After deliberating at length on whether revenue estimates of the council should be binding upon the governor and the legislature, your Committee recommends that the council's estimates not be made mandatory. Since members of the council would be appointed and not accountable to the electorate, your Committee feels that requiring the executive and the legislature to be bound by the council's revenue estimates would severely restrict executive and legislative authority in the budgetary process. However, although the revenue estimates of the council are not binding, they cannot be ignored by either the governor or the legislature. The language of the proposal requires that the estimates be considered by the governor and the legislature. The requirement that all estimates and the reasons for any deviation from them, be made public further assures that the governor and the legislature must give serious consideration to the estimates.

Although your Committee received proposals detailing the establishment and implementation of the council, your Committee feels that the legislature would be a more appropriate body to set out the organization and responsibilities of the council. Accordingly, your Committee has adopted a proposal which would leave such details as the composition of the council and the times at which revenue estimates must be submitted to be provided by law.

Your Committee reserves the right to introduce a proposal recommending the establishment of a council on revenues should the Committee on Taxation and Finance fail to act favorably on your Committee's recommendation.

Accordingly, your Committee on Executive submits the attached committee proposal and recommends (1) that the above-numbered proposals referred to your Committee be filed; and (2) that Committee Proposal No. 9 pass first reading in the form attached hereto.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates DiBianco, Eastvold, Les Ihara and Nakamura.

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL NO. 9

RELATING TO EXECUTIVE AND ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICES AND DEPARTMENTS.

RESOLVED, that the following be agreed upon as amending Article IV of the State Constitution.

1. Article IV, Section 6, is amended to read:

EXECUTIVE AND ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICES AND DEPARTMENTS

Section 6. All executive and administrative offices, departments and instrumentalities of the state government and their respective [functions,] powers and duties shall be allocated by law among and within not more than twenty principal departments in such manner as to group the same according to [major purposes so far as practicable.] common purposes and related functions. Temporary commissions or agencies for special purposes may be established by law and need not be allocated within a principal department.

Each principal department shall be under the supervision of the governor and, unless otherwise provided in this constitution or by law, shall be headed by a single executive. Such single executive shall be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the governor and he shall hold office for a term to expire at the end of the term for which the governor was elected, unless sooner removed by the governor; except that the removal of the chief legal officer of the State shall be subject to the advice and consent of the senate.

Except as otherwise provided in this constitution, whenever a board, commission or other body shall be the head of a principal department of the state government, the members thereof shall be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the governor. The term of office and removal of such members shall be as prescribed by law. Such board, commission or other body may appoint a principal executive officer, who, when authorized by law, may be ex officio a voting member thereof, and who may be removed by a majority vote of the members appointed by the governor.

The governor shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint all officers for whose election or appointment provision is not otherwise made by this constitution or by law. If the manner of removal of an officer is not prescribed in this constitution, his removal shall be in a manner prescribed by law.

When the senate is not in session and a vacancy occurs in any office, appointment to which requires the confirmation of the senate, the governor may fill the office by granting a commission which shall, unless such appointment is confirmed, expire at the end of the next session of the senate; but the person so appointed shall not be eligible for another interim appointment to such office if the appointment shall have failed of confirmation by the senate.

No person who has been nominated for appointment to any office and whose appointment has not received the consent of the senate shall be eligible to an interim appointment thereafter to such office.

Every officer appointed under the provisions of this section shall be a citizen of the United States and shall have been a resident of this State for at least one year immediately preceding his appointment; except that this residence requirement shall not apply to the president of the University of Hawaii.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 52

Your Committee on the Judiciary has received and considered the following proposals: 57, 66, 74, 80, 83, 98, 101, 105, 110, 125, 126, 128, 129, 139, 141, 143, 159, 180, 229, 234, 239, 240, 268, 286, 289, 290, 348, 424, 425, 440, 452, 496, 502, 545, 548, 576, 668, 669, 670, 689, 725, 728, 777 and 786. For purposes of clarity and organization, these proposals were grouped into common topic areas. This format was employed in the holding of public hearings and in the consideration of proposals referred to your Committee. The topics and the respective proposals which relate to them are as follows: proposals 66, 440 and 502, relating to the election of judges; proposals 57, 80, 98, 110, 128, 129, 139, 159, 180, 234, 239, 240, 290, 348, 545, 576, 689 and 725, relating to judicial selection commissions; proposals 66, 83, 110, 159, 180, 234, 239, 268, 425, 440, 452 and 786, relating to judicial qualifications; proposals 83, 105, 110, 126, 180, 286, 496, 669 and 777, relating to expansion of the supreme court and intermediate appellate court; proposals 66, 74, 80, 83, 98, 105, 110, 139, 141, 180, 234, 239, 240, 289, 440 and 576, relating to judicial discipline, removal and retirement; proposals 83, 105, 289, 496 and 728, relating to judicial compensation; proposals 66, 80, 83, 98, 101, 105, 110, 139, 180, 234, 239, 240, 289, 348, 440, 496, 502 and 576, relating to judicial tenure; proposals 110, 180 and 234, relating to the rule-making power of the supreme court; proposals 110, 180 and 234, relating to the administration power of the chief justice; proposals 125, 143, 229, 286, 424, 548, 668, 669, 670 and 777, relating to miscellaneous topics. Your Committee begs leave to report as follows:

The proposals referred to this committee for consideration covered all of the existing sections in Article V and also sought to add new sections to Article V.

All public and committee hearings were open to the general public. Hearings were held on the outer islands of Hawaii, Kauai, Maui and Molokai, as well as leeward and windward Oahu. No person or organization asking to testify at a public hearing was denied that opportunity. All interested persons and organizations were encouraged to testify and present all sides of issues under consideration. The following persons either testified or submitted written testimony to this committee: Lieutenant Governor Nelson K. Doi; Chief Justice William S. Richardson, Supreme Court of Hawaii; Judge Martin Pence, United States District Court, Hawaii; Judge Kei Hirano, Kauai County District Court; Judge Norito Kawakami, Interim Kauai County Circuit Court; Judge John C. Lanham, Oahu County Circuit Court; Mr. William J. Sollner; Mr. H. Adalist; Mr. Walter Ritte; Mrs. Christine Teruya; Mr. Peter Kawaha; Mrs. Ann Simpson, Chamber of Commerce; Mr. Mario Roberti, Chamber of Commerce; Daniel Case, Esq., President, Hawaii State Bar Association; Alan Ashman, Esq., American Judicature Society; Frank Damon, Esq.; William Flemming, Esq.; Clinton R. Ashford, Esq.; Peter Char, Esq.; Edmund Burke, Esq.; Harry Tanaka, Esq.; Larry Takumi, Esq.; Theodore Tsukiyama, Esq.; Thomas M. Waddoups, Esq.; Dennis E.W. O'Connor, Esq.; David Schutter, Esq.; Theodore Meeker, Esq.; Alan Okamoda, Esq.; Delegate Allen Barr; Delegate Naomi Campbell; Delegate Laura Ching; Delegate Thomas H. Hamilton; Delegate Gerald Hagino; Delegate Helene Hale; Delegate C. Randall Peterson; Delegate Marcelliano Villaverde; and Delegate Steve O'Toole.

This committee proposal has been prepared using the Ramseyer Method, which indicates constitutional material to be deleted by brackets and new material by underscoring. It is intended that the Committee on Style may exclude the brackets and bracketed material, or the underscoring.

Your Committee on the Judiciary recommends that Section 1 of Article V be amended to read as follows:

"JUDICIARY POWER

"Section 1. The judicial power of the State shall be vested in one supreme court, one intermediate appellate court, circuit courts, district courts, and in such [inferior] other courts as the legislature may from time to time establish. The several courts shall have original and appellate jurisdiction as provided by law [.] and shall establish time limits for disposition of cases in accordance with its rules."

Many of the proposals submitted called for provisions to amend Sections 1 and 2 of this article to either create an intermediate appellate court or expand the present supreme court and allow the justices to sit in panels. These proposals addressed the basic concern over the evergrowing congestion of cases at the appellate level of our judicial system and the concurrent increase in the length of time for both civil and criminal cases to reach a conclusion. Testimony was received from Chief Justice William S. Richardson as well as many distinguished members of the local bar as to these increases in delays and the detriment caused not only to individual members of the public but also to the overall effectiveness of the administration of justice in Hawaii.

Some of the factors contributing to this rapidly expanding caseload include the population growth of the State, the greater number of attorneys admitted to practice, easier access to the courts, expansion of the rights of criminal defendants, an increased tendency of litigants to exercise their right of appeal, the establishment of district courts as courts of record with rights of direct appeal to the supreme court, the creation of new administrative agencies and an increase in complex legislation requiring interpretation by the supreme court. As the only court of review, the five-member supreme court must presently review all appeals from the State's trial courts. Moreover, this trend toward a growing appellate case docket shows no sign of subsiding and appears to be part of a general nationwide trend.

The supreme court has implemented internal procedures to alleviate some of the appellate congestion. Although increasing the number of matters it terminates each year, the court has not been able to significantly reduce the pending caseload because of the increasing number of cases appealed. The present appellate structure in Hawaii can no longer provide a satisfactory appellate process that gives each case the attention and deliberation it needs and yet not unduly delay justice.

Your Committee, after careful consideration of all proposed solutions to the appellate congestion, recommends the establishment of an intermediate appellate court as the best, most effective and permanent solution to the problem. It is intended that the major duty of the intermediate appellate court will be to handle the more routine appellate cases of reviewing trial court determinations for errors and then correcting such errors. This function is presently performed by the supreme court. By being relieved of this necessary but time-consuming function, the supreme court can devote more time to its principal duty of selective review and formulation of decisional law. It is intended, however, that both the supreme court and the intermediate appellate court have jurisdiction to hear all types of cases. A unitary filing system would be instituted, by which all cases on appeal would be filed with one clerk's office and would require only one filing fee regardless of which court, or if both appellate courts, review the case. The supreme court could use a bypass mechanism to immediately hear, in its discretion, special types of appeals. Although all double appeals would not be avoided, this mechanism would keep those to a minimum. It is intended, however, that in most instances, appellate review would be terminated at the intermediate appellate level. This two-tiered appellate system would preserve the vital law-shaping function of the supreme court and also insure a litigant's right to a meaningful appeal by affording a review on the merits without unnecessary delay.

Some members of your Committee expressed concern about the cost of establishing an intermediate appellate court. All testimony agreed that there is a growing volume of appellate cases on top of an already large backlog of cases. Most testimony agreed that the solution lay in either an enlarged supreme court or establishment of an intermediate appellate court. Your Committee believes that the difference in cost between either enlarging the supreme court or establishing an intermediate appellate court is small. The increased efficiency and permanence of an intermediate appellate court outweighs the small cost difference. Moreover, an enlarged supreme court would not preclude the possibility of needing an intermediate appellate court at a later date; in this case, any present cost savings would be lost and, further, greater future expense to the public could be required.

In general your Committee believes that, if an expanded supreme court were provided now, it would be difficult to reduce the size of the supreme court even though later an intermediate appellate court would be needed.

In addition to establishing an intermediate appellate court, your Committee recommends that each court directly address the problem of delays in disposing of cases by establishing time limitations to aid in the just disposition of its cases. Your Committee believes that, if an intermediate appellate court is authorized to cope with the delay in processing appeals, it would be fair to require courts to make their decisions within a reasonable time. Although your Committee does not believe it prudent to include time limits as a constitutional provision, it believes that the courts should establish them by rules.

The existing language in Section 1 of this article does not refer to district courts but only to "inferior courts." Your Committee recommends that the district courts be constitutionally mandated. District courts are presently created by statute; by giving them constitutional recognition, your Committee acknowledges their status as official courts of record. In order to give the legislature further flexibility in this area, your Committee also recommends the addition of the phrase "other courts" to allow the creation of other more limited forums for public redress if required in the future.

Your Committee therefore recommends that Section 1 be amended to include an intermediate appellate court and district courts as well as those courts of original and appellate jurisdiction now authorized in this article, and to mandate those courts to establish time limitations in the disposition of cases.

Your Committee on the Judiciary recommends that Section 2 of Article V be amended to read as follows:

"SUPREME COURT; APPELLATE COURT

"Section 2. The supreme court shall consist of a chief justice and four associate justices. [When necessary, the] The chief justice [shall] may assign a judge or judges of the intermediate appellate court or a circuit court to serve temporarily on the supreme court, a judge of the circuit court to serve temporarily on the intermediate appellate court, and a judge of the district court to serve temporarily on the circuit court. As prescribed by law, retired justices of the supreme court also may serve temporarily on the supreme court at the request of the chief justice. In case of a vacancy in the office of chief justice or if he is ill, absent or otherwise unable to serve, an associate justice designated in accordance with the rules of the supreme court shall serve temporarily in his place."

Your Committee believes that the existing constitutional authorization for the assigning of a judge or judges from the court below to satisfy temporary needs on the supreme court is equally applicable to the intermediate appellate court and circuit courts. Moreover, the supreme court could now draw needed help from either the intermediate appellate court or the circuit courts in addition to retired justices. In this manner, any sudden change in workload or staffing at the supreme court, intermediate appellate court or circuit court level could temporarily be relieved without the necessity of legislative action. This would give the judiciary greater flexibility and the capacity to better serve the judicial needs of the public.

Your Committee received proposals recommending the size and structure of an intermediate appellate court. However, your Committee feels that the legislature is better able to structure the intermediate appellate court and makes no recommendation in that regard.

Your Committee therefore recommends that Section 2 be amended to include provisions for temporary service on the supreme court, intermediate appellate court and circuit courts.

Your Committee on the Judiciary recommends that paragraph 1, of Section 3, Article V, be amended to read as follows:

"APPOINTMENT OF JUSTICES AND JUDGES

"Section 3. The governor shall [nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint the justices of the supreme court and the judges of the circuit courts. No nomination shall be sent to the senate, and no interim appointment shall be made when the senate is not in session, until after ten days' public notice by the governor.], with the consent of the senate, fill a vacancy in the office of the chief justice, supreme court, intermediate appellate court and circuit courts, by appointing a person from a list of not less than six nominees for the vacancy, presented to the governor by the judicial selection commission.

"If the governor should fail to make the appointment within thirty days of presentation, the appointment shall be made by the judicial selection commission from the list with the consent of the senate. If the senate should fail to consent to any appointment, whether by the governor or commission, the commission shall make the appointment from the list, without senate consent.

"The chief justice shall fill a vacancy in the district courts by appointing a person from a list of not less than six nominees for the vacancy presented by the judicial commission. If the chief justice fails to make the appointment within 30 days of presentation, the appointment shall be made by the judicial selection commission from the list. The chief justice shall appoint per diem district court judges in accordance with law."

Your Committee, after careful consideration, decided to change the present system of appointment of justices and judges. The issue of judicial selection elicited considerable interest among the public as well as the delegates. The bulk of the proposals submitted and testimony received by this committee touched on this particular subject. By far, the clear majority of those testifying strongly supported the concept of a nonpartisan judicial selection commission that could screen qualified candidates for judicial appointments. Among those supporting such a commission was the Hawaii State Bar Association, with membership composed of 80% of the bar. The major fear expressed by those testifying was that under the present appointive system the possibility of political influence, and the potential for abuse, is too great a risk to leave unaddressed. The public should not be deprived of having the most qualified candidate for a judicial appointment.

Although your Committee recognizes that politics or political influence over appointments even with a judicial selection commission may not be completely eliminated, it was the near unanimous consensus of your Committee that a nonpartisan commission would be an improvement over the present selection process, by which one person selects a justice or judge without the benefit of input from others.

Presently, 29 states have adopted some form of judicial selection commission for all or some of the courts within those states. Such a selection process has been tried and proven successful. At the time of the 1968 convention, only 13 states had adopted such a plan. The present trend is clearly in the direction of judicial selection commissions as the best means of obtaining qualified justices and judges.

Your Committee received considerable testimony as to the benefits of such a plan. Your Committee believes the following summary of major reasons supports a commission:

1. It removes the selection of judges from the political consideration of one person and places it in the hands of a nonpartisan board of citizens;
2. The choice of nominees is made without consideration or influence of partisan politics;
3. It forms an independent panel of commissioners whose sole and exclusive function is to seek out, encourage and screen all candidates for judicial appointment;
4. It includes both lawyers and laypersons' views in the selection of judges; and
5. It permits consideration of many more qualified candidates who might otherwise be overlooked by one person.

During the course of public hearings and committee discussions, a number of proposals relating to how the selection process would function were presented for your Committee's consideration. Your Committee recommends the following process as being the fairest and best method, one that will provide input from all segments of the public, include a system of checks and balances and be nonpartisan.

This section envisions two separate but similar processes for the selection of justices and judges, depending upon which court has the vacancy. If a vacancy occurs in the office of the chief justice, the supreme court, the newly created intermediate appellate court or a circuit court, the governor as the appointing authority, must interact with the judicial selection commission. Once the governor selects a name from those submitted by the commission, the senate must then confirm the name. However, if a vacancy occurs in the district court, the chief justice of the supreme court, as the appointing authority, must interact with the judicial selection commission. Senate confirmation is not needed in this instance.

When a judicial vacancy occurs, the judicial selection commission presents to either the governor or the chief justice a list of not less than six candidates for the position. Your Committee recommends no time limitation before which the commission must present the list to either the governor or the chief justice. It is intended, however, that the commission act deliberately and carefully in preparing the list and yet also remember the needs of the public in having the position filled.

Your Committee deliberated about the number of nominees that the commission could submit for a vacancy and decided that not less than six would be best. It was felt that this number was large enough to give either the governor or chief justice ample choice yet at the same time small enough to insure that only the most qualified candidates would be on the list.

It is intended that every judicial vacancy be considered a statewide appointment. By having a list of not less than six, nominees from neighbor islands could be included. A smaller list might preclude broader consideration of otherwise qualified candidates. Your Committee recognizes that nominating a candidate from a neighbor island for a neighbor island vacancy might cause potential problems of conflict if that candidate were appointed. It may be difficult to find a neighbor island candidate who has not been involved to some degree in cases that may come before him or her as a judge on that island, thereby requiring disqualification from hearing those cases. However, your Committee suggests that all qualified candidates from every community be considered for any vacancy.

If more than one vacancy for justice or judge exists at any one time, the commission may submit a separate list of not less than six for each vacancy. Names on one list may be repeated on the second list. If one of the six nominees withdraws from consideration before the governor or chief justice has made the appointment, it is intended that the commission complete the list by adding another nominee before the appointment is made. In consideration of the methods by which names of qualified candidates would be submitted to the governor or chief justice, much thought and concern was expressed over the setting of definite limits within which the governor or chief justice would have to act. After much deliberation and vigorous discussion, your Committee decided that the governor and the chief justice would each have 30 days to act on the list of nominees from the time the list is presented. In the event the governor or the chief justice fails to act within the allotted time, then the commission would make the appointment from the list. Senate confirmation would still be required for any appointment except a district court vacancy. Where senate confirmation is required but is not received, the governor must make another selection from the original list of not less than six until the list has been exhausted. If that circumstance should ever arise, the commission may make the appointment from any nominee on the original list without senate confirmation. It is the intent of your Committee to ensure that timely action be taken on a pending judicial vacancy. The time limitations will prevent any of the bodies or offices involved from attempting to circumvent or frustrate the use of the selection commission in the appointment process and yet operate as a balance and check in the process.

Your Committee does not intend that the selection of per diem district court judges be made through the judicial selection commission process. These judges are part-time and serve on an as-needed basis depending on the district court workload and the availability of full-time district judges. Because per diem district judges are needed on short notice, your Committee believes that the chief justice should be left to appoint such judges. Therefore, your Committee provides that the chief justice will make per diem district court appointments in accordance with law.

Your Committee recognizes that the use of a judicial selection commission is a more complex means of selecting judges than the previous appointment process. Many questions are left unanswered as to how the commission and process may function in different instances. However, it is your Committee's firm belief that the judicial selection commission will provide a judiciary that will be better qualified in the long run to deal with increasing and increasingly complex litigation.

Your Committee also weighed proposals to elect judges as an alternative to the present appointment process. Testimony indicated that while the election method of selection does have a place in the legislative branch of government, the judiciary requires independence if it is to remain an effective check upon the other two branches of government. The financial and political burdens that would accompany an electoral method of selecting judges were among the major disadvantages pointed out. Your Committee feels strongly that judges should not be elected to office.

Your Committee therefore recommends that paragraph 1 of Section 3, Article V, be amended to require that the governor and chief justice select their nominees for judicial vacancies from lists of qualified candidates submitted by a judicial selection commission. It is also recommended that this section be further amended to require that any selection be confirmed by the senate where the appointment is made by the governor and that action by either the governor or chief justice be completed within thirty (30) days of presentation. In the event that this time limit expires or the senate rejects every name on the list, the commission would make the appointment. The chief justice will continue to appoint per diem judges.

Your Committee on the Judiciary recommends that paragraph 2 of Section 3, Article V, be amended to read as follows:

"QUALIFICATIONS FOR APPOINTMENT

"[No justice or judge shall hold any other office or position of profit under the State or the United States. No person shall be eligible for the office of justice or judge unless he shall have been admitted to practice law before the supreme court of this State for at least ten years. Any justice or judge who shall become a candidate for an elective office shall thereby forfeit his office.] Justices and judges shall be residents and citizens of the State and of the United States, and licensed to practice law by the supreme court. A justice of the supreme court, a judge of the intermediate appellate court and a judge of the circuit court shall have been so licensed for a period of not less than ten years preceding his nomination. A judge of the district court shall have been so licensed for a period of not less than five years preceding his nomination.

"No justice or judge shall, during his term of office, engage in the practice of law, or run for or hold any other office or position of profit under the United States, the State, or its political subdivisions."

The existing paragraph in Section 3 of Article V does not specifically require justices and judges to be residents of this State and citizens of the United States. The reason for this apparent omission was that in 1968 the requirement that a justice or a judge be a licensed attorney in Hawaii included the requirement of citizenship and residence. Citizenship is no longer a requirement for license to practice law. The additions of residency and citizenship requirements serve two extremely important purposes. First, the residency requirement helps to ensure that a justice or judge would be a part of the community, aware of events in the community and sensitive to the values of the people over whom he or she would sit in judgment. Second, citizenship ensures that a judge, as an officer of the court, is sworn not only to uphold the laws and to implement the values implicit in those laws but also to carry out justice as it has been defined in this society.

The other major issue in the area of judicial qualifications is the requirement that justices and judges be attorneys and licensed for at least 10 years before being nominated for the bench. Although a few proposals and some testimony were received in support of allowing lay people to be judges, the large majority of the proposals supported retention of the requirement that judges be attorneys and that they have practiced for a specified length of time.

Your Committee recommends that the 10-year practice requirement should be kept for supreme court and circuit court judges and added for intermediate appellate court judges, and that a 5-year practice requirement, now provided for by statute, be constitutionally mandated for district court judges. Your Committee feels that the minimum practice requirement is necessary to ensure that justices and judges are sufficiently knowledgeable and experienced to carry out the laws of this State fairly and efficiently. It is also hoped that the 5-year requirement for district court judges would encourage younger attorneys to consider careers on the bench.

Finally, your Committee recommends the addition of prohibitions which would forbid a judge from engaging in the practice of law or holding any other office of profit under the United States, the State or any of its political subdivisions while in judicial service. It is the intent of your Committee to eliminate any possibility of conflict of interest that might arise through either the private or the public sector.

Your Committee on the Judiciary recommends that paragraph 3 of Section 3, Article V, be amended to read as follows:

"TENURE; COMPENSATION; RETIREMENT

"The term of office of [a justice of the supreme court and of a judge of a circuit court shall be ten years. They shall receive for their services such compensation as may be prescribed by law, but no less than twenty-eight thousand dollars for the chief justice, twenty-seven thousand dollars for associate justices and twenty-five thousand dollars for circuit court judges, a year.] justices and judges of the supreme court, intermediate appellate court and circuit courts shall be ten years. Judges of district courts shall hold office for the periods prescribed by law. At least six months prior to the expiration of his term of office, every justice and judge shall petition the judicial selection commission to be retained in office or shall inform the commission of his intention to retire. If the judicial selection commission determines that the justice or judge should be retained in office, the commission shall renew his term of office for the period prescribed by law.

"There shall be a salary commission to review and recommend salaries for justices and judges of all state courts. Justices and judges shall have salaries as prescribed by law. Their compensation shall not be decreased during their respective terms of office, unless by general law applying to all salaried officers of the State. They shall be retired upon attaining the age of seventy years. They shall be included in any retirement law of the State."

Your Committee recommends the deletion of existing language which sets forth outdated minimum amounts of compensation for the various courts. While your Committee agrees with the findings of the 1968 judiciary committee that the legislature can adequately deal with this issue, your Committee feels that there is now greater justification for the creation of a salary commission to periodically review and recommend salaries to the legislature for all justices and judges in the State. Your Committee recognizes the need to attract more qualified people from the private sector to serve on the judiciary. This can only be done by the payment of salaries commensurate with the position. Testimony from Chief Justice William Richardson indicates that the judiciary would not be adverse to having their salaries reviewed and amounts recommended by a salary commission. It is the intent of your Committee that such a salary commission be set up to periodically review judicial salaries. In this way, fair salaries for the justices and judges can be ascertained. Your Committee does not, however, make specific recommendations as to how this commission is to be set up and if it is to be a separate judicial salary commission or if it can better be combined with other salary commissions or other judicial commissions. Your Committee feels that the legislature can more adequately define the commission.

The 10-year terms of tenure for supreme court and circuit court judges have been maintained and provision made for the same term for intermediate appellate court judges. It is felt that terms of this length give a judge job security and independence from the appointing authority. Furthermore, a term of this length would allow a new judge enough time to learn and mature in his role as an arbiter of the law. It is felt that all of these justifications in support of the 10-year term of tenure are equally applicable to the new intermediate appellate court. In regard to district courts, it is intended that their terms of office be set by law.

Finally, your Committee recommends that any justice or judge petition the judicial selection commission for retention in office, or inform them of his or her intent to retire. Your Committee is of the opinion that retention through review by a nonpartisan commission is more desirable than simple reappointment by either the governor or the chief justice. It is intended that the commission in its review and retention function again perform the same function of excluding or at least lessening partisan political actions and also ensure that capable judges are kept on the bench. This review and retention process, in tandem with the judicial selection commission is intended to provide an unbiased and effective method of maintaining the quality of our jurists.

Your Committee therefore recommends that paragraph 3 of Section 3, Article V, be amended to retain the 10-year term of tenure, and extend its application to the new appellate court, while allowing the legislature to set the tenure of district court judges. It is also recommended that salary commissions be created in order to provide periodic review of salaries. Finally, it is recommended that retention of justices and judges be addressed by the judicial selection commission.

Your Committee on the Judiciary recommends that Section 4 of Article V be amended to read as follows:

"RETIREMENT [FOR INCAPACITY AND]; REMOVAL; DISCIPLINE

"Section 4. [Whenever a commission or agency, authorized by law for such purpose, shall certify to the governor that any justice of the supreme court or judge of a circuit court appears to be so incapacitated as substantially to prevent him from performing his judicial duties or has acted in a manner that constitutes willful misconduct in office, willful and persistent failure to perform his duties, habitual intemperance, or conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice that brings the judicial office into disrepute, the governor shall appoint a board of three persons, as provided by law, to inquire into the circumstances. If the board recommends that the justice or judge should not remain in office, the governor shall remove or retire him from office.] The supreme court shall have power to reprimand, discipline, suspend with or without salary, retire and remove from office, for misconduct or disability, any justice or judge, according to such rules governing exercise of this power as the supreme court shall adopt.

"The supreme court shall create a commission on judicial discipline which shall have authority to investigate and conduct hearings concerning allegations of misconduct or disability and to make recommendations to the supreme court concerning reprimand, discipline, suspension, retirement or removal of any justice or judge."

Under the existing provision concerning judicial discipline, the governor is given not only the power to appoint a board of inquiry to investigate charges against judges but also the responsibility of removing a judge if that board so recommends. Testimony received indicated that this power over investigation of and action on disciplinary problems of judges is more appropriately placed within the judiciary. Your Committee recommends that this power should lie with the judiciary. It is intended that courts should be able to police their own ranks and in that way preserve their independence from the other branches of government. This power of the supreme court is further intended to extend over all levels of the judiciary.

The range of action now permitted under the constitutional provision is limited to either retirement or removal of a judicial officer. Your Committee received testimony from Chief Justice William Richardson and from the local bar association regarding the desirability not only of transferring to the supreme court the power to review the judicial ranks but more importantly of allowing the supreme court to use varying degrees of judicial discipline. It is intended that the disciplinary body should be able to apply less drastic disciplinary measures, such as reprimand, discipline and suspension with or without salary. This wide range of penalties would allow the courts to be policed for more than just grave breaches of discipline.

Finally, the new disciplinary authority would be required to create a judicial discipline commission designed to have investigatory powers to conduct hearings and to make recommendations as to appropriate punishment.

Your Committee recommends that the commission which is to be created by the supreme court to investigate any complaints should be completely separate from the body which is to adjudicate the recommendations concerning the charges. This separateness is important and must be recognized in order to preserve the integrity of that system.

Your Committee therefore recommends that Section 4 be amended to transfer disciplinary power to the supreme court along with the power to create a new and different judicial commission whose purpose is to investigate complaints and make recommendations. Further, it is recommended that Section 4 be amended to expand the scope of those punishments available to include reprimand, discipline and suspension.

Your Committee on the Judiciary recommends that a new section, to be appropriately designated, be included in Article V, to read as follows:

"THE JUDICIAL SELECTION COMMISSION

"Section . There shall be a judicial selection commission that shall consist of nine members. The governor shall appoint three members to the commission, the initial appointments to be for terms of two, four and six years respectively. The senate and the house of representatives shall each respectively elect one member to the commission, the initial appointments to be for a term of two years respectively. The supreme court shall elect two members to the commission, the initial appointment to be for terms of four and six years respectively. Members in good standing of the bar of the state shall elect two of their number to the commission in an election conducted by the supreme court or its delegate, the initial election to be for terms of four and six years respectively.

"The commission shall be selected and shall operate in a wholly nonpartisan manner. After the initial formation of the commission, elections and appointments to the commission shall be for staggered terms of six years each. No member of the commission shall serve for more than one full six year term on the commission. The legislature shall by statute provide for the time and manner of appointments and elections to conform with this section.

"Each member of the judicial selection commission shall be a resident of the State and a citizen of the United States. No member shall run for or hold any other elected office under the United States, the State, or its political subdivisions. No member shall be eligible for appointment to judicial office of the State so long as he is a member of the judicial commission, and for a period of three years thereafter.

"No act of the judicial selection commission shall be valid unless concurred in by a majority of its voting members."

"Any attorney member of the commission or his employer or firm representing any party before any nominee for justice or judge, shall disqualify himself in any judicial proceeding before the nominee for the period the nominee is being considered."

"The judicial selection commission shall select one of its members to serve as chairman. The commission shall promulgate rules which shall have the force and effect of law. The deliberations of the commission shall be confidential."

"The legislature shall provide for operation, staff and other expenses incidental to the performance of commission duties."

This new section establishes the judicial selection commission and addresses its makeup and operation. This topic was the subject of much debate by your Committee. Many proposals were submitted and many witnesses testified on this subject. All agreed that such a commission must be truly nonpartisan. However, the efficiency and workability of this body must not be hampered. Effective implementation of a judicial selection commission system is dependent upon the proper balance of these two values.

While your Committee received many proposals which offered a multitude of formulas for the size and composition of this commission, two basic concerns had to be addressed. The first concern was to make the body small enough to be efficient and large enough to be representative of a cross section of the community. The second concern was to have different interests represented on the commission, not only to represent a cross section of the community, but also to act as checks upon the other interests on the commission.

The proposals and testimony received by your Committee indicate that a commission composed of at least nine (9) but not more than eleven (11) members would be the proper range of size. Anything smaller would be burdensome on the individual members, while anything larger would be too cumbersome. Your Committee recognizes that the size must also be considered in relation to the makeup of the commission. Again, in this regard, the proposals and testimony received indicated a consensus as to which groups or bodies in the community should have input selecting members of the commission. Included were the governor, the supreme court, licensed attorneys in the State, the house of representatives and the senate. It was the decision of your Committee that the proper size of the commission would be nine (9) members and that each of the groups mentioned would be responsible for appointing or electing members to the commission. Your Committee believes that such a group would be able to provide the necessary divergence of interests and views to be truly representative of the public and ensure that the selection process be as nonpartisan as possible.

Your Committee believes that attorneys have a place on the commission. Attorney members not only would know what professional qualities would be required of a justice or judge but also would be aware of the backgrounds and reputations of the candidates for judicial vacancies. An attorney's input as a member on the commission would be more valuable than if simply called upon to testify about the capabilities of prospective candidates. The representatives of the house, senate and the governor would be responsible either directly or indirectly to the public and also subject to their input. Finally, it is believed that the representatives of the supreme court would also be able to provide valuable insight as to what would be required of future justices and judges.

It was decided that the commission should be composed as follows: 3 appointees by the governor, 2 by the supreme court, 2 elected by the Hawaii bar at large (not the Hawaii State Bar Association), 1 by the house of representatives and 1 by the senate. It is intended that there be no limitation on the total number of attorneys allowed to sit on the commission. While your Committee recognizes that there is no perfect makeup and size of any particular judicial selection commission, it is felt that the selection commission ultimately agreed upon by this committee is a good, representative and equitable scheme.

The qualification requirements of these commission members are as important as the makeup and size of the commission. It is intended that these provisions serve as a limitation on the partisan political influences on commission members. The qualification requirements which most directly pertain to this problem are the prohibitions against running for or holding any elected office under the federal, state, or local governments; the prohibition against being considered for judicial appointment for a period of 3 years after service on the commission; and the prohibition against any attorney member remaining on a case if that attorney, his employer or firm represents a party in a case before a nominee for justice or judge, which attorney member must disqualify himself from the case until deliberations concerning that nominee are concluded. All these prohibitions are qualifications aimed at the elimination of all possible conflicts of interest which might violate the independent actions of the commission or of any of the individual members. Finally, your Committee decided that all members should be residents of this State and citizens of the United States. It is felt that these qualifications would help ensure that the members chosen to the commission would have an understanding not only of the laws and the legal system of this country but also of the values and interests in this State. It is intended that all these requirements work to preserve the independence and the credibility of the commission.

The length of the terms of members is another important facet in the commission structure. Your Committee has decided to set the term at six (6) years after initial terms have been completed, with terms to be staggered. It is felt that this length would allow the commissioners time to learn and grow into their responsibilities. Staggered terms would ensure that there be a continuity of experience and knowledge on the commission. In view of the number of members and the length of members' terms, your Committee suggests that the best schedule for staggering of terms would be as follows:

governor	initial terms of 2, 4 and 6 years.
members of the state bar of Hawaii	initial terms of 4 and 6 years.
supreme court	initial terms of 4 and 6 years.
house of representatives	initial 2-year terms.
senate	initial 2-year terms.

It is intended that, after the initial appointees serve their first term, all future members be restricted to serving one full 6-year term. Therefore, it is possible that an initial appointee may serve one partial 2- or 4-year term and one full 6-year term for a total of 10 years. Staggering the terms would allow three different members of the five groups to vacate their positions from the commission every 2 years. In this way the commission would always have a number of experienced members and, at the same time, new members with fresh and different ideas.

It is the intent of your Committee that the commission promulgate its own rules which shall have the force and effect of law. The commission shall select one of its members to act as chairperson of the body. It is intended that no action of this commission be valid unless it is concurred in by a majority of the voting members. Your Committee foresees that attorney members of the commission and their law firms may in their practice of law represent a client whose case may be pending before a justice or judge who is subject to renewal of his or her judicial term. In that event, it is intended that the attorney member and his employer or law firm, in order to avoid any possibility or appearance of conflict of interest, withdraw from appearing before that justice or judge in court during the period of consideration by the commission. It is important to note that there may be other situations not foreseen by your Committee in which commission members may be involved in conflict. It is intended that the legislature provide for such situations.

One important concern your Committee addressed was in regard to the actions of the judicial selection commission in the confidentiality of their deliberations. Confidentiality is necessary to encourage and protect those prospective candidates who otherwise would not be willing to be considered if the deliberation process of the commission were to be made public.

Finally, your Committee considered the issue of compensation for commission members. In order to insure the impartiality, independence and nonpartisanship of members, your Committee recommends the members serve without salary. It is intended, however, that the legislature provide for compensation and expenses of support staff, operation and other expenses incidental to the performance of commission duties. This would include per diem expenses in certain situations.

Your Committee therefore recommends that a new section, to be appropriately designated, be included in this article, providing for the creation of a judicial selection commission consisting of 9 members, to be divided as set forth above, and that each shall serve one full six (6) year term which shall be staggered. Further, that the qualifications concerning commission members and the procedures of the commission as set forth above be implemented. The deliberations of the commission shall be confidential as provided in this article. Further, that the operational and staff expenses of the commission shall be provided by the legislature and that the members shall serve without salary.

Your Committee on the Judiciary recommends that a new section to Article V be added, to read as follows:

"TRANSITION; EFFECTIVE DATE

"Section . . . The current terms of justices and judges in office shall terminate as heretofore provided by law, subject to earlier termination and removal as provided in this article. The amendments to Article V shall take effect upon ratification."

Your Committee recommends that this section be added to (1) ensure that those justices and judges presently in office may complete their current terms as provided by law, and (2) ensure that the amendments to this article are to take effect immediately upon ratification. Your Committee intends that any judicial vacancy after ratification be processed through the judicial selection commission. Your Committee realizes, however, that vacancies may exist before the legislature has established the judicial selection commission and therefore intends that all appointments be interim appointments until the judicial selection commission is set up.

Section 5 of Article V relating to administration and Section 6 of Article V relating to rules were not amended.

Therefore, your Committee recommends: (1) that the above-numbered proposals referred to your Committee be filed; (2) that Section 5 and Section 6 of Article V be retained without amendment; and (3) that Committee Proposal No. 10* pass first reading in the form shown.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates Takitani, Laura Ching, Chu, Ontai and Weatherwax.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 53

Your Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing begs leave to report that Com. Whole Rep. No. 6; Com. P. Nos. 6, RD. 1, and 5, RD. 2; Stand. Com. Rep. No. 54; Res. Nos. 15 and 16 and Minority Rep. Nos. 6, 7 and 8 have been printed and distributed.

Signed by Delegates Ledward, Chairperson; Crozier, Vice-Chairperson; Hayashida, Vice-Chairperson; Hale and Lacy, members.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 54

Your Committee on Rules, to which was referred a request to seek clarification on the motion of the Previous Question under the Rules of the Convention, by the President in plenary session on August 21, 1978, begs leave to report as follows:

The request seeks to determine whether the motion of the Previous Question is governed by Convention Rule 15, generally relating to quorum and majority, or Convention Rule 36, generally relating to motions. A committee hearing was open to the public and Convention Parliamentarian Masato Sugihara presented testimony on this issue.

Parliamentarian Sugihara testified that the motion of the Previous Question falls under the present Convention Rule 15 because it differs from the motion to close debate for a specified time, as provided for in Convention Rule 36. The motion therefore requires a simple majority vote of the delegates present. To avoid future confusion regarding voting on that and similar motions, your Committee recommends the amending of Rule 15 to provide that an affirmative majority vote can adopt any motion except those motions that require more than a majority vote, under either parliamentary law (Robert's Rules of Order Newly Revised) or the Rules of the Convention. More particularly, Rule 15 is amended to read as follows:

"RULE 15. A quorum being present, [a] an affirmative majority vote of delegates present [shall be sufficient for the adoption of any motion or resolution or the taking of any action except where the affirmative vote of a greater number shall be required by these rules.] adopts any motion unless it is one of the particular motions that require a larger vote under parliamentary law or the Rules of the Convention."

Your Committee on Rules recommends that the resolution in the form shown hereto as Resolution No. 15 be adopted by this Convention without referral to your Committee.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegate Wurdeman.

RESOLUTION NO. 15

AMENDING CONVENTION RULE 15.

WHEREAS, the issue of whether the motion of the Previous Question is to be governed by Convention Rule 15 or Rule 36 was referred to the Committee on Rules for clarification; and

WHEREAS, the motion of the Previous Question is different from the motion to close debate at a specified time; and

WHEREAS, in an effort to avoid future confusion regarding similar parliamentary matters; now, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED by the Constitutional Convention of Hawaii of 1978, that Rule 15 of the Rules of the Convention be and is hereby amended to read as follows:

"RULE 15. A quorum being present, [a] an affirmative majority vote of delegates present [shall be sufficient for the adoption of any motion or resolution or the taking of any action except where the affirmative vote of a greater number shall be required by these rules.] adopts any motion unless it is one of the particular motions that require a larger vote under parliamentary law or the Rules of the Convention."

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 55

Your Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing begs leave to report that Stand. Com. Rep. Nos. 56 through 59, Com. P. Nos. 11 through 13 and Res. No. 17 have been printed and distributed.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 56

Your Committee on Hawaiian Affairs was referred proposals numbered 108, 145, 209, 233, 245, 283, 302, 308, 392, 478, 665, 693, 804, 805 and 806, all relating to Article XI; and 310, 385, 392, 615, 762, 784 and 785, all relating to the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended. Your Committee on Hawaiian Affairs begs leave to report as follows:

This report covers Article XI, entitled "Hawaiian Home Lands," and the Hawaiian homes act, entitled "Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920."

All committee meetings were open to the public, and representatives of organizations and individual citizens interested in the above-mentioned proposals were invited to present their views on the subjects covered by the proposals at public hearings.

The following citizens presented their views:

Mrs. Winona A. Freitas, Papakolea Community Association; Mrs. Kaipo Prejean; Mr. Keoni Agard; Mr. Merwyn Jones, Deputy Director, Department of Hawaiian Home Lands; J.E. Loomis, Hawaiian Sugar Planters' Association; Georgiana K. Padeken; Christobel Kealoha, Hawaiian Homes Commission; Mr. Melvin Kalahiki, Delegate Ginger Wurdeman; Mr. Richard Hoke; Mililani Trask; Gerard Lee Loy; Mrs. Billie Beamer, Chairman, Department of Hawaiian Home Lands.

On July 26, 1978, on Molokai, testimonies were taken in favor of the above Hawaiian Affairs proposals by the following citizens: Joyce Kaiona, Honokaupu Ohana; Karl A. Mowat, Protect Kahoolawe Ohana; Glenn Davis, Hawaiian Academy; Walter Ritte; Kathy Davis; Richard Sawyer; Rachel Kamakana; Mrs. Purdy, Hawaiian Homestead; Mrs. Clara Ku; Barbara Hanchett; Dr. Emmett Aluli, Mrs. Rose Kamakani.

On July 27, 1978, on Maui, testimonies were taken in favor of the above Hawaiian Affairs proposals by the following citizens: Walter Ritte; Charles K. Maxwell, ALOHA; Christine Teruya; Katherine Deardon.

On July 31, 1978, on Kauai, testimonies were taken in favor of the above Hawaiian Affairs proposals by the following citizens: Amelia C. Abreu; Tadao Suemori; Linda Moriarty; David Sprout; Natasha Paust; Charles H. Forward; Rosemary K. Smith; Dallas Girady; Herbert Kauahi.

On August 3, 1978, at Hilo, testimonies were taken in favor of the above Hawaiian Affairs proposals by the following citizens: Sidney M. Quintal; Gerard Lee Loy; Andrew Vento, Hawaiian Brotherhood of American Nationality; Dante Carpenter; Nathen Kaleiwahea, State; Brenda L. Lee, Na Pua O Hawaii; Alika Cooper, Congress of Hawaiian People; Steve Kaneai Morse, Native Hawaiian Legal Corporation; Linda Dela Cruz.

On August 4, 1978, at Kona, testimonies were taken in favor of the above Hawaiian Affairs proposals by the following citizens: Herman Paakonia; Renwrick Tassil; Moanekeala Akaka; Members of Kukailimoku Village; Charles Warrington; Sonny Kaniho; the Kamoku family.

As a preliminary statement, your Committee would like to remind the convention delegates that the term "native Hawaiian" as used in regard to the Hawaiian home lands and the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended, refers to those native Hawaiians who have been defined by the Act as being "any descendant of not less than one-half part of the blood of the races inhabiting the Hawaiian Islands previous to 1778."

Section 1 of Article XI relating to the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act is amended to read as follows:

"Section 1. Anything in this constitution to the contrary notwithstanding, the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, enacted by the Congress, as the same has been or may be amended prior to the admission of the State, is hereby adopted as a law of the State, subject to amendment or repeal by the legislature, provided, that if and to the extent that the United States shall so require, said law shall be subject to amendment or repeal only with the consent of the United States and in no other manner, provided, further, that, if the United States shall have been provided or shall provide that particular provisions or types of provisions may be so amended. The proceeds and income from Hawaiian home lands shall be used only in accordance with the terms and spirit of said Act [.] [and the] (A) The legislature [may, from time to time, make additional] shall make sufficient sums available for the purposes of: (1) development of home, agriculture, farm and ranch lots; (2) home, agriculture, aquaculture, farm and ranch loans; (3) rehabilitation projects to include, but not limited to, educational, economic, political, social, and cultural processes by which the general welfare and conditions of native Hawaiians are thereby improved; (4) the administration and operating budget of the department of Hawaiian Home Lands; in furtherance of (1), (2), (3) and (4) herein, [said Act] by appropriating the same in the manner provided by law.

"(B) Thirty percent of the State receipts derived from the leasing of cultivated sugarcane lands under any provision of law or from water licenses shall be transferred to the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund, Section 213 of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, for the purposes enumerated in said section. Thirty percent of the State receipts derived from the leasing of lands cultivated as sugarcane lands on the effective date of the section herein shall continue to be so transferred to the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund whenever said lands are sold, developed, leased, utilized, transferred, set aside, or otherwise disposed of for purposes other than the cultivation of sugarcane. There shall be no ceiling established for the aggregate amount transferred into the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund."

Your Committee consolidated proposals numbered 302, 308, and 392 in its amendment to Section 1, Article XI, above-mentioned. The committee proposal amends that portion of Section 1 of Article XI, which authorizes the legislature to fund moneys to the Department of Hawaiian Home Lands (hereinafter DHHL) for purposes of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended (hereinafter HHCA or Act), to provide that: (a) the legislature be required to provide sufficient funds to DHHL; and (b) the 30 percent of state receipts from sugarcane and water licenses be transferred in perpetuity to the DHHL.

Your committee proposal makes it expressly clear that the legislature is to fund DHHL for purposes which reflect the spirit and intent of the Act. Your Committee decided to no longer allow the legislature discretion in this area.

Your Committee decided that the legislature should provide sufficient funds to DHHL for the following projects:

1. For the development of site improvements for homes, agriculture, farm and ranch lots. Development shall include but not be limited to off-site and on-site improvements which are necessary to provide grading, access (roads) and utility services (drainage, sewerage, water and electrical systems) for the developed lots;
2. For lessee loans in the areas of home construction and farm and ranch construction and equipment. Under this loan mandate, DHHL is authorized to request loans for lessees or native Hawaiians for agricultural purposes, which includes but is not limited to aquaculture;
3. For various rehabilitation projects, including education, social, political, economic and cultural processes which contribute to the general welfare and betterment of native Hawaiian conditions; and
4. For administrative and operational costs, which expenditure requests are to be utilized for all of the above-mentioned.

Your Committee finds that the intent of the HHCA was to check the extinction of a dying native Hawaiian race and to preserve and perpetuate that native Hawaiian race through a series of rehabilitation projects designed to:

1. Return the native Hawaiian to the land;
2. Perpetuate the Hawaiian culture (language, history and ethnic studies);
3. Assimilate the native Hawaiian into the enveloping society without relinquishing the native identity, language and culture;
4. Develop political awareness in the republican form of government and encourage native Hawaiians to participate in its elections and processes;
5. Provide economic assistance to enable the native Hawaiian to be industrious, business-oriented and self-sufficient; and
6. Provide educational programs to allow the native Hawaiian to restore his Hawaiian awareness, language and culture.

Your Committee determined that DHHL has approximately 200,000 acres under its present land inventory (deleting congressional land withdrawals and land exchanges between DHHL and the Department of Land and Natural Resources). The intent of the Act, inter alia, was to perpetuate the native Hawaiian race by encouraging Hawaiian people to return to the land to till the soil. The evil sought to be corrected was the departure of the Hawaiian people from the soil and the consequent weakening of their structure of society under the impact of western civilization. One of the basic causes of this departure was the fact that the Hawaiians did not actually receive one third of the domain which was supposed to have been set aside for them at the time of the Great Mahele, so that many persons had no land of their own when the change from feudal land tenures to common law land tenures was made.

Yet, in the 57 years since passage of the Act, less than 12-1/2 percent (25,000 acres) of the total "available lands" (200,000 acres) have actually been disposed of to native Hawaiians. This averages about 435 acres of Hawaiian home lands per annum. At that rate, it would take over 400 years to lease the remaining 175,000 acres to native Hawaiians; by the year 2378 the last square foot of available land will be awarded to a native Hawaiian. Nearly 25 generations will have passed before the goal of the HHCA is fully realized.

The department was established by the Act to provide a means to rehabilitate its beneficiaries through a series of projects and yet was given very little financial assistance to perfect its mandate. For example, the department must lease its lands in order to generate revenues to support its administrative and operating budget.

Of the 200,000 acres under its inventory, nearly 113,000 acres are leased, licensed or under permit by DHHL or the Department of Land and Natural Resources (hereinafter DLNR). This represents 57 percent of the total land inventory released to the general public for purposes of generating revenues to administer DHHL programs.

Of the above 113,000-acre total, over 90,000 acres are in agriculture-related uses to the general public. Nearly 28,000 acres (25 percent) of the 113,000 acres are managed by DLNR.

