. Prior to the availability of these systems to PEG providers, information at any live event would need to be taken in to the studio for editing and broadcast. This is not the case any longer thanks to the advancement of technology making it affordable for even the little PEG providers to compete with the larger commercial broadcast organizations. The Newtek 8000 system allows for a “Live Feed” direct to the internet via a dedicated cable access line making for important relevant communications for special events or emergency broadcast.
- Ensure all reports are submitted by deadlines outlined in the June 17, 1999 agreement with the DCCA and the December 22, 2003 letter from DCCA.

- Develop and keep updated a 5-year Strategic Plan.
- Building a permanent Kona facility. Purchasing property makes business sense in terms of increasing capital assets rather than simply expensing as rent. We are working with a local contractor to make this a reality. This new facility will be a ‘stand alone’ building that will house a full TV production studio as well as edit bays, office area and production workstations.
- Improve and expand Na Leo website functions.
- Archive additional video-on-demand by exploring different video-on-demand providers such as Granicus, rather than trying to develop our own.
- Continue to provide the daily Big Island Video News and explore the possibilities of using tablets, iPads and other new technologies for uploading news stories to Na Leo’s FTP server.

Long-Term Plans:

- Renew / Reinvent Na Leo by assuring our relevance in the digital future. Develop a committee comprised of board members, staff and producers to discuss new economic strategies, resources, approaches and technologies for public access in its rapidly changing environment.
- Focusing on the role television plays in our lives, Na Leo leads the Big Island’s community efforts in educating citizens to make and understand television. Public access is the means by which everyone can use television to speak to the world; therefore, Na Leo must continue to increase community outreach.
- Na Leo supports community organizations by providing training, consultation and resources to help them use television to get their messages out in ways they could never afford or otherwise communicate. Na Leo will continue partnering with community organizations on the Big Island.
- Provide training and support for the management, staff and Board of Directors to keep them apprised of changing technology and trends in community access television.
- Replace the old Interactive Video Bulletin Board and Calendar of Events with the new INFORMA 2 system, which would provide “up-to-date” detailed information on listed current events. By implementing the new INFORMA 2 system, viewers will still be able to access current events immediately without waiting for the viewing screen to refresh.

- Na Leo will continue to upgrade equipment and provide the technologies necessary to make programs easier to produce free of charge for the Big Island community.
- Continually seek producer input and suggestions by way of in-house news bulletins to improve Na Leo's services.
- Upgrade public information outreach regarding Na Leo's mission, purpose and services for public benefit.
- Increase community, educational and government events from producers, presenters and in-house production staff.
- Conduct a viewer survey measuring community interests and needs for public access services.
- Analyze and propose service support for meeting Hawaii Island Civil Defense needs.
- Replace or upgrade playback system in the next two to three years.
- Continue to keep abreast of new developments and platforms in camera, editing and social media technologies to improve better client experiences.

Na Leo O Hawai'i's Agreement to Expand the Marketplace of Ideas, and its Commitment to Allowing Members of the Public to Express Their First Amendment Free Speech Rights

Na Leo O Hawai'i is committed to expand the marketplace of ideas by promoting members of the public to express their first amendment free speech rights.

Na Leo O Hawai'i Mission:

"The mission of Na Leo O Hawai'i ("Na Leo") is to facilitate diverse community, education and government dialog and expression through television access for the people of the County of Hawai'i."

Na Leo O Hawai'i Bylaws:

Article III of Na Leo's bylaws states:

"The specific and primary purpose of the corporation is to plan, design, manage and promote the creation, production and cablecasting of noncommercial programs by and for the people of the Island of Hawai'i.

Such programs will be aimed at the preservation, development and enhancement of the diversity of thought, culture and heritage. Through these activities the corporation will facilitate access to lifelong learning and participation in the democratic process.

To this end the corporation shall:

- maintain those cable channels dedicated to public, educational and governmental use in a manner that is equitable and free of censorship and control of program content, except as necessary to comply with State or Federal law,*
- provide a range of resources for the planning, production and distribution of noncommercial programs for the users of these channels,*
- develop and enforce such rules and policies that will ensure equitable access to these channels and production consistent with applicable State or Federal laws,*
- maintain planning and research functions to keep abreast of new technologies which will improve the quantity and quality of communications among the communities of Hawai'i."*

Commitment to Expanding the Marketplace of Ideas:

