General Instructions

Note: The federal provisions in the: (1) Tax Increase Prevention and Reconciliation Act of 2005, (2) Small Business and Work Opportunity Tax Act of 2007, and (3) Tax Cuts and Jobs Act of 2017 relating to minor children whose unearned income is taxed as if it were their parent's income have not been adopted for Hawaii income tax purposes at the present time.

Purpose of Form.—Use this form if you are a parent and elect to report your child's income on your return. If you do, your child will not have to file a return. You can make this election if your child meets all of the following conditions:

- The child was under age 14 at the end of 2018. A child born on January 1, 2005 is considered to be age 14 at the end of 2018.
- The child's only income was from interest and dividends, including capital gain distributions and Alaska Permanent Fund dividends.
- The child's gross income for 2018 was more than $500 but less than $5,000.

- The child is required to file a 2018 return.
- There were no estimated tax payments for the child for 2018 (including any overpayment of tax from his or her 2017 return applied to 2018 estimated tax).
- There was no federal income tax withheld from the child's income (backup withholding).
You must also qualify as explained in these instructions.

Part I is used to figure the amount of your child's income to report on your return. Part II is used to figure any additional tax that must be added to your tax.

How To Make the Election.—To make the election, complete and attach Form(s) N-814 to your tax return and file your return by the due date (including extensions). A separate Form N-814 must be filed for each child whose income you choose to report.

Caution: The income tax on your child's income may be less if you file a separate tax return for the child instead of making this election. This is because you cannot take certain deductions that your child could take on his or her own return. For details, see Deductions You Cannot Take below.

Parents Who Qualify To Make the Election.—You qualify to make this election if you file Form N-11 or N-15 and any of the following apply:

- You are filing a joint return for 2018 with the child's other parent.
- You and the child's other parent were married to each other but file separate returns for 2018 and you had the higher taxable income.
- You were unmarried, treated as unmarried for income tax purposes, or separated from the child's other parent by a divorce or separate maintenance decree. The child must have lived with you for most of the year (you were the custodial parent). If you were the custodial parent and you remarried, you can make the election on a joint return with your new spouse (your child's step-parent). But if you and your new spouse do not file a joint return, you qualify to make the election only if you had higher taxable income than your new spouse.

Note: If you and the child's other parent were not married but you lived together during the year with the child, you qualify to make the election only if you are the parent with the higher taxable income.

Deductions You Cannot Take.—If you elect to report your child's income on your return, you cannot take certain deductions that your child could take on his or her own return such as:

- Standard deduction of $500.
- Penalty on early withdrawal of child's savings.
- Itemized deductions such as the child's investment expenses or charitable contributions.

If any of the above applies to your child, first figure the tax on your child's income as if he or she is filing a return. Next, figure the tax as if you are electing to report your child's income on your return. Then, compare the two methods to determine which results in the lower tax.

Investment Interest Expense. —Your child's income (excluding Alaska Permanent Fund dividends and capital gain distributions) that you report on your return is considered to be your investment income for purposes of figuring your investment interest expense deduction. If your child received Alaska Permanent Fund dividends or capital gain distributions, see federal Publication 550, Investment Income and Expenses, to figure the amount you can treat as your investment income.

Additional Information.—For more information, see federal Publication 929, Tax Rules for Children and Dependents.