In addition, 16,867 acres are under Governor Executive Order and are utilized for public projects such as airports, parks, schools, game reserves, etc. There is no income return from lands under Governor Executive Orders.

Other DHHL land uses include 44,176.174 acres utilized by government agencies for graveyard sites, hunting grounds, watersheds, parks, schools, roads, highways, sewer sites, military training facilities, state nurseries, health centers, Hansen's disease centers, drainage channels, educational TV sites, dumping sites, etc.

TABLE

14,342.11 acres by federal government with an annual income of 45 cents per acre

29,585.385 acres by state government with an annual income of 12 cents per acre

259.929 acres by county government with an annual income of $3.105 per acre

Of the total 200,000 acres, 45,442.601 acres are under conservation classification. This indicates a limited use of nearly 23 percent of the total DHHL land inventory for homestead disposition. Over 22,000 acres presently under conservation classification are unencumbered and eligible for homestead use. However, these lands for the most part are of mountaintop-type terrain or barren lava; a prime example is Humuula, where there are 8,200 acres of conservation-unencumbered lands near the 9,000-foot elevation line which offers a delimiting slope and rocky terrain.

Your Committee reports that there are nearly 60,000 native Hawaiians within the State and approximately 2,800 lessees have been placed on the land. There are more than 5,200 applicants on the waiting list for homes.

The department's current budget is approximately $1.3 million. Its revenue from general leases, licenses and revenue permits is approximately $1.1 million. The department must support a statewide staff of 59 employees. Another 31 employees are funded through SCET and CETA (34 percent of the total DHHL employees) programs which are temporary and conditional. Over a dozen employees under SCET have left their DHHL jobs, and the vacancies cannot be filled through SCET because of the current freeze on SCET funding.

The department presently general leases its lands to obtain moneys for administrative expenses and salaries. In order to keep up with a built-in inflation rate and to rehire prospective employees through SCET losses, DHHL continues to general lease more of its lands. These employees are necessary to keep up with the current housing output. DHHL averages 10 dollars per acre on its general leases.

DHHL cannot afford to lease more acreage to the general public for the purpose of generating income to accommodate a minimal employee level.

It is clear to your Committee that the intent and spirit of the Act would be better moneys served by releasing the department of its present burden to generate revenues through the general leasing of its lands. Your Committee decided that through legislative funding this dilemma would be resolved. In that manner more lands could be made available to the intended beneficiaries.

Your Committee found that besides the department's general leasing program to support its administrative expenditures the original Act provides that 30 percent of the state receipts derived from revenues originating from cultivated canelands and water licenses be transferred to the department to provide a means of developing farm, ranch and home lots.

Initially Congress established a $1-million ceiling relating to the above revenues. The ceiling was raised to $5 million through a series of subsequent congressional amendments. Further, the moneys were utilized for development and loan purposes. The last amendment occurred prior to Statehood.

With the admission to Statehood, the State became the trustee of the HHCA and was granted title to the lands and charged with the responsibility of administering and amending said Act.

In 1965, the $5-million ceiling heretofore set by Congress was reached and the department petitioned the state legislature, for the first time, to again raise the ceiling. The legislature responded by creating the Additional Receipts Fund which raised the ceiling an additional $2.5 million. However, 72.25 percent of the $2.5 million was transferred to the DOE and the remaining 27.75 percent was transferred to several development and loan funds.

When the first $2.5-million ceiling was reached, the state legislature raised it another $2.5 million under the same conditions. Finally, in 1976 the aggregate ceiling was attained and the moneys have since been deposited in the State's general fund.

Your Committee found that of the $5 million which the State transferred to the department, $3.6 million was diverted to the DOE. Only $1.4 million was actually utilized by the department for purposes of the Act (development and loans).

After 56 years, the total sum received from this source was $10 million. Of that total, $4.5 million was earmarked for home loans in a revolving fund, $1.9 million for site development expenses and $3.6 million for DOE.

If the department utilized this funding source for development and loans, only 12.5 house lots could be developed and constructed per year. This is based on an annual amount of $500,000 divided by $40,000 (the development and construction costs).

Your Committee decided that these 30 percent funds should be diverted to DHHL in perpetuity. Your Committee considered transferring these funds to development and loan funds but decided that these amounts would be substantially inadequate to fund these projects. Instead your Committee unanimously felt that these moneys would be better used by transferring the same to the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund.

Your Committee has decided that this source of moneys should be protected and preserved and therefore provided that, regardless of the use to which these lands are put, the revenues derived therefrom would be subject to these provisions. Only when these lands are sold in fee simple would these lands not be subject to the provisions of this proposal. However, the proceeds received from the sale of the land would be subject to the provisions of this proposal. Your Committee understands that approximately 36,615 acres of public lands (17,753--Kauai, 15,150--Hawaii, 3,712--Maui) are presently under sugar-cane cultivation.

Upon the effective date of this amendment, these lands as well as any other lands presently under cane cultivation shall be subject to this provision.

Your Committee considered proposals numbered 310, 385, 392, 615, 762, 784 and 785, all relating to the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended.

Your Committee decided to make certain changes to the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended. Although the Act appears to be in a format somewhat different from the usual constitutional provisions, nevertheless Section 3 of Article XI specifically provides that "As a compact with the United States relating to the management and disposition of the Hawaiian home lands, the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended, shall be adopted as a provision of the Constitution of said State. . . ." Sections 1 and 2 of Article XI, when read together, arrive at the same conclusion.

Your Committee amended Section 213 of the Act by adding a new subsection (b)(8) to conform to the committee's intent regarding the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund as set forth in Article XI, Section (B).

Your Committee changed the language in Section 204 of the Act in order to grant the department more control of their lands. The approval of the Secretary of the Interior was deleted from Sections 204(1) and 212 because it would be too burdensome for the department to obtain this approval everytime it wished to withdraw its lands from DLNR management, for purposes of the Act. There are currently 28,000 acres of DHHL lands under DLNR general lease, license and revocable permit. Another 16,000 acres is under Governor Executive Order and more acreage is utilized by government agencies without document.

Your Committee added language to Section 204(2) in order to lease lands directly and preferentially to native Hawaiians for commercial, industrial or other business purposes. These lands shall be disposed of by lease at fair market value. The leasehold interest will be the same as the leasehold interest granted to the general public under the department's general lease program. It will not be issued pursuant to Section 208, HHCA, which has severe limitations.

Your Committee deleted Section 204(3) in its entirety to enable the department to dispose of as many acres to native Hawaiian applicants as possible under the circumstance. Section 204(4) was changed in order to allow the department to land-exchange its lands for privately or publicly owned lands, thus allowing DHHL greater flexibility in acquiring lands.

Your Committee changed the language in Section 212 in order to restrict the management of the department's lands by DLNR. Accordingly, DHHL lands under DLNR management may be disposed of by general leases only. This precludes the transferring of its lands by Governor Executive Order. Further, DLNR may general lease DHHL land only with the express consent of the department.

Your Committee changed the language in Section 221, HCCA, by prohibiting the department from transferring its water systems to any municipal, state or private agency. The department owns and operates a water system on Molokai and your Committee intended that this amendment would prohibit the department from transferring its water system to the County of Maui.

Your Committee decided to leave unchanged the requirement in Section 201(7) of the HHCA that the "term 'native Hawaiian' means any descendant of not less than one-half part of the blood of the races inhabiting the Hawaiian Islands previous to 1778."

Your Committee decided that although this rule seemed unfair as it applied to those who can qualify for a lease on Hawaiian homes lands, it might be premature to work on a change of this rule. The committee felt that, in light of the fact that the waiting list for a lease is so long, to add further applicants without a more in-depth analysis and without more hearings and input from the beneficiaries and potential beneficiaries, would be irresponsible. The committee did not feel comfortable in changing rights to the precious 'aina without more input from those affected.

The committee anticipated that all the Hawaiian home lands will probably be transferred to the Office of Hawaiian Affairs (contained in another committee proposal) but that perhaps the time was not yet ripe. The Office of Hawaiian Affairs will have more opportunity to consider this issue. Moreover, the Office of Hawaiian Affairs will be in a better position to negotiate. The office will have an elected board of many Hawaiians who can deliberate this issue. Your Committee concluded that it might not be appropriate for this type of question to be submitted to the general public because it involved the inheritance rights of Hawaiians only. The committee decided that rightfully the affected parties should decide.

Sections 2 and 3 of Article XI, relating to the compact with the United States and amendment and repeal, were not amended.

Therefore your Committee recommends: (1) that the above-numbered proposals referred to your Committee be filed; (2) that Sections 2 and 3 of Article XI be retained without amendment; and (3) that Committee Proposal No. 11 pass first reading in the form attached hereto.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegate Hagino.

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL NO. 11

RELATING TO HAWAIIAN AFFAIRS.

RESOLVED, that the following be agreed upon as amending Article XI of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended, of the State Constitution.

1. Section 1 of Article XI is amended to read:

HAWAIIAN HOMES COMMISSION ACT

Section 1. Anything in this constitution to the contrary notwithstanding, the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, enacted by the Congress, as the same has been or may be amended prior to the admission of the State, is hereby adopted as a law of the State, subject to amendment or repeal by the legislature, provided, that if and to the extent that the United States shall so require, said law shall be subject to amendment or repeal only with the consent of the United States and in no other manner, provided, further, that, if the United States shall have been provided or shall provide that particular provisions or types of provisions may be so amended. The proceeds and income from Hawaiian home lands shall be used only in accordance with the terms and spirit of said Act [,] [and the] (A) The legislature [may, from time to time, make additional] shall make sufficient sums available for the purposes of: (1) development of home, agriculture, farm and ranch lots; (2) home, agriculture, aquaculture, farm and ranch loans; (3) rehabilitation projects to include, but not limited to, educational, economic, political, social, and cultural processes by which the general welfare and conditions of native Hawaiians are thereby improved; (4) the administration and operating budget of the department of Hawaiian Home Lands; in furtherance of (1), (2), (3) and (4) herein, [said Act] by appropriating the same in the manner provided by law.

(B) Thirty percent of the State receipts derived from the leasing of cultivated sugarcane lands under any provision of law or from water licenses shall be transferred to the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund, Section 213 of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, for the purposes enumerated in said section. Thirty percent of the State receipts derived from the leasing of lands cultivated as sugarcane lands on the effective date of the section herein shall continue to be so transferred to the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund whenever said lands are sold, developed, leased, utilized, transferred, set aside, or otherwise disposed of for purposes other than the cultivation of sugarcane.

There shall be no ceiling established for the aggregate amount transferred into the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund.

2. Section 213 of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, is amended to add a new subsection (b) (8) to read as follows:

Sec. 213 Funds and accounts.

(b) There are established in the treasury of the State [seven] eight special funds, to be known respectively as the Hawaiian home development fund, the Hawaiian home administration account, the Hawaiian loan guarantee fund, the Hawaiian loan interest fund, the borrowed money fund, the Hawaiian home trust fund, [and] the Hawaiian home education fund[.], and the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund.

(8) Native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund. Pursuant to Article XI, Section 1 (B) of the State Constitution, thirty percent of the state receipts derived from lands previously cultivated as sugarcane lands under any other provision of law and from water licenses, shall be deposited into this fund. The department shall use this money solely for the rehabilitation of native Hawaiians which shall include but not be limited to the educational, economic, political, social and cultural processes by which the general welfare and conditions of native Hawaiians are thereby improved and perpetuated.

3. Section 204 is amended to read:

Section 204. (Control by department of "available lands", return to board of land and natural resources, when.) Upon the passage of this act, all available lands shall immediately assume the status of Hawaiian home lands and be under the control of the department to be used and disposed of in accordance with the provisions of this [title] Act, except that:

(1) In case any available land is under lease by the Territory of Hawaii, by virtue of section 73 of the Hawaiian Organic Act, at the time of the passage of this Act, such land shall not assume the status of Hawaiian home lands until the lease expires or the board of land and natural resources withdraws the lands from the operation of the lease. If the land is covered by a lease containing a withdrawal clause, as provided in subdivision (d) of Section 73 of the Hawaiian Organic Act, the board of land and natural resources shall withdraw such lands from the operation of the lease whenever the department[, with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior,] gives notice to [it] the board that the department is of the opinion that the lands are required by it for the purposes of this [title] Act; and such withdrawal shall be held to be for a public purpose within the meaning of that term as used in subdivision (d) of Section 73 of the Hawaiian Organic Act;

(2) Any available land, including lands selected by the department out of a larger area, as provided by this Act, [as may not be immediately needed for the purposes of this Act,] not leased as authorized by the provisions of section 207 (a) of this Act, may be returned to the board of land and natural resources [and may be leased by it as provided in chapter 171, Hawaii Revised Statutes] as provided under section 212 of this Act, or may be retained for management by the department.

[Any lease by the board of land and natural resources of Hawaiian home lands hereafter entered into shall contain a withdrawal clause, and the lands so leased shall be withdrawn by the board of land and natural resources, for the purpose of this Act, upon the department giving at its option, not less than one nor more than five years' notice of such withdrawal; provided that the minimum withdrawal-notice period shall be specifically stated in such lease.]

In the management of any retained available lands not required for leasing under section 207(a), the department may dispose of such lands to the public, including native Hawaiians, on the same terms, conditions, restrictions and uses applicable to the disposition of public lands as provided in chapter 171; provided, that the department may not sell or dispose of such lands to the public, including native Hawaiians, on the same terms, conditions, restrictions and uses applicable to the disposition of public lands as provided in chapter 171; provided, that the department may not sell or dispose of such lands in fee simple except as authorized under section 205 of this Act [.] ; provided further, that the department is expressly authorized to negotiate, prior to negotiations with the general public, the disposition of a lease of Hawaiian home lands to a native Hawaiian, or organization or association owned or controlled by native Hawaiians, for commercial, industrial, or other business purposes, in accordance with the procedure set forth in section 171-59, subject to the notice requirement of section 171-16(c) and the lease rental limitation imposed by section 171-17(b).

[(3) The department shall not lease, use, nor dispose of more than twenty thousand (20,000) acres of the area of Hawaiian home lands, for settlement by native Hawaiians, in any calendar five-year period.]

[4] (3) The department may, with the approval of [the governor and] the Secretary of the Interior, in order to consolidate its holdings or to better effectuate the purposes of this Act, exchange the title to available lands for land, privately or publicly owned, of an equal value. All land so acquired by the department shall assume the status of available lands as though the same were originally designated as such under Section 203 hereof, and all lands so conveyed by the department shall assume the status of the land for which it was exchanged. The limitations imposed by Section 73(1) of the Hawaiian Organic Act and the land laws of Hawaii as to the area and value of land that may be conveyed by way of exchange shall not apply to exchanges made pursuant hereto. No such exchange of land publicly owned by the State shall be made without the approval of two-thirds of the members of the board of land and natural resources. For the purposes of this subparagraph, lands "publicly owned" means land owned by a county or the State or the United States.

4. Section 212 is amended to read:

Section 212. (Lands returned to control of board of land and natural resources.) The department may return any Hawaiian home lands not leased as authorized by the provisions of Section 207 of this [title] Act to the control of the board of land and natural resources. Any Hawaiian home lands so returned shall, until the department gives notice as hereinafter in this section provided, resume and maintain the status of public lands in accordance with the provisions of the (Hawaii Revised Statutes), [except] provided that such lands may not be sold, leased, set aside, used, transferred, or otherwise disposed of except under a general lease only. Any lease by the board of Hawaiian home lands hereafter entered into shall contain a withdrawal clause, and the lands so leased shall be withdrawn by the board, for the purpose of this Act, upon the department giving at its option, not less than one nor more than five years' notice of such withdrawal; provided, that the minimum withdrawal-notice period shall be specifically stated in such lease. Each such lease, whether or not stipulated therein, shall be deemed subject to the right and duty of the board of land and natural resources to terminate the lease and return the lands to the department whenever the department [, with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior,] gives notice to the board that the department is of the opinion that the lands are required [by it for leasing as authorized by the provisions of Section 207 of this title or for community pasture].

Notwithstanding the provisions of Hawaii Revised Statutes Section 171-95, in the leasing of Hawaiian home lands by the board to a public utility or other governmental agency, where such use directly benefits the department of Hawaiian home lands or the homestead lessees, the rental may be nominal; in all other instances, the lease rental shall be no less than the value determined in accordance with Hawaii Revised Statutes Section 171-17(b).

Any general lease of Hawaiian home lands hereafter entered into by the board shall be null and void unless prior to the disposition of said lease by public auction, direct negotiation or otherwise, approval shall be obtained from the department of Hawaiian home lands.

5. Section 221 is amended by adding a new subsection (f):

Section 221. (Water.)

(f) Water systems in the exclusive control of the department shall remain under its exclusive control; if any provision or the application of such provision is inconsistent with the provision contained herein, this section shall control.

Water systems includes all real and personal property together with all improvements to the same acquired or constructed by the department for the distribution and control of such water for domestic or agricultural use.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 57

Your Committee on Hawaiian Affairs was referred proposals numbered 187, 284, 645 and 672, all relating to education; 100 and 303, all relating to Hawaiian rights; 9 and 81, all relating to real property title claims; 82, 117, 341, 550 and 779, all relating to heritage; and 148, 493, 644 and 664, all relating to miscellaneous topics in the areas covered by this committee proposal.

Your Committee on Hawaiian Affairs begs leave to report as follows:

This report covers Article IX, entitled "Education," Article XIII, entitled "State Boundaries, Capital, Flag," Article XIV, entitled "General and Miscellaneous Provisions," and Article I, entitled "Bill of Rights."

All committee meetings were open to the public and representatives of organizations and individual citizens interested in the above-mentioned proposals were invited to present their views on the subjects covered by the proposals at public hearings.

The following citizens presented their views: Darrow Aiona, Chairman, Board of Education; Winoa A. Freitas, Papakolea Community Association; Moki Wilson; Georgiana K. Padeken; Christobel Kealoha, Hawaiian Homes Commission; Melvin Kalahiki; Delegate Ginger Wurdeman; Cathy Goeggel, Hawaiian Humane Society; Ricky Tilgenkamp, Life of the Land; Joyce Kaiona, Honokaupu Ohana; Karl A. Mowat, Protect Kahoolawe Ohana; Glenn Davis, Hawaiian Academy; Walter Ritte; Kathy Davis; Clara Ku; Barbara Hanchett; Dr. Emmett Aluli; Mrs. Rose Kamakani; Charles K. Maxwell, ALOHA; Christine Teruya; Amelia C. Abreu; Dallas Girady; Herman Alexander; Herbert Kauahi; Gerard Lee Loy; Andrew Vento; Nathen Kaleiwahea; Brenda L. Lee, Na Pua O Hawaii; Alika Cooper, Congress of Hawaiian People; Steve Kaneai Morse, Native Hawaiian Legal Corporation; Linda Dela Cruz; Herman Paakonia; Renwrick Tassil; Moanikeala Akaka; Charles Warrington; Sonny Kaniho; Lanis Romero.

Article IX is amended by adding a new section to read:

"HAWAIIAN EDUCATION PROGRAM

"Section . The State shall provide for a comprehensive Hawaiian education program consisting of language, culture and history as part of the regular curriculum of the public schools.

"The use of community expertise shall be encouraged as a suitable and essential means in furtherance of Hawaiian language, culture and history."

Your Committee decided to adopt this amendment to the Constitution in order to insure that there is a comprehensive Hawaiian education program consisting of language, culture and history as part of the regular curriculum of the public schools and to provide for the employment in the public school system of persons who have knowledge of Hawaiian language, culture and history but not necessarily the necessary formal educational achievements. This section is intended to thereby insure the general diffusion of Hawaiian history on a wider basis, to recognize and preserve the Hawaiian culture which has contributed to, and in many ways forms the basis and foundation of, modern Hawaii, and to revive the Hawaiian language, which is essential to the preservation and perpetuation of Hawaiian culture.

Presently Hawaiian courses are part of a larger program called social studies. The objective of the social studies program is to develop students who have knowledge and understanding of humans and society and the ability to apply this knowledge and understanding in decision-making and problem-solving situations.

As a part of the overall social studies program, the required units of Hawaiian courses cast a small shadow which is soon lost in the wave of western standards and the emphasis on assimilation or "melting-pot" model in America. Furthermore, Hawaiian courses may not necessarily address Hawaiian history, culture and language, but generally deal with facts, events, people, environment and geography.

Your Committee finds that the social studies program suggests that the emphasis is placed on cultural unity rather than cultural diversity, which Hawaii prides itself on.

This section on the Hawaiian education program grows out of a background of increasing ethnic consciousness that began in America in the 1950s with the civil rights movement. As ethnic consciousness grew, ethnic identity became increasingly acceptable and even celebrated. There has been a strengthening of emphasis on the diversity of cultures found within the larger American society, and a lessening of emphasis on the assimilation or "melting-pot" model in America. Your Committee agrees with thoughtful scholars who point out that, as in the survival of biological species, variety rather than sameness enhances the possibilities for survival, and that a culturally diversified society is a source of strength for a nation. It is important that different, non-Western values be studied in order that we may evaluate existing models of society and perhaps thus discover alternative models of structuring society.

Your Committee determined that one ethnic group that may be a rich source for just such a study is the Hawaiian culture, with its emphasis on group responsibility and success, and the 'ohana extended family system. The Hawaiian culture survived and thrived in environmental harmony on a relatively small land area. As with all cultures, the Hawaiian culture was not a perfect one but it does have much that can be learned from it. Although the Hawaiian culture has been disrupted and changed, its strength has enabled it to survive.

Another important reason your Committee determined that we should set aside time and resources to study the Hawaiian culture is that the study of cultures from other areas of the world can draw on the resources and support of their home countries. For example, Japanese studies, Korean studies, et al. can receive and have received support from government, corporations and individuals in Japan and Korea. In contrast, Hawaii is the only place where Hawaiian studies is likely to occur, and for a Hawaiian studies or educational program the State of Hawaii is the "home country."

Finally, perhaps the most important reason to begin an intensive study of Hawaiian culture, history and language is that we are losing key sources of information daily. Not only are existing material resources disappearing but, even more important, women and men who have significant information are dying and the information they could provide is being lost forever.

Article XIII is amended by adding a new section to read:

"OFFICIAL LANGUAGES

"English and Hawaiian shall be the official languages of Hawaii, except that Hawaiian shall be required for public acts and transactions only as provided by law."

Your Committee decided to make this amendment to the Constitution in order to give full recognition and honor to the rich cultural inheritance that Hawaiians have given to all ethnic groups of this State, by making Hawaiian an official language of the State.

However, your Committee was cognizant of certain practical problems that might exist if Hawaiian was declared an official language without any proviso. The committee feared that all official acts and transactions might have to be in Hawaiian, such as statutes, proceedings of the legislature and judicial decisions. At this point in history, it might be too expensive and impractical to require both languages in these situations. The committee decided that it would be more sensible to delegate discretion to the legislature in determining the appropriate documents and acts to be in both languages.

Article XIV is amended by adding a new section to read:

"TRADITIONAL AND CUSTOMARY RIGHTS

"Section . The State reaffirms and shall protect all rights possessed by tenants of an ahupua'a who are descendants of native Hawaiians who inhabited the Hawaiian Islands prior to 1778 that were customarily and traditionally exercised for subsistence, cultural and religious purposes, subject to the right of the State to regulate the same."

Your Committee decided to add this new section to the Constitution in order to reaffirm, for descendants of native Hawaiians, rights customarily and traditionally exercised for subsistence, cultural and religious purposes. Aware and concerned about past and present actions by private landowners, large corporations, ranches, large estates, hotels and government entities which preclude native Hawaiians from following subsistence practices traditionally used by their ancestors, your Committee proposed this new section to provide the State with the power to protect these rights and to prevent any interference with the exercise of these rights. Moreover, your Committee decided to provide language which gives the State the power to regulate these rights. Your Committee did not intend these rights to be indiscriminate or abusive to others. While your Committee recognizes that, historically and presently, native Hawaiians have a deep love and respect for the land, called aloha 'aina, reasonable regulation is necessary to prevent possible abuse as well as interference with these rights. After a comprehensive examination of many versions of a constitutional provision recognizing native Hawaiian rights, your Committee decided that this version was the best, and accordingly the committee strongly recommends its passage.

Some members of your Committee have studied ancient native Hawaiian rights in detail. They have found valuable information in such material as Hawaiian Antiquities by David Malo (1951); Konohiki Fishing Rights by Richard Kosaki of the Legislative Reference Bureau (1954); "Native Hawaiian Land Rights" by Neil Levy (63 Calif. L Rev 869, 1975); The Origin of Hawaii Land Titles and of the Rights of Native Tenants by Louis Cannelora of Security Title Corporation (1974); and The Access Problem by Kali Watson (1977), on reserve at the Alu Like library.

A few members of your Committee expressed concern that the proposal might be subject to constitutional attack on equal protection grounds. However, your Committee found that these rights have withstood constitutional attack. Your Committee reviewed certain testimony that vested fishing rights, as recognized under Article X, Section 3, of the State Constitution, have been upheld by the U.S. supreme court. Konohiki and hoa'aina fishing rights to all registered fisheries have been recognized and upheld. Your Committee agrees with the analysis of these rights as set forth by Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the U.S. supreme court in Damon v. Hawaii, 194 U.S. 154 (1904). In referring to fishing rights, he stated:

"A right of this sort is somewhat different from those familiar to the common law, but it seems to be well-known to Hawaii, and, if it is established, there is no more theoretical difficulty in regarding it as property and a vested right than there is regarding any ordinary easement or profit a prendre as such.... Moreover, however anomalous it is, if it is sanctioned by legislation, if the statutes have erected it into a property right, property it will be, and there is nothing for the courts to do except to recognize it as a right."

Moreover, under Article XVI, Section 13, before the holders of these vested fishing rights can be deprived of their rights, they must be given "just compensation" upon condemnation by the State (see Konohiki Fishing Rights by Richard Kosaki of LRB, 1954). The Fifth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution also provides that "private property [shall not] be taken for public use, without just compensation." Since practically all ancient Hawaiians practiced and possessed such vested rights, which automatically passed to their descendants and which have never been condemned or compensated for, they are therefore still held by Hawaiians today, with the exception of fishing rights which were condemned and compensated for.

While for the most part the courts have treated such vested rights as proprietary interests, your Committee feels that a more accurate description of these rights is to refer to them as personal rights. Rather than being attached to the land, these rights are inherently held by Hawaiians and do not come with the land. For instance, it was customary for a Hawaiian to use trails outside the ahupua'a in which he lived to get to another part of the Island. Moreover, where a hoa'aina was dissatisfied with the konohiki of his ahupua'a, he was free to leave and to take up residence in another ahupua'a, thereby transferring his vested rights, such as fishing, to the new area.

The proposed new section reaffirms all rights customarily and traditionally held by ancient Hawaiians. Your Committee found that besides fishing rights, other rights for subsistence, cultural and religious purposes exist. Hunting, gathering, access and water rights, while not provided for in the State Constitution, were nevertheless an integral part of the ancient Hawaiian civilization and are retained by its descendants. In examining the economic and social system of ancient Hawaii, your Committee found that it was based on a division of land known as an ahupua'a, ruled by a chief and managed by a konohiki, on which the hoa'aina, or tenants of the ahupua'a, had rights to make use of house lots, cultivate personal taro patches and engage in subsistence gathering and hunting activities that consumed but did not deplete the natural resources, wild animals and birds of the ahupua'a. In addition to the cultivation of taro lands in the valleys, hoa'aina had access mauka, for the plant and animal products of the wilderness, and maka'i, for the products of the ocean.

Your Committee decided that the word tenants, as used in this connection, has not lost its ancient restricted meaning and refers to the hoa'aina or native Hawaiians that inhabit an ahupua'a. Although a tenant may not own any land in the ahupua'a, since these rights are personal in nature, as a resident of the ahupua'a, he may assert any traditional and customary rights necessary for subsistence, cultural or religious purposes. Your Committee defines an ahupua'a as a land division or unit of land usually extending from the uplands to the sea, varying in size from 100 to 100,000 acres.

Your Committee also decided that it was important to eliminate specific categories of rights so that the courts or legislature would not be constrained in their actions. Your Committee did not intend to remove or eliminate any statutorily recognized rights or any rights of native Hawaiians from consideration under this section, but rather your Committee intended to provide a provision in the Constitution to encompass all rights of native Hawaiians, such as access and gathering. Your Committee did not intend to have the section narrowly construed or ignored by the courts. Your Committee is aware of the courts' unwillingness and inability to define native rights, but in reaffirming these rights in the Constitution, your Committee feels that badly needed judicial guidance is provided and enforcement by the courts of these rights is guaranteed.

Your Committee concluded that to preserve the small remaining vestiges of a quickly disappearing culture, the solution is to provide a legal means by constitutional amendment to recognize and reaffirm native Hawaiian rights. Your Committee strongly recommends passage of this proposal because such action would help to perpetuate a heritage that is unique and an integral part of our State.

Article I is amended by adding a new section to read:

"QUIETING TITLE

"Section . . . No person shall be deprived of title to an estate or interest in real property by another person claiming actual, continuous, hostile, exclusive, open and notorious possession of such lands."

Your Committee decided to pass this amendment for the purpose of abolishing prescription and adverse possession as a means of acquiring title, right or interest in and to real property. Title to much of the lands originally owned by Hawaiians was acquired through adverse possession. The committee learned of many cases where individuals, large corporations, hui, ranches, large estates and even churches have used adverse possession to take land away from its rightful owner.

Testimony revealed that this problem continues today. Hawaiians in Milolii - Hoopuloa on the Big Island, Kipu Kai on Kauai, Keanae, Hana and Kula on Maui, Halawa Valley on Molokai, as well as Laie on the windward side of Oahu are all faced with losing their land to large business entities using adverse possession. As is usually the case, those losing lands do not understand the law or cannot afford to fight these large corporations.

Your Committee reasoned that under our present federal and state Constitutions, the government is prohibited from depriving any person of his private property without just compensation. Yet adverse possession allows private individuals and business entities to take other people's land without any compensation to the owner.

Some members argued that without adverse possession, perfection of titles by Hawaiians who have lived on the land for many years would be impossible. Under this proposal this would not be a problem. Thus your Committee determined that this section be prospective in nature and that all claims that have already matured under present statutes and common law are recognized. Establishment of such title in the adverse possessor by a judicial proceeding is not necessary.

The committee learned through testimony that it is a sad fact that adverse possession has been and still is being used as a method for stealing property from the poor, particularly the Hawaiians. Thus, your Committee concluded the correct solution is to provide a vehicle by constitutional amendment to abolish adverse possession.

Accordingly, your Committee on Hawaiian Affairs submits the attached Committee Proposal No. 12 and recommends (1) that the above-numbered proposals referred to your Committee be filed; and (2) that Committee Proposal No. 12* pass first reading in the form shown.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegate Hagino. Delegate Teruo Ihara did not concur in part.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 58

Your Committee on Hawaiian Affairs, to which was referred Proposal No. 341 relating to the return of Kaho'olawe to the people of the State of Hawaii and concerning Article XIII, begs leave to report as follows:

All hearings and meetings of your Committee were open to the public, and many citizens, groups and organizations representing the community and representatives of the government were invited to present their views on the subject covered by the proposal at the public hearings.

Your Committee decided to adopt the attached resolution relating to the return of Kaho'olawe. Your Committee voted unanimously (with one abstention) to request the United States to stop bombing the Island of Kaho'olawe, begin cleaning the Island of materiel and unexploded ordnance, and return the Island to the State for use as a living cultural sanctuary.

Kaho'olawe was designated as government land by Kamehameha III at the time of the Great Mahele. This designation opened the waters around the Island to all persons who wanted to fish in the area, even though most coastal fisheries were exclusive to those who lived in the adjoining ahupua'a. It also meant that the people could use the beaches and trails on the Island for gathering, hunting and other traditional and religious uses. Later the Island was leased for ranching purposes but access by the general public to the fisheries, beaches and trails continued. The land was held in trust for the people of Hawaii.

Since 1941, this Island of Kaho'olawe has been controlled by the U.S. Navy. Especially in recent years, the public has been barred from access to these public lands and fisheries. No compensation has ever been paid for this federal taking.

A 1953 Executive Order signed by President Eisenhower which laid claim to the Island states that the Island will be returned to the State in its original condition and that the Navy will keep the goat population under control. The Navy has done little or nothing to comply with these provisions.

Your Committee received testimony from people all over the State who complained about being denied access to the rich cultural heritage of Kaho'olawe. Many Hawaiians testified about their feelings of outrage that one of the State's eight major islands was being desecrated and permanently scarred by the continual bombing and shelling. Military representatives testified that the attacks were planned with care to avoid places of archaeological importance, but your Committee realizes that if the pilots and gunners always hit their targets, they would not need the target practice.

Your Committee was sorely tempted to adopt Proposal No. 341, which would have added a new section to Article XIII to read as follows:

"ISLAND OF KAHOO LAWE; RETURN AND USE

"Section . The right of the people of the State of Hawaii to access and use of the island of Kahoolawe shall be recognized. The island shall be preserved for its historic, religious and cultural heritage."

This proposal was signed by over 65 delegates representing all the Islands and many different perspectives. Your Committee would like to point out that no other delegate proposal received this type of overwhelming popular support by delegates prior to any discussion of the issue. The language of Proposal No. 341 certainly expresses the hopes and wishes of the members of your Committee and most delegates to the Convention.

But your Committee elected to pass Resolution No. 17 instead because the committee felt that the State of Hawaii is already pressing to achieve the goals of Proposal No. 341. Moreover, the congressional delegation from the State of Hawaii has indicated to your Committee that this resolution, if adopted by the Constitutional Convention, would be considered tantamount to a mandate from Hawaii's people.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegate Hagino.

REQUESTING THE RETURN OF KAHOLAWE TO THE STATE FOR USE AS A CULTURAL SANCTUARY.

WHEREAS, the Island of Kaho'olawe has been unofficially under the jurisdiction of the United States Navy since Kaho'olawe Ranch subleased it to the Navy in 1941, and officially with the issuance of Executive Order 10436 on February 25, 1953, when President Eisenhower directed the Navy to assume complete authority over Kaho'olawe during the time of the Korean conflict; and

WHEREAS, the deep spirit of Hawaii and the movement among Hawaiians to regain their culture and to help regenerate the roots of that culture by opening up access to the land has again surfaced in the Kaho'olawe movement; and

WHEREAS, the people are quite concerned, for so much in Hawaiian culture centers on the 'aina and the spirit of the land; and

WHEREAS, the bombing and destruction of Kaho'olawe are contrary to the very essence of aloha 'aina, the love and reverence the Hawaiians have toward their land; and

WHEREAS, the Island of Kaho'olawe is rich in archaeological findings significant to the culture of Hawaii; and

WHEREAS, because of the historical, cultural and archaeological significance of the Island, it is essential that Kaho'olawe once again be returned to Hawaii for use as a living cultural sanctuary; now, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED by the Constitutional Convention of Hawaii of 1978, that the United States Navy is requested to cease its bombing, begin clearing the Island of all material and unexploded ordnance, and return the Island of Kaho'olawe to the State for use as a living cultural sanctuary; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that duly authenticated copies of this Resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States, the Secretary of the Navy, the members of Hawaii's delegation to Congress, the Governor of the State of Hawaii, the members of the State Legislature, and the Mayor and Council of Maui County.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 59

Your Committee on Hawaiian Affairs was referred proposals numbered 405, 674 and 676 all relating to a public trust entity and the creation of new sections in Article XI. Your Committee on Hawaiian Affairs begs leave to report as follows:

This report covers Article XI, entitled "Hawaiian Home Lands," Article XVI, entitled "Schedule," Article X, entitled "Conservation and Development of Resources," and Article XIV, entitled "General and Miscellaneous Provisions."

All committee meetings were open to the public, and representatives of organizations and individual citizens interested in the above-mentioned proposals were invited to present their views on the subjects covered by the proposals at public hearings.

The following citizens presented their views:

Richard Hoke; Sid Quintal; Melvin Kalahiki; Mililani Trask; Keoni Agard; Georgiana K. Padeken; Christobel Kealoha; Joyce Kaiona; Karl A. Mowat; Glenn Davis; Walter Ritte; Rachel Kamakana; Clara Ku; Dr. Emmett Aluli; Rose Kamakani; Charles K. Maxwell; Christine Teruya; Katherine Deardon; Amelia C. Abreu; Tadao Suemori; Linda Moriarty; David Sprout; Charles Forward; Rosemary K. Smith; Herbert Kauhi; Andrew Vento; Nathen Kaleiwahea; Brenda L. Lee; Alika Cooper; Steve Kaneai Morse; Linda Dela Cruz; Herman Paakonia; Renwick Tassil; Moani keala Akaka; Charles Warrington; Sonny Kaniho.

Article XI is amended by deleting the title and adding a new title to read:

"[HAWAIIAN HOME LANDS] HAWAIIAN AFFAIRS"

Your Committee changed the title of Article XI in order to reflect the new format of this article which will now include areas beyond that of the Hawaiian home lands. Your Committee has included several new sections to Article XI that will affect all native Hawaiians. Previously Article XI applied only to those who could qualify for Hawaiian home lands and who were historically defined by the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended, as lessees based on a requirement of not less than one-half part of the blood of the races inhabiting the Hawaiian Islands previous to 1778. In looking to the future, your Committee decided that it is of utmost importance to establish a trust entity that would be for all individuals whose ancestors were natives of the area which consisted of the Hawaiian Islands prior to 1778, the date that marks the arrival of Captain Cook to these shores. In the sections that follow, your Committee refers to all descendants, regardless of blood quantum, as being native Hawaiians. Your Committee determined that the time was ripe to establish a trust entity with an elected board of trustees that would control and manage the assets and inheritance, and financial assistance belonging to all native Hawaiians, and to formulate policy relating to their affairs. (See discussions of new Sections 5, 6 and 7 to Article XI.) Thus your Committee concluded that it should broaden the name of this article to reflect the concepts in the sections that follow.

Article XI is amended by adding a new section to read:

"PUBLIC TRUST

"Section 4. The lands granted to the State of Hawaii by Section 5(b) of the Admission Act and pursuant to Article XIV, Section 8 of the State Constitution, excluding therefrom lands defined as 'available lands' by Section 203 of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended, shall be held by the State as a public trust for those native Hawaiians, as defined in the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended or may be amended, and the general public."

This new section recites the trust corpus of Section 5(b) and names the two principal beneficiaries established in Section 5(f) of the Admission Act--those native Hawaiians as defined by the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended, and the general public. Your Committee decided to include the words "as may be amended" to follow "Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended," in order to permit the Constitution in the future to reflect the change, if any, in the qualification of blood quantum set forth in that Act for native Hawaiians. Although your Committee was tempted to change this outmoded rule from the 1920s, your Committee concluded that this responsibility should be assumed by the Office of Hawaiian Affairs.

The Admission Act does not specify what percentage of the trust shall be allocated to native Hawaiians of one-half blood. The committee members felt that the proportion should rightfully be based either on equal division or at least on a percentage of the five purposes. The committee was unanimous in deciding that the pro rata share should not be based on population census or a percentum thereof.

Your Committee reviewed the history behind the trust set forth in Section 5(b) of the Admission Act in order to arrive at this recital.

As a result of the revolution on January 17, 1893, the crown lands, which belonged to the Hawaiian people, were ceded by the Republic of Hawaii to the United States. These lands were conveyed back to the State on Hawaii's admission to the Union pursuant to Section 5(b) of the Admission Act. Section 5(f) of the Admission Act created a trust of these public lands separate and apart from the lands defined as "available lands," by Section 203 of the HHCA, 1920, as amended. Your Committee found that the Section 5(f) trust created two types of beneficiaries and several trust purposes one of which is native Hawaiians of one-half blood.

Article XI is amended by adding a new section to read:

"OFFICE OF HAWAIIAN AFFAIRS;
ESTABLISHMENT OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES

"Section 5. There is hereby established an Office of Hawaiian Affairs. The Office of Hawaiian Affairs shall hold title to all the real and personal property now or hereafter set aside or conveyed to it which shall be held in trust for native Hawaiians. There shall be a board of trustees for the Office of Hawaiian Affairs elected by qualified voters who are native Hawaiians, in accordance with law. The board members shall be native Hawaiians. There shall be not less than 9 members of the board of trustees; provided that each of the following Islands have at least one representative: Oahu, Kauai, Maui, Molokai and Hawaii. The Board shall select a chairman from its members."

Your Committee added this new Section 5 relating to the Office of Hawaiian Affairs and the establishment of an elected board of trustees in order to provide a receptacle for any funds, land or other resources earmarked for or belonging to native Hawaiians, and to create a body that could formulate policy relating to all native Hawaiians and make decisions on the allocation of those assets belonging to native Hawaiians. Moreover, in looking to the future the office will be able to receive and administer any reparations money, which will probably be awarded to all native Hawaiians regardless of blood quantum.

Your Committee is unanimously and strongly of the opinion that people to whom assets belong should have control over them. After much deliberation and attention to testimony from all parts of the State, your Committee concluded that a board of trustees chosen from among those who are interested parties would be the best way to insure proper management and adherence to the needed fiduciary principles. In order to insure accountability, it was felt that the board should be composed of elected members. This amendment provides for direct participation in the selection process of the board of trustees by all native Hawaiians. The committee determined that such participation will avoid the much-justified criticism which has been directed at the Hawaiian homes commission for, among other things, its inability to respond adequately to the needs of native Hawaiians of one-half blood. The election of the board will enhance representative governance and decision-making accountability and, as a result, strengthen the fiduciary relationship between the board member, as trustee, and the native Hawaiian, as beneficiary. The cost for electing the board of trustees would be nominal, provided it is held at the same time as the state general elections.

Finally, the committee agreed that the board should be elected by all the beneficiaries. Certainly they would best protect their own rights. Such a practice is in line with the basic principles of a democratic society. Your Committee decided that at least nine members were necessary to allow for the proper representation. Your Committee felt that it was important that there be some deference to island representation. Thus the committee included the specific provision requiring at least one representative from each of the following Islands: Oahu, Kauai, Maui, Molokai and Hawaii. The committee felt that the legislature could arrive at a proper apportionment scheme for the remaining seats, although the committee did feel that an at-large election might suffice.

In addition, your Committee has delegated to the legislature the responsibility of implementing the election for the board. Your Committee did provide, in the transitory provision that follows, for the election to be held simultaneously with the general election. But the legislature is delegated the responsibilities of (1) determining the final apportionment scheme, (2) arriving at a method whereby voters will demonstrate proof that they are native Hawaiians, (3) developing procedures for registering qualified voters and (4) administering the ballot.

The committee intends that the Office of Hawaiian Affairs will be independent from the executive branch and all other branches of government although it will assume the status of a state agency. The chairman may be an ex officio member of the governor's cabinet. The status of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs is to be unique and special. The establishment by the Constitution of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs, with power to govern itself through a board of trustees (see Section 6, following), results in the creation of a separate entity independent of the executive branch of government. Moreover, the office shall have the power to hold title to all the real and personal property now or hereafter set aside or conveyed to it. The committee developed this office based on the model of the University of Hawaii. In particular, the committee desired to use this model so that the office could have maximum control over its budget, assets and personnel. The committee felt that it was important to arrange a method whereby the assets of Hawaiians could be kept separate from the rest of the state treasury. The committee learned that in the past there has been commingling of funds intended for native Hawaiians of one-half blood with other moneys in the state treasury. The committee felt it imperative that this practice stop.

Article XI is amended by adding a new section to read:

"POWERS OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES

"Section 6. The board shall exercise power in accordance with law, to manage and administer the proceeds from the sale or other disposition of the lands, natural resources, minerals, and income derived from whatever sources for native Hawaiians, including all income and proceeds from that pro rata portion of the trust referred to in Section 4 for those native Hawaiians as defined in the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended or may be amended; formulate policy relating to affairs of native Hawaiians, and exercise control over real and personal property set aside by state, federal, or private sources and transferred to said Board for Native Hawaiians. The board shall have the power to exercise control over the Office of Hawaiian Affairs through its executive officer, the administrator of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs, who shall be appointed by the board."

Your Committee decided to grant native Hawaiians the right to determine the priorities which will effectuate the betterment of their condition and welfare by granting to the board of trustees powers to "formulate policy relating to affairs of native Hawaiians." Your Committee created the board of trustees of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs in the Constitution to insure that it would handle the assets and financial affairs of native Hawaiians. It is intended that these powers will include the power to contract, to accept gifts, grants and other types of financial assistance and agree to the terms thereof, to hold or accept legal title to any real or personal property and to qualify under federal statutes for advantageous loans or grants, and such other powers as are inherent in an independent corporate body and applicable to the nature and purposes of a trust entity for native peoples. These powers also include the power to accept the transfer of reparations moneys and land.

Your Committee included the provision that the board would select an administrative officer to handle the management and operation of the office. The committee wanted to create a separate position for these activities so that such a person could be employed on a full-time basis.

In making this decision, your Committee intends that the Office of Hawaiian Affairs would be able to accept title to the Hawaiian home lands in the event that said lands are transferred to it for administrative or any other purposes.

The committee intends this section to be broad enough to include within its scope the administration and management of the native Hawaiian land trust created by the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act of 1920. The Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, which provides for the administration of the Hawaiian home lands by the Hawaiian homes commission, was adopted as state law in Article XI of the Hawaii State Constitution in 1959. The Hawaiian home lands was created by the Act of 1920 whereby Congress set aside 200,000 acres of land in Hawaii for the rehabilitation and resettlement of native Hawaiians of one-half blood, under the management of the Hawaiian homes commission. It was felt at that time that only a return to the land could halt the sharp decline in numbers and the unfavorable trends in economic and social disorganization that were becoming apparent among the Hawaiian people. Title to these Hawaiian home lands remained with the United States prior to Statehood but was vested in the State of Hawaii upon the admission of Hawaii into the Union.

Pursuant to Section 6, the board of trustees could assume the trust responsibilities of the Hawaiian homes commission. Since Section 202 of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act provides for the establishment of the Hawaiian homes commission, it constitutes the principal section which would have to be amended in order to eliminate the present practice of appointing commissioners and substituting therefor the elective model provided for in Section 5.

In accordance with Section 7(b) of Public Law 86-3, 86th Congress, Section 4 of the Admission Act became a part of Article XI, Hawaii State Constitution, at the election held on June 27, 1959, allowing Section 202 and other provisions relating to administration to be amended without congressional consent in the Hawaii State Constitution. The consolidation of the two trusts under the control and management of a single board would facilitate the attainment of the objective of the trusts: to provide for the betterment of the conditions of native Hawaiians. Such a merger would avoid duplication and waste of administrative expenditures.

Furthermore, this section empowers the board to administer and manage the pro rata share of assets derived from the public lands granted to those native Hawaiians as defined in the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended or may be amended, under Section 5(f) of the Admission Act.

Your Committee concluded that these Sections 5 and 6, taken together, are of utmost importance for they provide for accountability, self-determination, methods for self-sufficiency through assets and a land base, and the unification of all native Hawaiian people.

Unlike the Act and the Section 5(f) trust, this trust is established for the benefit of all native Hawaiians, including those defined as native Hawaiians under the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended, and the restoration of their culture. The committee recognizes the right of native Hawaiians to govern themselves and their assets by their assumption of the trust responsibility imposed on the State to better their condition.

Article XI is amended by adding a new section to read:

"DEFINITION: NATIVE HAWAIIAN

"Section 7. Native Hawaiian means any individual any of whose ancestors were natives of the area which consisted of the Hawaiian Islands prior to 1778.

"Native Hawaiians of one-half blood means any individual of not less than one-half part of the blood of races inhabiting the Hawaiian Islands previous to 1778."

Your Committee decided to add this new section defining native Hawaiians in order to clarify any ambiguity that might exist. Since 1920, native Hawaiians have been defined only in the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended, in Section 201(7), which states: "The term 'native Hawaiian' means any descendant of not less than one-half part of the blood of the races inhabiting the Hawaiian Islands previous to 1778." Native Hawaiians of one-half blood will not be a subgroup under this definition. The committee believes that the time has come to include all native Hawaiians, regardless of blood quantum, for the number of descendants is increasing. This qualification has proved to be a factor in dividing the Hawaiian community--mothers and fathers from their children, cousins from cousins, friends from friends. Moreover, the removal of a blood qualification will be in line with the current policy of the federal government to extend benefits for Hawaiians to all Hawaiians regardless of blood quantum.

Your Committee believes that this division among people who are of the same blood and may even be parent and child is not right or fair. The committee felt that the rule may even put undue pressure on a person's choice of who to bear children with. Your Committee took notice of the history of the two generations intervening between 1920 and 1978, which included two generations of further interracial offspring. Thus a rationale that may have had legitimacy in 1920 has now become outmoded.

Article XVI is amended by adding a new section to read:

"EFFECTIVE DATE FOR OFFICE
OF HAWAIIAN AFFAIRS

"Section . The legislature shall provide for the implementation of the amendments to Article XI in Sections 5 and 6 on or before the first general election following ratification of the amendments to Article XI in Sections 5 and 6."

Your Committee added this new section to Article XVI in order to provide for implementation of the election of the board of trustees to the Office of Hawaiian Affairs. Your Committee felt that the election could be most economically held at the same time as a general election. Moreover, to have implementation of the amendments to Article XI on or before the first general election following ratification would give the legislature adequate time to develop the necessary procedures.

Section 5 of Article X relating to farm and home ownership is amended to read:

"That pro rata portion of the [The] public lands set aside for the general public in Section 4 of Article XI, hereof, shall be used for the development of farm and home ownership on as widespread a basis as possible, in accordance with procedures and limitations prescribed by law."