- ❖ Na Leo O Hawai'i has set in motion a plan to utilize one of our studios as an 'all-inclusive' quick turn-around facility to maximize the number of projects that can be done in a day. Compared to other studios which need to be reset after each production, this 'Robotic Studio' will be set up to accommodate our clients which have messages or information to share that require very little props or stage furniture. By focusing in and separating these exclusive use clients, Na Leo will be able to quadruple the amount of productions in this one studio alone in addition to freeing up use of the second studio for larger production requirements.
- ❖ Na Leo's current Outreach Campaign continuously seeks "voices" of the public, educational and governmental sectors that have yet to be heard on Big Island Community Television. We intend to expand the market in two specific ways. The first is to involve the youth of the community by partnering up with elementary and middle schools. Our reach will first be to the various Student Activity Counselors and advisors who counsel the student government representatives. They will participate in a "Speak Out" forum on events and activities occurring throughout the school year in their respective schools. The second initiative would be to create relationships with Government leaders at the State and County level to make the general public aware of upcoming legislation affecting their respective communities. We receive occasional updates from Representative Mark Nakashima's office alerting us to upcoming events that are important to Big Island residents. We use this information to capture video footage, where possible, to share with other residents who may not be able to attend these events. Our hope is that we can continue to build the same relationships with other councilpersons, State senators and County officials to get the information in to the hands of those who need it.
- ❖ Na Leo is the community media center of the Big Island, offering the community opportunities to "tell their stories" via the technology we currently utilize and hope to employ in the future. The community media center is also set up to assist older clients that utilize VHS tapes and DVDs that need to be transferred to a more advanced technological medium such as zip drives and other digital devices.
- ❖ In the last few years we have added a satellite media center in North Kohala at the Kohala High School which was in great demand by members of the community. As this Island is divided into four major quadrants, we are hoping to provide one more satellite media center offering the same availability to digital media to the residents of south Kona, Ka'u and Puna. With this much needed expansion, Na Leo will be able to reach out to these rural communities and allow their ideas and expressions to be shared, thereby increasing our marketplace.

Na Leo O Hawai'i's Prior Dealings and Relationship with the State

Na Leo O Hawai'i has a long standing relationship with the State through contracts with the Department of Commerce and Consumer Affairs. Na Leo has been the provider of PEG Access services on Hawai'i since 1994.

Na Leo complies with all requests for information from the Department of Commerce and Consumer Affairs as well as management and inventory audits as ordered by the State. Na Leo management has always been and continues to be available to interact with the Department.

HAAS student film

► Big Island Weekly

On Friday, Aug. 27, a student-produced documentary on charter schools and educational reform will have its debut screening at the Hilo Palace Theater. The film entitled "Class of 2010" is a year-long project of HAAS Productions, a digital media program that provides the youth of Puna with real-world opportunities in TV and Film. The production team is based out of Hawaii Academy of Arts & Science public charter school and sponsored by the Pahoia non-profit Arts & Science Center.

Led by TV Producer and Teacher Gloria Baraquio, HAAS Productions first launched in August of 2008. With her experience in hosting, writing, producing, and teaching, Baraquio hoped to create a platform from which the youth of Puna could share their unique stories through the use of video and digital media. In the pilot year of the program, seven students were able to work at Na Leo studios and travel to the Hawaii State Capitol to interview Big Island lawmakers during legislative session. Students also interned on the "Living Local" set the set of "Predators," and met with various filmmakers in the industry. The Hawaii County recognized the students' efforts and awarded them $20,000 in June 2009 to fund their second year of production. The County recently awarded them an additional $25,000 for this coming 2010-11 school year. For their 2009-10 project, the HAAS Productions film students agreed that a documentary on charter schools was meaningful and relevant for this time. The students of HAAS felt the impacts of the budget cuts, and they wanted to find out why the cuts were happening and how their school could improve — and remain open. With their small at KYBC, and partnered with Shootz Studios of Honolulu to document interviews and events in Hawaii's education system this past year. Focusing mostly on HAAS and surrounding schools in Puna, "Class of 2010" explores what a charter school is, how charter schools are funded, what efforts schools and the DOE are making in educational reform, and how we all as a community can help. The film touches on issues faced in East Hawaii, emphasizing the fact that every community is unique in their strengths and their needs, urging the importance for local governance of Hawaii schools. The film also features the who are all trying to meet success in a rural district on the Big Island of Hawaii. "Class of 2010" is directed by Gloria Baraquio, edited by Erik Bathen, and produced by students Courtney Campbell, Akela Quin, Bailey Wooldridge, Tyler Flower, Raskassa Johnson, and Kayla Greenberg. The film will feature students, teachers, and administrators of HAAS, such as Steve Hirakami, Gail Clarke, and Patrick Baker, as well as Mayor Billy Kenoi, Councilwoman Emily Naeole-Beason, District Superintendent Mary Correa, Charter School Administrator and Interim Superintendent Kathryn Matayoshi. The film is professionally produced and edited by Baraquio and Bathen, but the story is told and filmed through the eyes of HAAS kids. The event will be held on Friday, Aug. 27 at the Palace Theater in Hilo and hosted by Big Island Film Commissioner John Mason. There will also be a Q&A session with the filmmakers followed by a reception. Doors open at 6 p.m. and the film begins at 7 p.m. For more information, visit www.haasproductions.com or www.hilopalace.com.

Who needs Hollywood?

CREATIVITY ROLLS AT KIDS' SUMMER FILM BOOT CAMP

BY KIM EATON
WEST HAWAII TODAY

Forget Hollywood. West Hawaii students are learning all they need about film production right here in Kona.

For the second year, University of Hawaii Center at West Hawaii teamed up with Na Leo O Hawaii to offer a Summer Film Boot Camp, a two-week film production training program that ends with participants becoming certified producers for the public access television station.