The committee has amended this section in order to conform it to the general intent and purpose of new Sections 4 and 6 of Article XI which grant control over the trust created for those native Hawaiians, as defined in the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended or may be amended, in Section 5(b) of the Admission Act to the Office of Hawaiian Affairs. It is the remaining pro rata share of the public lands belonging to the general public that should be managed under this section. The policy governing the portion which was set aside for the betterment of native Hawaiians will be dealt with exclusively by the Office of Hawaiian Affairs. Section 8 of Article XIV relating to compliance with trust is amended to read:

"Section 8. Any trust provisions which the Congress shall impose, upon the admission of this State, in respect of the lands patented to the State by the United States or the proceeds and income therefrom, shall be complied by appropriate legislation. Such legislation shall not diminish or limit the benefits of native Hawaiians under Section 4 of Article XI."

The Committee decided to amend this section to once again conform another section of the Constitution to the policies and powers set forth in Article XI, Section 4, relating to the public trust, and Section 6, relating to the powers of the board of trustees of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs. Therefore your Committee recommends: (1) that the above-numbered proposals referred to your Committee be filed; and (2) that Committee Proposal No. 13* pass first reading in the form shown.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates Alcon and Hagino.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 60

Your Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing begs leave to report that Com. Whole Rep. No. 7; Stand. Com. Rep. Nos. 61 and 62; Com. P. Nos. 3, S. 1, 5, RD. 2, S. 1 and 7, RD. 1; and Minority Rep. Nos. 9 and 10 have been printed and distributed.

Signed by Delegates Ledward, Chairperson; Crozier, Vice-Chairperson; Hayashida, Vice-Chairperson; Hale, member.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 61

Your Committee on Style, to which was referred Committee Proposal No. 3, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal, which the Convention has adopted on second reading, covers Article IV, The Executive, Sections 1 and 2, and Article XVI, Schedule. The Convention has proposed amendments to Sections 1 and 2 of Article IV, as well as the addition of a new section to Article XVI.

Your Committee proposes several style changes which are indicated by brackets [for deletions] and underscoring for additions as shown in the committee report and in the committee proposal.

"ESTABLISHMENT OF THE EXECUTIVE

"Section 1. The executive power of the State shall be vested in a governor.

"The governor shall be elected by the qualified voters of this State at a general election. The person receiving the highest number of votes shall be the governor. In case of a tie vote, the selection of the governor shall be determined in accordance with law.

"The term of office of the governor shall begin at noon on the first Monday in December next following [his] the governor's election and end at noon on the first Monday in December, four years thereafter.

"No person shall be elected to the office of governor for more than two consecutive full terms.

"No person shall be eligible for the office of governor unless [he] the person shall be a qualified voter, have attained the age of thirty years[,] and have been a resident of this State for five years immediately preceding [his] the person's election.

"The governor shall not hold any other office or employment of profit under the State or the United States during [his] the governor's term of office.

"LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

"Section 2. There shall be a lieutenant governor, who shall have the same qualifications as the governor. [He] The lieutenant governor shall be elected at the same time, for the same term[,] and in the same manner, as the governor; provided that the votes cast in the general election for the nominee for governor shall be deemed cast for the nominee for lieutenant governor of the same political party. No person shall be elected to the office of lieutenant governor for more than two consecutive full terms. The lieutenant governor shall perform such duties as [may be prescribed] provided by law."

Article XVI, new section. EFFECTIVE DATE FOR TERM LIMITATIONS FOR GOVERNOR AND LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR:

Your Committee considered the wording of this new section but decided not to recommend any changes.

Changes of particular interest recommended by your Committee:

1. Deletion of commas preceding conjunctions. This is consistent with previous action taken by your Committee on Style and the Convention.

2. Use of nondiscriminatory nouns, pronouns and adjectives. These suggested changes are made pursuant to the policy adopted in Resolution No. 13.

3. Change of "as may be prescribed by law" to "as provided by law" to remain consistent with similar wording elsewhere in the Constitution.

Style Committee Recommendations

Your Committee on Style recommends the adoption of Standing Committee Report No. 61 and consideration of the passage of Committee Proposal No. 3, S. 1* on third reading.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates Ledward, Pulham, Takahashi, Takehara, Takemoto and Yoshimura.

*For the complete text of this proposal, see Committee Proposal No. 3, page 786.

Your Committee on Style, to which was referred Committee Proposal No. 5, RD. 2, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal, which the Convention has adopted on second reading, covers Article VIII, Public Health and Welfare. The Convention has proposed amendments to Section 2 (Care of Handicapped), Section 3 (Public Assistance) and Section 5 (Public Sightliness and Good Order), as well as the addition of the following new sections:

PRESERVATION OF A HEALTHFUL ENVIRONMENT
MANAGEMENT OF STATE POPULATION GROWTH
CULTURAL RESOURCES
ECONOMIC SECURITY OF THE ELDERLY
PUBLIC SAFETY

Your Committee proposes several style changes which are indicated by brackets [for deletions] and underscoring for additions as shown in the committee report and in the committee proposal.

Article VIII, Sections 2, 3 and 5:

"CARE OF HANDICAPPED PERSONS

"Section 2. The State shall have the power to provide for the treatment and rehabilitation of handicapped persons.

"PUBLIC ASSISTANCE

"Section 3. The State shall have the power to provide financial assistance, medical assistance[,] and social services for persons who are found to be in need of[,] and are eligible for such assistance and services as provided by law."

"PUBLIC SIGHTLINESS AND GOOD ORDER

"Section 5. The State shall have the power to conserve and develop objects and places of historic or cultural interest[,] and provide for public sightliness and physical good order[, and for that purpose]. For these purposes private property shall be subject to reasonable regulation."

Article VIII, new section. PRESERVATION OF A HEALTHFUL ENVIRONMENT:

Your Committee discussed this new section and feels no changes are necessary.

Article VIII, new section. MANAGEMENT OF STATE POPULATION GROWTH:

Your Committee discussed this new section and feels no changes are necessary.

Article VIII, new section:

"CULTURAL RESOURCES

"Section . The State shall have the power to preserve and develop the cultural, creative [,] and traditional arts of its various ethnic groups."

Article VIII, new section. ECONOMIC SECURITY OF THE ELDERLY:

Your Committee discussed this new section and finds no changes are necessary.

Article VIII, new section:

"PUBLIC SAFETY

"Section . The [Law of the Splintered Paddle, Kanawai Mamala-Hoe, decreed by Kamehameha I, "Let every elderly person, woman and child, lie on the road in safety,"] law of the splintered paddle, mamala-hoe kanawai, decreed by Kamehameha I - Let every elderly person, woman and child, lie on the road in safety - shall be a unique and living symbol of the State's concern for public safety.

"The State shall have the power to provide for the safety of the people from crimes against persons and property."

The changes recommended here are for the purposes of style and clarification, and have no further implications.

Changes of particular interest recommended by your Committee:

Section 2. Addition of the word "persons" to the title. Your Committee felt the addition was consistent with the term "handicapped persons" as proposed in Section 2, as well as somewhat further "humanizing" the title.

Section 2. Insertion of the word "the" before "power" to be consistent with phraseology elsewhere in the Constitution.

Section 2. Insertion of the word "the" before "treatment" for clarity.

Section 3. Deletion of the commas following "medical assistance" and "in need of" for purposes of clarity.

Section 5. Deletion of the comma following "or cultural interest" coupled with insertion of the word "and" in its place helps to clarify the sentence. Additionally, the sentence has been separated into two sentences for clarity and readability.

New Section _____. "Cultural Resources." Deletion of the comma preceding the conjunction is consistent with previous action taken by your Committee on Style and the Convention.

New Section _____. "Public Safety." To be consistent with previously passed sections and the Constitution, capitalizations except for proper names and the beginning of the law were deleted.

The phrase "Kanawai Mamala-Hoe" and the quotation "Let every elderly person, woman and child, lie on the road in safety" were researched for authenticity and form. Two sources were consulted: Dr. Kenneth Emory, Senior Anthropologist and Professor Emeritus, University of Hawaii, and Dr. Donald E. Mitchell. Neither could find a source from which this direct quotation came. Therefore, dashes have been substituted for the quotation marks. The phrase "Kanawai Mamala-Hoe" was found to be improperly stated. Rather, it should read "mamala-hoe kanawai."

The single possible source for the derivation of this quote is a brochure entitled "The King Kamehameha Statue" by Dr. Mitchell [The Statuary Hall Commission, Honolulu, Hawaii, 1969].

Style Committee Recommendations

Your Committee on Style recommends the adoption of Standing Committee Report No. 62 and consideration of the passage of Committee Proposal No. 5, RD. 2, S. 1* on third reading.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 64

Your Committee on Education, to which was referred Resolution No. 14, entitled "REQUESTING THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF HAWAII TO REVIEW AND REDRESS THE PROBLEMS OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARIES AS PART OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION," begs leave to report as follows:

The purpose of this resolution is to address the problems of the public libraries and to request the legislature to resolve the problem.

The present state library system is located in the Department of Education under the Office of Library Services. The State divides libraries into two main categories: (1) school libraries and (2) public libraries. Public libraries in turn are composed of (a) community/school libraries, (b) regional libraries, (c) community libraries and (d) the main library. While the school libraries are under the jurisdiction of the Department of Education, the public libraries are managed by the Office of Library Services.

Testimony before your Committee indicated that the public libraries have been plagued with a number of problems, including confusion of roles and responsibilities between the Department of Education and the Office of Library Services, a lack of priority in both personnel and budget distribution, and a decline in services to library users due to management and fiscal problems.

Your Committee is cognizant of the need to resolve the dilemma faced by the public libraries. It has heard several suggestions for the separation of public libraries from the Department of Education--by the creation of a separate department of libraries, the incorporation of libraries in a proposed Department of Life-Long Learning, and the integration of the libraries in other existing executive line departments. Your Committee, however, finds that granting the libraries an independent status could result in added costs to the State and add unnecessary layers of bureaucracy to the present system without the guarantee that the problem will be resolved. Your Committee further believes that the problems of the public libraries should not be resolved through constitutional revision.

Your Committee has amended the resolution to state that the public libraries are being inadequately supported. However, it does not believe that the Department of Education is solely responsible for the lack of adequate management of the libraries.

Your Committee recommends that the legislature of the State of Hawaii review and redress this problem in the 1979 legislative session. An early investigation of the problems will alleviate further deterioration of the public library system.

Your Committee on Education concurs with the intent and purpose of Resolution No. 14, as amended herein, and recommends its adoption in the form attached hereto as Resolution No. 14, RD. 1.

Signed by all members of the Committee.

RESOLUTION NO. 14, RD. 1

REQUESTING THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF HAWAII TO REVIEW AND REDRESS THE PROBLEMS OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARIES AS PART OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION.

WHEREAS, the public libraries of the State of Hawaii are currently administered by the Department of Education, separate and apart from school libraries; and

WHEREAS, the competing needs of the educational system have resulted in internal disproportionate cutbacks in public library resources, and a seeming de-emphasis upon the importance of the public library system which serves the general public; and

WHEREAS, a variety of management studies, including those by the Legislative Auditor (1977), the Commission on Organization of Government (1977), and the Governor's Conference on Libraries and Information Services (1978), have concluded that the public libraries are being inadequately supported; and

WHEREAS, separate administration of the public library system would provide more equitable and independent recognition and evaluation of the library needs of the public, and of the importance of the public library system to the people; and

WHEREAS, long-standing problems encountered in ensuring adequate and appropriate public library resources for the State may be alleviated or solved by the establishment of a separate administrative entity for the public library system; and

WHEREAS, establishment of an independent library system to administer the public libraries of the State, separate and apart from school libraries which should remain a part of the educational system of which they are integral components, would enhance the responsiveness of the State to the needs of all the people; and

WHEREAS, the Committee on Education of this Constitutional Convention has in its Standing Committee Report No. 39, in recognition of the problems faced by the libraries, urged the Legislature to review and redress these problems; now, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED that this Constitutional Convention of the State of Hawaii of 1978 request and recommend with equal urgency that the Legislature of the State of Hawaii immediately review and redress the problems of the public libraries as part of the Department of Education and recommend as a possible solution the creation of an independent statewide system of public libraries; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that duly authenticated copies of this Resolution be transmitted to the Governor, the Board of Education, and to the Legislature.

Soriano, First Vice-President, San Francisco Municipal Bond Department of Blyth Eastman Dillon & Co.; William Kruse; Delegate Leon Sterling; David Slipper, Special Assistant for Housing, Office of the Governor, State of Hawaii; Delegate Marion Lee; James Gibson, Vice-President, American Savings; and Lewis Uhler, National Tax Limitation Committee.

The amendments to Article VI proposed by your Committee reflect its desire to establish a taxation and finance structure for the state and local governments which will foster the continued growth and diversification of the State's economy as well as act as a reasonable limitation on government spending.

A. State Debt Limit

The goal of your Committee in restructuring the State's debt limit was to restrict the issuance of general obligation bonds to a debt service ratio which would ultimately prevent the State from paying approximately more than fifteen percent of each current revenue dollar for maximum debt service.

The changes to the debt limit formula, which are prescribed in Section 3 of Article VI, proposed by your Committee are designed to achieve the following objectives:

1. To establish a more rational debt ceiling which will reflect the total debt costs of the State and the impact of such borrowing on current and future budgets.
2. To adopt limits that permit adequate financing of future capital improvements but exercise a restricting influence on debt issuance policies.
3. To impose a debt ceiling which bears a reasonable relationship to the State's ability to repay its debt.
4. To enhance the saleability of the State's general obligation bonds by devising a sound debt limit.
5. To provide a debt structure which does not place the State in an untenable position should the State's economy take a downturn.

The specific amendments to the State's debt limit formula recommended by your Committee and the reasons for such changes are as follows:

1. General obligation bonds may be issued, only if at the time of their issuance the maximum amount of principal and interest on such bonds and all outstanding bonds in the current or any future fiscal year does not exceed twenty percent of the average of the general fund revenues of the State in the immediately preceding three years. On July 1, 1982, the debt service ratio will be reduced to eighteen and one-half percent.

The present debt ceiling of three and one-half times the average of general fund revenues for the prior three fiscal years does not place sufficient restriction on the issuance of debt. Such a ceiling has allowed the accumulation of more than $1 billion of authorized but unissued general obligation bonds and exerts no control over the State's debt policies. The State would be in serious difficulties if all such authorized bonds were issued.

One of the defects of the present debt formula stems from its failure to consider the substantial costs of interest on indebtedness. Debt service, or the amount required to pay principal and interest, is a more accurate measurement of the State's repayment capabilities than the present formula. The proposed debt formula would not restrict the amount of money which can be pledged to servicing debt. Rather, it would limit the percentage of revenues which the State could apply to debt service in any particular year.

The twenty percent debt service ratio, which will be effective until 1982, was selected to accommodate the State's proposed bond issuance schedule and its ongoing and programmed capital improvement projects for the next five years. After that transitional period, the State's debt service ratio is to be reduced to eighteen and one-half percent and will remain at that level.

There were several members of your Committee who felt that the debt service ratio based on bond issuance should be coupled with an authorization ceiling. It was argued that the proposed debt ceiling did not prevent the State from authorizing as much general obligation bond debt as desired, thus perpetuating the reservoir of authorized but unissued bonds. However, the majority of your Committee believed that its proposed lapsing provision, discussed in a subsequent section of this report, goes a long way toward alleviating this problem. Further, the legislature would appear ill-advised if it authorized bonds in an amount which, if issued, would cause the debt service ceiling to be exceeded.

2. That a majority vote of the members of each house of the legislature shall authorize the issuance of all general obligation bonds.

The current language of Section 3 of Article VI requires a two-thirds vote of each house to authorize a general obligation bond issuance for the State. Although the two-thirds vote requirement was intended to assure that projects were thoroughly reviewed before bonds for their financing were authorized; it has had the opposite effect. It is expected that the more stringent debt ceiling and lapsing provision proposed will provide additional safeguards against imprudent bond authorizations.

3. That the debt ceiling may be exceeded when an emergency condition is declared by the governor and concurred to by a two-thirds vote of the legislature.

This provision is intended to allow the governor and the legislature by mutual agreement to exceed the debt ceiling when an extraordinary emergency exists. Such an emergency might be precipitated by the loss of tax-exempt status for municipal bonds or some other financial catastrophe. Because of the potential for abuse, your Committee believes that such bonds should be issued only in extreme emergencies. The type of emergency which would trigger this provision should be distinguished from the casual deficit and natural and other disasters referred to in proposed Section 3(i), which will be discussed later. It was felt that the two-thirds vote requirement was necessary to avoid any abuses of this provision. It is to be clearly understood that subsequent debt service resulting from the issuance under this emergency condition is not exempt from the debt limit and the provision is not the same as bond issuance permitted under emergency conditions enumerated under the new item (i), the debt service of which is excluded from the state debt. It is your Committee's intent that should the debt limit ever be exceeded under emergency conditions, such limit should not subsequently be routinely exceeded but that the capital improvements program should be thoroughly reviewed and adjusted to appropriate lower levels until the State's debt is brought back within constitutional limits.

4. That general obligation bonds shall mature not later than 25 years from the date of issue and that reimbursable general obligation bonds shall mature not later than 35 years from the date of such issue.

Section 3 of Article VI, as presently written, permits the State to repay bonds over a 35-year period. However, your Committee agreed that the 35-year period should be reduced to 25 years for general obligation bonds to preclude circumvention of the debt ceiling by issuing bonds with longer maturities resulting in lower annual debt service charges. Further, this requirement will not disrupt the present practice of the State, which has normally issued bonds with maturities from 3 to 20 years.

A new term, "reimbursable general obligation bonds," has been proposed. Such bonds are general obligation bonds issued for a public undertaking, improvement or system for which payment of principal and interest is reimbursed to the general fund from assessment collections, revenues or user taxes. Although not designated as such, the present Section 3 of Article VI permits the issuance of a type of general obligation bond which is in fact a reimbursable general obligation bond. Your Committee decided to retain the 35-year period with respect to such bonds because there are some facilities, such as dormitories or parking structures, which could not be undertaken if shorter maturity periods, requiring higher annual debt service costs and higher user charges, were required.

5. The language of proposed Section 3 of Article VI relating to the issuance of serial form bonds has been amended to permit the State to issue notes up to two years without requiring them to be in serial form.

B. Exclusions from the State Debt Limit

Most of the present exclusions from the State's debt limit are kept intact. However, the following amendments are proposed:

1. Section 3(a) of Article VI has been expanded to allow the exclusion from the State's indebtedness of bonds for the full payment of which securities have been irrevocably set aside.

2. Section 3(b) is expanded to exclude from the debt limit the issuance of revenue bonds to finance loan programs, such as agricultural loans and home loans.

3. Proposed Section 3(c) would exclude special purpose revenue bonds from the State's debt limit. Such bonds are explained in a subsequent section of this report.

4. Proposed Sections 3(d) and 3(e), which are already included in Article VI but are redesignated, would change the reference of "authorized" bonds to "issued" bonds; the change is consistent with the recasting of the entire debt limit formula to one based on issued rather than authorized bonds.

5. Proposed Sections 3(f) and 3(g) of Article VI employ the new term, "reimbursable general obligation bonds." These are changes of style and not substance.

6. Present Sections 3(f) and 3(g) have been deleted because they refer to the exclusion of authorized but unissued bonds from the State's indebtedness. Since the new debt limit applies only to issued bonds, those sections are unnecessary.

7. Section 3(h) is a new subsection which would allow the exclusion of bonds used to guarantee loans from the State's indebtedness, if a reserve against such bonds is established. The reserve is required to be maintained in an amount in reasonable proportion to the outstanding loans guaranteed. Under the present language in Article VI, such contingent liabilities would be counted as general obligation bonds of the State. The intent of this proposal is to allow the State or a county to provide an incentive for financial institutions to make low-interest loans available for housing, including that on Hawaiian Home lands, and agricultural ventures.

8. Proposed Section 3(i), relating to bonds issued to meet casual deficits and emergencies caused by disaster or acts of God and other extraordinary circumstances, combines two existing paragraphs of present Section 3. The substance of the provision has not been altered.

C. Special Purpose Revenue Bonds

The constitutional issue with respect to special purpose revenue bonds is whether such bonds should be excluded from the debt limit. This issue has emerged because of a 1976 supreme court decision on Act 161, Session Laws of Hawaii 1973, which authorized the State to issue revenue bonds to finance anti-pollution projects. The court found that the bonds satisfied a public purpose, but it also found that the anti-pollution bonds did not qualify as revenue bonds as defined in the current Constitution and would therefore have to be counted against the debt limit.

The court's criteria were that the law authorizing the bonds must obligate the issuer to (1) impose rates and charges for the use of the undertaking sufficient to pay for the costs of its operations and to pay the principal and interest on the bonds and to deposit such revenues in a special fund; and (2) have sufficient proprietary control over the undertaking, because such control is necessary to provide the required security, in the form of revenues, to make the required payments on the bonds. Consequently, the court's standards presumably ruled out for exclusion from the debt limit all revenue bonds intended to assist private enterprise, or even those revenue bonds intended for home loans under government programs.

While the legislature clearly has the authority to authorize special purpose revenue bonds, their exclusion from the debt limit is a constitutional matter. Your Committee has determined that the authorization and issuance of special purpose bonds should be allowed without being chargeable against the debt limit, if the legislature determines the bonds to be in the public interest and if they are authorized and issued for the following categories of enterprises and programs: (1) manufacturing, processing and industrial enterprises, (2) utilities serving the general public, (3) health care facilities provided to the public by not-for-profit corporations and (4) low- and moderate-income government housing programs.

The proposed provisions specify that no special purpose bonds can be secured, directly or indirectly, by the general credit, revenues or taxes of the issuer. The enterprise for which the bonds are issued is solely responsible for making payment on the bonds. The proposed language states that:

"No special purpose revenue bond shall be secured directly or indirectly by the general credit of the issuer or by any revenues or taxes of the issuer other than receipts derived from payments by a person under contract or from any security for such contract or special purpose revenue bonds and no moneys other than such receipts shall be applied to the payment thereof."

This language prohibits the use of public funds, directly or indirectly, to pay the principal and interest on any special purpose revenue bonds. Thus the issuing jurisdiction is prohibited from incurring any "moral obligation" in the event of default on the bonds.

The provisions allowing the State and political subdivisions to authorize and issue special purpose revenue bonds and to exclude such bonds from the debt limit of the respective jurisdictions were decided upon favorably for the following reasons:

1. The tax-exempt status of special purpose revenue bonds represents a national policy of assisting certain limited categories of enterprises.
2. It can be reasonably assumed that the lower costs of tax-exempt bonds will mean lower costs to consumers, particularly with respect to those enterprises which are under the economic regulation of the issuing jurisdiction.
3. Tax-exempt special purpose revenue bonds can be issued for only those purposes allowed by the Internal Revenue Code.
4. Special purpose revenue bonds combine the advantages of lower-cost government financing with the responsibilities and risks of private ownership.
5. Forty-eight other states allow the issuance of special purpose revenue bonds in one form or another.

Concerns were raised by several members of your Committee whether there would be sufficient safeguards in the issuance of special purpose revenue bonds. Your Committee finds that the safeguards include: (1) enabling legislation must be passed by the legislature and a determination must be made that the proposed bonds are in the public interest before they can be authorized or issued; (2) approval of any specific issue must be authorized by the state or county administration; and (3) close scrutiny will be given to such issues by the tax-exempt bond market.

Another concern was that the issuance of special purpose revenue bonds should be centrally coordinated together with the issuance of general obligation bonds and revenue bonds to avoid the overlapping of any bond issues with its possible detrimental effects on Hawaii issues in the municipal bond market. Consequently, your Committee recommends that appropriate coordination of all bond issues be effected by a single agency in the executive branch.

D. Lapsing

Your Committee recommends the inclusion of a provision in Section 5 of Article VI which would provide for the automatic lapsing of unencumbered appropriations whose source is general obligation bond funds or general funds. Under your Committee's proposal, appropriations of such funds must be for a specified period but in no case more than two years. Both total unencumbered appropriations as well as partial unencumbered appropriations will lapse at the end of this period.

Your Committee's proposal includes a transitional provision. It allows the State until June 30, 1980 to examine the pool of authorized but unissued bonds and determine which should be implemented. Those appropriations and portions of appropriations unencumbered on that date will lapse.

The reasons for this suggested proposal are as follows:

1. It is unlikely that a large surplus of authorized but unissued bonds, such as the $1 billion pool now in existence, could have accumulated with a lapsing provision in effect.
2. The provision would facilitate accountability for capital improvement projects by the legislature and governor and would encourage a more rational development of capital improvement programs. Presently, the legislature criticizes the executive for not implementing its projects, while the governor argues that it would be fiscally irresponsible to issue all of the bonds authorized by the legislature. Such a situation undermines the public's confidence in the State's capital improvement program.
3. A lapsing mechanism would require the executive agencies to conduct ongoing reviews of capital improvement programs to determine which projects should be implemented prior to their authorization termination date, which projects require additional authorizations and which projects should be canceled.

A longer lapsing period was considered but your Committee agreed that a two-year period, which corresponds with the State's biennial budgetary system, was adequate. Further, this will cause an ongoing, thoughtful review of the implementation and supervision of all stages of such projects by the executive branch and will increase the oversight capabilities of the legislative branch.

E. County Debt Limits

Your Committee believes that the present provisions relating to the counties' debt limits should be retained. It was agreed that the counties have demonstrated restraint and prudence in their debt-incurrence practices.

However, the following amendments discussed in connection with the State's debt limit also apply to the counties: (1) the addition of language authorizing special purpose revenue bonds, (2) the change in the maturity periods for general obligation and reimbursable general obligation bonds, and (3) the modifications to the exclusions from state debt limit or, in this case, the funded debt of any of the counties. Language clarifying the method of authorizing general obligation and reimbursable general obligation bonds for political subdivisions has also been suggested for inclusion in Section 3 of Article VI. Your Committee also recommends revising Section 3 of Article VI to provide the legislature with the option of authorizing, by general law, boards or agencies of political subdivisions to issue revenue bonds. Your Committee was informed that the Board of Water Supply of the City and County of Honolulu had utilized such bonds in the past. Although it was the feeling of your Committee that the present language of the Constitution allows the issuance of revenue bonds for such agencies or boards, it was decided to include clarifying language to avoid confusion in the future.

F. The State Spending Limit

In testimony before your Committee, the necessity of establishing some form of limitation on state government spending received wide support. Basically, the movement to control government spending, here and elsewhere in the United States, has its origins in the genuine concern of taxpayers that the costs of government should not consume an increasing proportion of their income. Your Committee concurs that discipline needs to be exercised in the development and execution of spending policies and that the Constitution is a proper place to exert and motivate such discipline. The following constitute your Committee's proposals for a state spending limitation:

1. That the rate of growth of general fund appropriations, excluding federal funds received by the general fund, be limited to the estimated rate of growth of the State's economy.

Both expenditure limitations, which would restrict the State's spending, and taxation limitations, which limit the amount of revenues the State may raise, were considered as means of limiting state spending. However, limits on the taxing power were rejected because of their potentially adverse effect on the State's credit rating; limiting the State's taxing power weakens the State's full faith and credit pledge. An expenditure limitation, on the other hand, would not jeopardize the State's credit rating or the State's revenue-producing potential. In fact, your Committee heard testimony that it would have a positive effect on the credit rating of the State. It would also allow both the legislative and executive branches of government to plan and establish their priorities in an orderly manner.

Your Committee chose the general fund, exclusive of federal funds, as the appropriate state spending base because it includes nontax revenues, such as fees and charges, but excludes special fund revenues earmarked for self-sufficient operations, such as airports and highways. Although federal funds are deemed part of the general fund, they do not reflect the State's ability to generate revenue and were accordingly eliminated from the computation of the expenditure ceiling.

After lengthy discussion, your Committee decided to allow the legislature to prescribe the standard of growth of the State's economy. There was strong support in your Committee for using total state personal income as the standard. It was argued that a number of experts testifying before your Committee agreed that state personal income was currently the best indicator of the State's ability to support government services and should be included in the Constitution itself. There was also the view that neither personal income nor any economic measure should limit government spending and that spending limits should be a matter for the legislature to decide. However, the majority of your Committee believed that the State should not be tied to one particular index. A standard, such as total state personal income which is a federal index, may be valid and useful today but outmoded at some later time. Your Committee preferred to allow the legislature the flexibility to devise an appropriate indicator and change it later, if necessary.

2. That the legislature by a two-thirds vote may exceed the expenditure ceiling if it states the dollar amount, the rate by which the ceiling will be exceeded and the reasons for such excess authorization.

Your Committee agreed that the legislature should be allowed to exceed the expenditure ceiling if circumstances warranted such action. The two-thirds vote requirement and the public disclosure requirement were designed to provide safeguards against the legislature exceeding the spending limit without an extraordinary legislative consensus and public knowledge that a genuine need exists.

3. That the State shall balance its budget except when the governor publicly declares a threat to the public health, safety or welfare.

The intent of this amendment to Section 6 is to assure that the State does not circumvent the expenditure ceiling provided in proposed Section 5 by engaging in deficit spending.

4. That, if the legislature mandates the counties to undertake new programs or to increase the level of services under existing programs, the State share in the costs of such new programs or new level of services.

Although your Committee considered granting the counties the ability to levy excise taxes, it was agreed that such taxing power should not be given to the counties if they were not required to assume additional government services. On the other hand, your Committee was concerned that the State be prevented from placing the counties in a financial crisis by requiring them to provide additional services. This proposal, specified in a proposed section entitled "Transfer of Mandated Programs," is intended to assure that the State does not circumvent the proposed spending limit by transferring some of its functions to the counties or by requiring the counties to undertake new programs. It is the intent of your Committee that the State provide funding for the full cost of the new program or an increase in scope, represented by increased costs, in an existing program in the first year of the program and for a reasonable share of such cost in future years for as long a period as the new program or increase in scope shall be prescribed by law.

G. The Budget

Your Committee suggests including a provision in Section 4 of Article VI which would require that the governor's plan of proposed general fund expenditures and estimates of the aggregate expenditures of the judicial and legislative branches not exceed the general fund expenditure ceiling established by the legislature under Section 5 of this article. This requirement not only ties the provisions of Section 4 to the proposed expenditure ceiling requirement in Section 5 but also effectively requires the governor to present a realistic budget for the legislature's consideration. Proposed Section 4, however, does allow the governor to propose a budget which would exceed the general fund expenditure ceiling if public disclosure of the proposed excess over such ceiling and an explanation for such excess is given.

A provision to clarify the procedure for submission of the budget of the judicial branch has also been recommended. This provision authorizes the chief justice to submit the judiciary's budget directly to the legislature. The effect of this provision will be to constitutionally sanction an accepted current practice. It is also consistent with maintaining the separation of each of the three branches of government.

The proposed Section 4 also requires that the budget of both the governor and judiciary be submitted in bill form. This requirement conforms to present procedural requirements.

H. Public Purpose

Section 2 of the present Constitution provides that "No tax shall be levied or appropriation of public money or property made, nor shall the public credit be used, directly or indirectly, except for a public purpose. No grant shall be made in violation of Section 3 of Article I of this constitution." It is proposed that this "public purpose" clause, which has its origins in the 1950 Constitution, be retained intact, but that an additional sentence be added to read: "No grant of public money or property shall be made except pursuant to standards provided by law."

In effect, the additional language will require the legislature to establish standards for the appropriation of funds to private organizations conducting programs which the legislature has determined to be in the public interest. No such standards exist at the present time even though the legislature appropriates several millions of dollars each biennium to private organizations. The requirement that the legislature set standards would be useful to the legislature itself as well as provide the public with an understanding as to what guidelines govern, and which types of organizations qualify for, the appropriation of grants and subsidies.

I. The Auditor

Section 7 of the present Constitution, relating to the auditor and the functions of the auditor, has been amended to update the auditor's function to include post-audits of "programs and performance of" government agencies. This is basically a clarification rather than an expansion of the function. Since its establishment, the auditor has been engaged in program and performance audits (also called management audits) in addition to financial audits, and the incorporation of the new clarifying language follows the post-audit principles enunciated by the Congress of Supreme Audit Institutions and the U.S. General Accounting Office. Program and performance auditing represents a newer dimension of post-auditing which has rapidly gained acceptance in government auditing, and the new language in effect modernizes the definition in the Constitution. In all other respects, your Committee has retained the existing language in the Constitution designed to secure and protect the independence of the post-audit function.

Your Committee also reviewed the issue of auditing in the executive branch and, as suggested by House Resolution 595, H.D. 1, 1978 Regular Session, which was directed to your Committee, considered whether all post-audits should be consolidated under the constitutionally established auditor. While executive auditing would appear to be self-auditing, an anomalous situation which the original 1950 Constitution attempted to correct, executive auditing persists because it pre-dates the establishment of the office of the auditor. Nothing appears to have been done to correct the situation, and the result is that auditing in the executive branch continues even though the legislative auditor is constitutionally assigned to perform that function.

Your Committee considered including language in the Constitution which would clarify that the duty of the auditor to certify to the accuracy of financial statements shall be exclusive. However, your Committee finds that it is already the duty of the auditor to certify to the accuracy of all financial statements. The problem is that the legislature has not clarified the statutes or made the necessary funding arrangements so that the function of certifying to financial statements can be discharged by the auditor without duplication of the function by the executive branch.

Therefore, your Committee views the issue at this time as one for legislative rather than constitutional remedy. It is the intent of your Committee that the legislature will proceed to amend the statutes and make the necessary funding arrangements so that the function of conducting financial audits leading to certifications will be discharged by the auditor. It is also your Committee's intent that the assignment to the auditor of the function of financial audits requiring certification does not preclude the executive branch from conducting audits of its accounting and internal control systems, management reviews and analyses, program and performance evaluations, and other examinations and studies necessary for the efficient conduct of executive operations.

J. Council on Revenues

A new section has been included in Article VI to provide for a council on revenues to be established by law. A council on revenues to prepare revenue estimates and to advise both the governor and the legislature was determined to be necessary because of the disagreements that arise between the governor and the legislature over budgetary and expenditure policies. To a large extent, executive-legislative conflict and conflict between the two houses of the legislature over fiscal matters are traceable to a lack of agreement over revenue estimates. Thus the governor may present one set of revenue estimates in submitting the executive budget, the house of representatives may work with a different set of revenue estimates, the senate with another set of revenue estimates, the legislature as a whole with still another set of revenue estimates in making appropriations and, finally, the governor may revise the estimates throughout the budget execution period.

It is your Committee's contention that revenue-estimating is a function which should not be influenced by the politics of either the executive or legislative branches. Thus, the establishment of a formal mechanism for revenue-estimating is intended to provide the means by which both the executive and legislative branches will be served impartially.

The new section provides that the council shall prepare and report estimates at times provided by law. The estimates are to be considered by the governor in preparing the budget, recommending appropriations and revenues and controlling expenditures, and by the legislature in appropriating funds and enacting revenue measures. This means that the council would prepare and report estimates to support at least three actions by the governor and the legislature: (1) budget preparation by the governor; (2) appropriations by the legislature; and (3) budget execution by the governor. It is intended that the council will update its revenue estimates whenever necessary.

There was considerable debate as to whether the council's estimates should be advisory or binding on the executive and the legislature. Those who favored binding estimates contended that advisory estimates would leave revenue-estimating in much the same state as it is at the present time. Those who argued against binding estimates contended that this would be too powerful a function to be placed in a body not directly accountable to the electorate. Ultimately, your Committee's decision was to strengthen the council's advisory function as recommended by your Committee on Executive, by requiring the governor and the legislature to disclose to the public the reasons for exceeding revenue estimates made by the council.

K. Tax Review Commission

A new section has been added to provide for the establishment by law of a tax review commission on or before July 1, 1980 and every five years thereafter. The function of the commission would be to evaluate the State's tax structure and submit recommendations on revenue and tax policy to the legislature.

The constitutional requirement for a tax review commission is determined to be necessary since neither the executive branch nor the legislature has reviewed the State's overall tax system against such standards as equity and efficiency. There has been no systematic review of the tax structure in more than two decades. The last major restructuring of taxes took place in 1965, and that change had the objective of producing additional revenues rather than achieving economic and social objectives. Other changes have been piecemeal in nature, usually originating from the legislature and directed primarily to liberalization of the general excise tax. For its part, the executive branch has limited its recommendations to house-keeping measures.

A periodic and independent assessment of the State's tax system would be useful to both branches of government as well as provide the public with a framework by which it can assess executive and legislative actions on taxation and revenue policy.

L. Income Taxation

Your Committee recommends the inclusion of a new section which would allow the legislature to enact a law automatically conforming the state income tax law in desired areas to the federal income tax code. This could be accomplished by enacting a law which would provide that as the federal Internal Revenue Code is amended by Congress, the state income tax law would also be amended without the necessity of further legislative action. Presently the provisions of Article VI, Section 1, have been interpreted by the office of the attorney general to prevent such a law from being enacted, thereby necessitating this amendment.

Testimony before the committee indicated that in 1957, when the State first adopted its income tax law, it was based on, and the intent of the law was to have, the State's income tax law conform as nearly as possible with the federal income tax law in order to minimize the state taxpayer's burden in complying with two complicated tax laws, state and federal. Your Committee was informed that, in practice, changes made to the federal law were not adopted by the State for at least a year, in many instances for three or four years, and some were never adopted. Over a period of 20 years since the 1957 enactment, the state income tax law fell badly out of line with the federal law. Only recently through the cooperative efforts of the department of taxation, the legislative branch and the private sector was the state law brought back into close conformity with the federal law. The number of man-hours and documentation necessary to perform this conformance task, as shown to the committee were many, costly and, through this amendment, could be avoided in the future.

Although it was argued that by permitting automatic income tax conformance, the State would be surrendering a sovereign right and diluting the State's right to enact its own tax laws, such an argument fails to take into consideration that this amendment would not extensively change the present system, which is wholly based upon federal law. When the federal law is amended, the State adopts the great majority of the federal changes. The State does not at this time, nor would it under an automatic conformance law, be bound to blindly follow the lead of the federal government. The State could continue to maintain and create its own exemptions, tax credits and income tax policy, found in the present state income tax law, in particular, Section 235.3, Hawaii Revised Statutes, (Act 173, S.L.H. 1978), which could appropriately be used as the basis of such a conformity law. Further, basing the state income tax law on the federal law allows the State to take advantage of the input of individuals of national caliber. Finally, some argue that by automatically conforming to federal changes a large tax loss or policy change may be enacted that the State did not wish to follow. Such a tax loss or policy change, however, could be easily and retroactively obviated in a legislative session following the adoption of such change. By requiring the department of taxation to advise the legislature of the changes in the federal Internal Revenue Code at every legislative session, both the department of taxation and the legislature will be able to keep abreast of the most recent federal changes.

Your Committee considered requiring that the State's financial statement be published annually within four months of the end of each fiscal year. While the desirability of informing the public of the financial condition of the State was not contested, your Committee concluded that the existing statutory requirement of such publication was sufficient. Your Committee does, however, urge the legislature to require that the report be published as soon after the end of the fiscal year as is practicable.

Your Committee also considered and rejected proposals which would have (1) disposed of excess general fund revenues by providing rebate or tax credits to individuals or by retiring state indebtedness, (2) required revenue-sharing and grants-in-aid from the State to the counties, (3) transferred the real property tax programs to counties, and (4) required deposit of public funds in licensed, federally insured financial institutions.

A number of style changes have been made by your Committee. For example, "monies" has been changed to "moneys" throughout Article VI. Provisions, such as definitional sections in Section 3 pertinent to the issuance of bonds and debt limits, have also been rearranged. These changes do not, however, affect the substantive provisions of Article VI.

Your Committee on Taxation and Finance recommends (1) that the above-numbered proposals referred to your Committee be filed, (2) that Section 1 be retained without amendment and (3) that Committee Proposal No. 14 pass first reading in the form attached hereto.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates DiBianco, Ellis and Fernandes Salling. Delegates Barr, Marumoto and Peterson did not concur and Delegate Marion Lee did not concur in part.

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL NO. 14

RELATING TO TAXATION AND FINANCE.

RESOLVED, that the following be agreed upon as amending Articles VI and VII of the State Constitution:

1. Article VI is amended by adding three new sections to read:

COUNCIL ON REVENUES

Section . There shall be established by law a council on revenues which shall prepare revenue estimates of the state government and shall report the estimates to the governor and the legislature at times provided by law. The estimates shall be considered by the governor in preparing the budget, recommending appropriations and revenues and controlling expenditures and by the legislature in appropriating funds and enacting revenue measures. All revenue estimates made by the council to the governor and the legislature shall be made public. If the legislature in appropriating funds or the governor in preparing the budget or recommending appropriations exceeds estimated revenues due to proposed expenditures, this fact shall be made public including the reasons therefor.

TAX REVIEW COMMISSION

Section . There shall be a commission on tax review, which shall be appointed as provided by law on or before July 1, 1980, and every five years thereafter. The commission shall submit to the legislature an evaluation of the State's tax structure, recommend revenue and tax policy and then dissolve.

INCOME TAXATION

Section . In enacting any law imposing a tax on or measured by income, the legislature may define income by reference to provisions of the laws of the United States as they may be or become effective at any time or from time to time, whether retrospective or prospective in their operation. The legislature may provide that amendments to such laws of the United States shall become the law of the State upon their becoming the law of the United States. The legislature shall in any such law set the rate or rates of such tax. The legislature may in so defining income make exceptions, additions or modifications to any provisions of the laws of the United States so referred to and provide for retrospective exceptions or modifications to those provisions which are retrospective.

2. Article VI, Section 2, is amended to read:

APPROPRIATIONS FOR PRIVATE PURPOSES
PROHIBITED

Section 2. No tax shall be levied or appropriation of public money or property made, nor shall the public credit be used, directly or indirectly, except for a public purpose. No grant shall be made in violation of Section 3 of Article I of this constitution. No grant of public money or property shall be made except pursuant to standards provided by law.

3. Article VI, Section 3, is amended to read:

BONDS; DEBT LIMITATIONS

Section 3. For the purposes of this section, the term "bonds" shall include bonds, notes and other instruments of indebtedness; the term "general obligation bonds" means all bonds for the payment of the principal and interest of which the full faith and credit of the State or a political subdivision are pledged[; and the term "revenue bonds" means all bonds payable solely from and secured solely by the revenues, or user taxes, or any combination of both, of a public undertaking, improvement or system.] and, unless otherwise indicated, includes reimbursable general obligation bonds; the term "net revenues" or "net user tax receipts" means the revenues or receipts derived from a public undertaking, improvement or system remaining after the costs of operation, maintenance and repair of such public undertaking, improvement or system and the required payments of the principal of and interest on all revenue bonds issued therefor have been made; the term "person" means an individual, firm, partnership, corporation, association, cooperative or other legal entity, governmental body or agency, board, bureau or other instrumentality thereof, or any combination of the foregoing; the term "rates, rentals and charges" means all revenues and other moneys derived from the operation or lease of a public undertaking, improvement or system, or derived from any payments or return on security under a loan program or a loan thereunder; the term "reimbursable general obligation bonds" means general obligation bonds issued for a public undertaking, improvement or system for which revenues, or user taxes, or a combination of both, may be derived for the payment of the principal and interest as reimbursement to the general fund and for which reimbursement is required by law, and, in the case of general obligation bonds issued by the State for a political subdivision, general obligation bonds for which the payment of the principal and interest as reimbursement to the general fund is required by law to be made from the revenue of the political subdivision; the term "revenue bonds" means all bonds payable from the revenues, or user taxes, or any combination of both, of a public undertaking, improvement, system or loan program and any loan made thereunder and secured as may be provided by law; the term "special purpose revenue bonds" means all bonds payable from rental or other payments made to an issuer by a person pursuant to contract and secured as may be provided by law; and the term "user tax" means a tax on goods or services or on the consumption thereof, the receipts of which are substantially derived from the consumption, use or sale of goods and services in the utilization of the functions or services furnished by a public undertaking, improvement or system.

[All bonds issued by or on behalf of the State or a political subdivision must be authorized by the legislature, and bonds of a political subdivision must also be authorized by its governing body.] The legislature by a majority vote of the members to which each house is entitled shall authorize the issuance of all general obligation bonds and revenue bonds issued by or on behalf of the State and shall prescribe by general law the manner and procedure for such issuance. The legislature by general law shall authorize political subdivisions to issue general obligation bonds and revenue bonds and may authorize any board or agency of such political subdivision to issue revenue bonds and, in either case, shall prescribe the manner and procedure for such issuance. All general obligation bonds issued by or on behalf of a political subdivision shall be authorized by the governing body of such political subdivision and all revenue bonds issued by or on behalf of a political subdivision shall be authorized by the governing body of such political subdivision or the governing body of any board or agency of such political subdivision authorized by law to issue revenue bonds. The legislature by general law may authorize the State or political subdivisions, or both, to issue special purpose revenue bonds and, in such case, shall prescribe the manner and procedure for such issuance. No special purpose revenue bonds shall be authorized or issued except to finance facilities of or for, or to loan the proceeds of such bonds to assist, manufacturing, processing or industrial enterprises, utilities serving the general public, health care facilities provided to the general public by not-for-profit corporations or low and moderate income government housing programs, which facilities or loan the legislature finds to be in the public interest. No special purpose revenue bond shall be secured directly or indirectly by the general credit of the issuer or by any revenues or taxes of the issuer other than receipts derived from payments by a person under contract or from any security for such contract or special purpose revenue bonds and no moneys other than such receipts shall be applied to the payment thereof.

[Bonds] General obligation bonds may be issued by the State [when authorized by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house of the legislature is entitled], provided that such bonds at the time of [authorization] issuance would not cause the total [of state indebtedness] amount of principal and interest payable in the current or any future fiscal year, whichever is higher, on such bonds and on all outstanding general obligation bonds to exceed: a sum equal to [three and one-half times] twenty percent of the average of the general fund revenues of the State in the three fiscal years immediately preceding such issuance until June 30, 1982; and thereafter, a sum equal to eighteen and one-half percent of the average of the general fund revenues of the State in the three fiscal years immediately preceding [the session of the legislature authorizing] such issuance. Any bond issue by or on behalf of the State may exceed the debt limit if an emergency condition is declared to exist by the governor and concurred to by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house of the legislature is entitled. For the purpose of this paragraph, general fund revenues of the State shall not include [monies] moneys received as grants from the federal government and receipts in reimbursement of any [indebtedness that is] reimbursable general obligation bonds which are excluded [in computing the total indebtedness of the State.] as permitted by this section.

[By majority vote of the members to which each house of the legislature is entitled and without regard to any debt limit, there may be issued by or on behalf of the State: bonds to meet appropriations for any fiscal period in anticipation of the collection of revenues for such period or to meet casual deficits or failures of revenue, if required to be paid within one year; bonds to suppress insurrection, to repel invasion, to defend the State in war or to meet emergencies caused by disaster or act of God; and revenue bonds.]

A sum equal to fifteen percent of the total of the assessed values for tax rate purposes of real property in [any] each political subdivision, as determined by the last tax assessment rolls pursuant to law, is established as the limit of the funded debt of such political subdivision that is outstanding and unpaid at any time.

[Bonds to meet appropriations for any fiscal period in anticipation of the collection of revenues for such period or to meet casual deficits or failures of revenue, if required to be paid within one year, may be issued by any political subdivision under authorization of law and of its governing body without regard to any debt limit.]

All general obligation bonds for a term exceeding [one year] two years shall be in serial form maturing in substantially equal installments of principal, or maturing in substantially equal [installment] installments of both principal and interest[, the]. The first installment of principal [to] of general obligation bonds and of reimbursable general obligation bonds shall mature not later than five years from the date of [the] issue of such series, [and] the last installment on general obligation bonds shall mature not later than [thirty-five] twenty-five years from the date of such issue[.] and the last installment on reimbursable general obligation bonds shall mature not later than thirty-five years from the date of such issue. The interest and principal payments of general obligation bonds shall be a first charge on the general fund of the State or political subdivision, as the case may be.

In determining the [total indebtedness] power of the State to issue general obligation bonds or the funded debt of any political subdivision, the following shall be excluded:

- (a) Bonds that have matured, or that mature in the then current fiscal year, or that have been irrevocably called for redemption and the redemption date has occurred or will occur in the then fiscal year, [and] or for the full payment of which [monies] moneys or securities have been irrevocably set aside.

(b) Revenue bonds, [authorized or issued,] if the issuer thereof is obligated by law to impose rates, rentals and charges for the use and services of the public undertaking, improvement or system[,] or the benefits of a loan program or a loan thereunder or to impose a user tax, or to impose a combination of rates, rentals and charges and user tax, as the case may be, sufficient to pay the cost of operation, maintenance and repair, if any, of the public undertaking, improvement or system or the cost of maintaining a loan program or a loan thereunder and the required payments of the principal of and interest on all revenue bonds issued for the public undertaking, improvement or system[,] or loan program, and if the issuer is obligated to deposit such revenues or tax or a combination of both into a special fund and to apply the same to such payments in the amount necessary therefor. [For the purposes of this section a user tax shall mean a tax on goods or services or on the consumption thereof, the receipts of which are substantially derived from the consumption, use or sale of goods and services in the utilization of the functions or services furnished by the public undertaking, improvement or system.]

(c) Special purpose revenue bonds, if the issuer thereof is required by law to contract with a person obligating such person to make rental or other payments to the issuer in an amount at least sufficient to make the required payment of the principal of and interest on such special purpose revenue bonds.

[(c)] (d) Bonds [authorized or] issued under special improvement statutes when the only security for such bonds is the properties benefited or improved or the assessments thereon.

[(d)] (e) General obligation bonds [authorized or] issued for assessable improvements, but only to the extent that reimbursements to the general fund for the principal and interest on such bonds are in fact made from assessment collections available therefor.

[(e)] (f) [General] Reimbursable general obligation bonds issued for a public undertaking, improvement or system [from which revenues, user taxes, or a combination of both may be derived for the payment of all or part of the principal and interest as reimbursement to the general fund,] but only to the extent that reimbursements to the general fund are in fact made from the net revenue, net user tax receipts, or combination of both, as determined for the immediately preceding fiscal year. [For the purposes of this section, net revenue or net user tax receipts shall be the revenue or receipts remaining after the costs of operation, maintenance and repair of such public undertaking, improvement or system and the required payments of the principal of and interest on all revenue bonds issued therefor have been made.]

[(f)] General obligation bonds of the State, authorized but unissued, for an existing public undertaking, improvement or system that produces revenues, or user tax receipts, or a combination of both, but only if in the fiscal year immediately preceding the authorization, the public undertaking, improvement or system produced a net revenue, net user taxes or a combination of both, that was sufficient to pay into the general fund the full amount of the principal and interest then due for all general obligation bonds then outstanding for such public undertaking, improvement or system.]

[(g)] General obligation bonds of the State, authorized but unissued, for an existing public undertaking, improvement or system that has not been self-sustaining as determined for the immediately preceding fiscal year, and that produces revenues, or user tax receipts, or a combination of both, but only if the rates or charges for the use and services of the undertaking have been, or the rate of such user tax has been, increased by law or by the issuing body as authorized by law, in an amount that is determined will produce sufficient net revenue or net user taxes, or any combination thereof, for reimbursement to the general fund for the payment of principal and interest on all general obligation bonds then outstanding and authorized for such public undertaking, improvement or system.]

[(h)] (g) [General] Reimbursable general obligation bonds issued by the State for any political subdivision, whether issued before or after the effective date of this section, but only for as long as reimbursement by the political subdivision to the State for the payment of principal and interest on such bonds is required by law; provided that in the case of bonds [authorized or] issued after the effective date of this [amendment,] section, the consent of the governing body of the political subdivision has first been obtained; and provided further that during the period that such bonds are excluded [from total indebtedness of] by the State, the principal amount then outstanding shall be included within the funded debt of such political subdivision.

(h) Bonds constituting instruments of indebtedness under which the State or any political subdivision incurs a contingent liability as a guarantor, provided that the State or political subdivision shall establish and maintain a reserve in an amount in reasonable proportion to the outstanding loans guaranteed by the State or political subdivision as is provided by law.

(i) Bonds issued by or on behalf of the State or by any political subdivision to meet appropriations for any fiscal period in anticipation of the collection of revenues for such period or to meet casual deficits or failures of revenue, if required to be paid within one year, and bonds issued by or on behalf of the State to suppress insurrection, to repel invasion, to defend the State in war or to meet emergencies caused by disaster or act of God.

[Determinations of the exclusions from the] The total outstanding indebtedness of the State or funded debt of any political subdivision [provided for in] and the exclusions therefrom permitted by this section shall be made annually and certified by law or as [prescribed] provided by law. For the purposes of this section, amounts received from on-street parking may be considered and treated as revenues of a parking undertaking.

Nothing in this section shall prevent the refunding of any bond at any time.

4. Article VI, Section 4, is amended to read:

THE BUDGET

Section 4. Within such time prior to the opening of each regular session in an odd-numbered year as may be [prescribed] provided by law, the governor shall submit to the legislature a budget in a form provided by law setting forth a complete plan of proposed expenditures of the executive branch, estimates as provided by law of the aggregate expenditures of the judicial and legislative branches, and anticipated receipts of the State for the ensuing fiscal biennium, together with such other information as the legislature may require. A complete plan of proposed expenditures of the judicial branch for the ensuing fiscal biennium shall be submitted by the chief justice to the legislature in a form and within such time prior to the opening of each regular session in an odd-numbered year as shall be provided by law. The budget prepared by the governor and the plan of proposed expenditures prepared by the chief justice shall also be submitted in [a] bill form [prescribed by law]. The governor shall also, upon the opening of each such session, submit bills to provide for such proposed expenditures and for any recommended additional revenues or borrowings by which the proposed expenditures are to be met. [Such bills shall be introduced in the legislature upon the opening of each such session.] The proposed general fund expenditures in the plan of proposed expenditures, including estimates of the aggregate expenditures of the judicial and legislative branches, submitted by the governor shall not exceed the general fund expenditure ceiling established by the legislature under Section 5 of this article; provided that proposed general fund expenditures in the plan may exceed such ceiling if the governor sets forth the dollar amount and the rate by which the ceiling will be exceeded and the reasons therefor.

5. Article VI, Section 5, is amended to read:

LEGISLATIVE APPROPRIATIONS; PROCEDURES; LAPSING; EXPENDITURE CEILING

Section 5. In each regular session in an odd-numbered year, the legislature shall transmit to the governor an appropriation bill or bills providing for the anticipated total expenditures of the State for the ensuing fiscal biennium. In such session, no appropriation bill, except bills recommended by the governor for immediate passage, or to cover the expenses of the legislature, shall be passed on final reading until the bill authorizing operating expenditures for the ensuing fiscal biennium, to be known as the general appropriations bill, shall have been transmitted to the governor.

In each regular session in an even-numbered year, at such time as may be [pre-scribed] provided by law, the governor may submit to the legislature a bill to amend any appropriation for operating expenditures of the current fiscal biennium, to be known as the supplemental appropriations bill, and bills to amend any appropriations for capital expenditures of the current fiscal biennium, and at the same time [he] the governor shall submit a bill or bills to provide for any added revenues or borrowings that such amendments may require. In each regular session in an even-numbered year, bills may be introduced in the legislature to amend any appropriation act or bond authorization act of the current fiscal biennium or prior fiscal periods. In any such session in which the legislature submits to the governor a supplemental appropriations bill, no other appropriation bill, except bills recommended by the governor for immediate passage, or to cover the expenses of the legislature, shall be passed on final reading until such supplemental appropriations bill shall have been transmitted to the governor.

All appropriations for which the source is general obligation bond funds or general funds shall be for specified periods, and no such appropriation shall be made for a period exceeding two years. Any such appropriation or any portion of any such appropriation which is unencumbered at the close of the fiscal period for which the appropriation is made shall lapse. Where general obligation bonds have been authorized for an appropriation, the amount of the bond authorization shall be reduced in an amount equal to the amount lapsed.

Any appropriation for which the source is general obligation bond funds or general funds or any portion of any such appropriation which is effective on the date of ratification of this amendment and which is unencumbered on June 30, 1980 shall lapse on that date unless earlier lapsed by law. Where general obligation bonds have been authorized for an appropriation, the amount of the bond authorization shall be reduced in an amount equal to the amount lapsed on June 30, 1980.

Notwithstanding any other provision to the contrary, the legislature shall establish a general fund expenditure ceiling which shall limit the rate of growth of general fund appropriations, excluding federal funds received by the general fund, to the estimated rate of growth of the State's economy as provided by law. No appropriations in excess of such ceiling shall be authorized during any legislative session unless the legislature shall by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house of the legislature is entitled set forth the dollar amount and the rate by which the ceiling will be exceeded and the reasons therefor.

6. Article VI, Section 6, is amended to read:

EXPENDITURE CONTROLS

Section 6. Provision for the control of the rate of expenditures of appropriated state [monies,] moneys, and for the reduction of such expenditures under prescribed conditions, shall be made by law.

No public money shall be expended except pursuant to appropriations made by law. General fund expenditures for any fiscal year shall not exceed the State's current general fund revenues and unencumbered cash balances, except when the governor publicly declares the public health, safety or welfare is threatened as provided by law.

7. Article VI, Section 7, is amended to read:

AUDITOR

Section 7. The legislature, by a majority vote of each house in joint session, shall appoint an auditor who shall serve for a period of eight years and thereafter until a successor shall have been appointed. The legislature, by a two-thirds vote of the members in joint session, may remove the auditor from office at any time for cause. It shall be the duty of the auditor to conduct post-audits of [all] the transactions [and of all], accounts [kept by or for], programs and performance of all departments, offices and agencies of the State and its political subdivisions, to certify to the accuracy of all financial statements issued by the respective accounting officers and to report [his] the auditor's findings and recommendations to the governor and to the legislature at such times as shall be [prescribed] provided by law. [He] The auditor shall also make such additional reports and conduct such other investigations as may be directed by the legislature.

8. Article VII is amended by adding a new section to read:

TRANSFER OF MANDATED PROGRAMS

Section . If any new program or increase in the level of service under an existing program shall be mandated to any of the political subdivisions by the legislature, it shall provide that the State share in the cost.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 67

Your Committee on Style, to which was referred Committee Proposal No. 6, RD. 1, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal, which the Convention has adopted on second reading, covers Article IX, Education. The Convention has proposed amendments to Section 1 (Public Education), Section 2 (Board of Education), Section 3 (Power of the Board of Education) and Section 5 (Board of Regents; Powers), as well as the addition of a new section, "Hawaiian Studies."

Your Committee proposes several style changes which are indicated by brackets [for deleting] and underscoring for additions as shown in the committee proposal and report.

Article IX, Section 1. Public Education:

Your Committee considered the wording of this section and feels no changes are necessary.

"BOARD OF EDUCATION

"Section 2. There shall be a board of education composed of members who shall be elected in a nonpartisan manner by qualified voters [in accordance with] as provided by law from two at-large [units.] school board districts. The first [unit] school board district shall be comprised of the island of Oahu and all other islands not specifically enumerated. The second [unit] school board district shall be comprised of the islands of Hawaii, Maui, Lanai, Molokai, Kahoolawe, Kauai and Niihau. Each at-large [unit] school board district shall be divided into departmental school districts, as may be provided by law. There shall be at least one member residing in each departmental school district.

"[Members elected in the 1978 general election shall serve for two-year terms.]"

"POWER OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION

"Section 3. The board of education shall have power, [in accordance with] as provided by law, to formulate policy [,] and to exercise control over the public school system through its executive officer, the superintendent of education, who shall be appointed by the board, except that the board shall have jurisdiction over the internal organization and management of the public school system, as provided by law, and shall exercise its jurisdiction in a manner consistent with general laws."

"BOARD OF REGENTS; POWERS

"Section 5. There shall be a board of regents of the University of Hawaii, the members of which shall be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the governor. At least part of the membership of the board shall represent geographic subdivisions of the State. The board shall have power, [in accordance with] as provided by law, to formulate policy, and to exercise control over the university through its executive officer, the president of the university, who shall be appointed by the board [The], except that the board shall have exclusive jurisdiction over the internal organization and management of the university [as provided by law; except that this section] . This section shall not limit the power of the legislature to enact laws of [state-wide] statewide concern."

"1978 BOARD OF EDUCATION ELECTIONS

"Section . Members elected to the board of education in the 1978 general election shall serve for two-year terms."

Article IX, new section. HAWAIIAN STUDIES:

Your Committee considered the wording of this section and feels no changes are necessary.

The changes recommended are for the purposes of style and clarification, and have no further implications.

Changes of particular interest recommended by the Committee:

Section 2. There were three types of changes. "In accordance with" was changed to read "as provided by" -- a matter of consistency. The word "units" was changed to read "school board districts." These changes occur four times in Section 2. The word "departmental" was inserted before "school district" in lines 11 and 13.

In checking with convention counsel and the chairperson of the Committee on Education, your Committee on Style found this wording to be much more precise and to set forth the intent of your Committee on Education. The word "unit" is already used in the reapportionment provisions of the Constitution as island units. School board districts, however, are the districts established by the federal case reapportioning the board of education. The addition of the word "departmental" further helps to limit confusion with the school board districts.

The limit on the terms of members elected in the 1978 general elections was determined to be transitional material, and will be placed in Article XVI, Schedule, as indicated in this proposal.

Section 3. The changes here were for consistency ("in accordance with" changed to "as provided by" and deletion of the comma preceding "and to exercise control...").

Section 5. The first change made to Section 5 is a matter of changing "in accordance with" to "as provided by" for consistency.

The second change is the revision of the last two sentences contained in Redraft No. 1 of this proposal, which read: "The board shall have exclusive jurisdiction over the internal organization and management of the university as provided by law; except that this Section shall not limit the power of the legislature to enact laws of state-wide concern."

Your Committee on Style again consulted with the chairperson of the Committee on Education and also the attorney's office concerning this wording. It was agreed that the intent of the Committee on Education and the Committee of the Whole could be better served by rewording the above provision to read as set forth earlier in this report. It was further agreed that this is a style change and not one of substance.

Style Committee Recommendations

Your Committee on Style recommends the adoption of Standing Committee Report No. 67 and consideration of the passage of Committee Proposal No. 6, RD. 1, S. 1* on third reading.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates Ellis and Weatherwax.

*For the complete text of this proposal, see Committee Proposal No. 6, page 791.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 68

Your Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing begs leave to report that Stand. Com. Rep. No. 69 and Com. P. No. 15 have been printed and distributed.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 69

Your Committee on Bill of Rights, Suffrage and Elections, to which were referred proposals numbered 12, 64, 76, 100, 117, 151, 167, 294, 295, 301, 303, 333, 491, 515, 556, 601, 681, 684, 735, 758, 779 and 819, all relating to Article I, Section 2: Rights of Man; proposals numbered 44, 73, 77, 207, 400, 402, 417, 517, 612, 618 and 691, all relating to Article I, Section 3: Freedom of Religion, Speech, Press, Assembly and Petition; proposals numbered 99, 169, 253, 458, 460 and 741, all relating to Article I, Section 5: Searches, Seizures and Invasion of Privacy; proposals numbered 85, 111, 125, 140, 142, 168, 424, 427 and 498, all relating to Article I, Section 8: Indictment, Double Jeopardy, Self-Incrimination; proposals numbered 520, 547 and 650, all relating to Article I, Section 10: Trial by Jury, Civil Cases; proposals numbered 247, 324, 360, 361, 371, 380, 397, 546, 603 and 632, all relating to Article I, Section 11: Rights of Accused; proposals numbered 378 and 598, relating to Article I, Section 12: Jury Service; and miscellaneous proposals numbered 9, 19, 81, 435, 516, 627, 646, 696, 798 and 817, all relating to Article I: Bill of Rights, begs leave to report as follows:

Your Committee held extensive hearings and meetings which were all open to the public and many citizens, organizations and representatives of governmental bodies appeared before your Committee to present their views on the various proposals covered by this report. Informational meetings and public hearings were held on Oahu, Kauai, Maui and Hawaii. Thus, your Committee had the benefit of the input of a wide cross-section of the community. Among those participating were: Dr. Norman Meller, Professor (retired), University of Hawaii; Dr. Stuart Gerry Brown, Professor, University of Hawaii; Ms Carol Zachary, Director, Common Cause; Mr. Yukio Naito, Attorney at Law; Mr. Morris Takushi, Elections Officer, Office of the Lieutenant Governor; Mr. Raymond Pua, Office of the City Clerk, City and County of Honolulu; Representative Faith Evans, State House of Representatives; Mr. Addison Bowman, Professor, School of Law, University of Hawaii; Mr. Donald Tsukiyama, Public Defender, Office of the Governor; Mr. Kenneth Nam, Deputy Attorney General, State of Hawaii; Ms Marcia Reynolds, Big Island Press Club; Mr. Clarence "Rags" Scanlan, SHOPO; Mr. Art Rutledge, Unity House; Senator Jean King, State Senate; Mr. Richard Ekimoto, Common Cause; and Mr. Walter Ritte, Protect Kahoolawe Ohana.

Your Committee, having heard numerous and varied testimonies and after due deliberation, recommends amending Article I, Section 4, to reflect nonsexist language; amending Article I, Section 10, to increase the amount to one thousand dollars ($1,000) before a trial by jury in civil cases may be requested; amending Article I, Section 11, to require counsel for indigent accused charged with an offense carrying a sentence of imprisonment; amending Article I by deleting Section 12, in its entirety as being duplicative of protection offered in other sections; amending Article I to include separate sections dealing with the right to the people to privacy and the creation of the position of independent counsel for grand juries.

To eliminate sexist wording in the Constitution, your Committee amended Article I, Section 4, by deleting the word "his" prior to the words "civil rights." In no way does the committee intend to change the meaning and significance of Section 4's protections, but the committee takes this action to word the Constitution in a manner consistent with a greater awareness of the bias that language sometimes reveals.

The committee proposal thus reads:

"DUE PROCESS AND EQUAL PROTECTION

"Section 4. No person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor be denied the equal protection of the laws, nor be denied the enjoyment of [his] civil rights or be discriminated against in the exercise thereof because of race, religion, sex or ancestry."

The members of your Committee agreed to amend Article I, Section 10: Trial by Jury, Civil Cases, by raising the amount of the value in controversy that triggers the right to trial by jury. The committee proposal reads as follows:

"TRIAL BY JURY, CIVIL CASES

"Section 10. In suits at common law where the value in controversy shall exceed [one hundred] one thousand dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved. The legislature may provide for a verdict by not less than three-fourths of the members of the jury."

We are cognizant of the fact that justice does not and should not be equated with amounts of money; nonetheless, we believe that the above-mentioned amount is fair and reasonable because of current circumstances. The current dollar requirement of one hundred dollars ($100) originated in the constitutional convention of 1950. The amount is much too small by today's standards, especially when viewed with regard to inflation. We further feel that the increase will prevent those abuses which occur when small amounts are sued for, and the opposing party requests a trial by jury to discourage the plaintiff because of the additional costs involved, win or lose.

In an effort to update the Constitution to the present practice and law, your Committee agreed to amend Article I, Section 11, so that the State shall be required to provide counsel an indigent defendant charged with an offense punishable by imprisonment.

The committee proposal reads as follows:

"Section 11. In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, or of such other district to which the prosecution may be removed with the consent of the accused; to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor; and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense. The State shall provide counsel for an indigent defendant charged with an offense punishable by imprisonment [for more than sixty days]."

The proposed amendment is necessary and advisable because of the recodification of Hawaii criminal law with the passage of the Hawaii Penal Code. Under the Penal Code, there is no crime carrying a 60-day sentence but petty misdemeanors do carry 30-day sentences. The only lower offenses are violations which carry no jail sentence. Under present Hawaii laws, the public defender is mandated to provide legal services for indigents charged with offenses punishable by jail or imprisonment (Hawaii Revised Statutes, 802-1). Thus the proposed amendment would bring the Constitution to date with current law and practice. This would also be in keeping with the spirit of Argersinger v. Hamlin, 407 U.S. 25, 92 S. Ct. 2006, 32 LEd 2d 530 (1972), holding that no person may be imprisoned for any offense unless he was represented by counsel.

In a further effort to update the Constitution, your Committee proposes to delete in its entirety Article I, Section 12. The concern of juror disqualification because of sex is addressed and covered in Sections 4 and 21, and any problems which may arise would be handled by the said sections.

The committee proposal seeks to delete the following:

"JURY SERVICE

"Section 12. No person shall be disqualified to serve as a juror because of sex."

Your Committee also reaffirmed Article I, Sections 4 and 21 to reaffirm the committee's basic support of the concepts expressed therein.

The concern of your Committee with regard to the shortcomings of the grand jury resulted in the agreement to create the position of independent legal counsel for grand juries. Your Committee is aware that many critics have pointed to certain ills in the current method of using a grand jury as an accusatory mechanism. Concern has been expressed because only the prosecution and his witness are present in the hearing room along with the grand jurors. He controls the evidence to be presented; there is no limit on the nature of the evidence to be presented; he advises the grand jury on the law; grand jurors are generally unfamiliar with the law; and the defendant is not present nor is the defendant's attorney.

Despite these defects in the grand jury system, your Committee is aware that the grand jury does have some positive aspects. In certain cases, such as sex crimes or those involving a youthful victim, it protects the victim against being cross-examined at the preliminary hearing level and at trial. Fears were expressed that undergoing cross-examination twice would be hard on those witnesses and may discourage them from acting as witnesses.

Besides the accusatory function of the grand jury, it plays another role which may be of greater importance to society. A grand jury can also be investigative but if there has been any inclination to become one in Hawaii, the lack of resources would hamper such an effort.

Because your Committee is not convinced that it would be appropriate to delete the requirement of a grand jury indictment, it has retained the requirement but has added the requirement that independent counsel be appointed to advise the grand jury.

The committee presents for consideration the following language as a new section in Article I:

"GRAND JURY COUNSEL

"Section . Whenever a grand jury is empanelled there shall be an independent counsel appointed in accordance with law to advise the members of the grand jury regarding the matters brought before it. Independent counsel shall be selected from among those persons admitted to practice before the supreme court of the state and shall not be a public employee. Term and compensation for independent counsel shall be established by law."

The role of counsel will be to advise the grand jury and not the witness or the prosecutor. Until now the prosecutor has served as the legal adviser to the grand jury, but there seems to be a conflict between presenting evidence to a grand jury in the hope that they will return an indictment and being their legal advisor. Independent legal counsel will be available to advise the grand jury on any appropriate matter. Your Committee believes that the parameters of the role of independent counsel will be determined by the grand jury, but if his role is to be effective counsel should advise the grand jury whether it is appropriate rather than when asked.

Your Committee believes that the position should not be filled by a public employee but by a private practitioner knowledgeable in criminal law. It would be incongruous to appoint a prosecutor or attorney general to advise the grand jury.

Further, the independent counsel should not be a public employee for the purpose of employee benefits. It is expected that he be hired and compensated as an independent contractor. Although his term shall be set by law, it is not the intent of your Committee to create a permanent position for someone. Rather, it is intended that the position be filled by different people. This is not to suggest a rotational system, where each week or each case will see a new counsel, but that his term be long enough to establish a good rapport with the grand jury but not so long that he dominates the proceedings because of excessive familiarity with the members of the grand jury.

Your Committee agreed to amend Article I to include a separate and distinct section devoted entirely to the right to privacy. Your Committee strongly believes that a new section on the right to privacy is warranted despite the inclusion within Article I, Section 5, of a prohibition against unreasonable invasions of privacy.

The committee proposal reads as follows:

"RIGHT TO PRIVACY"

"Section . The right of the people to privacy is recognized and shall not be infringed without the showing of a compelling state interest. The legislature shall take affirmative steps to implement this right."

In 1968 the Constitution was amended to include the prohibition against unreasonable invasions of privacy, but its inclusion within a section patterned after the Fourth Amendment right against unreasonable searches and seizures and the debate during the 1968 constitutional convention have engendered some confusion as to the extent and scope of the right. Although it appears clear that the proponents of the concept saw the right as broader than one limited to protection against invasions of privacy in criminal cases, the convention devoted most of the debate to the relationship between the proposed amendment and concern over wiretapping. This has led the Hawaii supreme court to state that the privacy right emanated from a concern over extensive use of electronic surveillance, thus limiting the right to privacy by implying that it did not encompass the concept of a right to personal autonomy. State v. Roy, 54 H. 513, 510 P2d 1066 (1973). Thus it may be unclear whether the present privacy provision extends beyond the criminal area. Therefore, your Committee believes that it would be appropriate to retain the privacy provision in Article I, Section 5, but limit its application to criminal cases, and create a new section as it relates to privacy in the informational and personal autonomy sense.

Your Committee is aware that the right of privacy has meaning varying in degree and nature, and case law may not be clear as to the extent and scope of the rights. Therefore, your Committee wishes to explicitly state the intent of your Committee as to the scope and nature of the right.

Your Committee believes that the right of privacy encompasses the common law right of privacy or tort privacy. This is a recognition that the dissemination of private and personal matters, be it true, embarrassing or not, can cause mental pain and distress far greater than bodily injury. For example, the right can be used to protect an individual from invasion of his private affairs, public disclosure of embarrassing facts, and publicity placing the individual in a false light. In short, this right of privacy includes the right of an individual to tell the world to "mind your own business."

Another area of concern that may be alleviated by this right is the issue of informational privacy, or the ability of a person to control the privacy of information about himself. There has been a trend in modern-day society to require that a person complete forms detailing information about himself. There is often a legitimate need for government or private parties to gather data about individuals, but there is danger of abuse in the use and/or dissemination of such information. The danger of inclusion of inaccurate data being retained in some computer bank, thereby affecting the life of an individual, is inherent in our modern day, but the right to privacy should insure that at the least an individual shall have the right to inspect records to correct misinformation about himself.

Perhaps the most important aspect of privacy is that it confers upon people the most important right of all--the right to be left alone. As Justice Brandeis said in his now celebrated and vindicated dissent in Olmstead v. U.S., 277 U.S. 438 (1928):

"The makers of our Constitution undertook to secure conditions favorable to the pursuit of happiness. They recognized the significance of man's spiritual nature, of his feelings and of his intellect. They knew that only a part of the pain, pleasure and satisfactions of life are to be found in material things. They sought to protect Americans in their beliefs, their thoughts, their emotions and their sensations. They conferred, as against the Government, the right to be let alone--the most comprehensive of rights and the right most valued by civilized men."

It gives each and every individual the right to control certain highly personal and intimate affairs of his own life. The right to personal autonomy, to dictate his lifestyle, to be oneself are included in this concept of privacy. As Justice Abe stated in his concurring opinion in State v. Kantner, 53 H. 327, 493 P 2d 306 (1972): each person has the "fundamental right of liberty to make a fool of himself as long as his act does not endanger others, and that the state may regulate the conduct of a person under pain of criminal punishment only when his actions affect the general welfare--that is, where others are harmed or likely to be harmed."

Whether an individual's desire to engage in a particular activity is protected by this aspect of the right to privacy, (the right to personal autonomy) will remain a matter for the courts. For example, it has been held that society has no legitimate interest in the hairstyle of a person attending a public educational institution. Other cases have included certain marital, sexual and reproductive matters within this right, thereby insuring freedom of choice in these matters.

It should be emphasized that this right is not an absolute one but, because similar to the right of free speech, it is so important in value to society that it can be infringed upon only by the showing of a compelling state interest. If the State is able to show a compelling state interest, the right of the group will prevail over the privacy rights or the right of the individual. However, in view of the important nature of this right, the State must use the least restrictive means should it desire to interfere with the right.

Your Committee expects that at times the interests of national security, law enforcement, the interest of the State to protect the lives of citizens or other similar interests will be strong enough to override the right to privacy. It is not the intent of your Committee to grant a license to individuals to violate the right of others but rather to grant the individual full control over his life, absent the showing of a compelling state interest to protect his security and that of others. Thus it is expected that in certain situations the interest of the State will rise to such an intensity that it will be deemed a compelling state interest. For example, in the case of dissemination of information about individuals, law enforcement officials would not be restricted in sharing information about suspected wrongdoers, or the press may be justified in writing about certain personal matters of public figures. Further, it should be noted that the committee does not intend to prohibit one department of the state government from obtaining data kept in another department, as happened in Alaska. Your Committee does not believe that exchanging and sharing of information between separate components of government should be prohibited. Your Committee is concerned about abuses such as using such data for illegitimate purposes or revealing it to the public when no legitimate public interest is involved. Thus, your Committee does not envision closing off access to court records or public records already subject to "sunshine" laws but feels that this amendment would be useful in prohibiting abuse, misuse or unwarranted revelations of highly personal information. However, your Committee strongly believes that in a day when outside forces seek to learn more and more about an individual and control more and more about an individual's life, this amendment is necessary.

The importance of this amendment is that it establishes that certain rights deserve special judicial protection from majority rule. It recognizes that there will always be a dynamic tension between majority rule, which is the basis of a democratic society, and the rights of individuals to do as they choose, which is the basis of freedom, and your Committee believes that this amendment recognizes the high value that individuality has in society. Your Committee, by equating privacy with the First Amendment rights, intends that the right be considered a fundamental right and that interference with the activities protected by it be minimal.

Your Committee recognizes that generally the Constitution acts as a safeguard against the actions of government and not private parties. Therefore, your Committee has mandated that the legislature implement this section since statutory language can be legitimately drafted to protect against the actions of private parties. For example, the Federal Privacy Act of 1974 is one example of legislative action supportive of this right.

The question of whether provisions regarding discrimination based on sexual orientation should be included in the Constitution concerned your Committee. Certain members of your Committee argued that the inclusion of such a provision would extend nondiscrimination to another minority group.

Your Committee believes that the inclusion of such a provision would be duplicative of the equal protection and due process protections already existing in the Constitution. Accordingly, your Committee believes that inclusion of a provision related to discrimination based on sexual orientation would be superfluous.

Your Committee was also concerned with the subject of a journalist's privilege regarding the confidentiality of sources, or a shield law. Members favoring the privilege indicated that the question is one of great importance as members of the media have been incarcerated, both locally and nationally, because of their reluctance to divulge their source of information. Among other things, proponents stated that privilege is essential to the concept of the freedom of the press because reporters may be hesitant in their pursuit of stories and/or sources may be reluctant to provide information.

Members in opposition to the proposal stated that the rights contained in the First Amendment are adequate in their protection of the media. The problem arises only when the protection of sources conflicts with the right to a fair trial. Although well publicized, the conflict involves a relatively small number of cases.

Other arguments advanced by the opposition included: (1) that an accused should have the right to know his accuser; (2) that a court of law, rather than reporters, should decide on the innocence or guilt of an individual; (3) that the people have no assurance flagrant reporting will not occur; (4) that a defendant facing trial has the right to information that may pave the way for his acquittal and (5) because both the right of a free press and the right to a fair trial are in the federal Constitution, any conflict between the two could still be litigated in the federal courts under the federal Constitution, and any state constitutional provision relating to a privilege against revealing a source may well be moot.

It should be noted that the press has survived well for many years without a shield law and that state laws creating a shield law have not stopped courts from jailing reporters for contempt when they have refused to reveal their sources of information. For example, in the presently celebrated Farber case in New Jersey, New Jersey does have a shield law. Further, proponents of the privilege have argued that it was newspaper reporting, in part based on confidential sources such as "Deep Throat," that resulted in much of the unraveling of Watergate. It has been suggested that without a shield law sources would have been hesitant to reveal to reporters the hidden mysteries of the Watergate affair, but this argument fails to reflect the fact that no federal shield law existed during those days and none still exists today. Thus it is questionable whether the lack of a shield law will hamper effective investigative reporting.

Case law has been consistent in holding that a reporter does not have the right to refuse disclosure of his sources upon proper request. In the context of a criminal case, courts have consistently held that no one has the right to refuse compliance with a properly issued subpoena seeking evidence. The U.S. supreme court in the Nixon papers case reaffirmed this basic concept. Since the question arises in the context of a conflict between two important rights--that of the press and a fair trial--your Committee believes that it would not be wise to place in the Constitution a provision tipping the scales toward free press, especially in light of the potential of conflict with the federal courts.

Therefore, your Committee recommends: (1) that the above-numbered proposals referred to your Committee be filed, and (2) that Committee Proposal No. 15* pass first reading in the form shown.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates Barnard, Eastvold, Funakoshi, Hayashida and Kono. Delegate Peterson did not concur.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 72

Your Committee on Bill of Rights, Suffrage and Elections, to which were referred proposals numbered 11, 87 and 356, relating to the presidential primary; proposals numbered 40, 377 and 617, relating to the limitations on public office terms; proposals numbered 120, 274 and 660, relating to voter rights, education and information; proposals numbered 519 and 695, relating to qualifications; proposal numbered 671, relating to disqualifications in voting; proposals numbered 357 and 430, relating to registration; proposals numbered 4, 92, 97, 163, 403, 415, 560, 609, 705, 787 and 833, relating to an open primary; proposals numbered 39, 46, 63, 86, 163, 413, 560, 609, 611 and 712, relating to general and special elections; proposals numbered 342, 479 and 647, relating to public financing; proposals numbered 95, 96, 122, 123, 149, 242, 248, 326, 327, 398, 426, 619, 816, 827, 828 and 834, relating to initiative; proposals numbered 137, 261, 262, 281, 391, 420, 747 and 810, relating to recall; proposals numbered 96, 138, 501, 595, 827 and 834, relating to referendum; and miscellaneous proposals numbered 339, 351, 388 and 573, relating to Article II, begs leave to report as follows:

All committee meetings were open and accessible to the public. Private citizens, government officials and representatives of various groups and organizations were invited to present their views on the subjects addressed in the above-mentioned proposals. Informational meetings and public hearings were held on the Islands of Oahu, Kauai, Maui and Hawaii.

Among those participating were: the Honorable Nelson Doi, Lieutenant Governor, State of Hawaii; Mr. Jon Van Dyke; Ms Lisa Naito; Mr. Sid Rosen; Mr. Joseph Viela, HGEA; Ms Althea McCleery, League of Women Voters; Mr. Wallace Otsuka, Jr., the Chamber of Commerce of Hawaii; Mr. Steve Christensen; and Mr. Lex Brodie.

After considerable deliberation your Committee recommends: amending Article II to include a separate section dealing with forced resignation and disqualification from office; amending Section 5 of Article II to include primary elections and to allow a period of 45 days between the primary and general elections; amending Article II to include a section dealing with the public financing of election campaigns; and amending Article II to include a section providing for limitations on campaign contributions.

Your Committee's concern with improving the electoral process resulted in unanimous agreement to amend Article II, Section 5, to include as a minimum an increase from thirty (30) to forty-five (45) days in the time interval between the primary and general elections.

We are aware that the current interval of thirty (30) days places a severe time restraint on the elections division of the Lieutenant Governor's office. More specifically, the interval does not allow for any unforeseen circumstances, emergencies or challenges to the primary election results which could lead to delays in the printing of the ballots.

Of greater concern to your Committee is the fact that the present interval does not allow sufficient time for the processing of absentee ballots. Absentee ballots are sent to voters between seven (7) and twelve (12) days prior to the election and as a result many of the returned ballots are received after the deadline or are simply not returned at all. Your Committee believes it is reasonable to assume that the increase in time will remedy the situation.

The committee proposal reads:

"GENERAL, [AND] SPECIAL AND PRIMARY ELECTIONS

"Section 5. General elections shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November in all even-numbered years. Special and primary elections may be held in accordance with law [.] ; provided that in no case shall any primary election precede a general election by less than forty-five days."

Your Committee believes it would be justified to require a person to resign from office before becoming eligible to run for another public office with an overlapping term. By running for another office, the person is in effect saying that he no longer wishes to fulfill the responsibilities of the office to which he was elected, and accordingly he should resign from that office. The voters should not be saddled with an elected public official who no longer wishes to fulfill the duties of the office to which he was elected and will do so only if he fails to win election to the other office. This is not fair to the voters, who elected him to serve a full term, and is a violation of the public trust.

Therefore, your Committee presents for consideration the following language:

"RESIGNATION FROM PUBLIC OFFICE

"Section . An elected public officer shall resign from that office before being eligible as a candidate for another public office, if the term of the office sought begins before the end of the term of the office held."

Your Committee does not believe it would be warranted for a candidate to resign if the office he is seeking has a concurrent term. In this case, he is in effect resigning since, if he loses the election, he does not have an office to return to. He is not abusing his elected office by using it as a safe haven from which to make political forays and return if he proves unsuccessful.

It is not the intent of your Committee that this provision shall apply to constitutional convention delegates. Your Committee believes that the rationale for such an amendment is not applicable to the question of eligibility to run for the position of delegate because the convention is a very unique body. It forms every ten years if the voters approve, does its work of examining the Constitution and dissolves. It is not in any of the three traditional branches of our republican system of government. It is readily apparent that the framers of this Constitution intended that this convention be fully independent and benefit from the experience of all. Article XV, Section 2, on the election of delegates, reads in part: "Notwithstanding any provision in this constitution to the contrary, other than Section 3 of Article XIV, any qualified voter of the district concerned shall be eligible to membership in the convention." Although the proposal speaks to eligibility to run rather than eligibility to membership, your Committee is of the opinion that the present language demonstrates an intent to have a convention with minimal restriction on those eligible to run and serve. The convention is a transient body of short duration and as such the elected public official will return to his duties, and your Committee feels that this situation is not akin to the usual one where, if elected, the public official will never return to the duties of his original office. As a practical matter, it will not apply to delegates since the term of office will not be overlapping. Accordingly, it is the intent of your Committee that the provisions related to forced resignation shall not apply to a constitutional convention delegate and any elected public official may run for such an office.

Your Committee has agreed to three concepts which are presented for consideration in the two proposals following:

"CAMPAIGN FUND AND CAMPAIGN SPENDING

"Section . The legislature shall establish a campaign fund to be used for partial public financing of campaigns for public offices of the state and its political subdivisions, as prescribed by law. The legislature shall provide a limit on the campaign spending of candidates."

"LIMITATION ON CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS

"Section . Limitations on campaign contributions to any political candidate, or authorized political campaign organization for such candidate, for any elective office within the State shall be established by law."

These proposals contain the concept of public financing of elections, campaign spending limits and campaign contribution limits.

It is the intent of your Committee that implementation of these proposals will improve the political process, encourage the expenditure of public moneys for a public purpose, permit campaign spending limits, encourage wider participation in the political process and reduce the political influence of money, the appearance of impropriety and the potential for corruption of public officials.

Your Committee is greatly concerned about the high cost of running for office and the ramifications it has for the political process. Your Committee believes that money has been allowed to play too large a role in the political process. Your Committee is aware of the widespread belief that it takes money to win an election and that only the rich need bother to run or attempt to influence an election by way of political support.

Your Committee believes that the need for money generates pressure to raise money that is incompatible with the public interest. Your Committee wonders whether public officials have the flexibility to act in a manner detrimental to the interest of their powerful backers when the public interest so requires. The official may fear alienating the support of rich and powerful backers and accordingly rearrange his views. To best serve the public, an official must be free to act according to what he deems to be in the public interest but if the need for campaign financing is too great, this flexibility is lost.

Your Committee also believes that many believe the political process is the exclusive domain of the rich. They believe that without adequate personal resources one does not have the money to be a viable candidate or to have adequate input into the system. With an analysis that tells them their participation would be meaningless without the money to make it effective and influential, many become frustrated and alienated from the system. They feel it is no use to participate in the system, either as a candidate or supporter, since they do not have the funds to do so in a meaningful fashion.

Your Committee seeks to alleviate the need for money by addressing itself to the public interest of preventing the reality of corruption and the appearance of corruption spawned by the real or imagined coercive influence of large sums of money.

Your Committee believes that what is more damaging and dangerous to the political process is the appearance of impropriety. After the recent Watergate revelations, many are willing to believe that the decisions of public officials are unduly influenced by the interests of large contributors. This situation can be easily exploited by a masterful manipulator of the media, who could easily dramatize a small incident into a seemingly sordid affair of corruption where the reality does not match the image. However, in the eye of the public, the reality is not as important as the image. So long as the public believes public officials to be corrupt or beholden to the interests of contributors, they will act accordingly. Public trust and confidence in the political process will decrease and the public would feel powerless to meaningfully participate and influence the political process because of the inordinate influence of large contributors.

This ignores the reality that often contributors give large sums to a candidate because he already espouses views similar to their own. It is not always the case that an elected representative changes his views or acts contrary to his beliefs simply because of the need for money. Motivations for decisions are complex, and it is sometimes difficult to pinpoint the exact reason for a decision; but it is easy enough in today's suspicious atmosphere to charge that a decision beneficial to the interests of large contributors was motivated not by public interest but by a desire to keep the "fat cat" happy.

One benefit of these proposals would be that talk of special interest groups and the influence they have may diminish. Representative democracy works best when people have trust in the process and their representatives, and representatives are free to inform themselves intelligently and vote according to their perception of the public interest rather than by their need to gather campaign funds. There would be the further beneficial effect of freeing him from much time spent chasing the dollar, time which would be spent better doing something else.

Another benefit would be a more objective and intelligent discussion of issues. Some believe that because a public official and a special interest group have similar views, the particular view espoused is inimical to the public interest. Public interest is a vague and nebulous concept to begin with, but to assume that a special interest position is always in opposition to the public interest is another negative result of the influence of money on elections. It is hoped that these reforms will permit the public to judge an issue on its merits without allowing accusations of the undue influence of special interest groups to become a detracting factor.

Therefore, your Committee has agreed to partial public financing of campaigns as one step in the effort to serve the public interest. Your Committee believes that the details of implementation are best handled by the legislature, but it is the intent of your Committee that the legislature create a fund to partially finance the campaigns of candidates running for certain offices. It is left to the discretion of the legislature to decide which races will be funded.

It is not the intent of your Committee to fully fund the entire campaign of a candidate; whether the financing will be a percentage of the total need, or matching funds or some other formula is left to the legislature but it is enough to state that your Committee intends that the public fund only a portion of the costs. The exact amount, the manner in which it shall be raised and similar details are also left to the legislature. The committee does not address itself to the question of whether public financing will be limited to only the two major political parties or include minor party candidates or nonpartisans.

It is the intent of your Committee that the development of public financing be done incrementally. It is not deemed feasible or advisable to fund all races immediately as the public treasury would be depleted, but to fund one or a few races and to use the experiences as a guide to further development. Your Committee believes that this proposal is the beginning of public financing but leaves it to the legislature as to how far it shall go.

The limitation on campaign spending is not without constitutional problems. The limitation on spending would be constitutionally justified if linked to public financing but Buckley v. Valeo, 424 U.S. 1 (1976) presents a constitutional hurdle to limiting expenditures for those not receiving public financing. Your Committee is fully aware that litigation will be necessary to determine the validity of any limits on spending by those who do not receive public financing, but your Committee believes that such litigation is necessary and welcome because the public interest served by campaign spending limits is so essential.

The U.S. supreme court has ruled spending limits unconstitutional because it violates the right of free speech. The court reasoned that a spending limit limits the size of the audience you can reach, limits the depth of exploration of the issues, and limits the number of issues that can be discussed. Your Committee is not convinced that such is the case, believing that this assessment does not square with reality.

It may well be that a campaign spending limit will help the advocacy of issues. If limits are established, the probability is high that media expenditures will be reduced since that is the most expensive item. The use of media will continue, so you will continue to reach a large audience although not as often. To compensate for the reduction in media time, reliance will have to be placed to a greater extent on brochures, coffee hours, canvassing or more grass-roots tactics, and intelligent discussions of issues are more likely to occur in that arena as opposed to the media. Media spots are not conducive to discussing issues and if any attempt is made to do so, it is often misleading since it is difficult to be accurate and comprehensive in a short TV ad. Person-to-person contact where dialogue can occur is enlightening and useful in focusing upon the issues, but that is not present in media ads so it is questionable whether limits will hurt the advocacy of issues.

By diluting the effective influence of money and large contributors, your Committee seeks to equalize opportunity for all to participate meaningfully in the political process. Candidates will have to seek a broader base of support to overcome the effects of campaign contribution limits and will need greater manpower to conduct the person-to-person campaign needed when spending limits are in effect. Your Committee believes that it is within the context of a "person-to-person," grass-roots campaign that the issues are better and more intelligently discussed.

These proposals are aimed at reducing the effective influence of money on the political process. By doing so, it is the belief of your Committee that those without financial resources will be encouraged to participate in the process because such participation can be meaningful. By doing so, it is the belief of your Committee that the appearance as well as the potential for actual corruption will be reduced. Your Committee believes that these measures would go far in reducing the alienation of large segments of the public, and greatly improve our representative form of government.

The question of whether to amend Article II, Section 4, to eliminate the closed primary and replace such with either an open or a blanket primary was considered by your Committee.

In general, differences among the types of primaries discussed are as follows:

1. In the closed primary, party affiliation must be declared. At the time of election, the voter is given the ballot of his designated party and allowed to vote for the candidate(s) of his choice from the designated party.
2. In the blanket primary, party affiliation is not declared by the voter. A ballot with all candidates seeking election is given to the voter, who may choose without restriction to a candidate's affiliation.
3. In the open primary, party affiliation is not declared by the voter. At the time of election, the voter is given ballots representing the different parties with their candidates listed thereon. The voter must make his selection(s) on only one of the ballots, thereby maintaining or restricting his choice to candidates of only one party.

Supporters of the blanket primary state that such a system allows for confidentiality of the voter's party affiliation, and that voters are allowed to vote for whom they believe to be the best candidate regardless of the party. They also state that the current party selection system is not effective and does not allow for public input. Moreover, if the primary election is only for the purpose of party selection, public moneys should not be utilized.

Advocates of the open primary maintain that the system not only keeps a voter's party affiliation confidential but also allows for "independent" voters to participate. In short, the system permits and encourages more people to vote. The open primary also recognizes that our present political system was founded on the principle of political parties and thus presents a compromise between the other systems.

Proponents of the closed primary stress that under the open and blanket primaries cross-over votes are a distinct possibility, the result being that opposing parties may influence the outcome of the other party in the primary nominating election. Thus a weaker candidate would be facing a much stronger opponent in the general election. Proponents also state that people have the freedom to choose their party and to work actively in the decisions of that party, thus allowing for the selection of those candidates adhering to party platforms; that either the open or the blanket primary would bring about the destruction of a minority party; that voter turnout problems should not be remedied by a change in the primaries; and that a majority of the states have closed primaries.

Although your Committee is cognizant of the fact that there are inherent problems in all primary systems, no conclusive evidence has been presented to demonstrate the necessity for a change. Therefore, your Committee does not recommend amending the Constitution to include a primary election system different from the one which we now have.

The concepts of initiative and referendum have been discussed at all constitutional conventions held in the State of Hawaii and have produced much concern and debate. Whether to include the above-mentioned concepts in the Constitution, either in total or in part, were issues which your Committee considered.

The Legislative Reference Bureau manual, Hawaii Constitutional Convention Studies 1978, Article II: Suffrage and Elections, at page 49, defines initiative as:

"... the process through which the electorate, by petition, may propose legislation or constitutional amendments and enact the same by direct vote of a majority of the people. This is done independently of the legislature, and thus is a direct, rather than representative, form of democracy. There are 2 types of initiative: direct and indirect.

"In direct initiative, a petition concerning a certain measure is circulated for signature. After the required number of signatures is obtained, the proposal is placed on the ballot for a vote at the next election. Upon ratification, the measure becomes law.

"... [I]ndirect initiative requires the completed petition to be submitted to the legislature for consideration. The legislature must, within a specified period of time, enact the proposed measure or a substantially similar measure. If not acted upon, the proposal is automatically placed on the ballot for a vote by the electorate."

Conceptually and in practice, referendum is usually an integral part of the initiative system. Referendum, on page 51 of the LRB manual, is defined as "...a process..." etc. "... a process through which the electorate may approve or reject at the polls an act or constitutional amendment passed by the legislature."

Proponents of initiative and referendum steadfastly believe that the inclusion of such a system in the Constitution guarantees that the aims, goals and desires of the people will be safeguarded; that the legislature will be more responsive to the will of the people; and that the people will become much more involved in the legislative process. They state further that the system allows for legislation in areas where the legislature has failed or is afraid to act for fear of repercussions.

Advocates also point out that no state has rescinded the provisions of initiative and referendum once adopted. Currently the county charters of Hawaii, Maui and Kauai provide for initiative and referendum; the county charter of Honolulu includes initiative only.

Opponents believe that the present representative system of government possesses a stability which may not necessarily exist with the inclusion of initiative and referendum. They further believe that the present system is an effective, time-tested and rational form of government. Said system allows for a clearing of the issues, an exchange of ideas and for compromises.

Those in opposition also fear that large expenditures of money are necessary to educate the people on propositions brought forth by initiative and referendum; that very possibly the media will greatly influence the decision of the people; that propositions will not truly reflect the will of the people, but that of a vocal minority, special interest groups, and/or large monied organizations; and that legislation may be the result of emotionalism by the people.

Opponents report that very often the number of signatures on an initiative petition is much more than the total number voting on the proposition. Likewise, in many cases the number of those voting on referenda has been much less than those voting for candidates on the ballot. In all probability the above demonstrates that there is a complete lack of interest in the matter, or that the public does not or will not take the time to become sufficiently acquainted with the subject to express an opinion, or that they have more confidence in allowing their elected representatives to handle such detailed matters.

Historically, the movement toward initiative and referendum in the United States resulted from a disillusionment with representative institutions. Your Committee believes that such disillusionment is neither warranted nor exists with regard to the Hawaii state legislature.

In the absence of clear and convincing evidence demonstrating the necessity, effectiveness or merits of initiative in any form and/or referendum, your Committee recommends against the inclusion of statutory initiative and/or referendum, and constitutional initiative in the Constitution.

The question of whether to include recall in the Constitution was also considered by your Committee. According to the Hawaii Constitutional Convention Studies, on page 56 recall is defined as "... a procedure through which the people may petition and vote to remove a public official from office."

Although recall allows the people to remove those public officials in whom they have lost confidence, your Committee does not recommend amending the Constitution to include such.

Your Committee believes that the present safeguards of impeachment and removal of officials through the judicial system are sufficient. We believe that our public officials labor under enough pressure presently; that the terms of office of our elected officials are such that any "recall" may be accomplished at the next election, without any additional expenses; and that the passage of time may prove that an unpopular decision made by an official was indeed the correct course of action.

Accordingly, your Committee on Bill of Rights, Suffrage and Elections submits the attached committee proposal and recommends (1) that the above-numbered proposals referred to your Committee be filed, and (2) that Committee Proposal No. 16* pass first reading in the form shown.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates Eastvold, Hale, Hino, Liu and Peterson. Delegate Goodenow did not concur and Delegates Barnes and Odanaka did not concur in part.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 73

Your Committee on Style, to which was referred Committee Proposal No. 9, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal, which the Convention has adopted on second reading, covers Article IV, Section 6, of the State Constitution, Executive and Administrative Offices and Departments.

Your Committee proposes several style changes which are indicated by [for deletions] and underscoring for additions as shown in the committee report and in the committee proposal.

Your Committee considered the wording of the first paragraph of Section 6 and feels no changes are necessary.

"Each principal department shall be under the supervision of the governor and, unless otherwise provided in this constitution or by law, shall be headed by a single executive. Such single executive shall be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the governor [and he]. That person shall hold office for a term to expire at the end of the term for which the governor was elected, unless sooner removed by the governor; except that the removal of the chief legal officer of the State shall be subject to the advice and consent of the senate.

"Except as otherwise provided in this constitution, whenever a board, commission or other body shall be the head of a principal department of the state government, the members thereof shall be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the governor. The term of office and removal of such members shall be as [prescribed] provided by law. Such board, commission or other body may appoint a principal executive officer, who, when authorized by law, may be an ex officio [a], voting member thereof, and who may be removed by a majority vote of the members appointed by the governor.