The program, open to sixth-through ninth-graders, started Monday at the community college campus and culminates July 24 with a premiere showing of the films created during the program.

"The overall purpose is to provide some meaningful, purposeful summer activities for youth. We targeted sixth- through ninth-grade because there doesn't seem to be much out there for them during the summer," said Beth Sanders, the campus' interim director. "We also wanted to make them more aware that college is an option."

COUNCILMAN WANTS DLNR TO BAN PRACTICE UNTIL RESEARCHED

BY CHELSEA JENSEN
WEST HAWAII TODAY
cjensen@westhawaii.com

A nonbinding resolution recommending the state Department of Land and Natural Resources halt the practice of exporting tropical fish collected from Big Island waters will be up for review by the Hawaii County Council's Committee on Human Services and Economic Development on Tuesday in Kona.

North Kona Councilman Kelly Greenwell, who introduced the resolution, said he wants the practice stopped for the time being until adequate scientific studies are conducted. Greenwell reiterated the resolution, which has no legal authority, does not seek to permanently ban collecting tropical fish for export.

While Greenwell said he realizes collecting tropical fish is a means of earning a living for some Big Islanders, studies need to be conducted to determine what impact the practice has on tropical fish populations. Once and policies involved. Then, they rolled into a video production class, which covered everything from pre-production meetings and planning to creating story boards and writing scripts.

Next came the fun part — camera operations. Students were taught how to use a camera to tell a story, as well as the importance of camera angles, lighting, audio and more. Finally came the editing process at Na Leo O Hawaii studio. Using two digital editing systems, one for PCs and one for Macs, students learned how to combine the clips, voice-overs, music and whatever else was needed to create their final product.

"The first step was thinking of a topic that would teach us a good lesson in life," said 11-year-old seventh-grader Anthony Palleschi. "There needs to be a beginning, middle and end, and it needs to flow together with the camera angles, lighting. You want something that will stay in people's minds."

As students worked with the cameras, they had to keep in mind lighting and audio. If there was wind in the background and the actor was not talking loud enough, then the wind would drown out the voice. Palleschi said.

"You also want to make sure your camera angles are good so you're not chopping people's heads off," said 14-year-old ninth-grader Angel Brown.

can be utilized in other fields, such as communications, sales, computer work and more, said Jon Sabati, Na Leo O Hawaii production coordinator and program instructor. In addition to film, students can also use what they learn to develop music videos and even video games.

"There's a lot of opportunities out there, but like any other career, you just have to go out and get the training," Sabati said. "And community TV is a great avenue for that."

Once students go through the program and become certified producers with Na Leo O Hawaii, they can use the studio's equipment for free. film public service announcements or short documentaries and have them aired on public access television, he said.

But some of the students weren't thinking that far ahead. They were just having a good time meeting other students and learning about film production.

Eighth-grader Tiger Oakes, 13, has been experimenting with creating videos at home for YouTube, and he hopes the program will help improve his skills.

"(Filmmaking) is just a hobby now. I'm more interested in computers, but I could see myself going into film, maybe fiction films as a director, or working with cameras or special effects," he said.

Whatever the students take away from the program, Sabati said he hopes they build confidence and learn to trust in themselves.

"What I really like is seeing the kids coming from all different districts, all walks of life, bringing them to the table and having them blend into something really cool," he said. "And they have fun while at the same time learning a valuable skill that will help them whether they pursue media arts or not. Hopefully one day I'll look up on the big screen and see one of their names."

Public access TV to air drug policy forum video

Efficacy founder: Treat drug use as public health issue, not one of crime

People who didn't get to see the recent campus presentation in Hilo by drug policy reform advocate Clifford Wallace Thornton Jr. can view the program starting today on public access television channels 53 and 54.

Thornton, a resident of Hartford, Conn., and founder of Efficacy, a nonprofit organization to "educate about drug policy reform," was the special guest at a forum last month at the University of Hawaii at Hilo.

Thornton and others in the Efficacy movement make the case that drug use should be handled as a public health issue, not one of crime.

The organization believes America's "War on Drugs" has not been successful, and has, instead, created drug gangs and cartels as well as "turning the average citizen user into a criminal, even when no violence or criminal behavior is involved."

"As in the case of our financial markets, there is a need for regulation and control by our government," Thornton said. "The resulting taxes and the moneys saved from prosecuting and imprisoning drug-related cases could provide much-needed health care and other services."

During his Hilo presentation, he also spoke in support of voting for Ballot Question No. 1, an option on the General Election ballot that would make cannabis the lowest law-enforcement priority for police.

The video lasts 30 minutes and can be viewed on Na Leo o Hawaii cable access at the following times. It was produced by Island Eyes Video Journalism as a public service, said spokeswoman Mary Marvin Porter.

The program will be shown on channel 53 today at 8:30 a.m., Saturday at 1:30 p.m., Sunday at 7:30 p.m. and Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Public access channel 54

will broadcast the show at 5 p.m. Wednesday and 9:30 p.m. on Thursday. On Friday, Oct. 31, the show will air at 9:30 p.m. On Saturday, Nov. 1, it will air at 3 p.m. The show also can be seen at 5:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 2, and at 8 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 3.