"The governor shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint all officers for whose election or appointment provision is not otherwise made by this constitution or by law. If the manner of removal of an officer is not prescribed in this constitution, [his] removal shall be in a manner [prescribed] provided by law.

"When the senate is not in session and a vacancy occurs in any office, appointment to which requires the confirmation of the senate, the governor may fill the office by granting a commission which shall, unless such appointment is confirmed, expire at the end of the next session of the senate [; but the]. The person so appointed shall not be eligible for another interim appointment to such office if the appointment [shall have] failed [of confirmation] to be confirmed by the senate.

"No person who has been nominated for appointment to any office and whose appointment has not received the consent of the senate shall be eligible to an interim appointment thereafter to such office.

"Every officer appointed under the provisions of this section shall be a citizen of the United States and shall have been a resident of this State for at least one year immediately preceding [his] that person's appointment; except that this [residence] residency requirement shall not apply to the president of the University of Hawaii."

The changes recommended are for the purposes of style and clarification and have no further implications.

Changes of particular interest recommended by your Committee:

1. Paragraph 2. The second sentence has been broken into two parts. By (1) ending the first new sentence after "appointed by the governor," (2) deleting the words "and he" and (3) beginning the second new sentence with the words "That person," the paragraph reads with better clarity.

2. Paragraph 3. As a matter of consistency, "prescribed by law" was changed to "provided by law." Also, the last sentence reads with better clarity with the addition of "an" before "ex officio" and deletion of "a" before "voting."

3. Paragraph 4. Again for consistency, "his" was removed and "prescribed" was changed to "as provided."

4. Paragraph 5. Presently, this whole paragraph is one sentence. Deletion of the semicolon and the words "but the" therein brings that portion of the sentence to a close. The other changes were for clarity.

5. Paragraph 6. Your Committee considered the wording of paragraph 6 and feels no changes are necessary.

6. Paragraph 7. For consistency, "his" was changed to "that person's" and "residence" was changed to "residency" for grammatical purposes.

Style Committee Recommendation

Your Committee on Style recommends the adoption of Standing Committee Report No. 73 and consideration of the passage of Committee Proposal No. 9, S. 1* on third reading.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates Nozaki and Yoshimura.

*For the complete text of the proposal, see Committee Proposal No. 9, page 801.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 74

Your Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing begs leave to report that Res. No. 21 has been printed and distributed.

Signed by Delegates Ledward, Chairperson; Crozier, Vice-Chairperson; Hayashida, Vice-Chairperson; Hale and Lacy, members.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 75

Your Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing begs leave to report that Stand. Com. Rep. Nos. 76 and 77 and Com. P. Nos. 7, RD. 1, and 17 have been printed and distributed.

Signed by Delegates Ledward, Chairperson, Crozier, Vice-Chairperson, Hayashida, Vice-Chairperson; Hale, member.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 76

Your Committee on Style, to which was referred Committee Proposal No. 7, RD. 2, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal, which the Convention has adopted on second reading, covers Article VII, Section 3, of the State Constitution, Taxation and Finance, and adds a new section, "Effective Date and Application of Article VII, Section 3," to Article XVI. The Convention has proposed amendments to Article VII, Section 3.

Your Committee considered the wording of these two sections but decided no further changes were necessary.

Therefore, your Committee on Style recommends the adoption of Standing Committee Report No. 76 and consideration of the passage of Committee Proposal No. 7, RD. 2* on third reading.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates Burgess, Ellis, Odanaka and Takehara.

Your Committee on Environment, Agriculture, Conservation and Land, to which were referred 117 proposals relating to ocean and marine resources, constitutional zoning and land classification, environment rights and protection, growth management, conservation and development of resources, land, water and agriculture, energy, historical and cultural conservation, and access to recreational areas and shorelines, begs leave to report as follows:

Your Committee held six public hearings on the above-mentioned subjects. Nine additional public hearings were held during nonbusiness hours on five islands to afford the public a chance to participate and testify. Individual proposals were filed, committee proposals were drafted and a public hearing was held to receive public comments on those drafts.

After full and free discussion, your Committee recommends amending Article X, Section 1, Resources; Conservation, Development and Use; amending Article X, Section 3, Sea Fisheries and Article XVI, Section 13, Condemnation of Fisheries; amending Article X, Section 5, Farm and Home Ownership and amending Article X to include new sections on land banking, water resources and environmental rights.

Your Committee recommends that Section 1 of Article X be amended to read:

1. Article X, Section 1, reading as follows, is deleted:

"[RESOURCES; CONSERVATION, DEVELOPMENT AND USE

"Section 1. The legislature shall promote the conservation, development and utilization of agricultural resources, and fish, mineral, forest, water, land, game and other natural resources.]"

2. Article X is amended by adding a new section to be designated Section 1 and to read:

"CONSERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT OF RESOURCES

"Section 1. For the benefit of present and future generations, the State and its political subdivisions shall conserve and protect Hawaii's natural beauty and all natural resources, including land, water, air, minerals, and energy sources; and shall promote the development and utilization of these resources in a manner consistent with their conservation and in furtherance of the self-sufficiency of the State.

"All public natural resources are held in trust by the State for the benefit of the people."

Section 1 has been amended to clarify the policy of the State with regard to resources. Your Committee felt it important to include: "For the benefit of present and future generations..." because it affirms the ethical obligations of this generation toward the next and is entirely consistent with the concept that the Constitution should provide for the future.

Much testimony was received expressing the opinion that the current language of Section 1 is contradictory and places insufficient weight on the preservation or protection end of the balance that is implied in the word "conservation." Your Committee agreed with this testimony and amended Section 3 to recognize this concern. However, your Committee felt it necessary to define the word "conservation" and agreed on the following definition--the protection, improvement and use of natural resources according to principles that will assure their highest economic or social benefits.

Your Committee felt that the inclusion of "natural beauty" in this article, rather than Article VIII, is more in keeping with the concept of natural beauty as a resource. Moreover, the language of this section mandates that the State and its political subdivisions provide for the conservation and protection of natural beauty, as contrasted with the previous language which simply empowered the State to "conserve and develop its natural beauty."

A question was raised as to whether the term "minerals" included geothermal resources. Your Committee determined that state law already defines "geothermal resources" as minerals.

The consensus of your Committee with regard to self-sufficiency was to constitutionally recognize the growing concern and awareness of Hawaii as being overly dependent on outside sources for, among other resources, food and energy.

Your Committee spent much time considering the need for a separate section on an energy policy for the State. However, it was concluded that the promotion of energy conservation, the development of clean, renewable sources of energy, and the achievement of increased energy self-sufficiency would be adequately covered by the provisions of this section.

Your Committee recommends that Section 3 of Article X and Section 13 of Article XVI be amended to read:

"[CONDEMNATION OF FISHERIES

"Section 13. All vested rights in fisheries in the sea waters not included in any fish pond or artificial inclosure shall be condemned to the use of the public upon payment of just compensation, which compensation, when lawfully ascertained, shall be paid out of any money in the treasury of the State not otherwise appropriated.]"

"[SEA FISHERIES] MARINE RESOURCES

"Section 3. The State shall have the power to manage and control the marine, seabed and other resources located inside the boundaries of the State, including the archipelagic waters of the State, and reserves to itself all such rights outside State boundaries not specifically limited by federal or international law.

"All fisheries in the sea waters of the State not included in any fish pond, [or] artificial [inclosure] enclosure, or state-licensed marine operation shall be free to the public, subject to vested rights and the right of the State to regulate the same. The State may condemn such vested rights for public use."

The intent of the proposed amendment is to clarify the State's long-standing interest in its marine resources and to assert its right to manage and control those resources.

Testimony received by the committee revealed that the power of the State of Hawaii to manage its marine resources has been reduced and diluted by past federal actions. Moreover, it appears that future federal action may further reduce the State's ability to manage resources located within the State.

The language of this amendment reiterates the clarification of the boundaries of the State as expressed by the Committee on Revision, Amendment and Other Provisions.

Your Committee notes that the Fishery Conservation and Management Act of 1976, which extended the federal government's jurisdiction over fisheries, foreign and domestic, to a limit of 200 nautical miles, also provides that coastal states may share by agreement the enforcing of management rules in the 200-mile zone. As a result, the amendment clearly asserts the State's latent power to exercise management authority in the 200-mile fishery conservation zone.

Your Committee was also apprised of the concern that the present language of Section 3, Article X, precludes the development of sea-farms or other mariculture operations "not included in any fish pond or artificial inclosure." Testimony indicated that the State's future in the area of commercial fisheries would be in the direction of sea-farming rather than traditional fishing operations. Thus your Committee, in order to enable the development of sea-farms, recommends the exclusion of fisheries developed as a result of a "state-licensed marine operation" from the public fisheries.

The possibility that the public may be adversely affected by the development of sea-farms was raised. However, after careful consideration, your Committee felt that the provision for state licensing should serve to prevent the indiscriminate proliferation of sea-farms that would significantly reduce the fisheries open to the public.

Your Committee also recommends that the constitutional provision regarding the condemnation of vested rights in fisheries be moved from Section 13 of Article XVI to Section 3 of Article X in order to consolidate the provisions dealing with marine resources in a single section. The provision was condensed to improve its clarity. In addition, your Committee amended the provision to make condemnation optional rather than mandatory, in the belief that it may not be in the public interest to condemn all konohiki rights. However, should a party or parties assert lawfully ascertained konohiki rights in an area which the State wishes to keep open to public fishing, the State would continue to have the obligation to pay just compensation, under Article I, Section 18 ("Eminent Domain").

Your Committee recommends that Section 5 of Article X be amended to read:

"[FARM AND HOME OWNERSHIP] AGRICULTURAL LANDS

"Section 5. [The public lands shall be used for the development of farm and home ownership on as widespread a basis as possible, in accordance with procedures and limitations prescribed by law.]

"The State shall conserve and protect agricultural lands, promote diversified agriculture, increase agricultural self-sufficiency, and assure the availability of agriculturally suitable lands.

"Reclassification of lands identified by the State as 'prime', 'unique', or 'other important' agricultural lands in agricultural districts shall be subject to approval by two thirds of each house of the legislature. These lands shall be protected and maintained for bona fide agricultural use. Necessary support facilities are permissible."

Your Committee deleted the provision in Section 5 of Article X dealing with the use of public lands for farm and home ownership. It was generally understood, based on a letter opinion by the attorney general, that the phrase "farm and home ownership" meant both farm or home ownership. The inconsistency of this interpretation, with a renewed emphasis on preserving valuable and important agricultural lands, and the recommendation of the chairman of the board of agriculture convinced your Committee to delete the provision on farm and home ownership.

In response to increasing concerns regarding the future of agriculture in the State, your Committee has amended Section 5 of Article X, entitled "Farm and Home Ownership," by revising it to "Agricultural Lands" and by amending it to provide policy direction to the State. Moreover, the section has been amended to safeguard existing agricultural lands designated by the state Department of Agriculture as "prime," "unique" or "other important" and classified as agricultural by the state Land Use Commission. Thus the reclassification of these lands will now require, in addition to approval by the state Land Use Commission or other body assigned this function, the approval of the legislature by two thirds of each house.

Your Committee provided further protection for important agricultural lands by requiring that the lands be protected and maintained for bona fide or good faith agricultural use and that only support facilities necessary for agricultural use of such land be permitted.

It is your Committee's intent that Hawaiian home lands and those public lands held in trust for native Hawaiians not be restricted by the land classification procedures of this section.

Your Committee recommends that Article X be amended to add a new section to read:

"WATER RESOURCES

"Section . All waters shall be held by the State as a public trust for the people of Hawaii.

"The legislature shall provide for a water resources agency which shall, in accordance with law, set overall water conservation, quality and use policies; define beneficial and reasonable uses; protect groundwater resources, watersheds, and natural stream environments; establish criteria for water use priorities while assuring appurtenant rights and existing correlative and riparian uses; and establish procedures for regulating all new uses of Hawaii's water resources."

Your Committee has adopted the concept of trusteeship in the management, conservation and control of the precious water resources of the State. The State has long possessed the necessary police powers to regulate and control water resources in the State, but these powers have not been actively employed to avert the present water supply problems. Accordingly, your Committee concluded that the Constitution should specify that the State holds the water resources in trust, with the responsibilities of a trustee to actively protect, control and regulate the development of water resources in the State. This concept implies not only the power to protect the resources but the responsibility to do so long before any crisis develops.

Your Committee also found that there are a number of agencies, often with overlapping and conflicting duties, responsible for the management and control of water resources in the State. The need for a single trustee agency has become vital because of continued development in the State and the greater demands placed on our scarce water resources. Thus your Committee has specified that one agency shall be created or designated by the legislature with the responsibility for regulating all water development and use, whether public or private.

Your Committee believed it necessary to set out the major functions of the water resources agency, recognizing however that other functions could be assigned by the legislature. The trustee agency will be responsible for approving all new water uses and guaranteeing that such new uses will not be detrimental to existing water uses, to the water resources itself or to the natural environment of the water resource.

Although the functions of the water resources agency listed in the proposal are self-explanatory, your Committee wishes to emphasize that regulation of water uses is only one of the duties assigned to this agency. The agency will also have the duty to protect groundwater resources, watersheds and natural stream environments because groundwater resources, watersheds and streams form the basis of our water resources system.

It is the intent of your Committee that the word "agency" be used in a broad sense to allow the legislature to designate an existing governmental body or to create a new one to carry out the trust responsibility. However, your Committee notes that it should not be an existing governmental body which is a competing user of water, because no one user should have full authority to regulate other water users or to regulate its own water use.

It is not the intention of your Committee, in the imposition of this trust, to interfere with the water rights of private property owners using water as defined by law, but merely to subject such rights to reasonable regulation by a trustee agency so that all those holding water rights may continue to enjoy the benefit of such rights. Neither is this proposal intended to limit the rights of individuals to protect their water rights through litigation.

Your Committee recommends that Article X be amended to add a new section to read:

"PUBLIC LAND BANKING

"Section . The State shall have power to acquire interests in real property to control future growth, development and land use within the State. The exercise of such power is to be for a public use and purpose."

In Hawaii's land economy, a few major landowners and large developers exercise a predominant influence in land development and land marketing decisions.

Many studies suggest that public land banking may have an effective role to play in such a market. Land banking refers to the acquisition of land for the specified purpose of asserting the State's ownership interests in shaping the growth and development of entire regions, in advance of any immediate need for a particular public use.

Currently, the legislature is deterred from considering the feasibility of using this planning tool by Article I, Section 18, of the State Constitution, which permits the taking of private property only when there is a public use of that property. The term "public use" has been judicially interpreted to mean immediate and specific use. Hence private landholders whose properties are sought for banking purposes may assert that the acquisition will not be put to a public use and thus defeat the State's action.

The recommended constitutional amendment would blunt such an attack by stating that the State's acquisition of interests in real property to control future growth, development and land use within the State would be deemed to be for a public use and purpose.

However, while this provision would remove the constitutional impediment to legislative consideration of this concept, it would not establish a land bank program. It would simply enable the legislature to assess the benefits and liabilities of land banking without concerns about its constitutional status.

Your Committee recommends that Article X be amended to add a new section to read:

"ENVIRONMENTAL RIGHTS

"Section . Each person has the right to a clean and healthful environment, as defined by laws relating to environmental quality, including pollution control and natural resources conservation, protection, and enhancement. Any person may enforce this right against any party, public or private, through appropriate legal proceedings, subject to reasonable limitations and regulation as provided by law."

Your Committee believes that a clean and healthful environment is an important right of every citizen and that this right deserves constitutional protection. The definition of this right would be accomplished by relying on the large body of statutes, administrative rules and ordinances relating to environmental quality. Defining the right in terms of present laws imposes no new legal duties on parties, a point of fairness important to parties which have invested or are investing large sums of money to comply with present laws.

Developing a body of case law defining the content of the right could involve confusion and inconsistencies. On the other hand, legislatures, county councils and administrative agencies can adopt, modify or repeal environmental laws and regulation laws in light of the latest scientific evidence and federal requirements and opportunities. Thus, the right can be reshaped and redefined through statute, ordinance and administrative rule-making procedures and not inflexibly fixed.

Your Committee believes that this important right deserves enforcement and has removed the standing to sue barriers, which often delay or frustrate resolutions on the merits of actions or proposals, and provides that individuals may directly sue public and private violators of statutes, ordinances and administrative rules relating to environmental quality. The proposal adds no new duties but does add potential enforcers. This private enforcement right complements and does not replace or limit existing government enforcement authority.

Your Committee intends that the legislature may reasonably limit and regulate this private enforcement right by, for example, prescribing reasonable procedural and jurisdictional matters, and a reasonable statute of limitations.

Your Committee believes that this new section adequately recognizes the right to a clean and healthful environment and at the same time would prevent abuses of this right. Concern was expressed that the exercise of this right to a clean and healthful environment would result in a flood of frivolous lawsuits. However, your Committee believes that if environmental law enforcement by government agencies is adequate in practice, then there should be few additional lawsuits, given the barriers that litigation costs present.

Moreover, your Committee is convinced that the safeguards of reasonable limitations and regulations as provided by law should serve to prevent abuses of the right to a clean and healthful environment.

Accordingly, your Committee on Environment, Agriculture, Conservation and Land submits the attached committee proposal and recommends 1) that the 117 proposals referred to your Committee be filed and 2) that Committee Proposal No. 17* pass first reading in the form shown.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates Funakoshi and Lewis.

Your Committee on Style, pursuant to the policy and direction to your Committee contained in Resolution No. 13, RD. 1, providing for the use of nondiscriminatory nouns, pronouns and adjectives in the State Constitution, begs leave to report as follows:

This report and the committee proposal carry out the direction contained in Resolution No. 13, RD. 1, "...to submit a committee proposal conforming the Constitution to this policy [of using nondiscriminatory nouns, pronouns and adjectives] where necessary and deleting as no longer necessary the second paragraph of Article XIV, Section 13..." Your Committee found that the conformance necessary was made by substituting nouns for personal pronouns in such manner that the noun used was the same as the antecedent noun used earlier in the sentence. For example, Article II, Section 2, reading in part:

"No person convicted of a felony shall be qualified to vote except upon [his] the person's final discharge or earlier as provided by law."

Article III, Section 9, reading in part:

"No member of the legislature shall hold any other public office under the State, nor shall [he,] the member, during the term for which [he] the member is elected or appointed..."

Article III, Section 17, reading in part:

"If [he] the governor approves it, [he] the governor shall sign it and it shall become law."

The remaining changes in the usage of personal pronouns are similar to the above. Finally, your Committee has deleted the last paragraph in Article XIV, Section 13, as directed in Resolution No. 13, RD. 1, which reads:

"[Whenever any personal pronoun appears in this constitution, it shall be construed to mean either sex.]"

Your Committee proposes that Article I, Section 4, read:

"No person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor be denied the equal protection of the laws, nor be denied the enjoyment of [his] the person's civil rights or be discriminated against in the exercise thereof because of race, religion, sex or ancestry."

Your Committee notes that the proposed amendment differs from that suggested by the Committee on Bill of Rights, Suffrage and Elections in Committee Proposal No. 15. The Committee on Bill of Rights, Suffrage and Elections in their proposal deleted the word "his" but did not, as your Committee proposes, insert the words "the person's." Your Committee discussed the difference and decided that this is in the jurisdiction of your Committee on Style, as provided by Convention Rule 18(b) and by Resolution No. 13, RD. 1, and that your Committee should have the final word on this matter.

Your Committee also notes that some of the sections contained in this committee proposal amend sections of the Constitution being amended or deleted by other committees, such as your Committee's suggested amendments to Article V, Section 4, which section was completely rewritten by the Committee on Judiciary. Your Committee defers to the other standing committees on substantive changes and will modify this committee proposal as necessary to conform to such substantive changes or will conform this proposal with other proposals when making its final report to the Convention.

Your Committee notes that the changes in this committee proposal may be presented to the voters for ratification either as part of a question similar to question 23 on the 1968 ballot, or the question may be amended to include the changes made by this committee proposal concerning the use of nondiscriminatory words, or the changes may be presented as a separate question.

Finally, your Committee notes that the subject matter of this committee proposal is limited to the use of nondiscriminatory terms and does not present any other subject matter to the Convention.

Your Committee on Style recommends that Committee Proposal No. 18 pass first reading in the form attached hereto.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates Laura Ching and Weatherwax.

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL NO. 18

RELATING TO THE USE OF NONDISCRIMINATORY TERMS IN THE CONSTITUTION.

RESOLVED, that the following be agreed upon as amending the State Constitution.

1. Article I, section 2, is amended to read:

RIGHTS OF [MAN] INDIVIDUALS

Section 2. All persons are free by nature and are equal in their inherent and inalienable rights. Among these rights are the enjoyment of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and the acquiring and possessing of property. These rights cannot endure unless the people recognize their corresponding obligations and responsibilities.

2. Article I, section 4, is amended to read:

DUE PROCESS AND EQUAL PROTECTION

Section 4. No person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor be denied the equal protection of the laws, nor be denied the enjoyment of [his] the person's civil rights or be discriminated against in the exercise thereof because of race, religion, sex or ancestry.

3. Article I, section 8, is amended to read:

INDICTMENT, DOUBLE JEOPARDY, SELF-INCRIMINATION

Section 8. No person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the armed forces when in actual service in time of war or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy; nor shall any person be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against [himself.] oneself.

4. Article I, section 11, is amended to read:

RIGHTS OF ACCUSED

Section 11. In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, or of such other district to which the prosecution may be removed with the consent of the accused; to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against [him;] the accused; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in [his] the accused's favor; and to have the assistance of counsel for [his] the accused's defense. The State shall provide counsel for an indigent defendant charged with an offense punishable by imprisonment for more than sixty days.

5. Article II, section 2, is amended to read:

DISQUALIFICATION

Section 2. No person who is non compos mentis shall be qualified to vote. No person convicted of a felony shall be qualified to vote except upon [his] the person's final discharge or earlier as provided by law.

6. Article II, section 3, is amended to read:

RESIDENCE

Section 3. No person shall be deemed to have gained or lost residence simply because of [his] the person's presence or absence while employed in the service of the United States, or while engaged in navigation or while a student at any institution of learning.

7. Article III, section 7, is amended to read:

QUALIFICATIONS OF MEMBERS

Section 7. No person shall be eligible to serve as a member of the senate unless [he] the person shall have been a resident of the State for not less than three years, have attained the age of majority and be a qualified voter of the senatorial district from which [he] the person seeks to be elected. No person shall be eligible to serve as a member of the house of representatives unless [he] the person shall have been a resident of the State for not less than three years, have attained the age of majority and be a qualified voter of the representative district from which [he] the person seeks to be elected.

8. Article III, section 8, is amended to read:

PRIVILEGE OF MEMBERS

Section 8. No member of the legislature shall be held to answer before any other tribunal for any statement made or action taken in the exercise of [his] the member's legislative functions; and members of the legislature shall, in all cases except felony or breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the sessions of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same.

9. Article III, section 9, is amended to read:

DISQUALIFICATION OF MEMBERS

Section 9. No member of the legislature shall hold any other public office under the State, nor shall [he,] the member; during the term for which [he] the member is elected or appointed, be elected or appointed to any public office or employment which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased, by legislative act during such term. The term "public office", for the purposes of this section, shall not include notaries public, reserve police officers or officers of emergency organizations for civilian defense or disaster relief. The legislature may prescribe further disqualifications.

10. Article III, section 17, is amended to read:

APPROVAL OR VETO

Section 17. Every bill which shall have passed the legislature shall be certified by the presiding officers and clerks of both houses and shall thereupon be presented to the governor. If [he] the governor approves it, [he] the governor shall sign it and it shall become law. If the governor does not approve such bill, [he] the governor may return it, with [his] the governor's objections to the legislature. Except for items appropriated to be expended by the judicial and legislative branches, [he] the governor may veto any specific item or items in any bill which appropriates money for specific purposes by striking out or reducing the same; but [he] the governor shall veto other bills, if at all, only as a whole.

The governor shall have ten days to consider bills presented to [him] the governor ten or more days before the adjournment of the legislature sine die, and if any such bill is neither signed nor returned by the governor within that time, it shall become law in like manner as if [he] the governor had signed it.

RECONSIDERATION AFTER ADJOURNMENT

The governor shall have forty-five days, after the adjournment of the legislature sine die, to consider bills presented to [him] the governor less than ten days before such adjournment, or presented after adjournment, and any such bill shall become law on the forty-fifth day unless the governor by proclamation shall have given ten days' notice to the legislature that [he] the governor plans to return such bill with [his] the governor's objections on that day. The legislature may convene at or before noon on the forty-fifth day in special session, without call, for the sole purpose of acting upon any such bill returned by the governor. In case the legislature shall fail to so convene, such bill shall not become law. Any such bill may be amended to meet the governor's objections and, if so amended and passed, only one reading being required in each house for such passage, it shall be presented again to the governor, but shall become law only if [he] the governor shall sign it within ten days after presentation.

In computing the number of days designated in this section, the following days shall be excluded: Saturdays, Sundays, holidays, and any days in which the legislature is in recess prior to its adjournment as provided in Section 11.

11. Article III, section 19, is amended to read:

PUNISHMENT OF NONMEMBERS

Section 19. Each house may punish by fine, or by imprisonment not exceeding thirty days, any person not a member of either house who shall be guilty of disrespect of such house by any disorderly or contemptuous behavior in its presence or that of any committee thereof; or who shall, on account of the exercise of any legislative function, threaten harm to the body or estate of any of the members of such house; or who shall assault, arrest or detain any witness or other person ordered to attend such house, on [his] the witness' or other person's way going to or returning therefrom; or who shall rescue any person arrested by order of such house.

Any person charged with such an offense shall be informed in writing of the charge made against [him,] the person and have opportunity to present evidence and be heard in [his] the person's own defense.

12. Article IV, section 3, is amended to read:

COMPENSATION: GOVERNOR, LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Section 3. The compensation of the governor and of the lieutenant governor shall be prescribed by law, but shall not be less than thirty-three thousand five hundred dollars, and twenty-seven thousand five hundred dollars, respectively, a year. Such compensation shall not be increased or decreased for their respective terms, unless by general law applying to all salaried officers of the State. When the lieutenant governor succeeds to the office of the governor, [he] the lieutenant governor shall receive the compensation for that office.

13. Article IV, section 4, is amended to read:

SUCCESSION TO GOVERNORSHIP;
ABSENCE OR DISABILITY OF GOVERNOR

Section 4. When the office of the governor is vacant, the lieutenant governor shall become governor. In the event of the absence of the governor from the State, or [his] the governor's inability to exercise and discharge the powers and duties of [his] the governor's office, such powers and duties shall devolve upon the lieutenant governor during such absence or disability.

When the office of lieutenant governor is vacant, or in the event of the absence of the lieutenant governor from the State, or [his] the lieutenant governor's inability to exercise and discharge the powers and duties of [his] the lieutenant governor's office, such powers and duties shall devolve upon such officers in such order of succession as may be provided by law.

In the event of the impeachment of the governor or of the lieutenant governor, [he] the governor or the lieutenant governor shall exercise the powers of [his] the applicable office until acquitted.

14. Article IV, section 5, is amended to read:

EXECUTIVE POWERS

Section 5. The governor shall be responsible for the faithful execution of the laws. [He] The governor shall be commander in chief of the armed forces of the State and may call out such forces to execute the laws, suppress or prevent insurrection or lawless violence or repel invasion. [He] The governor shall, at the beginning of each session, and may, at other times, give to the legislature information concerning the affairs of the State and recommend to its consideration such measures as [he] the governor shall deem expedient.

The governor may grant reprieves, commutations and pardons, after conviction, for all offenses, subject to regulation by law as to the manner of applying for the same. The legislature may, by general law, authorize the governor to grant pardons before conviction, to grant pardons for impeachment and to restore civil rights denied by reason of conviction of offenses by tribunals other than those of this State.

The governor shall appoint an administrative director to serve at [his] the governor's pleasure.

15. Article V, section 2, is amended to read:

SUPREME COURT

Section 2. The supreme court shall consist of a chief justice and four associate justices. When necessary, the chief justice shall assign a judge or judges of a circuit court to serve temporarily on the supreme court. As prescribed by law, retired justices of the supreme court also may serve temporarily on the supreme court at the request of the chief justice. In case of a vacancy in the office of chief justice, or if [he] the chief justice is ill, absent or otherwise unable to serve, an associate justice designated in accordance with the rules of the supreme court shall serve temporarily in [his] the chief justice's place.

16. Article V, section 3, is amended to read:

APPOINTMENT OF JUSTICES AND JUDGES

Section 3. The governor shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint the justices of the supreme court and the judges of the circuit courts. No nomination shall be sent to the senate, and no interim appointment shall be made when the senate is not in session, until after ten days' public notice by the governor.

QUALIFICATIONS

No justice or judge shall hold any other office or position of profit under the State or the United States. No person shall be eligible for the office of justice or judge unless [he] the person shall have been admitted to practice law before the supreme court of this State for at least ten years. Any justice or judge who shall become a candidate for an elective office shall thereby forfeit [his] any state judicial office [.] held.

TENURE; COMPENSATION; RETIREMENT

The term of office of a justice of the supreme court and of a judge of a circuit court shall be ten years. They shall receive for their services such compensation as may be prescribed by law, but no less than twenty-eight thousand dollars for the chief justice, twenty-seven thousand dollars for associate justices and twenty-five thousand dollars for circuit court judges, a year. Their compensation shall not be decreased during their respective terms of office, unless by general law applying to all salaried officers of the State. They shall be retired upon attaining the age of seventy years. They shall be included in any retirement law of the State.

17. Article V, section 4, is amended to read:

RETIREMENT FOR INCAPACITY AND REMOVAL

Section 4. Whenever a commission or agency, authorized by law for such purpose, shall certify to the governor that any justice of the supreme court or judge of a circuit court appears to be so incapacitated as substantially to prevent [him] the justice or judge from performing [his] judicial duties or has acted in a manner that constitutes wilful misconduct in office, wilful and persistent failure to perform [his] judicial duties, habitual intemperance, or conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice that brings the judicial office into disrepute, the governor shall appoint a board of three persons, as provided by law, to inquire into the circumstances. If the board recommends that the justice or judge should not remain in office, the governor shall remove or retire [him] the justice or judge from office.

18. Article V, section 5, is amended to read:

ADMINISTRATION

Section 5. The chief justice of the supreme court shall be the administrative head of the courts. [He] The chief justice may assign judges from one circuit court to another for temporary service. With the approval of the supreme court [he] the chief justice shall appoint an administrative director to serve at [his] the chief justice's pleasure.

19. Article VI, section 5, is amended to read:

LEGISLATIVE APPROPRIATIONS; PROCEDURES

Section 5. In each regular session in an odd-numbered year, the legislature shall transmit to the governor an appropriation bill or bills providing for the anticipated total expenditures of the State for the ensuing fiscal biennium. In such session, no appropriation bill, except bills recommended by the governor for immediate passage, or to cover the expenses of the legislature, shall be passed on final reading until the bill authorizing operating expenditures for the ensuing fiscal biennium, to be known as the general appropriations bill, shall have been transmitted to the governor.

In each regular session in an even-numbered year, at such time as may be prescribed by law, the governor may submit to the legislature a bill to amend any appropriation for operating expenditures of the current fiscal biennium, to be known as the supplemental appropriations bill, and bills to amend any appropriations for capital expenditures of the current fiscal biennium, and at the same time [he] the governor shall submit a bill or bills to provide for any added revenues or borrowings that such amendments may require. In each regular session in an even-numbered year, bills may be introduced in the legislature to amend any appropriation act or bond authorization act of the current fiscal biennium or prior fiscal periods. In any such session in which the legislature submits to the governor a supplemental appropriations bill, no other appropriation bill, except bills recommended by the governor for immediate passage, or to cover the expenses of the legislature, shall be passed on final reading until such supplemental appropriations bill shall have been transmitted to the governor.

20. Article VI, section 7, is amended to read:

AUDITOR

Section 7. The legislature, by a majority vote of each house in joint session, shall appoint an auditor who shall serve for a period of eight years and thereafter until a successor shall have been appointed. The legislature, by a two-thirds vote of the members in joint session, may remove the auditor from office at any time for cause. It shall be the duty of the auditor to conduct post-audits of all transactions and of all accounts kept by or for all departments, offices and agencies of the State and its political subdivisions, to certify to the accuracy of all financial statements issued by the respective accounting officers and to report [his] the auditor's findings and recommendations to the governor and to the legislature at such times as shall be prescribed by law. [He] The auditor shall also make such additional reports and conduct such other investigations as may be directed by the legislature.

21. Article XIV, section 13, is amended to read:

TITLES, SUBTITLES[, PERSONAL PRONOUNS]; CONSTRUCTION

Section 13. Titles and subtitles shall not be used for purposes of construing this constitution.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 80

Your Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing begs leave to report that Stand. Com. Rep. No. 81, Minority Rep. Nos. 13 and 14, Res. No. 23, Com. Whole Rep. No. 14 and Com. P. Nos. 8, RD. 1, S. 1, and 14, RD. 1, have been printed and distributed.

Signed by Delegates Ledward, Chairperson, Crozier, Vice-Chairperson; Hale and Lacy, members.

Your Committee on Style, to which was referred Committee Proposal No. 8, RD. 1, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal, which the Convention has adopted on second reading, covers Articles III and XVI of the State Constitution, as well as the addition of a new article, "REAPPOINTMENT." The Convention has proposed amendments to Article III, Sections 2, 3, 10, 11, 13 and 16, and Article XVI, Sections 1 and 2, as well as the deletion of Section 4 of Article III and Sections 3, 4, 5 and 6 of Article XVI.

Your Committee proposes several style changes which are indicated by brackets [for deletions] and underscoring for additions as shown in the committee proposal and the committee report.

Article III, Sections 2 and 3 ("SENATE; COMPOSITION" and "HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES; COMPOSITION").

Your Committee discussed these sections and feels no further changes are necessary.

Article III, Section 10:

"SALARY; ALLOWANCES; COMMISSION
LEGISLATIVE SALARY

"Section . The members of the legislature shall receive allowances reasonably related to expenses as [prescribed] provided by law, and a salary prescribed pursuant to this section.

"There shall be a commission on legislative salary, which shall be appointed by the governor on or before November 30, 1978, and every eight years thereafter. Not later than the fortieth legislative day of the 1979 regular legislative session and every eight years thereafter, the commission shall submit to the legislature and the governor recommendations for a salary plan for members of the legislature, and then dissolve. The salary plan submitted shall become effective as provided in the plan unless the legislature disapproves the plan by adoption of a concurrent resolution prior to adjournment sine die of the legislative session in which the plan is submitted or the governor disapproves the plan by a message of [the] disapproval transmitted to the legislature prior to [the said] such adjournment. Any change in salary which becomes effective shall not apply to the legislature to which the recommendation for the change in salary was submitted."

Article III, Section 11 ("SESSIONS"):

Your Committee discussed this section and made only one change by deleting a comma in the first sentence of the third paragraph, to read:

"Regular sessions shall be limited to a period of sixty days[,] and special sessions shall be limited to a period of thirty days...."

Article III, Section 13 ("ORGANIZATION; DISCIPLINE; RULES; PROCEDURE"):

Your Committee discussed this section and made no change in the first paragraph. The remaining paragraphs are set forth below with their changes.

"Twenty days after a bill has been referred to a committee in either house, the [same] bill may be recalled from such committee by the affirmative vote of one-third of the members to which such house is entitled.

"Every meeting of a committee in either house or of a committee comprised of a member or members from both houses held for the purpose of making decision on matters referred to the committee shall be open to the public.

"Each house shall provide by rule of its proceedings for a date, applicable to both houses but no sooner than the twentieth day of the session, by which date all bills to be considered in a regular session shall be introduced; provided that such date shall precede the commencement of the mandatory recess of not less than five days under Section .]

"By rule of its proceedings, applicable to both houses, each house shall provide for the date by which all bills to be considered in a regular session shall be introduced. This date shall be after the nineteenth day of the session and shall precede the commencement of the mandatory recess of not less than five days under Section 10."

Article III, Section 16 ("PASSAGE OF BILLS"):

Your Committee discussed this section and feels no changes are necessary.

The new article ("REAPPORTIONMENT"):

Your Committee discussed this new article and for purposes of clarity gave each major break in the article a section number, and corrected internal references to conform to this change, as shown in the committee proposal. Your Committee discussed the first paragraph of this new article, designated Section 1, and feels no changes are necessary. Paragraphs 2 and 3 of the new article are set forth below with their changes.

"Section 2. A reapportionment commission shall be constituted on or before March 1 of each reapportionment year and whenever reapportionment is required by court order. The commission shall consist of nine members. The president of the senate and the speaker of the house of representatives shall each select two members. Members of each house belonging to the party or parties different from that of the president or the speaker shall designate one of their number for each house and the two so designated shall each select two members of the commission. The eight members so selected shall, promptly after selection, be certified by the selecting authorities to the chief election officer and shall within thirty days thereafter select, by a vote of six members, and promptly certify to the chief election officer the ninth member who shall [serve as chairman of] chair the commission.

"Each of the four officials designated above as selecting authorities for the eight members of the commission shall, at the time of the commission selections, also select one person from each basic island unit to serve on an apportionment advisory council for that island unit. The councils shall remain in existence during the life of the commission and each shall serve in an advisory capacity to the commission for matters affecting its island unit."

Your Committee discussed the remainder of this new article and no other major changes were made except for inserting or changing punctuation as shown in paragraphs 5 and 11, now designated Section 4, and as shown in paragraph 10, now designated Section 3. These changes are set forth below.

"The commission shall act by majority vote of its membership and shall establish its own procedures, except as may be provided by law."

"Section 3. The legislature shall provide for a chief election officer of the State, whose responsibilities shall be as [prescribed] provided by law and shall include the supervision of state elections, the maximization of registration of eligible voters throughout the State and the maintenance of data concerning registered voters, elections, apportionment and districting."

"Section 4. The commission shall allocate the total number of members of each house of the state legislature being reapportioned among the four basic island units, namely (1) the island of Hawaii, (2) the islands of Maui, Lanai, Molokai and Kahoolawe, (3) the island of Oahu and all other islands not specifically enumerated, and (4) the islands of Kauai and Niihau, on the basis of the number of voters registered in the last preceding general election in each of the basic island units and computed by the method known as the method of equal proportions[,]; except that no basic island unit shall receive less than one member in each house."

Paragraph 15, now designated Section 6, was amended and reads in part:

"Section 6. If a senator is serving a term which will extend past the general election at which an apportionment plan becomes effective, the reapportionment commission shall designate in the plan the senatorial district the senator shall represent for the remaining period of the senator's term. In making such designation, the senator need not live in the senatorial district which the senator is designated as representing during the remainder of the term which extends past the general election [at] for which the reapportionment plan becomes effective; provided the reapportionment commission shall consider the following criteria...."

Finally, paragraph 19, now designated Section 9, was amended and reads:

"Section 9. Original jurisdiction is vested in the supreme court of the State to be exercised on the petition of any registered voter whereby it may compel, by mandamus or otherwise, the appropriate person or persons to perform their duty or to correct any error made in a reapportionment plan, or it may take such other action to effectuate the purposes of this section as it may deem appropriate. Any such petition [must] shall be filed within forty-five days of the date specified for any duty or within forty-five days after the filing of a reapportionment plan."

Your Committee discussed section 10 of the proposal, amending Article XVI, Section 1, and feels no changes are necessary. Your Committee discussed section 11 of the proposal, amending Article XVI, Section 2, and renumbered the reference to Article III, Section 5, to Article III, Section 4, to reflect the renumbering in Article III, as indicated in section 8 of the proposal.

The changes recommended are for the purposes of style and clarification and have no further implications.

Changes of particular interest recommended by your Committee:

1. As a matter of consistency, your Committee continues to change "prescribed" to "provided" by law.

2. In Article III, Section 10, "SALARY; ALLOWANCES; COMMISSION ON LEGISLATIVE SALARY," the term "the said" was replaced by the word "such," to be consistent with the Convention's intent to use plain language.

3. Article III, Section 13, "ORGANIZATION; DISCIPLINE; RULES; PROCEDURE":

a. Paragraph 2. The word "same" is replaced by "bill" for clarity.

b. Paragraph 3. Insertion of "a" before "member" for grammatical purposes.

c. Paragraph 4. The paragraph was rewritten for clarification. The revision was discussed with the chairperson of the Committee on Legislature and he concurred with all changes as being those of style.

4. New article, "REAPPORTIONMENT":

a. New Section 2, paragraph 1. The phrase "serve as chairman of" was substituted by "chair" to remain consistent with previous action taken concerning the use of nondiscriminatory nouns in the Constitution.

b. New Section 2, paragraph 2. The phrase "serve on" was inserted before "an apportionment advisory council" for clarity.

c. New Section 6. The word "at" was replaced by "for" in the first paragraph for technical purposes, to reflect the fact that the reapportionment plan becomes effective upon publication and not at a general election.

Style Committee Recommendation

Your Committee on Style recommends the adoption of Standing Committee Report No. 81 and consideration of the passage of Committee Proposal No. 8, RD. 1, S. 1* on third reading.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 83

Your Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing begs leave to report that Res. No. 25, Stand. Com. Rep. Nos. 84 through 87, Com. P. Nos. 10, RD. 2, S. 1; 11, S. 1; 12, RD. 1, S. 1; 13, RD. 2, S. 1; and 15, RD. 1; and Com. Whole Rep. No. 15 have been printed and distributed.

Signed by Delegates Ledward, Chairperson; Crozier, Vice-Chairperson; Hayashida, Vice-Chairperson; Hale and Lacy, members.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 84

Your Committee on Style, to which was referred Committee Proposal No. 10, RD. 2, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal, which the Convention has adopted on second reading, covers Article V, Section 1, Judiciary Power; Article V, Section 2, Supreme Court; Appellate Court; Article V, Section 3, Appointment of Justices and Judges; and Article V, Section 4, Retirement; Removal; Discipline, as well as new sections, The Judicial Selection Commission and Transition; Effective Date.

Your Committee proposes several style changes which are indicated by brackets [for deletions] and underscoring for additions as shown in the committee proposal and report. The changes recommended are for the purposes of style and clarification, and have no further implications.

Changes of particular interest recommended by your Committee:

1. "Judicial Power" as the title of Article V, Section 1, replaces "Judiciary Power" for the purpose of style.

2. Commas have, as is the style format, been deleted when preceding a conjunction.

3. Article V, Section 1, end of last sentence:

"...for disposition of cases in accordance with [its] their rules."

This is a matter of agreement, with the subject of that sentence being the several courts.

4. "Provided by law" replaces "prescribed by law" as a matter of consistency.

5. "He," "his place," "his nomination," "his term," "his term of office" and "chairman" have been replaced with nondiscriminatory language (i.e., "in his place" is replaced by "in place of the chief justice," etc.).

6. "Should fail" is replaced twice by "fails" in Article V, Section 3. This is for the purpose of clarity.

7. In Article V, Section 3, paragraph 2, your Committee proposes the following change to the last sentence, for purposes of clarity:

"The same appointment and consent procedure shall be followed until a valid appointment has been made, or failing [the making of a valid appointment,] this, the commission shall make the appointment from the list, without senate consent."

8. In Article V, Section 3, the first paragraph under "Tenure; Compensation; Retirement," your Committee proposes the following changes for purposes of clarity and in accordance with the convention policy of using nondiscriminatory terms:

"The term of office of justices and judges of the supreme court, intermediate appellate court and circuit courts shall be ten years. Judges of district courts shall hold office for the periods [prescribed] as provided by law. At least six months prior to the expiration of [his] a justice's or judge's term of office, every justice and judge shall petition the judicial selection commission to be retained in office or shall inform the commission of [his] an intention to retire. If the judicial selection commission determines that the justice or judge should be retained in office, the commission shall renew [his] the term of office of such justice or judge for the period [prescribed] as provided by this section or by law."

9. In Article V, Section 4, first paragraph, your Committee proposes the following changes for the purposes of clarity:

"The supreme court shall have the power to reprimand, discipline, suspend with or without salary, retire [and] or remove from office[,] any justice or judge for misconduct or disability, [any justice or judge, according to such rules governing exercise of this power] as provided by rules adopted by the supreme court [shall adopt]."

10. (a) "State" has been capitalized as it is a proper noun ("Members in good standing of the bar of the [state] State shall elect..."), in the first paragraph of the new section entitled "The Judicial Selection Commission."

(b) "Six-year term" is hyphenated as it is a compound adjective, in the second paragraph of such new section.

(c) The fourth paragraph of such new section has been rewritten for clarity and now reads:

"No act of the judicial selection commission shall be valid [unless concurred in by a] except by concurrence of the majority of its voting members."

(d) The last paragraph in this section has been divided into two paragraphs and the order of the first two sentences has been reversed for clarity. At the same time, the capitals therein have been changed to lower case for consistency. These changes are as follows:

"[No member of the judicial commission shall receive any compensation for commission services, but shall be allowed necessary expenses for travel, board and lodging incurred in the performance of commission duties. The legislature shall provide for the staff and operating expenses of the commission in a separate budget. The Judicial Selection Commission shall be attached to the Judiciary Branch of the State Government for purposes of administration.]

"The legislature shall provide for the staff and operating expenses of the judicial selection commission in a separate budget. No member of the judicial selection commission shall receive any compensation for commission services, but shall be allowed necessary expenses for travel, board and lodging incurred in the performance of commission duties.

"The judicial selection commission shall be attached to the judiciary branch of the state government for purposes of administration."

11. The second new section to Article V, entitled "Transition; Effective Date," has instead been added to Article XVI and is now entitled "Judiciary; Transition; Effective Date," as this language is transitional and more appropriately placed thereunder. The reference in the fifth sentence in that section to "this article" has been changed to "Article V" since the section is no longer in Article V. Lastly, the capitalization of "Judicial Selection Commission" has been changed to lower case for purposes of consistency.

Style Committee Recommendation

Your Committee on Style recommends the adoption of Standing Committee Report

No. 84 and consideration of the passage of Committee Proposal No. 10, RD. 2, S. 1, on third reading.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegate Takehara.

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL NO. 10, RD. 2, S. 1

RELATING TO THE JUDICIARY.

RESOLVED, that the following be agreed upon as amending Articles V and XVI of the State Constitution.

1. Article V, Section 1, is amended to read:

[JUDICIARY] JUDICIAL POWER

Section 1. The judicial power of the State shall be vested in one supreme court, one intermediate appellate court, circuit courts, district courts[,] and in such other courts as the legislature may from time to time establish. The several courts shall have original and appellate jurisdiction as provided by law and shall establish time limits for disposition of cases in accordance with [its] their rules.

2. Article V, Section 2, is amended to read:

SUPREME COURT; APPELLATE COURT

Section 2. The supreme court shall consist of a chief justice and four associate justices. The chief justice may assign a judge or judges of the intermediate appellate court or a circuit court to serve temporarily on the supreme court, a judge of the circuit court to serve temporarily on the intermediate appellate court[,] and a judge of the district court to serve temporarily on the circuit court. As [prescribed] provided by law, retired justices of the supreme court also may serve temporarily on the supreme court at the request of the chief justice. In case of a vacancy in the office of chief justice, or if [he] the chief justice is ill, absent or otherwise unable to serve, an associate justice designated in accordance with the rules of the supreme court shall serve temporarily in [his place.] place of the chief justice.

3. Article V, Section 3, is amended to read as follows:

The governor shall, with the consent of the senate, fill a vacancy in the office of the chief justice, supreme court, intermediate appellate court and circuit courts, by appointing a person from a list of not less than six nominees for the vacancy, presented to the governor by the judicial selection commission.

If the governor [should fail] fails to make any appointment within thirty days of presentation, or within ten days of the senate's rejection of any previous appointment, the appointment shall be made by the judicial selection commission from the list with the consent of the senate. If the senate [should fail] fails to reject any appointment within thirty days thereof, it shall be deemed to have given its consent to such appointment. If the senate shall reject any appointment, the governor shall make another appointment from the list within ten days thereof. The same appointment and consent procedure shall be followed until a valid appointment has been made, or falling [the making of a valid appointment,] this, the commission shall make the appointment from the list, without senate consent.

The chief justice shall fill a vacancy in the district courts by appointing a person from a list of not less than six nominees for the vacancy presented by the judicial commission. If the chief justice fails to make the appointment within [30] thirty days of presentation, the appointment shall be made by the judicial selection commission from the list. The chief justice shall appoint per diem district court judges [in accordance with] as provided by law.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR APPOINTMENT

Justices and judges shall be residents and citizens of the State and of the United States, and licensed to practice law by the supreme court. A justice of the supreme court, a judge of the intermediate appellate court and a judge of the circuit court shall have been so licensed for a period of not less than ten years preceding [his] nomination. A judge of the district court shall have been so licensed for a period of not less than five years preceding [his] nomination.

No justice or judge shall, during [his] the term of office, engage in the practice of law, or run for or hold any other office or position of profit under the United States, the State[,] or its political subdivisions.

TENURE; COMPENSATION; RETIREMENT

The term of office of justices and judges of the supreme court, intermediate appellate court and circuit courts shall be ten years. Judges of district courts shall hold office for the periods [prescribed] as provided by law. At least six months prior to the expiration of [his] a justice's or judge's term of office, every justice and judge shall petition the judicial selection commission to be retained in office or shall inform the commission of [his] an intention to retire. If the judicial selection commission determines that the justice or judge should be retained in office, the commission shall renew [his] the term of office of such justice or judge for the period [prescribed] as provided by this section or by law.

There shall be a salary commission to review and recommend salaries for justices and judges of all state courts. Justices and judges shall have salaries as [prescribed] provided by law. Their compensation shall not be decreased during their respective terms of office, unless by general law applying to all salaried officers of the State. They shall be retired upon attaining the age of seventy years. They shall be included in any retirement law of the State.

4. Article V, Section 4, is amended to read:

RETIREMENT; REMOVAL; DISCIPLINE

Section 4. The supreme court shall have the power to reprimand, discipline, suspend with or without salary, retire [and] or remove from office[,] any justice or judge for misconduct or disability, [any justice or judge, according to such rules governing exercise of this power] as provided by rules adopted by the supreme court [shall adopt].

The supreme court shall create a commission on judicial discipline which shall have authority to investigate and conduct hearings concerning allegations of misconduct or disability and to make recommendations to the supreme court concerning reprimand, discipline, suspension, retirement or removal of any justice or judge.

5. Article V is amended by adding a new section to be appropriately designated and to read:

THE JUDICIAL SELECTION COMMISSION

Section . There shall be a judicial selection commission that shall consist of nine members. The governor shall appoint three members to the commission. No more than one of the three members shall be a licensed attorney. The president of the senate and the speaker of the house of representatives shall each respectively appoint one member to the commission. The chief justice of the supreme court shall appoint two members to the commission. No more than one of the two members shall be a licensed attorney. Members in good standing of the bar of the [state] State shall elect two of their number to the commission in an election conducted by the supreme court or its delegate. No more than four members of the commission shall be licensed attorneys.

The commission shall be selected and shall operate in a wholly nonpartisan manner. After the initial formation of the commission, elections and appointments to the commission shall be for staggered terms of six years each. No member of the commission shall serve for more than one full six-year term on the commission.

Each member of the judicial selection commission shall be a resident of the State and a citizen of the United States. No member shall run for or hold any other elected office under the United States, the State, or its political subdivisions. No member shall take an active part in political management or in political campaigns. No member shall be eligible for appointment to judicial office of the State so long as [he] the person is a member of the judicial commission[,] and for a period of three years thereafter.

No act of the judicial selection commission shall be valid [unless concurred in by a] except by concurrence of the majority of its voting members.

The judicial selection commission shall select one of its members to serve as [chairman.] chairperson. The commission shall promulgate rules which shall have the force and effect of law. The deliberations of the commission shall be confidential.

[No member of the judicial commission shall receive any compensation for commission services, but shall be allowed necessary expenses for travel, board and lodging incurred in the performance of commission duties. The legislature shall provide for the staff and operating expenses of the commission in a separate budget. The Judicial Selection Commission shall be attached to the Judiciary Branch of the State Government for purposes of administration.]

The legislature shall provide for the staff and operating expenses of the judicial selection commission in a separate budget. No member of the judicial selection commission shall receive any compensation for commission services, but shall be allowed necessary expenses for travel, board and lodging incurred in the performance of commission duties.

The judicial selection commission shall be attached to the judiciary branch of the state government for purposes of administration.

6. Article [V] XVI is amended by adding a new section to be appropriately designated and to read:

JUDICIARY: TRANSITION; EFFECTIVE DATE

Section . The three members initially appointed to the judicial selection commission by the governor shall serve for terms of two, four and six years respectively. The members initially appointed to the commission by the president of the senate and the speaker of the house of representatives shall serve for two years. The two members initially appointed to the commission by the chief justice of the supreme court shall serve terms of four and six years respectively. The two members initially elected to the commission by the members of the bar of the [state] State shall serve for terms of four and six years respectively. The current terms of justices and judges in office shall terminate as heretofore provided by law, subject to earlier termination and removal as provided in [this article.] Article V. The amendments to Article V shall take effect upon ratification. The [Judicial Selection Commission] judicial selection commission shall be created no later than April 1, 1979.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 85

Your Committee on Style, to which was referred Committee Proposal No. 11, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal, which the Convention has adopted on second reading, covers Article XI, Section 1, of the State Constitution, Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, and sections 213, 204, 212 and 221 of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act of 1920. The Convention proposes amendments to Article XI, Section 1, and sections 204 and 212 of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, as well as the addition of new subsections to sections 213 and 221 of that Act.

Your Committee proposes several style changes, which are indicated by brackets [for deletions] and underscoring for additions as shown in the committee report and proposal:

Your Committee considered Article XI, Section 1, and proposes the following changes.

HAWAIIAN HOMES COMMISSION ACT

"Section 1. Anything in this constitution to the contrary notwithstanding, the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, enacted by the Congress, as the same has been or may be amended prior to the admission of the State, is hereby adopted as a law of the State, subject to amendment or repeal by the legislature[,]; provided[,], that if and to the extent that the United States shall so require, [said] such law shall be subject to amendment or repeal only with the consent of the United States and in no other manner[,]; provided[,], further[,], that[,], if the United States shall have been provided or shall provide that particular provisions or types of provisions of [said] such Act may be amended in the manner required for ordinary state legislation, such provisions or types of provisions may be so amended. The proceeds and income from Hawaiian home lands shall be used only in accordance with the terms and spirit of [said] such Act. (A) The legislature shall make sufficient sums available for the following purposes [of]: (1) development of home, agriculture, farm and ranch lots; (2) home, agriculture, aquaculture, farm and ranch loans; (3) rehabilitation projects to include, but not limited to, educational, economic, political, social[,], and cultural processes by which the general welfare and conditions of native Hawaiians are thereby improved; (4) the administration and operating budget of the department of Hawaiian [Home Lands;] home lands; in furtherance of (1), (2), (3) and (4) herein, by appropriating the same in the manner provided by law.

"(B) Thirty percent of the [State] state receipts derived from the leasing of cultivated sugarcane lands under any provision of law or from water licenses shall be transferred to the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund, [Section] section 213 of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, for the purposes enumerated in [said] that section. Thirty percent of the [State] state receipts derived from the leasing of lands cultivated as sugarcane lands on the effective date of [the] this section [herein] 1(B) shall continue to be so transferred to the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund whenever [said] such lands are sold, developed, leased, utilized, transferred, set aside[,], or otherwise disposed of for purposes other than the cultivation of sugarcane. There shall be no ceiling established for the aggregate amount transferred into the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund."

Your Committee considered the wording of section 213(b) (8) of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act and deleted the comma before the conjunction for consistency, spelled out "Sec." and added a period after "213" for consistency and placed a comma between the words "political" and "social" to correct an apparent typographical error, to read as follows:

"[Sec.] Section 213. Funds and accounts.

"(b) There are established in the treasury of the State eight special funds, to be known respectively as the Hawaiian home development fund, the Hawaiian home administration account, the Hawaiian loan guarantee fund, the Hawaiian loan interest fund, the borrowed money fund, the Hawaiian home trust fund, the Hawaiian home education fund[,], and the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund.

"(8) Native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund. Pursuant to Article XI, Section 1(B) of the State Constitution, thirty percent of the state receipts derived from lands previously cultivated as sugarcane lands under any other provision of law and from water licenses, shall be deposited into this fund. The department shall use this money solely for the rehabilitation of native Hawaiians which shall include but not be limited to the educational, economic, political, social and cultural processes by which the general welfare and conditions of native Hawaiians are thereby improved and perpetuated."

Your Committee considered the wording of section 204 of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act and proposes the following changes to the title and the first unnumbered paragraph as follows:

"Section 204. [(Control by department of "available lands["],)] return to board of land and natural resources, when. [)] Upon the passage of this [act,] Act, all available lands shall immediately assume the status of Hawaiian home lands and be under the control of the department to be used and disposed of in accordance with the provisions of this Act, except that:"

Your Committee considered the wording of paragraph (1) of section 204 and feels no changes are necessary.

Your Committee considered the first paragraph in paragraph (2) of section 204 and feels no changes are necessary. Your Committee considered the second paragraph in that section and proposes the following changes:

"In the management of any retained available lands not required for leasing under section 207(a), the department may dispose of such lands to the public, including native Hawaiians, on the same terms, conditions, restrictions and uses applicable to the disposition of public lands as provided in chapter 171[;], Hawaii Revised Statutes; provided[,] that the department may not sell or dispose of such lands in fee simple except as authorized under section 205 of this Act; provided further[,] that the department is expressly authorized to negotiate, prior to negotiations with the general public, the disposition of a lease of Hawaiian home lands to a native Hawaiian, or organization or association owned or controlled by native Hawaiians, for commercial, industrial[,] or other business purposes, in accordance with the procedure set forth in section 171-59, Hawaii Revised Statutes, subject to the notice requirement of section 171-16(c), Hawaii Revised Statutes, and the lease rental limitation imposed by section 171-17(b) [.] , Hawaii Revised Statutes."

Your Committee considered paragraph (3) of section 204 and proposes the following changes:

"(3) The department may, with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, in order to consolidate its holdings or to better effectuate the purposes of this Act, exchange the title to available lands for land, privately or publicly owned, of an equal value. All land so acquired by the department shall assume the status of available lands as though [the same] such land were originally designated as [such] available lands under [Section] section 203 hereof, and all lands so conveyed by the department shall assume the status of the land for which it was exchanged. The limitations imposed by [Section] section 73(1) of the Hawaiian Organic Act and the land laws of Hawaii as to the area and value of land that may be conveyed by way of exchange shall not apply to exchanges made pursuant hereto. No such exchange of land publicly owned by the State shall be made without the approval of two-thirds of the members of the board of land and natural resources. For the purposes of this [sub]paragraph, lands 'publicly owned' means land owned by a county or the State or the United States."

Your Committee considered section 212 of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act and proposes the following changes:

"Section 212. [(Lands returned to control of board of land and natural resources.)] The department may return any Hawaiian home lands not leased as authorized by the provisions of section 207 of this Act to the control of the board of land and natural resources. Any Hawaiian home lands so returned shall, until the department gives notice as hereinafter in this section provided, resume and maintain the status of public lands in accordance with the provisions of the [(Hawaii Revised Statutes)]; provided that such lands may not be sold, leased, set aside, used, transferred[,] or otherwise disposed of except under a general lease only. Any lease by the board of Hawaiian home lands hereafter entered into shall contain a withdrawal clause, and the lands so leased shall be withdrawn by the board, for the purpose of this Act, upon the department giving at its option, not less than one nor more than five years' notice of such withdrawal; provided[,] that the minimum withdrawal-notice period shall be specifically stated in such lease. Each such lease, whether or not stipulated therein, shall be deemed subject to the right and duty of the board of land and natural resources to terminate the lease and return the lands to the department whenever the department gives notice to the board that the department is of the opinion that the lands are required.

"Notwithstanding the provisions of [Hawaii Revised Statutes Section] section 171-95, Hawaii Revised Statutes, in the leasing of Hawaiian home lands by the board to a public utility or other governmental agency, where such use directly benefits the department of Hawaiian home lands or the homestead lessees, the rental may be nominal; in all other instances, the lease rental shall be no less than the value determined in accordance with [Hawaii Revised Statutes Section] section 171-17(b) [.] , Hawaii Revised Statutes."

"Any general lease of Hawaiian home lands hereafter entered into by the board shall be [null and] void unless prior to the disposition of [said] such lease by public auction, direct negotiation or otherwise, approval shall be obtained from the department of Hawaiian home lands."

Your Committee considered section 221 of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act and proposes the following changes:

"Section 221. [(Water.)]

"(f) Water systems in the exclusive control of the department shall remain under its exclusive control[; if] . If any provision or the application of such provision is inconsistent with the provision contained herein, this section shall control.

"Water systems [includes] include all real and personal property together with all improvements to [the same] such systems acquired or constructed by the department for the distribution and control of such water for domestic or agricultural use."

The changes recommended are for the purposes of style and clarification and have no further implications.

Changes of particular interest recommended by your Committee:

1. In various places semicolons were substituted for commas and vice versa, for grammatical and technical purposes.
2. "Said" was replaced by "such" or "that" to remain consistent with style format.
3. Specific commas were deleted to improve readability.
4. "The legislature, shall make sufficient sums available for the following purposes [of]" in Article XI, Section 1(A), was changed as indicated for clarity and grammatical purposes.
5. The capitalization of "State" was changed to lower case in all instances when it was not a noun or possessive adjective (the only instances where capitalization is in order).
6. "The section herein" in Article XI, Section 1(B), was changed to read "this section 1(B)" for clarity.
7. "Act" was capitalized when referring specifically to a specific act (i.e., Hawaiian Homes Commission Act...such Act...).
8. "Chapter 171[;], Hawaii Revised Statutes; provided[,]..." is one example of eight instances in which the sentence was further clarified by adding a comma and "Hawaii Revised Statutes" after a particular section or chapter number in order to indicate the proper reference.
9. To remain consistent with style format, "null and" was deleted from "...null and void..." as redundant.
10. All parentheses before and after titles of sections in the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act and in the first paragraph of section 212 of the Act before and after "Hawaii Revised Statutes" were deleted as they only reflect changes made by the Revisor of Statutes in the text. Your Committee agrees with such changes, has adopted the suggestions of the Revisor of Statutes and has therefore deleted the parentheses as no longer necessary.
11. Breaking the first sentence in section 221 of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act into two sentences was done for clarity and readability. The substitution of "such systems" for "the same" in the second paragraph of that section was also made for clarity.

Style Committee Recommendation

Your Committee on Style recommends the adoption of Standing Committee Report

No. 85 and consideration of the passage of Committee Proposal No. 11, S. 1* on third reading.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegate Nozaki.

*For the complete text of the proposal, see Committee Proposal No. 11, page 807.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 86

Your Committee on Style, to which was referred Committee Proposal No. 12, RD. 1, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal, which the Convention has adopted on second reading, covers the addition of four new sections to the Constitution: Article IX, Hawaiian Education Program; Article XIII, Official Languages; Article XIV, Traditional and Customary Rights, and Article I, Quieting Title.

The Convention also proposed an amendment to the title of Article XIII (State Boundaries, Capital, Flag, Language).

Your Committee proposes several style changes which are indicated by brackets [for deletions] and underscoring for additions as shown in the committee proposal and report.

Your Committee considered the new section added to Article IX, entitled "Hawaiian Education Program," and deleted commas in paragraphs one and two for consistency and clarity, to read:

"Section . The State shall promote the study of Hawaiian culture, history[,] and language.

"Section . The State shall provide for a Hawaiian education program[,] consisting of language, culture and history[,] in the public schools. The use of community expertise shall be encouraged as a suitable and essential means in furtherance of the Hawaiian education program."

Your Committee considered the new title to Article XIII and feels no changes are necessary.

Your Committee considered the new section to Article XIII, entitled "Official Languages," and feels no changes are necessary.

Your Committee considered the new section to Article XIV, entitled "Traditional and Customary Rights," and proposes the following changes:

"Section . The State reaffirms and shall protect all rights, customarily and traditionally exercised for subsistence, cultural and religious purposes and possessed by [tenants of an] ahupua'a tenants who are descendants of native Hawaiians who inhabited the Hawaiian Islands prior to 1778 [that were customarily and traditionally exercised for subsistence, cultural and religious purposes], subject to the right of the State to regulate [the same] such rights."

Your Committee considered the new section to Article I, entitled "Quieting Title," and feels no changes are necessary.

The changes recommended are for the purposes of style and clarification and have no further implications.

Changes of particular interest recommended by the committee:

New section, "Traditional and Customary Rights," was rewritten in its entirety for the purpose of clarity. Two particular changes include:

1. "tenants of an ahupua'a" now reads "ahupua'a tenants," and

2. "the same" is replaced by "such rights."

Style Committee Recommendation

Your Committee on Style recommends the adoption of Standing Committee Report No. 86 and consideration of the passage of Committee Proposal No. 12, RD. 1, S. 1* on third reading.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates Nozaki and Takemoto.

*For the complete text of the proposal, see Committee Proposal No. 12, page 811.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 87

Your Committee on Style, to which was referred Committee Proposal No. 13, RD. 2, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal, which the Convention has adopted on second reading, covers the addition of five new sections to the Constitution: Article XI, Section 4, Public Trust; Article XI, Section 5, Office of Hawaiian Affairs; Establishment of Board of Trustees; Article XI, Section 6, Powers of Board of Trustees; Article XI, Section 7, Definition: Hawaiian; Native Hawaiian, and Article XVI, Effective Date for Office of Hawaiian Affairs.

The Convention also proposed amendments to Article XIV, Section 8, and to the title of Article XI.

Your Committee proposes several style changes which are indicated by brackets [for deletions] and underscoring for additions as shown in the committee proposal and report.

Your Committee considered the new title to Article XI and feels no changes are necessary.

Your Committee considered the new section added to Article XI, entitled "Public Trust" and feels no changes are necessary.

Your Committee considered the new sections to Article XI, entitled "OFFICE OF HAWAIIAN AFFAIRS; ESTABLISHMENT OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES" and "POWERS OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES" and proposes the following changes:

"OFFICE OF HAWAIIAN AFFAIRS;
ESTABLISHMENT OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES

"Section 5. There is hereby established an Office of Hawaiian Affairs. The Office of Hawaiian Affairs shall hold title to all the real and personal property now or hereafter set aside or conveyed to it which shall be held in trust for native Hawaiians and Hawaiians. There shall be a board of trustees for the Office of Hawaiian Affairs elected by qualified voters who are Hawaiians, [in accordance with] as provided by law. The board members shall be Hawaiians. There shall be not less than [9] nine members of the board of trustees; provided that each of the following Islands have one representative: Oahu, Kauai, Maui, Molokai and Hawaii. The [Board] board shall select a [chairman] chairperson from its members.

"POWERS OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES

"Section 6. The board of trustees of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs shall exercise power [in accordance with] as provided by law [,: to manage and administer the proceeds from the sale or other disposition of the lands, natural resources, minerals[,] and income derived from whatever sources for native Hawaiians and Hawaiians, including all income and proceeds from that pro rata portion of the trust referred to in [Section 4] section 4 of this article for native Hawaiians; to formulate policy relating to affairs of native Hawaiians and Hawaiians [,: and to exercise control over real and personal property set aside by state, federal[,] or private sources and transferred to [said Board] the board for native Hawaiians and Hawaiians. The board shall have the power to exercise control over the Office of Hawaiian Affairs through its executive officer, the administrator of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs, who shall be appointed by the board."

Your Committee considered the new Section 7 to Article XI, entitled "Definition: Hawaiian; Native Hawaiian," and feels no changes are necessary.

Your Committee considered the new section to Article XVI entitled "Effective Date for Office of Hawaiian Affairs" and feels no changes are necessary.

Your Committee considered section 8 of Article XIV, entitled "Compliance with Trust," and inserted the word "with" in the first sentence to correct a typographical error, to read:

"Section 8. Any trust provisions which the Congress shall impose, upon the admission of this State, in respect of the lands patented to the State by the United States or the proceeds and income therefrom, shall be complied with by appropriate legislation. Such legislation shall not diminish or limit the benefits of native Hawaiians under Section 4 of Article XI."

The changes recommended are for the purposes of style and clarification and have no further implications.

Changes of particular interest recommended by your committee:

1. Section 5:

- a. To remain consistent, "in accordance with law" was changed to "as provided by law."
- b. The capitalization of "Board" was changed to lower case, as designations of state and county government offices and agencies are generally written in the lower case.
- c. In keeping with the Convention's policy of using nondiscriminatory language in the Constitution, "chairman" was changed to "chairperson" in the last sentence in Section 5, "Office of Hawaiian Affairs; Establishment of Board of Trustees."

2. Section 6:

- a. For clarity, the phrase "of trustees of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs" was inserted after "the board," preceding "shall."
- b. Again to remain consistent, "in accordance with law" was changed to "as provided by law."
- c. For clarity, a colon was inserted after "as provided by law" in the second line of Section 6, and the word "to" was inserted before "formulate policy relating to..." and before "exercised control over...."
- d. Commas have again been deleted preceding conjunctions.

Style Committee Recommendation

Your Committee on Style recommends the adoption of Standing Committee Report No. 87 and consideration of the passage of Committee Proposal No. 13, RD. 2, S. 1* on third reading.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates Burgess, Takehara and Takemoto.

*For the complete text of the proposal, see Committee Proposal No. 13, page 812.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 88

Your Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing begs leave to report that Stand. Com. Rep. No. 89 has been printed and distributed:

Signed by Delegates Ledward, Chairperson; Crozier, Vice-Chairperson; Hale and Lacy, members.

Your Committee on Hawaiian Affairs begs leave to report as follows:

All hearings and meetings of your Committee were open to the public, and many citizens, groups and organizations representing the community and representatives of the government did present their views on the subject covered by this resolution.

Your Committee decided to adopt the attached resolution requesting the establishment of a study commission to investigate the wrongs committed against, and the extent of the injuries to, the Hawaiian people and to recommend means of redress. Your Committee voted to request the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs and the U.S. House of Representatives to act favorably during this session of Congress on Senate Joint Resolution No. 4, which would establish the Hawaiian Native Claims Settlement Study Commission. Your Committee has learned that Senate Joint Resolution No. 4, which passed the U.S. Senate during the 1977 session and which had received a majority vote but not the necessary two-thirds majority by the U.S. House of Representatives on May 23, 1978, has been recommitted to the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs by a vote of 180 to 149 on September 8, 1978. Your Committee feels that it is of utmost importance to the Hawaiian people and all the people of the State of Hawaii that the Constitutional Convention of Hawaii of 1978 express its concern and support for Senate Joint Resolution No. 4 to the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs and to all members of the U.S. House of Representatives so that there may be favorable action on it during this session.

Your Committee is familiar with the sad history of the Hawaiian people. Your Committee has found many wrongs inflicted upon the Hawaiian people. Your Committee believes that the establishment of the Hawaiian Native Claims Settlement Study Commission according to Senate Joint Resolution No. 4 would be a first step in the thorough investigation of this matter and would allow for the development of recommendations to Congress on the appropriate steps to take in order to accomplish whatever redress is necessary to the Hawaiians for these wrongs. It has now been some 85 years since the original wrongs were committed, and still there has been no progress in this area. Your Committee feels that the Hawaiians and the people of the State of Hawaii trusted the government of the United States to look into these matters; consequently, your Committee is sorely disappointed with the vote to recommit.

Your Committee on Hawaiian Affairs recommends the adoption of Res. No. 24.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegate Nozaki.

RESOLUTION NO. 24

REQUESTING THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A STUDY COMMISSION TO INVESTIGATE THE WRONGS COMMITTED AGAINST, AND THE EXTENT OF THE INJURIES TO, THE HAWAIIAN PEOPLE AND TO RECOMMEND MEANS OF REDRESS.

WHEREAS, the people of the State of Hawaii recognize the wrongs committed against the Hawaiian people when, in 1893, the kingdom of Hawaii, the lawful and indigenous government of Hawaii, was unlawfully overthrown by a group of non-Hawaiian residents, all of whom conspired with the United States minister and the Armed Forces of the United States; and

WHEREAS, on December 18, 1893, in a message to the Congress President Cleveland did recognize this wrong in a statement he issued which acknowledged that "by an act of war, committed with the participation of a diplomatic representative of the United States and without the authority of the Congress, the government of a feeble but friendly and confiding people has been overthrown," that "a substantial wrong has thus been done which a due regard for our national character as well as the rights of the injured people requires that we endeavor to repair," and that "the United States cannot fail to vindicate its honor and its sense of justice by an earnest effort to make all possible reparation;" and

WHEREAS, a claim for repair of these wrongs to the Hawaiian people was presented to the Government of the United States of America by Queen Liliuokalani, the lawful monarch of Hawaii, and on July 15, 1893 a petition for redress was also presented by the Hawaiian Patriotic League, representing the Hawaiians; and

WHEREAS, in 1898 Hawaii was annexed to the United States, and by such annexation, among other things, the United States acquired ownership of vast landholdings that had been common property of the Hawaiians prior to the overthrow of their government; and

WHEREAS, the Constitutional Convention of 1978 recognizes that the Hawaiian people can never be made whole again for the wrong that was committed; and

WHEREAS, the people of the State of Hawaii have looked to and relied on the federal government to take the steps to investigate the wrongs committed and to provide redress if necessary; and

WHEREAS, Senate Joint Resolution No. 4 was introduced in the Senate of the United States on January 10, 1977 by Mr. Inouye and Mr. Matsunaga; and

WHEREAS, upon approval, Senate Joint Resolution No. 4 will establish a Hawaiian Native Claims Settlement Study Commission to conduct a study of the culture, needs and concerns of Hawaiians; the nature of the wrong committed against, and the extent of the injuries to, the Hawaiians by reason of the actions listed below regarding the overthrow of the indigenous and lawful government of the Hawaiian people; and the various means to remedy such wrongs; and to submit a report of its findings of the means and recommendations to remedy such wrongs to the Congress; and

WHEREAS, Senate Joint Resolution No. 4 passed the Senate of the United States during the 1977 session; and

WHEREAS, on May 23, 1978, a majority of the House of Representatives of the United States voted to support Senate Joint Resolution No. 4, which fell short of the necessary two-thirds vote; and

WHEREAS, on September 8, 1978, Senate Joint Resolution No. 4 was recommitted to the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs for further committee work; and

WHEREAS, it is essential to the Hawaiians and all the people of the State of Hawaii that the federal government conduct an investigation of the wrongs committed upon the Hawaiian people, which could be accomplished through the Hawaiian Native Claims Settlement Study Commission; and

WHEREAS, because of the wrongs committed to the Hawaiian people, it is essential to Hawaiians and all people of the State of Hawaii that there be a remedy for these wrongs committed, the recommendation for which could be developed by the Hawaiian Native Claims Settlement Study Commission; now, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED by the Constitutional Convention of Hawaii of 1978, that the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs is requested to return Senate Joint Resolution No. 4 to the House of Representatives of the United States for a vote; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the House of Representatives of the United States act favorably on Senate Joint Resolution No. 4; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that duly authenticated copies of this Resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States, the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, the members of the House of Representatives of the United States, the members of Hawaii's delegation to Congress, the President of the Senate of the United States and the Governor of the State of Hawaii.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 92

Your Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing begs leave to report that Res. Nos. 27 and 28, Stand. Com. Rep. Nos. 93 and 94, and Com. P. Nos. 14, RD. 2, S. 1, and 18, RD. 2, S. 1 have been printed and distributed.

Signed by Delegates Ledward, Chairperson; Crozier, Vice-Chairperson; Hayashida, Vice-Chairperson; Hale and Lacy, members.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 93

Your Committee on Style, to which was referred Committee Proposal No. 14, RD. 2, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal, which the Convention has adopted on second reading, covers Article VI, Sections 2 through 7, and Article XVI, Section 8, of the State Constitution and the addition of the following new sections: Article VI, Disposition of Excess Revenues; Article VI, Council on Revenues; Article VI, Tax Review Commission; Article VI, Income Taxation and Article VII, Transfer of Mandated Programs.

The Convention has proposed amendments to Article VI, Sections 2 through 7, as well as the deletion of Article XVI, Section 8.

Your Committee proposes several style changes which are indicated by brackets [for deletions] and underscoring for additions, as shown in the committee proposal and report.

Your Committee considered the wording of the new section "Disposition of Excess Revenues" and feels no changes are necessary.

Your Committee considered the wording of the new section "Council on Revenues" and proposes the following changes.

"COUNCIL ON REVENUES

"Section . There shall be established by law a council on revenues which shall prepare revenue estimates of the state government and shall report the estimates to the governor and the legislature at times provided by law. The estimates shall be considered by the governor in preparing the budget, recommending appropriations and revenues and controlling expenditures [and by the]. The estimates shall be considered by the legislature in appropriating funds and enacting revenue measures. All revenue estimates [made] submitted by the council to the governor and the legislature shall be made public. If the legislature in appropriating funds or if the governor in preparing the budget or recommending appropriations exceeds estimated revenues due to proposed expenditures, this fact shall be made public including the reasons therefor."

Your Committee considered the wording of the new section "Tax Review Commission" and upon the recommendation of the chairperson of your Committee on Taxation and Finance conformed the name of the commission in the body of the section to the title of the section to read:

"TAX REVIEW COMMISSION

"Section . There shall be a tax review commission [on tax review], which shall be appointed as provided by law on or before July 1, 1980, and every five years thereafter...."

Your Committee reviewed the wording of the new section "Income Taxation" and feels no changes are necessary.

Your Committee reviewed the wording of Article VI, Section 2, and feels no changes are necessary.

Your Committee reviewed the wording of Article VI, Section 3, and proposes the following changes, which have been agreed upon by the chairperson of your Committee on Taxation and Finance and by bond counsel, except where noted.

1. The section is broken into two sections, one entitled "Definitions; Issuance of Indebtedness," which is Section 3, and the other entitled "Debt Limit; Exclusions," as a new section.

2. The first paragraph in Section 3 containing definitions is deleted and set forth again by a numbered paragraph for each definition in alphabetical order, to read as follows:

"DEFINITIONS; ISSUANCE OF INDEBTEDNESS

"Section 3. For the purposes of this article:

1. The term 'bonds' shall include bonds, notes and other instruments of indebtedness.

2. The term 'general obligation bonds' means all bonds for the payment of the principal and interest of which the full faith and credit of the State or a political subdivision are pledged and, unless otherwise indicated, includes reimbursable general obligation bonds.

3. The term 'net revenues' or 'net user tax receipts' means the revenues or receipts derived from a public undertaking, improvement or system remaining after the costs of operation, maintenance and repair of such public undertaking, improvement or system and the required payments of the principal of and interest on all revenue bonds issued therefor have been made.

4. The term 'person' means an individual, firm, partnership, corporation, association, cooperative or other legal entity, governmental body or agency, board, bureau or other instrumentality thereof, or any combination of the foregoing.

5. The term 'rates, rentals and charges' means all revenues and other moneys derived from the operation or lease of a public undertaking, improvement or system, or derived from any payments or return on security under a loan program or a loan thereunder.

6. The term 'reimbursable general obligation bonds' means general obligation bonds issued for a public undertaking, improvement or system [for] from which revenues, or user taxes, or a combination of both, may be derived for the payment of the principal and interest as reimbursement to the general fund and for which reimbursement is required by law, and, in the case of general obligation bonds issued by the State for a political subdivision, general obligation bonds for which the payment of the principal and interest as reimbursement to the general fund is required by law to be made from the revenue of the political subdivision.

7. The term 'revenue bonds' means all bonds payable from the revenues, or user taxes, or any combination of both, of a public undertaking, improvement, system or loan program and any loan made thereunder and secured as may be provided by law.

8. The term 'special purpose revenue bonds' means all bonds payable from rental or other payments made to an issuer by a person pursuant to contract and secured as may be provided by law.

9. The term 'user tax' means a tax on goods or services or on the consumption thereof, the receipts of which are substantially derived from the consumption, use or sale of goods and services in the utilization of the functions or services furnished by a public undertaking, improvement or system."

3. The definition of the term "reimbursable obligation bonds" in paragraph 6, was changed by changing the word "for" to "from" to correct a technical error.

4. The first paragraph after the definitions in Section 3 is changed by setting off the phrase "by a majority vote of the members to which each house is entitled" with commas, to read:

"The legislature, by a majority vote of the members to which each house is entitled, shall authorize the issuance of all general obligation bonds, bonds issued under special improvement statutes and revenue bonds issued by or on behalf of the State and shall prescribe by general law the manner and procedure for such issuance...."

A similar change is made to the phrase "by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house is entitled" in each place the phrase occurs in the second paragraph of Section 3, reading:

"Special purpose revenue bonds shall only be authorized or issued to finance facilities of or for, or to loan the proceeds of such bonds to assist, manufacturing, processing or industrial enterprises, utilities serving the general public, health care facilities provided to the general public by not-for-profit corporations or low and moderate income government housing programs, each of which is hereinafter referred to in this paragraph as a special purpose entity. The legislature, by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house is entitled, may enact enabling legislation for the issuance of special purpose revenue bonds separately for each special purpose entity, and, by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house is entitled and by separate legislative bill, may authorize the State to issue special purpose revenue bonds for each single project or multi-project program of each special purpose entity...."

These changes were not approved by bond counsel but are for grammatical purposes and do not affect the substance of the section.

5. The first paragraph of the new section is changed by changing the comma after the word "State" to a semicolon for consistency, to read:

"DEBT LIMIT; EXCLUSIONS

"Section . General obligation bonds may be issued by the State[,]; provided that such bonds at the time of issuance would not cause the total amount of principal and interest payable in the current or any future fiscal year, whichever is higher, on such bonds and on all outstanding general obligation bonds to exceed...."

6. The third paragraph of the new section is changed by splitting the second sentence into two sentences and by changing the word "paid" to "sold" to correct a technical error. These changes are as follows:

"...The first installment of principal of general obligation bonds and of reimbursable general obligation bonds shall mature not later than five years from the date of issue of such series[, the]. The last installment on general obligation bonds shall mature not later than twenty-five years from the date of such issue and the last installment on general obligation bonds [paid] sold to the federal government, on reimbursable general obligation bonds and on bonds constituting instruments of indebtedness under which the State or a political subdivision incurs a contingent liability as a guarantor shall mature not later than thirty-five years from the date of such issue...."

7. A reference to Section 3 is inserted in the fourth paragraph of the new section which sets forth the exclusions from debt, to read:

"In determining the power of the State to issue general obligation bonds or the funded debt of any political subdivision[,] under section 3, the following shall be excluded...."

8. The exclusions from debt in the new section are changed from alphabetized paragraphs to numbered paragraphs to conform to the rest of the Constitution.

9. The word "or" is inserted after the word "revenue" in paragraph (f), (now numbered 6) of the new section, to read:

"[(f)] 6. Reimbursable general obligation bonds issued for a public undertaking, improvement or system but only to the extent that reimbursements to the general fund are in fact made from the net revenue, or net user tax receipts, or combination of both, as determined for the immediately preceding fiscal year."

10. References to Section 3 are inserted in the last two paragraphs of the new section, to read:

"...For the purposes of section 3 and this section, amounts received from on-street parking may be considered and treated as revenues of a parking undertaking.

"Nothing in section 3 or in this section shall prevent the refunding of any bond at any time."

Your Committee has reviewed the wording of Article VI, Section 4, and proposes changing the capitalization of the word "Section" to lower case, to read:

"...The proposed general fund expenditures in the plan of proposed expenditures, including estimates of the aggregate expenditures of the judicial and legislative branches, submitted by the governor shall not exceed the general fund expenditure ceiling established by the legislature under [Section] section 5 of this article...."

Your Committee has reviewed the wording of Article VI, Section 5, and proposes the following changes for the purposes of clarity and later ordering of sections in Article VI:

"LEGISLATIVE APPROPRIATIONS; PROCEDURES;
[LAPSING;] EXPENDITURE CEILING

"Section 5. In each regular session in an odd-numbered year, the legislature shall transmit to the governor an appropriation bill or bills providing for the anticipated total expenditures of the State for the ensuing fiscal biennium.... In any such session in which the legislature submits to the governor a supplemental appropriations bill, no other appropriation bill, except bills recommended by the governor for immediate passage, or to cover the expenses of the legislature, shall be passed on final reading until such supplemental appropriations bill shall have been transmitted to the governor.

"GENERAL FUND EXPENDITURE CEILING

"Notwithstanding any other provision to the contrary, the legislature shall establish a general fund expenditure ceiling which shall limit the rate of growth of general fund appropriations, excluding federal funds received by the general fund, to the estimated rate of growth of the State's economy as provided by law. No appropriations in excess of such ceiling shall be authorized during any legislative session unless the legislature shall, by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house of the legislature is entitled, set forth the dollar amount and the rate by which the ceiling will be exceeded and the reasons therefor.

"LAPSING OF APPROPRIATIONS

"Section _____. All appropriations for which the source is general obligation bond funds or general funds shall be for specified periods, and no such appropriation shall be made for a period exceeding three years. Any such appropriation or any portion of any such appropriation which is unencumbered at the close of the fiscal period for which the appropriation is made shall lapse; provided that no appropriation for which the source is general obligation bond funds nor any portion of any such appropriation shall lapse[;] if the legislature determines such appropriation or any portion of such appropriation is necessary to qualify for federal aid financing and reimbursement....

"[Notwithstanding any other provision to the contrary, the legislature shall establish a general fund expenditure ceiling which shall limit the rate of growth of general fund appropriations, excluding federal funds received by the general fund, to the estimated rate of growth of the State's economy as provided by law. No appropriations in excess of such ceiling shall be authorized during any legislative session unless the legislature shall by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house of the legislature is entitled set forth the dollar amount and the rate by which the ceiling will be exceeded and the reasons therefor.]"

Your Committee has reviewed the wording of Article VI, Sections 6 and 7, and feels no changes are necessary.

Your Committee has reviewed the wording of the new section, "Transfer of Mandated Programs," added to Article VII and feels no changes are necessary.

The changes recommended are for the purposes of style, clarity and technical accuracy and have no further implications.

Style Committee Recommendation

Your Committee on Style recommends the adoption of Standing Committee Report No. 93 and consideration of the passage of Committee Proposal No. 14, RD. 2, S. 1* on third reading.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegate Penebacker.

*For the complete text of the proposal, see Committee Proposal No. 14, page 814.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 94

Your Committee on Style, to which was referred Committee Proposal No. 18, RD. 2, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal, which the Convention has adopted on second reading, covers amendments to: Article I, Sections 2 and 8; Article II, Sections 2 and 3; Article III, Sections 7, 8, 9 17 and 19; Article IV, Sections 3, 4 and 5; Article V, Section 5 and Article XIV, Section 13.

Your Committee proposes several style changes which are indicated by brackets [for deletions] and underscoring for additions as shown in the committee report and proposal.

The changes recommended here are for the purposes of style and clarification and have no further implications.

Changes of particular interest recommended by your Committee:

1. The comma was moved inside the quotation mark in the second sentence of Article III, Section 9, to read:

"The term "public office[,] ," for the purposes of this section, shall not include notaries public, reserve police officers or officers of emergency organizations for civilian defense or disaster relief."

2. The comma has been deleted before the conjunction "and" in the last sentence of Article III, Section 17. Also, the capitalization of "section" was changed to lower case, the section reference 11 was changed to 10 to reflect the renumbering of sections done by Committee Proposal No. 8 and "of this article" was inserted for clarity.

The last sentence now reads:

"In computing the number of days designated in this section, the following days shall be excluded: Saturdays, Sundays, holidays[,] and any days in which the legislature is in recess prior to its adjournment as provided in [Section 11.] section 10 of this article."

3. In the first sentence of Article IV, Section 3, "prescribed by law" was changed to "as provided by law," reading:

"The compensation of the governor and of the lieutenant governor shall be [prescribed] as provided by law, but shall not be less than thirty-three thousand five hundred dollars, and twenty-seven thousand five hundred dollars, respectively, a year."

Style Committee Recommendation

Your Committee on Style recommends the adoption of Standing Committee Report No. 94 and consideration of the passage of Committee Proposal No. 18, RD. 2, S. 1* on third reading.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates Teruo Ihara, Kimball, Pulham, Takemoto, Tamayori and Weatherwax.

*For the complete text of the proposal, see Committee Proposal No. 18, page 831.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 95

Your Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing begs leave to report that Stand. Com. Rep. No. 96 and Com. P. No. 15, RD. 2, S. 1 have been printed and distributed.

Signed by Delegates Ledward, Chairperson; Crozier, Vice-Chairperson; Hayashida, Vice-Chairperson; Hale and Lacy, members.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 96

Your Committee on Style, to which was referred Committee Proposal No. 15, RD. 2, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal, which the Convention has adopted on second reading, covers Sections 4, 10, 11 and 12 of Article I, as well as the addition of the following new sections: Grand Jury Counsel and Right to Privacy.

The Convention has proposed amendments to Article I, Sections 4, 10 and 11, and the deletion of Section 12 in its entirety.

Your Committee proposes several style changes which are indicated by brackets [for deletions] and underscoring for additions as shown in the committee proposal and report.

Your Committee considered Article I, Section 4, and proposes the following changes:

"DUE PROCESS AND EQUAL PROTECTION

"Section 4. No person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor be denied the equal protection of the laws, nor be denied the enjoyment of the person's civil rights or be discriminated against in the exercise thereof because of race, religion, sex or ancestry."

Your Committee considered Article I, Section 10, and feels no changes are necessary.

Your Committee considered Article I, Section 11, and proposes the following changes:

"RIGHTS OF ACCUSED

"Section 11. In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial[,] by an impartial jury of the district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, or of such other district to which the prosecution may be removed with the consent of the accused; to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against [him;] the accused; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in [his] the accused's favor; and to have the assistance of counsel for [his] the accused's defense. Juries, where the crime charged is serious, shall consist of twelve persons. The State shall provide counsel for an indigent defendant charged with an offense punishable by imprisonment."

Your Committee considered the two new sections, "Grand Jury Counsel" and "Right to Privacy," and feels no changes are necessary.

The changes recommended are for the purposes of style and clarity, and have no further implications. Changes of particular interest recommended by your Committee:

1. Article I, Section 4: "the person's" was inserted before "civil rights" for clarity and consistency.

2. Article I, Section 11: A comma was deleted after the words "to a speedy and public trial" for clarity.

3. Article I, Section 11: To remain consistent with previous action taken by the Convention concerning the use of nondiscriminatory language in the Constitution, "his" was changed to read "the accused's" and "him" to "the accused."

Style Committee Recommendation

Your Committee on Style recommends the adoption of Standing Committee Report No. 96 and consideration of the passage of Committee Proposal No. 15, RD. 2, S. 1* on third reading.

Signed by all members of the Committee.

*For the complete text of the proposal, see Committee Proposal No. 15, page 825.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 97

Your Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing begs leave to report that Stand. Com. Rep. Nos. 98 through 100; Com. P. Nos. 16, RD. 2, S. 1, and 17, RD. 2, S. 1; and Res. Nos. 29 through 32 have been printed and distributed.

Signed by Delegates Ledward, Chairperson; Crozier, Vice-Chairperson; Hayashida, Vice-Chairperson; Hale and Lacy, members.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 98

Your Committee on Style, to which was referred Committee Proposal No. 16, RD. 2, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal, which the Convention has adopted on second reading, covers Article II, Sections 4 and 5, of the State Constitution. The Convention has proposed amendments to Sections 4 and 5 as well as the addition of three new sections: Resignation from Public Office, Campaign Fund and Campaign Spending and Limitation on Campaign Contributions.

Your Committee proposes several style changes, which are indicated by brackets [for deletions] and underscoring for additions, as shown in the committee proposal and report.

The changes recommended are for the purposes of style and consistency and have no further implications.

Changes of particular interest recommended by the Committee:

1. New section, Campaign Fund and Campaign Spending:

"The legislature shall establish a campaign fund to be used for partial public financing of campaigns for public offices of the [state] State and its political subdivisions, as [prescribed] provided by law...."

For consistency, "prescribed by law" was changed to "provided by law" and "state" was capitalized, as it is a proper noun.

2. New section, Limitation on Campaign Contributions:

"Limitations on campaign contributions to any political candidate, or authorized political campaign organization for such candidate, for any elective office within the State shall be [established] provided by law."

To remain consistent, "shall be established by law" now reads "shall be provided by law."

Style Committee Recommendation

Your Committee on Style recommends the adoption of Standing Committee Report No. 98 and consideration of the passage of Committee Proposal No. 16, RD. 2, S. 1* on third reading.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegate Pulham.

*For the complete text of the proposal, see Committee Proposal No. 16, page 827.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 99

Your Committee on Submission and Information begs leave to report as follows:

Under the rules of the Convention, your Committee is required to submit to the Convention a report on the following phases of its activities, and begs leave to report action under these categories:

- I. METHOD AND MANNER OF SUBMITTING AMENDMENTS TO THE PEOPLE.
 - II. METHOD OF INFORMING THE PEOPLE ABOUT THE PROPOSED CHANGES IN THE HAWAII CONSTITUTION.
 - III. REPORT TO THE PEOPLE OUTLINING THE RESULTS OF THE CONVENTION'S WORK.
- I. METHOD AND MANNER OF SUBMITTING AMENDMENTS TO THE PEOPLE.
 - a. Article XV of our Constitution sets forth the requirements for ratification of proposed constitutional amendments. To be successful, proposed amendments need the approval of a majority of all the votes tallied on the question, such majority constituting at least 35 percent of the total votes cast.
 - b. Your Committee recommends that the proposed constitutional amendments be submitted to a vote of the electorate at the general election, November 7, 1978.
 - c. Your Committee decided to follow the philosophy of the designers of the 1968 ballot, where the voter was offered a choice of voting: (A) a blanket YES on each of the proposed amendments, (B) a blanket NO on each of the proposed amendments, or (C) a YES on each of the proposed amendments except for those specific proposed questions that the voter marked NO. However, your Committee decided to combine the choices that were listed as Part A and Part B on the 1968 ballot into a single question, Part A, that will allow the voter to vote either YES or NO on all proposed amendments. Part C on the 1968 ballot will be relabeld Part B. Your Committee feels this change is merely technical.

Your Committee considered simply removing that choice referred to on the 1968 ballot as Part B. At one point your Committee felt that it would be desirable to do so because the voter was already provided with the opportunity to vote NO by marking the specific items in Part C. Since passage of proposed amendments requires not only a simple majority but also a majority constituting at least 35 percent of the total vote cast at a general election, the voter can effectively dilute the YES vote by refraining from voting. Moreover, the committee reasoned that most voters would not vote against all of the proposed amendments since some would be stylistic or technical changes that have no substance. However, when your Committee initially considered this issue, the committee was assuming that the 1978 ballot would be similar to the 1968 ballot in length. In 1968 there were only 23 proposed amendments on the ballot, 2 of which were technical changes. But upon preparation of the 1978 ballot, it became apparent that there would be a substantial increase in the number of proposed amendments submitted to the voters. For the voter wishing to reject all questions, the task of marking every one of the questions could be considered an unfair requirement. Some members of your Committee were also concerned about adverse reaction by the public. Therefore, Part A was designed to afford the voter the opportunity to vote either YES or NO on all amendments.

Your Committee considered the division of questions into as many questions as there are proposed amendments, but decided against this method because of the unwieldy and long ballot which would necessarily result from this approach. Moreover, many of the amendments are sufficiently related to each other so that an artificial division among them might interfere with voter understanding of the issues. For these reasons, your Committee recommends that amendments relating to the same subject be grouped to form questions. Your Committee determined that this method will ensure reasonable voter understanding of the proposed amendments.

In addition, your Committee determined that a concise phrasing of the question will suffice on the ballot. Your Committee felt that, in light of the large number of proposed amendments, it would be better to keep the ballot short. Your Committee did not want a lengthy ballot necessitating two separate ballot cards, as your Committee feared that this would discourage voters from considering all the issues and would lead to voter confusion. Resort to two ballot cards would have required elimination of the blanket question in Part A, thereby increasing the burden of voting substantially for those voters who might want to affirm or reject the entire ballot. Your Committee anticipates that a large number of voters will elect the option in Part A, based on the 1968 figures available. Some members expressed the opinion that most voters, if they are going to vote at all, will have decided in advance how they wish to vote. In addition, every voter will receive, as a part of the official ballot, an informational booklet that will provide a more extensive narrative of every proposed amendment. Also, full texts of the Constitution will be placed at voter units, thereby enabling voters who are not completely prepared an adequate opportunity to examine and review the proposed amendments and the revised Constitution as a whole.

d. Your Committee considered submitting each of the proposed amendments as separate questions with a YES or NO vote. This would result in submitting to the people for ratification not less than 35 questions. Since a major problem to overcome is voter apathy, your Committee was concerned that many voters would not take the time to mark their YES votes but would mark only the question or questions they were opposed to. For this reason your Committee has agreed that a way should be provided to the voter, if he or she wishes, to approve or reject each of the questions by one vote or, if he or she wishes, to vote against one or more of the questions and to approve the balance.

e. Therefore, in accordance with Rule 18(c) of this Convention, your Committee has drafted the attached resolution setting forth the form of ballot to accomplish this end. The proposed amendments to be submitted to the people for ratification are set forth in Part B of the ballot and numbered 1 to 35. The numbers and the proposed amendments will be keyed to an explanatory booklet which will accompany the ballot card and also to a complete text of constitutional changes displayed in each voting unit. The amendments are too complex and lengthy to be listed on the ballot, but the digest in the booklet is designed to identify them and to show their character and purpose. The proposed amendments were formulated with the aid of the Convention attorneys in cooperation with the committee chairs.

f. The manner of counting the number of YES and NO votes on each of the proposed amendments is as follows: if the voter marks YES in Part A, it shall be counted as YES on each of the 35 questions in Part B. If the voter marks NO in Part A, it shall be counted as NO on each of the proposed amendments in Part B. If the voter votes in Part B, each of the proposed amendments marked shall be counted as a NO vote and each of the proposed amendments left unmarked shall be counted as a YES vote.

Voters will be instructed to vote in only Part A or Part B. However, if a voter makes a mark in Part A, either YES or NO, and subsequently also marks in Part B, the voting in Part B will be counted and Part A will be disregarded. Your Committee decided to adopt this procedure so as to minimize the number of spoiled ballots. Rather than labeling such a ballot spoiled, which would totally eliminate the voter's input, your Committee decided to follow the rule of construction that the specific should take precedence over the general. Thus a Part B response would prevail over Part A. Your Committee feels that it is reasonable to assume that such a voter must have misunderstood the directions. Your Committee decided to have this rule apply to either a YES or NO vote in Part A in order to follow a uniform policy. If a voter fails to mark either Part A or B, no vote shall be tallied.

II. METHOD OF INFORMING THE PEOPLE ABOUT THE PROPOSED CHANGES IN THE HAWAII CONSTITUTION.

a. Your Committee feels that its obligations are to utilize the most effective means of encouraging the public to learn about the proposed changes to the Hawaii Constitution, to provide information fully and clearly, and to inspire a widespread commitment to vote on the issues. The theme of the public information program will be "Do Something Really Important." The program will emphasize the effect of the amendments on the future of the individual citizen and the importance of making thoughtful and reasoned choices.

b. Your Committee received proposals from a number of advertising and public relations firms; on the basis of the presentations and the cost figures, it selected the team of Steven Hirano, Jack Kellner and James Growney to prepare and implement the public information program.

c. The voter information program began on September 1 and will continue through election day, November 7, 1978. Because of the complexity of the Convention's proposals and their number, your Committee felt that more extensive information would be required for this Convention than in 1968. The following is an outline of the major activities in the voter education program:

NEWSLETTER

A newsletter containing general information on the workings of the Convention, its accomplishments and the need for full public participation in the process of rejecting or accepting the amendments will be sent to each registered voter household in the State. The major thrust will be the importance of making enlightened decisions on the proposals.

RADIO AND TELEVISION CAMPAIGN

Radio and television commercials will be placed statewide, including foreign-language programming. The ads will generate the attitude that the good citizen will assume the responsibility for making decisions that have an important impact on everyone. There will be 30-second spots on television and radio. The brevity of 30-second spots precludes effective explanation of issues; they will instead urge the voter to seek more detailed information which will be made available.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

The bulk of the newspaper campaign will reinforce the broadcasting campaign. The print ad will list the hotline telephone number and display the ballot and voting directions. It will also focus on the newspaper supplement, which will appear shortly before the election. The advertising will ensure that the voter will not be surprised by the materials presented at the polling place.

NEWSPAPER SUPPLEMENT

An 8-page supplement will be inserted in the Sunday newspaper of greatest circulation before the general election. The supplement will graphically describe the proposed amendments to the Constitution and their effect on the voters. The supplement will attempt to explain the ramifications of the proposals in clear language and assist the voter in forming an opinion on each issue. It will contain an explanation of voting procedures. The supplement, like all other informational materials distributed by your Committee, will not advance any particular delegate's role in the Convention, nor will the material advance a biased position on the issues.

SPEAKERS BUREAU

A speakers bureau, coordinated through your Committee, will serve organizations that wish informed persons to speak on constitutional issues. Delegates who are willing to participate will be provided with material and assistance. Your Committee feels that this personal contact with knowledgeable spokespersons is vital to the effort to promote interest and understanding among the public.

INFORMATION CENTER AND HOTLINE

The information center will be located in the old Federal Building and will be equipped with resources and staff to assist voters in specific matters or general research. It will contain a variety of appropriate materials. The hotline will answer questions or refer the caller to the proper informant. The center's location and the hotline number will be prominently displayed in the media.

NEIGHBOR ISLAND NEEDS

Special attention will be given to the requirements of the neighbor islands. Meetings with neighbor island delegates will be held to ascertain the special needs of each particular locale to assure that there is thorough and equal distribution of information.

OTHER PROGRAMS

There will be full utilization of all publicity and exposure opportunities. Public television has offered considerable public affairs programming devoted to convention issues. Additional commitments are being sought from commercial radio and television stations. In cooperation with the public affairs departments of radio and television stations, your Committee will provide materials for their use in public service announcements. The participation of the state department of education will be an integral part of the education process.

III. REPORT TO THE PEOPLE OUTLINING THE RESULTS OF THE CONVENTION'S WORK.

Your Committee feels that the program for public education described in Section II of this committee report will offer to the public a comprehensive body of information on the work of the Convention. Those aspects of the program which are specifically designed to report as directed are: the speakers bureau, the newsletter, the newspaper supplement, the information center and hotline, the educational television programming and much of the media advertising.

Accordingly, your Committee on Submission and Information recommends: (1) that Standing Committee Report No. 99 be adopted and (2) that the attached Resolution No. 30 be adopted.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates Chu, Kaapu and Kimball.

RESOLUTION NO. 30

RELATING TO PROVIDING FOR THE SUBMISSION TO THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF HAWAII OF THE AMENDMENTS PROPOSED BY THE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION OF HAWAII OF 1978.

WHEREAS, pursuant to Section 2 of Article XV of the Constitution of the State of Hawaii, the duly elected delegates of this Constitutional Convention of the State of Hawaii of 1978 have assembled at Honolulu from the 5th day of July, 1978 for the purpose of proposing amendments to the Constitution; and

WHEREAS, various amendments to the Constitution have been framed by this Constitutional Convention; and

WHEREAS, Section 2 of Article XV of the Constitution of the State of Hawaii requires that the proposed amendments to the Constitution be submitted to the people of the State in the form of the ballot attached hereto for ratification or rejection; now, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED by the Constitutional Convention of the State of Hawaii of 1978, that the proposed amendments to the Constitution be submitted to the people of the State of Hawaii in the form of the ballot attached hereto for ratification or rejection at the general election to be held on the 7th day of November, 1978. Persons possessing the qualifications to vote for representatives to the legislature of the State of Hawaii shall be entitled to vote on the ratification or rejection of said amendments. Such submission shall be by ballot and shall be conducted and the results thereof determined in conformity with Section 2, Article XV of the Constitution. The ballot for such submission shall be printed and distributed by the lieutenant governor of the State of Hawaii and shall be substantially in the form hereto attached; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the lieutenant governor is hereby requested, in the case of any conflicting votes on the same ballot, to recognize the specific vote over the general; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the returns of said submission shall be made by the election officers directly to the lieutenant governor, who shall certify the results of the submission to the governor; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the lieutenant governor is hereby requested to do whatever is necessary to have the proposed amendments properly submitted to the electorate.

AMENDMENTS 1-34 PROPOSED BY CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

1. 12 MEMBER JURY. (Article

If adopted, this amendment provides that:

- o a person can have a jury trial in a civil case where the amount in question is $1,000 or more rather than $100 or more as it now reads.
- o a person shall have a 12 member jury in a criminal jury trial.

2. INDEPENDENT GRAND JURY COUNSEL. (Article

If adopted, this amendment provides:

- o an independent lawyer to advise the grand jury.
- o a way to choose those lawyers, and requires that the legislature set their pay and how long they shall work.

3. RIGHT TO PRIVACY. (Article

If adopted, this amendment:

- o adds a new section on the right to privacy for people to do certain personal things, and controls the use of some personal information about themselves.
- o directs the legislature to carry out this section.

4. OPEN PRIMARY ELECTION. (Article

If adopted, this amendment:

- o allows a person to vote in any election without letting anyone know what party he or she prefers.
- o keeps each person's party preference a secret.

5. RESIGNATION OF CANDIDATES FROM PUBLIC OFFICE.

If adopted, this amendment:

- o makes any elected public officer who wants to run for another office quit before running for any other office if the terms of office are not the same.

6. ELECTIONS; PARTIAL PUBLIC FINANCING; SPENDING AND CONTRIBUTION LIMITS. (Article

If adopted, this amendment provides that the legislature shall:

- o create a campaign fund to pay part of the cost of state and local political campaigns for public office.
- o set a spending limit for all candidates.
- o limit the amount a person may give to any candidate or legal campaign group.

7. LEGISLATIVE TERMS, FUNCTIONS AND PROCEDURES. (Article

If adopted, this amendment:

- o requires the appointment of a legislative salary commission on November 30, 1978 and every 8 years from then on to set legislative salaries, which will go into effect for the following legislature unless the governor or the legislature disapproves.
- o makes the legislature set a deadline for all bills to be introduced and also requires a recess after the deadline of not less than 5 days between the 20th and 40th session day.
- o opens to the public all decision-making meetings of legislative committees.
- o increases the waiting period required between the time when the printed bill is distributed and its third or final reading from 24 hours to 48 hours.
- o staggers the terms of office for senators starting from the 1978 general election so that about half of the senators will be elected at each general election.
- o provides for placement of holdover senators and method of keeping the staggered terms for the senate upon reapportionment.

8. REAPPORTIONMENT PROCEDURES. (Article

If adopted, this amendment:

- o increases the time between reapportionments from 8 to 10 years beginning in 1981.
- o requires the reapportionment commission to also reapportion the United States congressional districts.
- o allows the commission 30 more days (from 120 to 150 days) in which to file its reapportionment plan.
- o provides for related changes.

9. EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS; TERM LIMITS. (Article

If adopted, this amendment:

- o puts units with similar purposes and functions in the same executive department.
- o limits the governor and lieutenant governor to two terms in a row beginning this year.

10. COURTS; JUDICIAL SELECTION; DISCIPLINE. (Article

If adopted, this amendment:

- o creates an intermediate court of appeals, and makes district courts a constitutional rather than legislative creation.
- o makes courts limit the time they have to finish their cases.
- o adds a judicial selection commission to recommend judges for the supreme court, court of appeals or circuit court which are then picked by the governor and approved by the senate, or judges for district courts which are picked by the chief justice of the supreme court.
- o removes minimum salaries for judges from the constitution and creates a salary commission.
- o gives the supreme court more power to discipline judges and starts a judicial discipline commission.
- o requires judges to be State of Hawaii residents of at least five years and citizens of the State and the United States who are licensed attorneys.

11. STATE SPENDING LIMIT; TAX REFUND. (Article

If adopted, this amendment:

- o limits the rate of growth of the State general fund expenditures to the estimated rate of growth of the State's economy and applies the limit to the governor's budget and legislative appropriations.
- o provides for a tax refund or tax credit to the State's taxpayers when the State's general fund balance in each of two successive fiscal years exceeds five percent of general fund revenues for each of the two years; prohibits the State from engaging in deficit spending unless the governor declares that the public health, safety or welfare is threatened.
- o provides that if the legislature mandates any county to undertake new programs or to increase the level of services under existing programs, the State will share in costs.
- o prohibits the granting of public funds or property except in accordance with standards prescribed by law.
- o provides for related changes.

12. DEBT LIMITATION; EXCLUSIONS. (Article

If adopted, this amendment:

- o limits the principal and interest on State debt to a percentage of general fund revenues.
- o requires the legislature to find that the debt limit will not be exceeded in authorizing bonds.

- o limits maturities on general obligation bonds to twenty-five years.
- o excludes certain bonds from the State and county debt limits.
- o provides for the automatic cancellation of State appropriations financed by general obligation bond funds or general funds if not encumbered or expended within three years.
- o provides for related changes.

13. SPECIAL PURPOSE REVENUE BONDS. (Article

If adopted, this amendment:

- o allows the legislature, by a two-thirds vote of each house, to pass enabling legislation to authorize issuance of special purpose revenue bonds if the issuance of such bonds is found to be in the public interest by the legislature.
- o allows the issuance of special purpose revenue bonds for manufacturing, processing or industrial enterprise, utilities serving the general public, health care facilities provided to the public by non-profit corporations, and low and moderate income government housing programs.
- o requires a second two-thirds vote of each house of the legislature before bonds can be issued for any project or program.
- o requires that State credit cannot be used directly or indirectly and State shall not be liable for repayment of bonds.
- o allows the legislature to authorize the counties to issue such bonds but requires a two-thirds vote of the county council before such bonds may be issued.
- o excludes such bonds from the State or county debt limits.

14. REVENUES; BUDGET; POST-AUDIT. (Article

If adopted, this amendment:

- o establishes a council on revenues to prepare State revenue estimates and requires the governor and legislature to consider such estimates in developing the State budget and making appropriations.
- o provides for direct submission by the judiciary of its budget to the legislature.
- o clarifies State auditor's duty to include post-audits of programs and performance of State agencies.

15. TAX REVIEW AND TAX CONFORMANCE. (Article

If adopted, this amendment:

- o requires the State to conserve and protect agricultural lands, promote diversified agriculture, increase agricultural self-sufficiency, and assure that agriculturally suitable lands will be available.
- o requires the State to identify which agricultural lands are needed to promote the future of agriculture.
- o requires that lands identified as important for agriculture shall not be used for any other purpose unless certain standards and criteria set by the legislature are met, and approved by a two-thirds vote of the governmental body which is to approve changes in the use of the land.
- o permits the State to acquire interests in real property in order to control development and land use; deems exercise of such power to be for a public use and purpose.

25. CONTROL OF MARINE RESOURCES. (Article

If adopted, this amendment:

- o gives the State the power to manage and control the ocean lands and waters which are located within the boundaries of the State.

- o reserves to the State the right to manage and control ocean lands and waters which are located outside the boundaries of the State as long as federal or international law does not prevent the State from doing so.
- o adds to the list of areas not open to the public those areas where a state-licensed mariculture operation is operating but requires the legislature to establish guidelines for mariculture operations to protect the public's use and enjoyment of the reefs.

26. RESTRICTIONS ON NUCLEAR ENERGY. (Article

If adopted, this amendment:

- o requires anyone wishing to construct a nuclear fission power plant or dispose of radioactive material to receive the approval of two-thirds of the members of each house.

27. DEPARTMENT OF HAWAIIAN HOME LANDS. (Article

If adopted, this amendment:

- o requires the State to fund the department of hawaiian home lands.
- o guarantees that traditional funding continue.
- o allows the department more flexibility.
- o provides for related changes.

- o clarifies the time when voters must be asked if they want to have another constitutional convention.
- o says that governmental writing must be in plain language.
- o lets the next constitutional convention start a month earlier, giving them 5 months before the general election instead of 4.

34. TECHNICAL AND STYLE CHANGES.

If adopted, this amendment:

- o changes the Constitution where the subject may now be unconstitutional or unnecessary under the Constitution of the United States.
- o changes style and language.
- o replaces words which sound like they apply to only men or women by words which apply to everyone.
- o makes small changes which are related to the main purposes of the other amendments.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 100

Your Committee on Style, to which was referred Committee Proposal No. 17, RD. 2, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal, which the Convention has adopted on second reading, covers Article X, Sections 1, 3 and 5; Article XVI, Section 13, and the addition of the following new sections to Article X: Conservation and Development of Resources, Public Land Banking, Agricultural Lands, Water Resources, Environmental Rights and Nuclear Energy.

The Convention has proposed amendments to Article X, Section 3, and the deletion of Article XVI, Section 13, and Article X, Sections 1 and 5, in their entirety.

Your Committee proposes several style changes which are indicated by brackets [for deletions] and underscoring for additions as shown in the committee proposal and report.

Your Committee considered the new Section 1 to Article X and proposes the following changes to the first paragraph:

"Section 1. For the benefit of present and future generations, the State and its political subdivisions shall conserve and protect Hawaii's natural beauty and all natural resources, including land, water, air, minerals[,] and energy sources[;], and shall promote the development and utilization of these resources in a manner consistent with their conservation and in furtherance of the self-sufficiency of the State."

The changes were made for the purposes of style and consistency.

Your Committee considered Section 3 of Article X, and proposes the following changes:

"Section 3. The State shall have the power to manage and control the marine, seabed and other resources located [inside] within the boundaries of the State, including the archipelagic waters of the State, and reserves to itself all such rights outside [State] state boundaries not specifically limited by federal or international law.

"All fisheries in the sea waters of the State not included in any fish pond, artificial enclosure[,] or state-licensed [mari-culture] mariculture operation shall be free to the public, subject to vested rights and the right of the State to regulate the same[,]; provided that [mari-culture] mariculture operations shall be established under guidelines enacted by the legislature, which shall protect the public's use and enjoyment of the reefs. The State may condemn such vested rights for public use."

The changes were made for grammatical purposes and for consistency.

Your Committee considered the new Section 5 added to Article X and proposes the following changes to the first paragraph:

"Section 5. The State shall conserve and protect agricultural lands, promote diversified agriculture, increase agricultural self-sufficiency[,] and assure the availability of agriculturally suitable lands. The legislature shall [enact laws that will set forth] provide standards and criteria [applicable] to accomplish the foregoing."

The changes in the first sentence were made for consistency; the changes in the second sentence were for purposes of clarity and meet with the approval of the chairperson of the Committee on Environment, Agriculture, Conservation and Land.

Your Committee considered the second paragraph in the new Section 5 and finds no changes are necessary.

Your Committee considered the new section, Public Land Banking, and proposes the following changes:

"The State shall have the power to acquire interests in real property to control future growth, development and land use within the State. The exercise of such power is deemed to be for a public use and purpose."

The change in the first sentence was made for consistency, and the change in the second sentence for clarity and meets with the approval of the chairperson of the Committee on Environment, Agriculture, Conservation and Land.

Your Committee considered the new section, Water Resources, and feels no changes are necessary to the first paragraph. Your Committee proposes the following changes to the second paragraph:

"The [Legislature] legislature shall provide for a water resources agency which shall[, in accordance with] set, as provided by law, [set] overall water conservation, quality and use policies; define beneficial and reasonable uses; protect ground and surface water resources, watersheds[,] and natural stream environments; establish criteria for water use priorities while assuring appurtenant rights and existing correlative and riparian uses[;] and establish procedures for regulating all uses of Hawaii's water resources."

The above changes were for the purposes of consistency and clarity.

Your Committee considered the new section, Environmental Rights, and proposes the following changes:

"Each person has the right to a clean and healthful environment, as defined by laws relating to environmental quality, including control of pollution [control] and [natural resources] conservation, protection[,] and enhancement[.] of natural resources. Any person may enforce this right against any party, public or private, through appropriate legal proceedings, subject to reasonable limitations and regulation as provided by law."

The above changes were made for the purposes of consistency and clarity and were agreed to by the chairperson of the Committee on Environment, Agriculture, Conservation and Land.

Your Committee considered the new section, Nuclear Energy, and proposes the following deletion of unnecessary words:

"No nuclear fission power plant shall be constructed or radioactive material disposed of in the State [of Hawaii] without the prior approval by a two-thirds vote in each house of the legislature."

The changes recommended are merely for the purposes of style and clarification and have no further implications.

Style Committee Recommendation

Your Committee on Style recommends the adoption of Standing Committee Report No. 100 and consideration of the passage of Committee Proposal No. 17, RD. 2, S. 1* on third reading.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates Burgess, Calvin Ching, Kimball, Ledward, Nozaki, Odanaka, Takehara, Takemoto and Yoshimura.

*For the complete text of the proposal, see Committee Proposal No. 17, page 828.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 101

Your Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing begs leave to report that Stand. Com. Rep. Nos. 102 through 106; Res. Nos. 26, RD. 1, 28, RD. 1, and 33 through 35; and Exhibits A and B have been printed and distributed.

Signed by Delegates Crozier, Vice-Chairperson; Hayashida, Vice-Chairperson; Hale and Lacy members.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 102

Your Committee on Taxation and Finance, to which was referred Resolution No. 26, relating to the deposit of state moneys among federally insured financial institutions, begs leave to report as follows:

All committee meetings were open to the public, and representatives of organizations and individual persons interested in the above-mentioned matter were invited to present their views at public hearings.

Your Committee recommends the adoption of Resolution No. 26. Your Committee has added clarifying language to the resolution indicating that state funds have been and should continue to be deposited with depositories, whether commercial banks or savings and loan institutions, which are able and willing to provide acceptable collateral for such deposits.

Testimony presented to your Committee showed the following:

1. The care and maintenance of public funds not currently needed to meet the State's obligations are significant concerns. As of June 30, 1977, $5 million of the State's public funds, or approximately 1.8 percent of such funds, was deposited in strict "demand deposit" accounts from which funds could be drawn at any time; the remaining $279 million of such public funds, or 98.2 percent of such funds, was invested in "time deposits" with maturity periods ranging from 30 days to 5 years.

2. As of June 30, 1977, only $900,000 of the State's funds, representing 0.3 percent of the total of public funds held in depositories, was deposited with savings and loan associations, and the remainder of the 99.7 percent of public funds was deposited in commercial banks.

3. The assets of commercial banks in the State as of June 30, 1977, totaled $3.4 billion, while the total assets of savings and loan associations in the State on that date equaled $2.4 billion.

4. The primary objective of the savings and loan industry in Hawaii is to provide financing for home mortgages. Such home mortgages have historically proven to be stable and reliable investments.

5. The savings and loan industry, which manages substantial sums of moneys, is a significant segment of the State's financial framework.

Chapter 38 of the Hawaii Revised Statutes, which relates to the deposit of public funds, requires that a depository holding public funds must furnish security for such deposit. The class of security offered is considered as the basis of selection. Residential mortgage loans insured or guaranteed by the United States may be used as security. Due regard is also given to depositories doing business in the State.

The director of finance, who is statutorily charged, with the approval of the governor, with the responsibility of depositing public funds in depositories, has pursued three main objectives in the management of public funds: (1) ensuring the safety and protection of state moneys, (2) ensuring the liquidity or availability of funds to meet state obligations as they become due, and (3) maximizing interest earned on state funds.

Your Committee believes that the present statutory provisions applicable to the deposit of state funds are basically sound. A constitutional amendment relating to the deposit of public funds in financial institutions is not necessary or desirable. However, it is the belief of your Committee that the current practices of the State with respect to the deposit of public funds are inequitable. Such inequitability appears to stem from a concern that federally insured home loan mortgages do not constitute sufficiently secure or liquid collateral.

But your Committee concluded that public funds should be distributed among financial institutions on a more equitable basis. In particular, if sufficiently secure and liquid security, which maximizes the State's returns, is furnished by savings and loan institutions, more public funds should be deposited with such institutions. Federally insured home loan mortgages, the principal asset of savings and loan institutions, also provide collateral which would adequately secure state funds deposited with such institutions. Depositing state funds with savings and loan institutions has the additional benefit of keeping funds in the State, which may then be made available for the financing and construction of homes in Hawaii. Such deposits would have a favorable multiplier effect on the State's economy.

Your Committee recommends that the State actively pursue means by which equitable distribution of public funds among financial institutions may be accomplished within a reasonable period of time.

Your Committee on Taxation and Finance recommends that Resolution No. 26, RD. 1, be adopted.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates DiBianco, Kaapu and Shinno.

RESOLUTION NO. 26, RD. 1

RELATING TO THE CARE AND MAINTENANCE OF STATE MONEYS.

WHEREAS, the care and maintenance of State moneys are of great concern, and substantial sums of public funds are held in depositories until needed to pay for the State's obligations; and

WHEREAS, the assets of commercial banks in the State totalled $3.4 billion as of June 30, 1977; and the total assets of savings and loan institutions in the State equalled $2.4 billion on that same date; and

WHEREAS, as of June 30, 1977, only $900,000 of the State's funds, representing 0.3 percent of the total of public funds held in depositories, was deposited with savings and loan associations, and the remainder, 99.7 percent of public funds, was deposited in commercial banks, which were able and willing to provide acceptable collateral; and

WHEREAS, the State Director of Finance is responsible, with the approval of the Governor, for the deposit of public funds; and the Director of Finance is required to comply with laws relating to such funds and to develop policies related thereto; and

WHEREAS, depositories holding public funds are required to furnish collateral for such deposits; and federally insured residential mortgage loans are one type of such collateral; and

WHEREAS, the savings and loan industry is a significant segment of the State's financial framework; and

WHEREAS, the primary objective of the savings and loan industry is to provide financing for the purchase and construction of homes in the State; and

WHEREAS, federally insured home loan mortgages constitute the principal asset of savings and loan associations, and such mortgages are secure and stable investments; and

WHEREAS, the Constitution of the State of Hawaii addresses many diverse aspects of the State's financial structure, including taxes, the budget, and audit and expenditure controls; and

WHEREAS, the subject of the care and maintenance of public funds is not addressed in the Constitution of the State of Hawaii; now, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED that public funds should be distributed on a more equitable basis among the State's financial institutions, provided that such deposits are secured with approved collateral; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Director of Finance should examine the State's collateralization requirements for the deposit of public funds to allow more public funds to be deposited with savings and loan institutions, which are able and willing to provide acceptable collateral for such deposits; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the State, and in particular the Director of Finance, should actively pursue means to equitably distribute public funds among the financial institutions of the State, including savings and loan associations, within a reasonable period of time; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that duly authenticated copies of this Resolution be transmitted to the Governor of the State of Hawaii, the members of the State Legislature, and the State Director of Finance.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 103

Your Committee on Style to which was referred Resolution No. 29, entitled: "REQUESTING THE REVISOR OF STATUTES TO EFFECT NECESSARY REARRANGEMENT, RE-NUMBERING AND TECHNICAL CHANGES OF SECTIONS AND ARTICLES WITHIN THE CONSTITUTION AS MAY BE NECESSARY AFTER THE NOVEMBER ELECTIONS," begs leave to report as follows:

The purpose of Resolution No. 29 is to request the revisor of statutes to make any changes necessary to the Constitution as amended by the Constitutional Convention of 1978 if one or some of the proposals are rejected by the people of the State at the November elections.

Your Committee on Style notes that the Convention and the staff of the Convention will not be available after the Convention adjourns and if all of the amendments submitted to the voters are not ratified, those amendments which fail must be deleted from the Constitution prepared by the Convention. The revisor of statutes has the necessary expertise to perform this function, and in fact did so in 1968.

Your Committee on Style concurs with Resolution No. 29 and recommends its adoption.

Signed by all members of the Committee.

RESOLUTION NO. 29

REQUESTING THE REVISOR OF STATUTES TO EFFECT NECESSARY REARRANGEMENT, RENUMBERING AND TECHNICAL CHANGES OF SECTIONS AND ARTICLES WITHIN THE CONSTITUTION AS MAY BE NECESSARY AFTER THE NOVEMBER ELECTIONS.

WHEREAS, various amendments to the State Constitution have been framed by the Constitutional Convention of Hawaii of 1978 for submission to the electorate for ratification or rejection; and

WHEREAS, in the exercise of the electorate's freedom to ratify or reject the several proposals, one or some of the proposals may be rejected by the people of this State; and

WHEREAS, such ratification of some and rejection of others may require rearrangement, renumbering and technical changes of the amendments ratified and parts of the State Constitution affected by such ratification or rejection when the Constitutional Convention is not in session; now, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED by the Constitutional Convention of Hawaii of 1978, that the Revisor of Statutes of Hawaii is respectfully requested by the Constitutional Convention of Hawaii of 1978 to effect such necessary rearrangement, renumbering and technical changes of the sections within the articles of the State Constitution, as may be affected, for proper form and arrangement and proper order in the State Constitution in the event that any or some of the amendments to the State Constitution proposed by the Constitutional Convention of Hawaii of 1978 are not ratified by the electorate; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a duly authenticated copy of this Resolution be transmitted to the Revisor of Statutes.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 104

Your Committee on Style, to which were referred all committee proposals to amend the Constitution upon their adoption on third reading, begs leave to report as follows:

Your Committee has examined the proposals for proper form and for arrangement in proper order in the Constitution. In addition, pursuant to Res. No. 22, requesting the Committee on Style to consider all portions of the Constitution as to phraseology, your Committee on Style has examined all portions of the Constitution not otherwise referred to it by committee proposal.

Your Committee submits herewith the final style and technical changes of all proposed amendments as set forth in Exhibits A (attached hereto) and B and made part of this report. Exhibit A sets forth the Constitution as it will appear if all proposals, style and technical changes are ratified. Exhibit B sets forth all substantive, style and technical changes with old material [in brackets] and new material underscored.

In making style and technical changes to the committee proposals and the other portions of the Constitution, certain style rules were adopted by your Committee which are set forth below.

1. Generally, commas before a conjunction have been deleted, except where necessary for clarity or emphasis.
2. The word "State" has been capitalized only when it appears as a noun or a possessive adjective.
3. The word "said" has been deleted and "such" inserted, or a more definite reference such as the words "this" or "that."
4. When referring to a specific act, such as the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, the word "Act" has been capitalized; otherwise that word is set forth in lower-case lettering.
5. Generally, words have been capitalized sparingly.
6. References in sections to other sections within the same article have been kept in lower case, as in "section 7 of this article." References to sections of other articles have, however, been capitalized as in "Section 7 of Article III."
7. The phrase "as provided by law" has been substituted throughout for the phrases "in accordance with law," "as prescribed by law" and the like.
8. Nondiscriminatory nouns, pronouns and adjectives have been used throughout by substituting the antecedent noun for the pronoun "his," by the use of "chairperson" instead of "chairman" and similar changes.
9. Punctuation marks have been placed within quotation marks.

Your Committee has also made changes in punctuation and grammar to correct errors that were overlooked previously but are now recommended for correction. Your Committee has also corrected typographical errors.

In order to achieve arrangement of the proposed amendments in proper order in the Constitution, your Committee has effected several changes in arrangement of unamended sections as well as amended sections within an article, as well as rearranging the articles within the Constitution. These changes have been made under the authority granted to the Committee on Style by the Convention under Rule 18(b).

It is the judgment of your Committee that none of the changes made by your Committee affect the substance of the proposed amendments or of the Constitution. The placement of the new proposals and the changes in the placement of the unamended sections have been made on the assumption that the people of Hawaii will ratify all the proposed amendments to the Constitution.

Your Committee recommends the following style and technical changes:

PREAMBLE

Your Committee recommends no change to this provision.

Section 8. The new section "Nuclear Energy" has been numbered section 8 of this article.

Section 9. The new section "Environmental Rights" has been numbered section 9 of this article.

ARTICLE XII

HAWAIIAN AFFAIRS

The present Article XI has been renumbered Article XII.

Section 1. The "(A)" and "(B)" have been deleted. The comma after the word "legislature" in the third sentence of the first paragraph has been deleted. The reference to "1(B)" in the second sentence of the second paragraph has been deleted.

Section 2. The title of the present section 2 has been changed to "Acceptance of Compact [with the United States]" and the capitalization of the word "section" and the word "act" the second time that word appears in the first sentence has been changed to lower case.

Section 3. The title of the present section 3 has been changed to "[Amendment and Repeal] Compact Adoption; Procedures after Adoption." The capitalization of the words "constitution," "section" and "state" have been changed to lower case throughout the section. The word "said" has been changed to "this" or "such" as most appropriate. The second sentence which begins with the words "Provided, That" has been made a part of the first sentence by deleting those words and the period and inserting "; provided that" to more clearly identify that part of the section as a proviso to the first part. Commas have been inserted after "subsection (b)" and deleted after "Hawaiian home-operating fund." Finally, "land" has been changed to "lands."

Section 4. The new section 4 "Public Trust" has been changed by changing the reference to Article XIV, Section 8, to a reference to Article XVI, Section 7, to reflect the renumbering of articles and sections, and a comma has been inserted after the number 7.

Section 8. The new section "Traditional and Customary Rights" originally placed in Article XVI has been moved to this article and numbered section 8.

The sections of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act of 1920, as amended, as further amended by the 1978 Constitutional Convention as provisions of the State Constitution pursuant to this article, have been set forth at the end of this article for display purposes. They have been set forth in full for readability.

Section 212. The reference in the third sentence to the "board of Hawaiian home lands" has been changed to the "board of land and natural resources."

Section 213. Commas and semicolons before conjunctions in a series of three or more items have been deleted throughout. In subsection (a) (1) the comma has been moved inside the quotation marks around the words "additional receipts." In subsection (b) (8) the reference to "Article XI, section 1(B)" has been changed to "Article XII, section 1" to reflect numbering changes. Further, in that same subsection a comma has been inserted after the words "state receipts."

Section 221. Subsection (c) has been changed by deleting "667 to 668, inclusive, of the Revised Laws of Hawaii 1915 [Hawaii Revised Statutes sections]," by deleting the bracket after "101-34," and by inserting after "101-34" the words "Hawaii Revised Statutes" set off by commas. Subsection (e) has been changed by deleting the comma after the words "contract for" the second time they appear.

ARTICLE XIII

ORGANIZATION; COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

Section 11. The present section 12 of this article, renumbered earlier as section 10, has been changed by substituting the word "such" for the word "said" and by making the following change, "act or resolution which preserve [for the State] judicial rights and powers for the State are hereby accepted."

Section 12. The new section "Quieting Title" originally to be placed in Article I has instead been numbered section 12 of this article.

Section 13. The new section "Plain Language" originally to be placed as section 16 of this article has been numbered section 13 of this article.

Sections 14, 15 and 16 are the renumbered sections 13, 14 and 15 of this article in the present constitution. They had earlier been renumbered as sections 12, 13 and 14 of this article, but the placement of two new sections in this article required their further renumbering. The title of section 16 has been changed as follows: "Provisions Are Self-Executing."

ARTICLE XVII

REVISION AND AMENDMENT

The present Article XV has been renumbered Article XVII.

Section 2. The third paragraph has been changed by substituting a reference to Article XVI for Article XIV to reflect the renumbering of articles.

Section 3. The capitalization of the word "section" in the last paragraph has been changed to lower case.

ARTICLE XVIII

SCHEDULE

The present Article XVI has been renumbered Article XVIII.

Section 3. The present section 7 has been renumbered section 3. The reference in the section to Article III, Section 10, has been changed to Article III, Section 9, to reflect renumbering of the sections in that article.

Section 4. The new section "Effective Date for Term Limitations for Governor and Lieutenant Governor" has been numbered section 4 of this article. The reference in the section to Article IV has been changed to Article V to reflect renumbering of the articles.

Section 5. The new section "Judiciary: Transition; Effective Date" has been numbered section 5 of this article. The references in the section to Article V have been changed to Article VI to reflect renumbering of the articles.

Section 6. The new section, the title of which has been changed to "Effective Date and Application of [Article VII, Section 3] Real Property Tax Transfer" numbered section 6 of this article. The references to Article VII have been changed to Article VIII to reflect renumbering of the articles. A comma has been inserted between the words "amendment and" in the second sentence. A new paragraph has been formed in the section starting with the fourth sentence. The phrase in the proviso in the fourth sentence "or the additions of new and further exemptions or dedications of lands" has been set off with commas.

Section 7. The new section "1978 Board of Education Elections" has been numbered section 7 of this article.

Section 8. The new section "Effective Date for Office of Hawaiian Affairs" has been numbered section 8 of this article. References to Article XI have been changed to Article XII to reflect renumbering of articles.

Section 9. The present section 9 "Effective Date and Application of Article VII, Section 2" has been deleted as having been carried out and having no further effect. The present section 10 has been renumbered section 9 of this article.

Section 10. The present section 11 of this article has been renumbered section 10.

Section 11. The present section 12 of this article has been renumbered section 11.

Your Committee recommends (1) agreement upon the final form of the proposed amendments to the Constitution as set forth in Exhibit A and Exhibit B; (2) for such event that any or some of the proposed amendments are not ratified, that the Convention request of the Revisor of Statutes of Hawaii to make such necessary rearrangement, renumbering and technical changes of the sections and articles of the Constitution as may be affected for proper form and arrangement in proper order in the Constitution; and (3) adoption of Standing Committee Report No. 104.

Exhibit A of the Constitution of the State of Hawaii follows.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates Burgess, Odanaka and Takemoto.

THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF HAWAII

PREAMBLE

We, the people of Hawaii, grateful for Divine Guidance, and mindful of our Hawaiian heritage and uniqueness as an island State, dedicate our efforts to fulfill the philosophy decreed by the Hawaii State motto, "Ua mau ke ea o ka aina i ka pono."

We reserve the right to control our destiny, to nurture the integrity of our people and culture, and to preserve the quality of life that we desire.

We reaffirm our belief in a government of the people, by the people and for the people, and with an understanding and compassionate heart toward all the peoples of the earth, do hereby ordain and establish this constitution for the State of Hawaii.

FEDERAL CONSTITUTION ADOPTED

The Constitution of the United States of America is adopted on behalf of the people of the State of Hawaii.

ARTICLE I

BILL OF RIGHTS

POLITICAL POWER

Section 1. All political power of this State is inherent in the people and the responsibility for the exercise thereof rests with the people. All government is founded on this authority.

RIGHTS OF INDIVIDUALS

Section 2. All persons are free by nature and are equal in their inherent and inalienable rights. Among these rights are the enjoyment of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and the acquiring and possessing of property. These rights cannot endure unless the people recognize their corresponding obligations and responsibilities.

EQUALITY OF RIGHTS

Section 3. Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the State on account of sex. The legislature shall have the power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this section.

FREEDOM OF RELIGION, SPEECH, PRESS, ASSEMBLY AND PETITION

Section 4. No law shall be enacted respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

DUE PROCESS AND EQUAL PROTECTION

Section 5. No person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor be denied the equal protection of the laws, nor be denied the enjoyment of the person's civil rights or be discriminated against in the exercise thereof because of race, religion, sex or ancestry.

RIGHT TO PRIVACY

Section 6. The right of the people to privacy is recognized and shall not be infringed without the showing of a compelling state interest. The legislature shall take affirmative steps to implement this right.

SEARCHES, SEIZURES AND INVASION OF PRIVACY

Section 7. The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches, seizures and invasions of privacy shall not be violated; and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched and the persons or things to be seized or the communications sought to be intercepted.

RIGHTS OF CITIZENS

Section 8. No citizen shall be disfranchised, or deprived of any of the rights or privileges secured to other citizens, unless by the law of the land.

ENLISTMENT; SEGREGATION

Section 9. No citizen shall be denied enlistment in any military organization of this State nor be segregated therein because of race, religious principles or ancestry.

INDICTMENT; DOUBLE JEOPARDY; SELF-INCRIMINATION

Section 10. No person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the armed forces when in actual service in time of war or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy; nor shall any person be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against oneself.

GRAND JURY COUNSEL

Section 11. Whenever a grand jury is impaneled, there shall be an independent counsel appointed as provided by law to advise the members of the grand jury regarding matters brought before it. Independent counsel shall be selected from among those persons licensed to practice law by the supreme court of the State and shall not be a public employee. The term and compensation for independent counsel shall be as provided by law.

BAIL; EXCESSIVE PUNISHMENT

Section 12. Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel or unusual punishment inflicted. The court may dispense with bail if reasonably satisfied that the defendant or witness will appear when directed, except for a defendant charged with an offense punishable by life imprisonment.

TRIAL BY JURY, CIVIL CASES

Section 13. In suits at common law where the value in controversy shall exceed one thousand dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved. The legislature may provide for a verdict by not less than three-fourths of the members of the jury.

RIGHTS OF ACCUSED

Section 14. In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury of the district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, or of such other district to which the prosecution may be removed with the consent of the accused; to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against the accused; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in the accused's favor; and to have the assistance of counsel for the accused's defense. Juries, where the crime charged is serious, shall consist of twelve persons. The State shall provide counsel for an indigent defendant charged with an offense punishable by imprisonment.

HABEAS CORPUS AND SUSPENSION OF LAWS

Section 15. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended unless, when in cases of rebellion or invasion, the public safety may require it.

The power of suspending the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, and the laws or the execution thereof, shall never be exercised except by the legislature, or by authority derived from it to be exercised in such particular cases only as the legislature shall expressly prescribe.

SUPREMACY OF CIVIL POWER

Section 16. The military shall be held in strict subordination to the civil power.

RIGHT TO BEAR ARMS

Section 17. A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

QUARTERING OF SOLDIERS

Section 18. No soldier or member of the militia shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house, without the consent of the owner or occupant, nor in time of war, except in a manner provided by law.

IMPRISONMENT FOR DEBT

Section 19. There shall be no imprisonment for debt.

EMINENT DOMAIN

Section 20. Private property shall not be taken or damaged for public use without just compensation.

LIMITATIONS OF SPECIAL PRIVILEGES

Section 21. The power of the State to act in the general welfare shall never be impaired by the making of any irrevocable grant of special privileges or immunities.

CONSTRUCTION

Section 22. The enumeration of rights and privileges shall not be construed to impair or deny others retained by the people.

ARTICLE II

SUFFRAGE AND ELECTIONS

QUALIFICATIONS

Section 1. Every citizen of the United States who shall have attained the age of eighteen years, have been a resident of this State not less than one year next preceding the election and be a voter registered as provided by law, shall be qualified to vote in any state or local election.

DISQUALIFICATION

Section 2. No person who is non compos mentis shall be qualified to vote. No person convicted of a felony shall be qualified to vote except upon the person's final discharge or earlier as provided by law.

RESIDENCE

Section 3. No person shall be deemed to have gained or lost residence simply because of the person's presence or absence while employed in the service of the United States, or while engaged in navigation or while a student at any institution of learning.

REGISTRATION; VOTING

Section 4. The legislature shall provide for the registration of voters and for absentee voting and shall prescribe the method of voting at all elections. Secrecy of voting shall be preserved; provided that no person shall be required to declare a party preference or nonpartisanship as a condition of voting in any primary or special primary election. Secrecy of voting and choice of political party affiliation or nonpartisanship shall be preserved.

CAMPAIGN FUND, SPENDING LIMIT

Section 5. The legislature shall establish a campaign fund to be used for partial public financing of campaigns for public offices of the State and its political subdivisions, as provided by law. The legislature shall provide a limit on the campaign spending of candidates.

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS LIMITS

Section 6. Limitations on campaign contributions to any political candidate, or authorized political campaign organization for such candidate, for any elective office within the State shall be provided by law.

RESIGNATION FROM PUBLIC OFFICE

Section 7. Any elected public officer shall resign from that office before being eligible as a candidate for another public office, if the term of the office sought begins before the end of the term of the office held.

GENERAL, SPECIAL AND PRIMARY ELECTIONS

Section 8. General elections shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November in all even-numbered years. Special and primary elections may be held as provided by law; provided that in no case shall any primary election precede a general election by less than forty-five days.

PRESIDENTIAL PREFERENCE PRIMARY

Section 9. A presidential preference primary may be held as provided by law.

CONTESTED ELECTIONS

Section 10. Contested elections shall be determined by a court of competent jurisdiction in such manner as shall be provided by law.

ARTICLE III

THE LEGISLATURE

LEGISLATIVE POWER

Section 1. The legislative power of the State shall be vested in a legislature, which shall consist of two houses, a senate and a house of representatives. Such power shall extend to all rightful subjects of legislation not inconsistent with this constitution or the Constitution of the United States.

COMPOSITION OF SENATE

Section 2. The senate shall be composed of twenty-five members, who shall be elected by the qualified voters of the respective senatorial districts. The senatorial districts and the number of senators to be elected from each shall be as set forth in the reapportionment plan as established by the reapportionment commission.

COMPOSITION OF HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Section 3. The house of representatives shall be composed of fifty-one members, who shall be elected by the qualified voters of the respective representative districts. The representative districts and the number of representatives to be elected from each shall be as set forth in the reapportionment plan as established by the reapportionment commission.

ELECTION OF MEMBERS; TERM

Section 4. The members of the legislature shall be elected at general elections. The term of office of members of the house of representatives shall be two years beginning with their election and ending on the day of the next general election, and the term of office of members of the senate shall be four years beginning with their election and ending on the day of the second general election after their election.

VACANCIES

Section 5. Any vacancy in the legislature shall be filled for the unexpired term in such manner as may be provided by law, or, if no provision be made by law, by appointment by the governor for the unexpired term.

QUALIFICATIONS OF MEMBERS

Section 6. No person shall be eligible to serve as a member of the senate unless the person shall have been a resident of the State for not less than three years, have attained the age of majority and be a qualified voter of the senatorial district from which the person seeks to be elected. No person shall be eligible to serve as a member of the house of representatives unless the person shall have been a resident of the State for not less than three years, have attained the age of majority and be a qualified voter of the representative district from which the person seeks to be elected.

PRIVILEGES OF MEMBERS

Section 7. No member of the legislature shall be held to answer before any other tribunal for any statement made or action taken in the exercise of the member's legislative functions; and members of the legislature shall, in all cases except felony or breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the sessions of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same.

DISQUALIFICATIONS OF MEMBERS

Section 8. No member of the legislature shall hold any other public office under the State, nor shall the member, during the term for which the member is elected or appointed, be elected or appointed to any public office or employment which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased, by legislative act during such term. The term "public office," for the purposes of this section, shall not include notaries public, reserve police officers or officers of emergency organizations for civilian defense or disaster relief. The legislature may prescribe further disqualifications.

SALARY; ALLOWANCES; COMMISSION ON LEGISLATIVE SALARY

Section 9. The members of the legislature shall receive allowances reasonably related to expenses as provided by law, and a salary prescribed pursuant to this section.

There shall be a commission on legislative salary, which shall be appointed by the governor on or before November 30, 1978, and every eight years thereafter. Not later than the fortieth legislative day of the 1979 regular legislative session and every eight years thereafter, the commission shall submit to the legislature and the governor recommendations for a salary plan for members of the legislature, and then dissolve. The salary plan submitted shall become effective as provided in the plan unless the legislature disapproves the plan by adoption of a concurrent resolution prior to adjournment sine die of the legislative session in which the plan is submitted or the governor disapproves the plan by a message of disapproval transmitted to the legislature prior to such adjournment. Any change in salary which becomes effective shall not apply to the legislature to which the recommendation for the change in salary was submitted.

SESSIONS

Section 10. The legislature shall convene annually in regular session at 10:00 o'clock a.m. on the third Wednesday in January.

At the written request of two-thirds of the members to which each house is entitled, the presiding officers of both houses shall convene the legislature in special session. The governor may convene both houses or the senate alone in special session.

Regular sessions shall be limited to a period of sixty days, and special sessions shall be limited to a period of thirty days. Any session may be extended a total of not more than fifteen days. Such extension shall be granted by the presiding officers of both houses at the written request of two-thirds of the members to which each house is entitled or may be granted by the governor.

Each regular session shall be recessed for not less than five days at some period between the twentieth and fortieth days of the regular session. The legislature shall determine the dates of the mandatory recess by concurrent resolution. Any session may be recessed by concurrent resolution adopted by a majority of the members to which each house is entitled. Saturdays, Sundays, holidays, the days in mandatory recess and any days in recess pursuant to a concurrent resolution shall be excluded in computing the number of days of any session.

All sessions shall be held in the capital of the State. In case the capital shall be unsafe, the governor may direct that any session be held at some other place.

ADJOURNMENT

Section 11. Neither house shall adjourn during any session of the legislature for more than three days, or sine die, without the consent of the other.

ORGANIZATION; DISCIPLINE; RULES; PROCEDURE

Section 12. Each house shall be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members and shall have, for misconduct, disorderly behavior or neglect of duty of any member, power to punish such member by censure or, upon a two-thirds vote of all the members to which such house is entitled, by suspension or expulsion of such member. Each house shall choose its own officers, determine the rules of its proceedings and keep a journal. The ayes and noes of the members on any question shall, at the desire of one-fifth of the members present, be entered upon the journal.

Twenty days after a bill has been referred to a committee in either house, the bill may be recalled from such committee by the affirmative vote of one-third of the members to which such house is entitled.

Every meeting of a committee in either house or of a committee comprised of a member or members from both houses held for the purpose of making decision on matters referred to the committee shall be open to the public.

By rule of its proceedings, applicable to both houses, each house shall provide for the date by which all bills to be considered in a regular session shall be introduced. This date shall be after the nineteenth day of the session and shall precede the commencement of the mandatory recess of not less than five days as provided in section 10 of this article.

QUORUM; COMPULSORY ATTENDANCE

Section 13. A majority of the number of members to which each house is entitled shall constitute a quorum of such house for the conduct of ordinary business, of which quorum a majority vote shall suffice; but the final passage of a bill in each house shall require the vote of a majority of all the members to which such house is entitled, taken by ayes and noes and entered upon its journal. A smaller number than a quorum may adjourn from day to day and may compel the attendance of absent members in such manner and under such penalties as each house may provide.

BILLS; ENACTMENT

Section 14. No law shall be passed except by bill. Each law shall embrace but one subject, which shall be expressed in its title. The enacting clause of each law shall be, "Be it enacted by the legislature of the State of Hawaii."

PASSAGE OF BILLS

Section 15. No bill shall become law unless it shall pass three readings in each house on separate days. No bill shall pass third or final reading in either house unless printed copies of the bill in the form to be passed shall have been made available to the members of that house for at least forty-eight hours.

Every bill when passed by the house in which it originated, or in which amendments thereto shall have originated, shall immediately be certified by the presiding officer and clerk and sent to the other house for consideration.

Any bill pending at the final adjournment of a regular session in an odd-numbered year shall carry over with the same status to the next regular session. Before the carried-over bill is enacted, it shall pass at least one reading in the house in which the bill originated.

APPROVAL OR VETO

Section 16. Every bill which shall have passed the legislature shall be certified by the presiding officers and clerks of both houses and shall thereupon be presented to the governor. If the governor approves it, the governor shall sign it and it shall become law. If the governor does not approve such bill, the governor may return it, with the governor's objections to the legislature. Except for items appropriated to be expended by the judicial and legislative branches, the governor may veto any specific item or items in any bill which appropriates money for specific purposes by striking out or reducing the same; but the governor shall veto other bills, if at all, only as a whole.

The governor shall have ten days to consider bills presented to the governor ten or more days before the adjournment of the legislature sine die, and if any such bill is neither signed nor returned by the governor within that time, it shall become law in like manner as if the governor had signed it.

RECONSIDERATION AFTER ADJOURNMENT

The governor shall have forty-five days, after the adjournment of the legislature sine die, to consider bills presented to the governor less than ten days before such adjournment, or presented after adjournment, and any such bill shall become law on the forty-fifth day unless the governor by proclamation shall have given ten days' notice to the legislature that the governor plans to return such bill with the governor's objections on that day. The legislature may convene at or before noon on the forty-fifth day in special session, without call, for the sole purpose of acting upon any such bill returned by the governor. In case the legislature shall fail to so convene, such bill shall not become law. Any such bill may be amended to meet the governor's objections and, if so amended and passed, only one reading being required in each house for such passage, it shall be presented again to the governor, but shall become law only if the governor shall sign it within ten days after presentation.

In computing the number of days designated in this section, the following days shall be excluded: Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and any days in which the legislature is in recess prior to its adjournment as provided in section 10 of this article.

PROCEDURES UPON VETO

Section 17. Upon the receipt of a veto message from the governor, each house shall enter the same at large upon its journal and proceed to reconsider the vetoed bill, or the item or items vetoed, and again vote upon such bill, or such item or items, by ayes and noes, which shall be entered upon its journal. If after such reconsideration such bill, or such item or items, shall be approved by a two-thirds vote of all members to which each house is entitled, the same shall become law.

PUNISHMENT OF NONMEMBERS

Section 18. Each house may punish by fine, or by imprisonment not exceeding thirty days, any person not a member of either house who shall be guilty of disrespect of such house by any disorderly or contemptuous behavior in its presence or that of any committee thereof; or who shall, on account of the exercise of any legislative function, threaten harm to the body or estate of any of the members of such house; or who shall assault, arrest or detain any witness or other person ordered to attend such house, on the witness' or other person's way going to or returning therefrom; or who shall rescue any person arrested by order of such house.

Any person charged with such an offense shall be informed in writing of the charge made against the person and have opportunity to present evidence and be heard in the person's own defense.

IMPEACHMENT

Section 19. The governor and lieutenant governor, and any appointive officer for whose removal the consent of the senate is required, may be removed from office upon conviction of impeachment for such causes as may be provided by law.

The house of representatives shall have the sole power of impeachment of the governor and lieutenant governor and the senate the sole power to try such impeachments, and no such officer shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members of the senate. When sitting for that purpose, the members of the senate shall be on oath or affirmation and the chief justice shall preside. Subject to the provisions of this paragraph, the legislature may provide for the manner and procedure of removal by impeachment of such officers.

The legislature shall by law provide for the manner and procedure of removal by impeachment of the appointive officers.

Judgments in cases of impeachment shall not extend beyond removal from office and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust or profit under the State; but the person convicted may nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment as provided by law.

ARTICLE IV

REAPPORTIONMENT

REAPPORTIONMENT YEARS

Section 1. The year 1973, the year 1981, and every tenth year thereafter shall be reapportionment years.

REAPPORTIONMENT COMMISSION

Section 2. A reapportionment commission shall be constituted on or before March 1 of each reapportionment year and whenever reapportionment is required by court order. The commission shall consist of nine members. The president of the senate and the speaker of the house of representatives shall each select two members. Members of each house belonging to the party or parties different from that of the president or the speaker shall designate one of their number for each house and the two so designated shall each select two members of the commission. The eight members so selected shall, promptly after selection, be certified by the selecting authorities to the chief election officer and shall within thirty days thereafter select, by a vote of six members, and promptly certify to the chief election officer the ninth member who shall serve as chairperson of the commission.

Each of the four officials designated above as selecting authorities for the eight members of the commission shall, at the time of the commission selections, also select one person from each basic island unit to serve on an apportionment advisory council for that island unit. The councils shall remain in existence during the life of the commission and each shall serve in an advisory capacity to the commission for matters affecting its island unit.

A vacancy in the commission or a council shall be filled by the initial selecting authority within fifteen days after the vacancy occurs. Commission and council positions and vacancies not filled within the times specified shall be filled promptly thereafter by the supreme court.

The commission shall act by majority vote of its membership and shall establish its own procedures, except as may be provided by law.

Not more than one hundred fifty days from the date on which its members are certified, the commission shall file with the chief election officer a reapportionment plan for the state legislature and a reapportionment plan for the United States congressional districts which shall become law after publication as provided by law. Members of the commission shall hold office until each reapportionment plan becomes effective or until such time as may be provided by law.

No member of the reapportionment commission or an apportionment advisory council shall be eligible to become a candidate for election to either house of the legislature or to the United States House of Representatives in either of the first two elections under any such reapportionment plan.

Commission and apportionment advisory council members shall be compensated and reimbursed for their necessary expenses as provided by law.

The chief election officer shall be secretary of the commission without vote and, under the direction of the commission, shall furnish all necessary technical services. The legislature shall appropriate funds to enable the commission to carry out its duties.

CHIEF ELECTION OFFICER

Section 3. The legislature shall provide for a chief election officer of the State, whose responsibilities shall be as provided by law and shall include the supervision of state elections, the maximization of registration of eligible voters throughout the State and the maintenance of data concerning registered voters, elections, apportionment and districting.

APPORTIONMENT AMONG BASIC ISLAND UNITS

Section 4. The commission shall allocate the total number of members of each house of the state legislature being reapportioned among the four basic island units, namely: (1) the island of Hawaii, (2) the islands of Maui, Lanai, Molokai and Kahoolawe, (3) the island of Oahu and all other islands not specifically enumerated, and (4) the islands of Kauai and Niihau, on the basis of the number of voters registered in the last preceding general election in each of the basic island units and computed by the method known as the method of equal proportions; except that no basic island unit shall receive less than one member in each house.

APPORTIONMENT WITHIN BASIC ISLAND UNITS

Section 5. Upon the determination of the total number of members of each house of the state legislature to which each basic island unit is entitled, the commission shall apportion the members among the districts therein and shall redraw district lines where necessary in such manner that for each house the average number of registered voters per member in each district is as nearly equal to the average for the basic island unit as practicable.

In effecting such redistricting, the commission shall be guided by the following criteria:

1. No district shall extend beyond the boundaries of any basic island unit.
2. No district shall be so drawn as to unduly favor a person or political faction.
3. Except in the case of districts encompassing more than one island, districts shall be contiguous.
4. Insofar as practicable, districts shall be compact.

5. Where possible, district lines shall follow permanent and easily recognized features, such as streets, streams and clear geographical features, and, when practicable, shall coincide with census tract boundaries.

6. Where practicable, representative districts shall be wholly included within senatorial districts.

7. Not more than four members shall be elected from any district.

8. Where practicable, submergence of an area in a larger district wherein substantially different socio-economic interests predominate shall be avoided.

9. No consideration shall be given to holdover senators in effecting redistricting.

PLACEMENT OF HOLDOVER SENATORS

Section 6. If a senator is serving a term which will extend past the general election at which an apportionment plan becomes effective, the reapportionment commission shall designate in the plan the senatorial district the senator shall represent for the remaining period of the senator's term. In making such designation, the senator need not live in the senatorial district which the senator is designated as representing during the remainder of the term which extends past the general election for which the reapportionment plan becomes effective; provided the reapportionment commission shall consider the following criteria:

1. The senatorial district from which the senator was elected.
2. The senatorial district in which the senator will reside under the reapportionment plan.
3. The requirement of continuing the staggered terms of senators in each district as established by Section 2 of Article XVIII, the next section in this article and the number of senators in a senatorial district under the reapportionment plan of the commission.

RETENTION OF STAGGERED TERMS FOR THE SENATE

Section 7. The senate shall be composed of senators who serve staggered terms of office as follows: senatorial districts with one member, the term of office shall end as provided by the constitution; senatorial districts with two members, each member shall serve a term ending on the date of a different general election; senatorial districts with three members, (A) two members shall serve a term ending on the date of the same general election and (B) one member shall serve a term ending on the date of a general election different than the other two members; senatorial districts with four members, (A) two members shall serve a term ending on the date of the same general election and (B) two members shall serve a term ending on the date of a general election different than the other two members.

If, in the first or second general election in which senators are elected after a reapportionment, the number of senators in a senatorial district whose terms would end on a date of a general election will be more than that set forth in the above paragraph, then at such general election the members of the senate shall be divided into two classes. The members of the first class shall hold office for a term of four years beginning with their election and ending on the day of the second general election held thereafter. The first class shall consist of that number of persons with the highest number of votes necessary to fulfill item (B) in the above paragraph for senatorial districts with three or four members or one person in senatorial districts with two members. The remaining persons shall constitute the second class and shall hold office for a term of two years beginning with their election and ending on the day of the next general election held thereafter.

CONGRESSIONAL REDISTRICTING FOR UNITED STATES HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Section 8. The commission shall, at such times as may be required by this article and as may be required by law of the United States, redraw congressional district lines for the districts from which the members of the United States House of Representatives allocated to this State by Congress are elected.

MANDAMUS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW

Section 9. Original jurisdiction is vested in the supreme court of the State to be exercised on the petition of any registered voter whereby it may compel, by mandamus or otherwise, the appropriate person or persons to perform their duty or to correct any error made in a reapportionment plan, or it may take such other action to effectuate the purposes of this section as it may deem appropriate. Any such petition shall be filed within forty-five days of the date specified for any duty or within forty-five days after the filing of a reapportionment plan.

ARTICLE V

THE EXECUTIVE

ESTABLISHMENT OF THE EXECUTIVE

Section 1. The executive power of the State shall be vested in a governor.

The governor shall be elected by the qualified voters of this State at a general election. The person receiving the highest number of votes shall be the governor. In case of a tie vote, the selection of the governor shall be determined as provided by law.

The term of office of the governor shall begin at noon on the first Monday in December next following the governor's election and end at noon on the first Monday in December, four years thereafter.

No person shall be elected to the office of governor for more than two consecutive full terms.

No person shall be eligible for the office of governor unless the person shall be a qualified voter, have attained the age of thirty years and have been a resident of this State for five years immediately preceding the person's election.

The governor shall not hold any other office or employment of profit under the State or the United States during the governor's term of office.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Section 2. There shall be a lieutenant governor who shall have the same qualifications as the governor. The lieutenant governor shall be elected at the same time, for the same term and in the same manner as the governor; provided that the votes cast in the general election for the nominee for governor shall be deemed cast for the nominee for lieutenant governor of the same political party. No person shall be elected to the office of lieutenant governor for more than two consecutive full terms. The lieutenant governor shall perform such duties as may be provided by law.

COMPENSATION: GOVERNOR, LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Section 3. The compensation of the governor and of the lieutenant governor shall be as provided by law, but shall not be less than thirty-three thousand five hundred dollars, and twenty-seven thousand five hundred dollars, respectively, a year. Such compensation shall not be increased or decreased for their respective terms, unless by general law applying to all salaried officers of the State. When the lieutenant governor succeeds to the office of the governor, the lieutenant governor shall receive the compensation for that office.

SUCCESSION TO GOVERNORSHIP; ABSENCE OR DISABILITY OF GOVERNOR

Section 4. When the office of governor is vacant, the lieutenant governor shall become governor. In the event of the absence of the governor from the State, or the governor's inability to exercise and discharge the powers and duties of the governor's office, such powers and duties shall devolve upon the lieutenant governor during such absence or disability.

When the office of lieutenant governor is vacant, or in the event of the absence of the lieutenant governor from the State, or the lieutenant governor's inability to exercise and discharge the powers and duties of the lieutenant governor's office, such powers and duties shall devolve upon such officers in such order of succession as may be provided by law.

In the event of the impeachment of the governor or of the lieutenant governor, the governor or the lieutenant governor shall not exercise the powers of the applicable office until acquitted.

EXECUTIVE POWERS

Section 5. The governor shall be responsible for the faithful execution of the laws. The governor shall be commander in chief of the armed forces of the State and may call out such forces to execute the laws, suppress or prevent insurrection or lawless violence or repel invasion. The governor shall, at the beginning of each session, and may, at other times, give to the legislature information concerning the affairs of the State and recommend to its consideration such measures as the governor shall deem expedient.

The governor may grant reprieves, commutations and pardons, after conviction, for all offenses, subject to regulation by law as to the manner of applying for the same. The legislature may, by general law, authorize the governor to grant pardons before conviction, to grant pardons for impeachment and to restore civil rights denied by reason of conviction of offenses by tribunals other than those of this State.

The governor shall appoint an administrative director to serve at the governor's pleasure.

EXECUTIVE AND ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICES AND DEPARTMENTS

Section 6. All executive and administrative offices, departments and instrumentalities of the state government and their respective powers and duties shall be allocated by law among and within not more than twenty principal departments in such a manner as to group the same according to common purposes and related functions. Temporary commissions or agencies for special purposes may be established by law and need not be allocated within a principal department.

Each principal department shall be under the supervision of the governor and, unless otherwise provided in this constitution or by law, shall be headed by a single executive. Such single executive shall be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the governor. That person shall hold office for a term to expire at the end of the term for which the governor was elected, unless sooner removed by the governor; except that the removal of the chief legal officer of the State shall be subject to the advice and consent of the senate.

Except as otherwise provided in this constitution, whenever a board, commission or other body shall be the head of a principal department of the state government, the members thereof shall be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the governor. The term of office and removal of such members shall be as provided by law. Such board, commission or other body may appoint a principal executive officer who, when authorized by law, may be an ex officio, voting member thereof, and who may be removed by a majority vote of the members appointed by the governor.

The governor shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint all officers for whose election or appointment provision is not otherwise provided for by this constitution or by law. If the manner of removal of an officer is not prescribed in this constitution, removal shall be as provided by law.

When the senate is not in session and a vacancy occurs in any office, appointment to which requires the confirmation of the senate, the governor may fill the office by granting a commission which shall expire, unless such appointment is confirmed, at the end of the next session of the senate. The person so appointed shall not be eligible for another interim appointment to such office if the appointment failed to be confirmed by the senate.

No person who has been nominated for appointment to any office and whose appointment has not received the consent of the senate shall be eligible to an interim appointment thereafter to such office.

Every officer appointed under the provisions of this section shall be a citizen of the United States and shall have been a resident of this State for at least one year immediately preceding that person's appointment, except that this residency requirement shall not apply to the president of the University of Hawaii.

ARTICLE VI

THE JUDICIARY

JUDICIAL POWER

Section 1. The judicial power of the State shall be vested in one supreme court, one intermediate appellate court, circuit courts, district courts and in such other courts as the legislature may from time to time establish. The several courts shall have original and appellate jurisdiction as provided by law and shall establish time limits for disposition of cases in accordance with their rules.

SUPREME COURT; INTERMEDIATE APPELLATE COURT; CIRCUIT COURTS

Section 2. The supreme court shall consist of a chief justice and four associate justices. The chief justice may assign a judge or judges of the intermediate appellate court or a circuit court to serve temporarily on the supreme court, a judge of the circuit court to serve temporarily on the intermediate appellate court and a judge of the district court to serve temporarily on the circuit court. As provided by law, retired justices of the supreme court also may serve temporarily on the supreme court at the request of the chief justice. In case of a vacancy in the office of chief justice, or if the chief justice is ill, absent or otherwise unable to serve, an associate justice designated in accordance with the rules of the supreme court shall serve temporarily in place of the chief justice.

APPOINTMENT OF JUSTICES AND JUDGES

Section 3. The governor shall, with the consent of the senate, fill a vacancy in the office of the chief justice, supreme court, intermediate appellate court and circuit courts, by appointing a person from a list of not less than six nominees for the vacancy, presented to the governor by the judicial selection commission.

If the governor fails to make any appointment within thirty days of presentation, or within ten days of the senate's rejection of any previous appointment, the appointment shall be made by the judicial selection commission from the list with the consent of the senate. If the senate fails to reject any appointment within thirty days thereof, it shall be deemed to have given its consent to such appointment. If the senate shall reject any appointment, the governor shall make another appointment from the list within ten days thereof. The same appointment and consent procedure shall be followed until a valid appointment has been made, or failing this, the commission shall make the appointment from the list, without senate consent.

The chief justice shall fill a vacancy in the district courts by appointing a person from a list of not less than six nominees for the vacancy presented by the judicial commission. If the chief justice fails to make the appointment within thirty days of presentation, the appointment shall be made by the judicial selection commission from the list. The chief justice shall appoint per diem district court judges as provided by law.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR APPOINTMENT

Justices and judges shall be residents and citizens of the State and of the United States, and licensed to practice law by the supreme court. A justice of the supreme court, a judge of the intermediate appellate court and a judge of the circuit court shall have been so licensed for a period of not less than ten years preceding nomination. A judge of the district court shall have been so licensed for a period of not less than five years preceding nomination.

No justice or judge shall, during the term of office, engage in the practice of law, or run for or hold any other office or position of profit under the United States, the State or its political subdivisions.

TENURE; COMPENSATION; RETIREMENT

The term of office of justices and judges of the supreme court, intermediate appellate court and circuit courts shall be ten years. Judges of district courts shall hold office for the periods as provided by law. At least six months prior to the expiration of a justice's or judge's term of office, every justice and judge shall petition the judicial selection commission to be retained in office or shall inform the commission of an intention to retire. If the judicial selection commission determines that the justice or judge should be retained in office, the commission shall renew the term of office of such justice or judge for the period as provided by this section or by law.

There shall be a salary commission to review and recommend salaries for justices and judges of all state courts. Justices and judges shall have salaries as provided by law. Their compensation shall not be decreased during their respective terms of office, unless by general law applying to all salaried officers of the State. They shall be retired upon attaining the age of seventy years. They shall be included in any retirement law of the State.

JUDICIAL SELECTION COMMISSION

Section 4. There shall be a judicial selection commission that shall consist of nine members. The governor shall appoint three members to the commission. No more than one of the three members shall be a licensed attorney. The president of the senate and the speaker of the house of representatives shall each respectively appoint one member to the commission. The chief justice of the supreme court shall appoint two members to the commission. No more than one of the two members shall be a licensed attorney. Members in good standing of the bar of the State shall elect two of their number to the commission in an election conducted by the supreme court or its delegate. No more than four members of the commission shall be licensed attorneys.

The commission shall be selected and shall operate in a wholly nonpartisan manner. After the initial formation of the commission, elections and appointments to the commission shall be for staggered terms of six years each. No member of the commission shall serve for more than one full six-year term on the commission.

Each member of the judicial selection commission shall be a resident of the State and a citizen of the United States. No member shall run for or hold any other elected office under the United States, the State or its political subdivisions. No member shall take an active part in political management or in political campaigns. No member shall be eligible for appointment to judicial office of the State so long as the person is a member of the judicial commission and for a period of three years thereafter.

No act of the judicial selection commission shall be valid except by concurrence of the majority of its voting members.

The judicial selection commission shall select one of its members to serve as chairperson. The commission shall promulgate rules which shall have the force and effect of law. The deliberations of the commission shall be confidential.

The legislature shall provide for the staff and operating expenses of the judicial selection commission in a separate budget. No member of the judicial selection commission shall receive any compensation for commission services, but shall be allowed necessary expenses for travel, board and lodging incurred in the performance of commission duties.

The judicial selection commission shall be attached to the judiciary branch of the state government for purposes of administration.

RETIREMENT; REMOVAL; DISCIPLINE

Section 5. The supreme court shall have the power to reprimand, discipline, suspend with or without salary, retire or remove from office any justice or judge for misconduct or disability, as provided by rules adopted by the supreme court.

The supreme court shall create a commission on judicial discipline which shall have authority to investigate and conduct hearings concerning allegations of misconduct or disability and to make recommendations to the supreme court concerning reprimand, discipline, suspension, retirement or removal of any justice or judge.

ADMINISTRATION

Section 6. The chief justice of the supreme court shall be the administrative head of the courts. The chief justice may assign judges from one circuit court to another for temporary service. With the approval of the supreme court, the chief justice shall appoint an administrative director to serve at the chief justice's pleasure.

RULES

Section 7. The supreme court shall have power to promulgate rules and regulations in all civil and criminal cases for all courts relating to process, practice, procedure and appeals, which shall have the force and effect of law.

ARTICLE VII

TAXATION AND FINANCE

TAXING POWER INALIENABLE

Section 1. The power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away.

INCOME TAXATION

Section 2. In enacting any law imposing a tax on or measured by income, the legislature may define income by reference to provisions of the laws of the United States as they may be or become effective at any time or from time to time, whether retrospective or prospective in their operation. The legislature may provide that amendments to such laws of the United States shall become the law of the State upon their becoming the law of the United States. The legislature shall in any such law set the rate or rates of such tax. The legislature may in so defining income make exceptions, additions or modifications to any provisions of the laws of the United States so referred to and provide for retrospective exceptions or modifications to those provisions which are retrospective.

TAX REVIEW COMMISSION

Section 3. There shall be a tax review commission, which shall be appointed as provided by law on or before July 1, 1980, and every five years thereafter. The commission shall submit to the legislature an evaluation of the State's tax structure, recommend revenue and tax policy and then dissolve.

APPROPRIATIONS FOR PRIVATE PURPOSES PROHIBITED

Section 4. No tax shall be levied or appropriation of public money or property made, nor shall the public credit be used, directly or indirectly, except for a public purpose. No grant shall be made in violation of Section 4 of Article I of this constitution. No grant of public money or property shall be made except pursuant to standards provided by law.

EXPENDITURE CONTROLS

Section 5. Provision for the control of the rate of expenditures of appropriated state moneys, and for the reduction of such expenditures under prescribed conditions, shall be made by law.

No public money shall be expended except pursuant to appropriations made by law. General fund expenditures for any fiscal year shall not exceed the State's current general fund revenues and unencumbered cash balances, except when the governor publicly declares the public health, safety or welfare is threatened as provided by law.

DISPOSITION OF EXCESS REVENUES

Section 6. Whenever the state general fund balance at the close of each of two successive fiscal years exceeds five percent of general fund revenues for each of the two fiscal years, the legislature in the next regular session shall provide for a tax refund or tax credit to the taxpayers of the State, as provided by law.

COUNCIL ON REVENUES

Section 7. There shall be established by law a council on revenues which shall prepare revenue estimates of the state government and shall report the estimates to the governor and the legislature at times provided by law. The estimates shall be considered by the governor in preparing the budget, recommending appropriations and revenues and controlling expenditures. The estimates shall be considered by the legislature in appropriating funds and enacting revenue measures. All revenue estimates submitted by the council to the governor and the legislature shall be made public. If the legislature in appropriating funds or if the governor in preparing the budget or recommending appropriations exceeds estimated revenues due to proposed expenditures, this fact shall be made public including the reasons therefor.

THE BUDGET

Section 8. Within such time prior to the opening of each regular session in an odd-numbered year as may be provided by law, the governor shall submit to the legislature a budget in a form provided by law setting forth a complete plan of proposed expenditures of the executive branch, estimates as provided by law of the aggregate expenditures of the judicial and legislative branches, and anticipated receipts of the State for the ensuing fiscal biennium, together with such other information as the legislature may require. A complete plan of proposed expenditures of the judicial branch for the ensuing fiscal biennium shall be submitted by the chief justice to the legislature in a form and within such time prior to the opening of each regular session in an odd-numbered year as shall be provided by law. The budget prepared by the governor and the plan of proposed expenditures prepared by the chief justice shall also be submitted in bill form. The governor shall also, upon the opening of each such session, submit bills to provide for such proposed expenditures and for any recommended additional revenues or borrowings by which the proposed expenditures are to be met. The proposed general fund expenditures in the plan of proposed expenditures, including estimates of the aggregate expenditures of the judicial and legislative branches, submitted by the governor shall not exceed the general fund expenditure ceiling established by the legislature under section 9 of this article; provided that proposed general fund expenditures in the plan may exceed such ceiling if the governor sets forth the dollar amount and the rate by which the ceiling will be exceeded and the reasons therefor.

LEGISLATIVE APPROPRIATIONS; PROCEDURES; EXPENDITURE CEILING

Section 9. In each regular session in an odd-numbered year, the legislature shall transmit to the governor an appropriation bill or bills providing for the anticipated total expenditures of the State for the ensuing fiscal biennium. In such session, no appropriation bill, except bills recommended by the governor for immediate passage, or to cover the expenses of the legislature, shall be passed on final reading until the bill authorizing operating expenditures for the ensuing fiscal biennium, to be known as the general appropriations bill, shall have been transmitted to the governor.

In each regular session in an even-numbered year, at such time as may be provided by law, the governor may submit to the legislature a bill to amend any appropriation for operating expenditures of the current fiscal biennium, to be known as the supplemental appropriations bill, and bills to amend any appropriations for capital expenditures of the current fiscal biennium, and at the same time the governor shall submit a bill or bills to provide for any added revenues or borrowings that such amendments may require. In each regular session in an even-numbered year, bills may be introduced in the legislature to amend any appropriation act or bond authorization act of the current fiscal biennium or prior fiscal periods. In any such session in which the legislature submits to the governor a supplemental appropriations bill, no other appropriation bill, except bills recommended by the governor for immediate passage, or to cover the expenses of the legislature, shall be passed on final reading until such supplemental appropriations bill shall have been transmitted to the governor.

GENERAL FUND EXPENDITURE CEILING

Notwithstanding any other provision to the contrary, the legislature shall establish a general fund expenditure ceiling which shall limit the rate of growth of general fund appropriations, excluding federal funds received by the general fund, to the estimated rate of growth of the State's economy as provided by law. No appropriations in excess of such ceiling shall be authorized during any legislative session unless the legislature shall, by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house of the legislature is entitled, set forth the dollar amount and the rate by which the ceiling will be exceeded and the reasons therefor.

AUDITOR

Section 10. The legislature, by a majority vote of each house in joint session, shall appoint an auditor who shall serve for a period of eight years and thereafter until a successor shall have been appointed. The legislature, by a two-thirds vote of the members in joint session, may remove the auditor from office at any time for cause. It shall be the duty of the auditor to conduct post-audits of the transactions, accounts, programs and performance of all departments, offices and agencies of the State and its political subdivisions, to certify to the accuracy of all financial statements issued by the respective accounting officers and to report the auditor's findings and recommendations to the governor and to the legislature at such times as shall be provided by law. The auditor shall also make such additional reports and conduct such other investigations as may be directed by the legislature.

LAPSING OF APPROPRIATIONS

Section 11. All appropriations for which the source is general obligation bond funds or general funds shall be for specified periods, and no such appropriation shall be made for a period exceeding three years. Any such appropriation or any portion of any such appropriation which is unencumbered at the close of the fiscal period for which the appropriation is made shall lapse; provided that no appropriation for which the source is general obligation bond funds nor any portion of any such appropriation shall lapse if the legislature determines such appropriation or any portion of such appropriation is necessary to qualify for federal aid financing and reimbursement. Where general obligation bonds have been authorized for an appropriation, the amount of the bond authorization shall be reduced in an amount equal to the amount lapsed.

Any appropriation for which the source is general obligation bond funds or general funds or any portion of any such appropriation which is effective on the date of ratification of this amendment and which is unencumbered on June 30, 1980 shall lapse on that date unless earlier lapsed by law; provided that no appropriation for which the source is general obligation bond funds nor any portion of any such appropriation shall lapse if the legislature determines such appropriation or any portion of such appropriation is necessary to qualify for federal aid financing and reimbursement. Where general obligation bonds have been authorized for an appropriation, the amount of the bond authorization shall be reduced in an amount equal to the amount lapsed on June 30, 1980.

DEFINITIONS; ISSUANCE OF INDEBTEDNESS

Section 12. For the purposes of this article:

1. The term "bonds" shall include bonds, notes and other instruments of indebtedness.
2. The term "general obligation bonds" means all bonds for the payment of the principal and interest of which the full faith and credit of the State or a political subdivision are pledged and, unless otherwise indicated, includes reimbursable general obligation bonds.
3. The term "net revenues" or "net user tax receipts" means the revenues or receipts derived from a public undertaking, improvement or system remaining after the costs of operation, maintenance and repair of such public undertaking, improvement or system and the required payments of the principal of and interest on all revenue bonds issued therefor have been made.
4. The term "person" means an individual, firm, partnership, corporation, association, cooperative or other legal entity, governmental body or agency, board, bureau or other instrumentality thereof, or any combination of the foregoing.
5. The term "rates, rentals and charges" means all revenues and other moneys derived from the operation or lease of a public undertaking, improvement or system, or derived from any payments or return on security under a loan program or a loan thereunder.
6. The term "reimbursable general obligation bonds" means general obligation bonds issued for a public undertaking, improvement or system from which revenues, or user taxes, or a combination of both, may be derived for the payment of the principal and interest as reimbursement to the general fund and for which reimbursement is required by law, and, in the case of general obligation bonds issued by the State for a political subdivision, general obligation bonds for which the payment of the principal and interest as reimbursement to the general fund is required by law to be made from the revenue of the political subdivision.
7. The term "revenue bonds" means all bonds payable from the revenues, or user taxes, or any combination of both, of a public undertaking, improvement, system or loan program and any loan made thereunder and secured as may be provided by law.
8. The term "special purpose revenue bonds" means all bonds payable from rental or other payments made to an issuer by a person pursuant to contract and secured as may be provided by law.
9. The term "user tax" means a tax on goods or services or on the consumption thereof, the receipts of which are substantially derived from the consumption, use or sale of goods and services in the utilization of the functions or services furnished by a public undertaking, improvement or system.

The legislature, by a majority vote of the members to which each house is entitled, shall authorize the issuance of all general obligation bonds, bonds issued under special improvement statutes and revenue bonds issued by or on behalf of the State and shall prescribe by general law the manner and procedure for such issuance. The legislature by general law shall authorize political subdivisions to issue general obligation bonds, bonds issued under special improvement statutes and revenue bonds and shall prescribe the manner and procedure for such issuance. All such bonds issued by or on behalf of a political subdivision shall be authorized by the governing body of such political subdivision.

Special purpose revenue bonds shall only be authorized or issued to finance facilities of or for, or to loan the proceeds of such bonds to assist, manufacturing, processing or industrial enterprises, utilities serving the general public, health care facilities provided to the general public by not-for-profit corporations or low and moderate income government housing programs, each of which is hereinafter referred to in this paragraph as a special purpose entity. The legislature, by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house is entitled, may enact enabling legislation for the issuance of special purpose revenue bonds separately for each special purpose entity, and, by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house is entitled and by separate legislative bill, may authorize the State to issue special purpose revenue bonds for each single project or multi-project program of each special purpose entity; provided that the issuance of such special purpose revenue bonds is found to be in the public interest by the legislature. The legislature may enact enabling legislation to authorize political subdivisions to issue special purpose revenue bonds. If so authorized, a political subdivision by a two-thirds vote of the members to which its governing body is entitled and by separate ordinance may authorize the issuance of special purpose revenue bonds for each single project or multi-project program of each special purpose entity; provided that the issuance of such special purpose revenue bonds is found to be in the public interest by the governing body of the political subdivision. No special purpose revenue bonds shall be secured directly or indirectly by the general credit of the issuer or by any revenues or taxes of the issuer other than receipts derived from payments by a person under contract or from any security for such contract or special purpose revenue bonds and no moneys other than such receipts shall be applied to the payment thereof. The governor shall provide the legislature in November of each year with a report on the cumulative amount of all special purpose revenue bonds authorized and issued, and such other information as may be necessary.

DEBT LIMIT; EXCLUSIONS

Section 13. General obligation bonds may be issued by the State; provided that such bonds at the time of issuance would not cause the total amount of principal and interest payable in the current or any future fiscal year, whichever is higher, on such bonds and on all outstanding general obligation bonds to exceed: a sum equal to twenty percent of the average of the general fund revenues of the State in the three fiscal years immediately preceding such issuance until June 30, 1982; and thereafter, a sum equal to eighteen and one-half percent of the average of the general fund revenues of the State in the three fiscal years immediately preceding such issuance. Effective July 1, 1980, the legislature shall include a declaration of findings in every general law authorizing the issuance of general obligation bonds that the total amount of principal and interest, estimated for such bonds and for all bonds authorized and unissued and calculated for all bonds issued and outstanding, will not cause the debt limit to be exceeded at the time of issuance. Any bond issue by or on behalf of the State may exceed the debt limit if an emergency condition is declared to exist by the governor and concurred to by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house of the legislature is entitled. For the purpose of this paragraph, general fund revenues of the State shall not include moneys received as grants from the federal government and receipts in reimbursement of any reimbursable general obligation bonds which are excluded as permitted by this section.

A sum equal to fifteen percent of the total of the assessed values for tax rate purposes of real property in each political subdivision, as determined by the last tax assessment rolls pursuant to law, is established as the limit of the funded debt of such political subdivision that is outstanding and unpaid at any time.

All general obligation bonds for a term exceeding two years shall be in serial form maturing in substantially equal installments of principal, or maturing in substantially equal installments of both principal and interest. The first installment of principal of general obligation bonds and of reimbursable general obligation bonds shall mature not later than five years from the date of issue of such series. The last installment on general obligation bonds shall mature not later than twenty-five years from the date of such issue and the last installment on general obligation bonds sold to the federal government, on reimbursable general obligation bonds and on bonds constituting instruments of indebtedness under which the State or a political subdivision incurs a contingent liability as a guarantor shall mature not later than thirty-five years from the date of such issue. The interest and principal payments of general obligation bonds shall be a first charge on the general fund of the State or political subdivision, as the case may be.

1. Bonds that have matured, or that mature in the then current fiscal year, or that have been irrevocably called for redemption and the redemption date has occurred or will occur in the then fiscal year, or for the full payment of which moneys or securities have been irrevocably set aside.

2. Revenue bonds, if the issuer thereof is obligated by law to impose rates, rentals and charges for the use and services of the public undertaking, improvement or system or the benefits of a loan program or a loan thereunder or to impose a user tax, or to impose a combination of rates, rentals and charges and user tax, as the case may be, sufficient to pay the cost of operation, maintenance and repair, if any, of the public undertaking, improvement or system or the cost of maintaining a loan program or a loan thereunder and the required payments of the principal of and interest on all revenue bonds issued for the public undertaking, improvement or system or loan program, and if the issuer is obligated to deposit such revenues or tax or a combination of both into a special fund and to apply the same to such payments in the amount necessary therefor.

3. Special purpose revenue bonds, if the issuer thereof is required by law to contract with a person obligating such person to make rental or other payments to the issuer in an amount at least sufficient to make the required payment of the principal of and interest on such special purpose revenue bonds.

4. Bonds issued under special improvement statutes when the only security for such bonds is the properties benefited or improved or the assessments thereon.

5. General obligation bonds issued for assessable improvements, but only to the extent that reimbursements to the general fund for the principal and interest on such bonds are in fact made from assessment collections available therefor.

6. Reimbursable general obligation bonds issued for a public undertaking, improvement or system but only to the extent that reimbursements to the general fund are in fact made from the net revenue, or net user tax receipts, or combination of both, as determined for the immediately preceding fiscal year.

7. Reimbursable general obligation bonds issued by the State for any political subdivision, whether issued before or after the effective date of this section, but only for as long as reimbursement by the political subdivision to the State for the payment of principal and interest on such bonds is required by law; provided that in the case of bonds issued after the effective date of this section, the consent of the governing body of the political subdivision has first been obtained; and provided further that during the period that such bonds are excluded by the State, the principal amount then outstanding shall be included within the funded debt of such political subdivision.

8. Bonds constituting instruments of indebtedness under which the State or any political subdivision incurs a contingent liability as a guarantor, but only to the extent the principal amount of such bonds does not exceed seven percent of the principal amount of outstanding general obligation bonds not otherwise excluded under this section; provided that the State or political subdivision shall establish and maintain a reserve in an amount in reasonable proportion to the outstanding loans guaranteed by the State or political subdivision as provided by law.

9. Bonds issued by or on behalf of the State or by any political subdivision to meet appropriations for any fiscal period in anticipation of the collection of revenues for such period or to meet casual deficits or failures of revenue, if required to be paid within one year, and bonds issued by or on behalf of the State to suppress insurrection, to repel invasion, to defend the State in war or to meet emergencies caused by disaster or act of God.

The total outstanding indebtedness of the State or funded debt of any political subdivision and the exclusions therefrom permitted by this section shall be made annually and certified by law or as provided by law. For the purposes of section 12 and this section, amounts received from on-street parking may be considered and treated as revenues of a parking undertaking.

Nothing in section 12 or in this section shall prevent the refunding of any bond at any time.

ARTICLE VIII

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

CREATION; POWERS OF POLITICAL SUBDIVISIONS

Section 1. The legislature shall create counties, and may create other political subdivisions within the State, and provide for the government thereof. Each political subdivision shall have and exercise such powers as shall be conferred under general laws.

LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT; CHARTER

Section 2. Each political subdivision shall have the power to frame and adopt a charter for its own self-government within such limits and under such procedures as may be provided by general law. Such procedures, however, shall not require the approval of a charter by a legislative body.

Charter provisions with respect to a political subdivision's executive, legislative and administrative structure and organization shall be superior to statutory provisions, subject to the authority of the legislature to enact general laws allocating and reallocating powers and functions.

A law may qualify as a general law even though it is inapplicable to one or more counties by reason of the provisions of this section.

TAXATION AND FINANCE

Section 3. The taxing power shall be reserved to the State, except so much thereof as may be delegated by the legislature to the political subdivision, and except that all functions, powers and duties relating to the taxation of real property shall be exercised exclusively by the counties, with the exception of the county of Kalawao. The legislature shall have the power to apportion state revenues among the several political subdivisions.

MANDATES; ACCRUED CLAIMS

Section 4. No law shall be passed mandating any political subdivision to pay any previously accrued claim.

TRANSFER OF MANDATED PROGRAMS

Section 5. If any new program or increase in the level of service under an existing program shall be mandated to any of the political subdivisions by the legislature, it shall provide that the State share in the cost.

STATEWIDE LAWS

Section 6. This article shall not limit the power of the legislature to enact laws of statewide concern.

ARTICLE IX

PUBLIC HEALTH AND WELFARE

PUBLIC HEALTH

Section 1. The State shall provide for the protection and promotion of the public health.

CARE OF HANDICAPPED PERSONS

Section 2. The State shall have the power to provide for the treatment and rehabilitation of handicapped persons.

PUBLIC ASSISTANCE

Section 3. The State shall have the power to provide financial assistance, medical assistance and social services for persons who are found to be in need of and are eligible for such assistance and services as provided by law.

ECONOMIC SECURITY OF THE ELDERLY

Section 4. The State shall have the power to provide for the security of the elderly by establishing and promoting programs to assure their economic and social well-being.

HOUSING, SLUM CLEARANCE, DEVELOPMENT AND REHABILITATION

Section 5. The State shall have the power to provide for, or assist in, housing, slum clearance and the development or rehabilitation of substandard areas. The exercise of such power is deemed to be for a public use and purpose.

MANAGEMENT OF STATE POPULATION GROWTH

Section 6. The State and its political subdivisions, as provided by general law, shall plan and manage the growth of the population to protect and preserve the public health and welfare; except that each political subdivision, as provided by general law, may plan and manage the growth of its population in a more restrictive manner than the State.

PUBLIC SIGHTLINESS AND GOOD ORDER

Section 7. The State shall have the power to conserve and develop objects and places of historic or cultural interest and provide for public sightliness and physical good order. For these purposes private property shall be subject to reasonable regulation.

PRESERVATION OF A HEALTHFUL ENVIRONMENT

Section 8. The State shall have the power to promote and maintain a healthful environment, including the prevention of any excessive demands upon the environment and the State's resources.

CULTURAL RESOURCES

Section 9. The State shall have the power to preserve and develop the cultural, creative and traditional arts of its various ethnic groups.

PUBLIC SAFETY

Section 10. The law of the splintered paddle, mamala-hoe kanawai, decreed by Kamehameha I - Let every elderly person, woman and child lie by the roadside in safety - shall be a unique and living symbol of the State's concern for public safety.

The State shall have the power to provide for the safety of the people from crimes against persons and property.

ARTICLE X

EDUCATION

PUBLIC EDUCATION

Section 1. The State shall provide for the establishment, support and control of a statewide system of public schools free from sectarian control, a state university, public libraries and such other educational institutions as may be deemed desirable, including physical facilities therefor. There shall be no discrimination in public educational institutions because of race, religion, sex or ancestry; nor shall public funds be appropriated for the support or benefit of any sectarian or private educational institution.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Section 2. There shall be a board of education composed of members who shall be elected in a nonpartisan manner by qualified voters, as provided by law, from two at-large school board districts. The first school board district shall be comprised of the island of Oahu and all other islands not specifically enumerated. The second school board district shall be comprised of the islands of Hawaii, Maui, Lanai, Molokai, Kahoolawe, Kauai and Niihau. Each at-large school board district shall be divided into departmental school districts, as may be provided by law. There shall be at least one member residing in each departmental school district.

POWER OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Section 3. The board of education shall have the power, as provided by law, to formulate policy and to exercise control over the public school system through its executive officer, the superintendent of education, who shall be appointed by the board; except that the board shall have jurisdiction over the internal organization and management of the public school system, as provided by law, and shall exercise its jurisdiction in a manner consistent with general laws.

HAWAIIAN EDUCATION PROGRAM

Section 4. The State shall promote the study of Hawaiian culture, history and language.

The State shall provide for a Hawaiian education program consisting of language, culture and history in the public schools. The use of community expertise shall be encouraged as a suitable and essential means in furtherance of the Hawaiian education program.

UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII

Section 5. The University of Hawaii is hereby established as the state university and constituted a body corporate. It shall have title to all the real and personal property now or hereafter set aside or conveyed to it, which shall be held in public trust for its purposes, to be administered and disposed of as provided by law.

BOARD OF REGENTS; POWERS

Section 6. There shall be a board of regents of the University of Hawaii, the members of which shall be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the governor. At least part of the membership of the board shall represent geographic subdivisions of the State. The board shall have the power, as provided by law, to formulate policy, and to exercise control over the university through its executive officer, the president of the university, who shall be appointed by the board; except that the board shall have exclusive jurisdiction over the internal organization and management of the university. This section shall not limit the power of the legislature to enact laws of statewide concern.

ARTICLE XI

CONSERVATION, CONTROL AND DEVELOPMENT OF RESOURCES

CONSERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT OF RESOURCES

Section 1. For the benefit of present and future generations, the State and its political subdivisions shall conserve and protect Hawaii's natural beauty and all natural resources, including land, water, air, minerals and energy sources, and shall promote the development and utilization of these resources in a manner consistent with their conservation and in furtherance of the self-sufficiency of the State.

All public natural resources are held in trust by the State for the benefit of the people.

MANAGEMENT AND DISPOSITION OF NATURAL RESOURCES

Section 2. The legislature shall vest in one or more executive boards or commissions powers for the management of natural resources owned or controlled by the State, and such powers of disposition thereof as may be provided by law; but land set aside for public use, other than for a reserve for conservation purposes, need not be placed under the jurisdiction of such a board or commission.

The mandatory provisions of this section shall not apply to the natural resources owned by or under the control of a political subdivision or a department or agency thereof.

AGRICULTURAL LANDS

Section 3. The State shall conserve and protect agricultural lands, promote diversified agriculture, increase agricultural self-sufficiency and assure the availability of agriculturally suitable lands. The legislature shall provide standards and criteria to accomplish the foregoing.

Lands identified by the State as important agricultural lands needed to fulfill the purposes above shall not be reclassified by the State or rezoned by its political subdivisions without meeting the standards and criteria established by the legislature and approved by a two-thirds vote of the body responsible for the reclassification or rezoning action.

PUBLIC LAND BANKING

Section 4. The State shall have the power to acquire interests in real property to control future growth, development and land use within the State. The exercise of such power is deemed to be for a public use and purpose.

GENERAL LAWS REQUIRED; EXCEPTIONS

Section 5. The legislative power over the lands owned by or under the control of the State and its political subdivisions shall be exercised only by general laws, except in respect to transfers to or for the use of the State, or a political subdivision, or any department or agency thereof.

MARINE RESOURCES

Section 6. The State shall have the power to manage and control the marine, seabed and other resources located within the boundaries of the State, including the archipelagic waters of the State, and reserves to itself all such rights outside state boundaries not specifically limited by federal or international law.

All fisheries in the sea waters of the State not included in any fish pond, artificial enclosure or state-licensed mariculture operation shall be free to the public, subject to vested rights and the right of the State to regulate the same; provided that mariculture operations shall be established under guidelines enacted by the legislature, which shall protect the public's use and enjoyment of the reefs. The State may condemn such vested rights for public use.

WATER RESOURCES

Section 7. The State has an obligation to protect, control and regulate the use of Hawaii's water resources for the benefit of its people.

The legislature shall provide for a water resources agency which, as provided by law, shall set overall water conservation, quality and use policies; define beneficial and reasonable uses; protect ground and surface water resources, watersheds and natural stream environments; establish criteria for water use priorities while assuring appurtenant rights and existing correlative and riparian uses and establish procedures for regulating all uses of Hawaii's water resources.

NUCLEAR ENERGY

Section 8. No nuclear fission power plant shall be constructed or radioactive material disposed of in the State without the prior approval by a two-thirds vote in each house of the legislature.

ENVIRONMENTAL RIGHTS

Section 9. Each person has the right to a clean and healthful environment, as defined by laws relating to environmental quality, including control of pollution and conservation, protection and enhancement of natural resources. Any person may enforce this right against any party, public or private, through appropriate legal proceedings, subject to reasonable limitations and regulation as provided by law.

ARTICLE XII

HAWAIIAN AFFAIRS

HAWAIIAN HOMES COMMISSION ACT

Section 1. Anything in this constitution to the contrary notwithstanding, the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, enacted by the Congress, as the same has been or may be amended prior to the admission of the State, is hereby adopted as a law of the State, subject to amendment or repeal by the legislature; provided that if and to the extent that the United States shall so require, such law shall be subject to amendment or repeal only with the consent of the United States and in no other manner; provided further that if the United States shall have been provided or shall provide that particular provisions or types of provisions of such Act may be amended in the manner required for ordinary state legislation, such provisions or types of provisions may be so amended. The proceeds and income from Hawaiian home lands shall be used only in accordance with the terms and spirit of such Act. The legislature shall make sufficient sums available for the following purposes: (1) development of home, agriculture, farm and ranch lots; (2) home, agriculture, aquaculture, farm and ranch loans; (3) rehabilitation projects to include, but not limited to, educational, economic, political, social and cultural processes by which the general welfare and conditions of native Hawaiians are thereby improved; (4) the administration and operating budget of the department of Hawaiian home lands; in furtherance of (1), (2), (3) and (4) herein, by appropriating the same in the manner provided by law.

Thirty percent of the state receipts derived from the leasing of cultivated sugarcane lands under any provision of law or from water licenses shall be transferred to the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund, section 213 of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, for the purposes enumerated in that section. Thirty percent of the state receipts derived from the leasing of lands cultivated as sugarcane lands on the effective date of this section shall continue to be so transferred to the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund whenever such lands are sold, developed, leased, utilized, transferred, set aside or otherwise disposed of for purposes other than the cultivation of sugarcane. There shall be no ceiling established for the aggregate amount transferred into the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund.

ACCEPTANCE OF COMPACT

Section 2. The State and its people do hereby accept, as a compact with the United States, or as conditions or trust provisions imposed by the United States, relating to the management and disposition of the Hawaiian home lands, the requirement that section 1 hereof be included in this constitution, in whole or in part, it being intended that the Act or acts of the Congress pertaining thereto shall be definitive of the extent and nature of such compact, conditions or trust provisions, as the case may be. The State and its people do further agree and declare that the spirit of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act looking to the continuance of the Hawaiian homes projects for the further rehabilitation of the Hawaiian race shall be faithfully carried out.

COMPACT ADOPTION; PROCEDURES AFTER ADOPTION

Section 3. As a compact with the United States relating to the management and disposition of the Hawaiian home lands, the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended, shall be adopted as a provision of the constitution of this State, as provided in section 7, subsection (b), of the Admission Act, subject to amendment or repeal only with the consent of the United States, and in no other manner; provided that (1) sections 202, 213, 219, 220, 222, 224 and 225 and other provisions relating to administration, and paragraph (2) of section 204, sections 206 and 212 and other provisions relating to the powers and duties of officers other than those charged with the administration of such Act, may be amended in the constitution, or in the manner required for state legislation, but the Hawaiian home-loan fund, the Hawaiian home-operating fund and the Hawaiian home-development fund shall not be reduced or impaired by any such amendment, whether made in the constitution or in the manner required for state legislation, and the encumbrances authorized to be placed on Hawaiian home lands by officers other than those charged with the administration of such Act, shall not be increased, except with the consent of the United States; (2) that any amendment to increase the benefits to lessees of Hawaiian home lands may be made in the constitution, or in the manner required for state legislation, but the qualifications of lessees shall not be changed except with the consent of the United States; and (3) that all proceeds and income from the "available lands," as defined by such Act, shall be used only in carrying out the provisions of such Act.

PUBLIC TRUST

Section 4. The lands granted to the State of Hawaii by Section 5(b) of the Admission Act and pursuant to Article XVI, Section 7, of the State Constitution, excluding therefrom lands defined as "available lands" by Section 203 of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended, shall be held by the State as a public trust for native Hawaiians and the general public.

OFFICE OF HAWAIIAN AFFAIRS; ESTABLISHMENT OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Section 5. There is hereby established an Office of Hawaiian Affairs. The Office of Hawaiian Affairs shall hold title to all the real and personal property now or hereafter set aside or conveyed to it which shall be held in trust for native Hawaiians and Hawaiians. There shall be a board of trustees for the Office of Hawaiian Affairs elected by qualified voters who are Hawaiians, as provided by law. The board members shall be Hawaiians. There shall be not less than nine members of the board of trustees; provided that each of the following Islands have one representative: Oahu, Kauai, Maui, Molokai and Hawaii. The board shall select a chairperson from its members.

POWERS OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Section 6. The board of trustees of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs shall exercise power as provided by law: to manage and administer the proceeds from the sale or other disposition of the lands, natural resources, minerals and income derived from whatever sources for native Hawaiians and Hawaiians, including all income and proceeds from that pro rata portion of the trust referred to in section 4 of this article for native Hawaiians; to formulate policy relating to affairs of native Hawaiians and Hawaiians; and to exercise control over real and personal property set aside by state, federal or private sources and transferred to the board for native Hawaiians and Hawaiians. The board shall have the power to exercise control over the Office of Hawaiian Affairs through its executive officer, the administrator of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs, who shall be appointed by the board.

DEFINITION: HAWAIIAN; NATIVE HAWAIIAN

Section 7. The term "Hawaiian" means any descendant of the races inhabiting the Hawaiian Islands, previous to 1778.

The term "native Hawaiian" means any descendant of not less than one-half part of the blood of races inhabiting the Hawaiian Islands previous to 1778 as defined by the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended or may be amended.

TRADITIONAL AND CUSTOMARY RIGHTS

Section 8. The State reaffirms and shall protect all rights, customarily and traditionally exercised for subsistence, cultural and religious purposes and possessed by ahupua'a tenants who are descendants of native Hawaiians who inhabited the Hawaiian Islands prior to 1778, subject to the right of the State to regulate such rights.

SECTIONS OF THE HAWAIIAN HOMES COMMISSION ACT OF 1920, AS AMENDED, AS FURTHER AMENDED BY THE 1978 CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION AS PROVISIONS OF THE STATE CONSTITUTION PURSUANT TO ARTICLE XI RENUMBERED ARTICLE XII OF THE STATE CONSTITUTION

Section 204. Control by department of "available lands," return to board of land and natural resources, when. Upon the passage of this Act, all available lands shall immediately assume the status of Hawaiian home lands and be under the control of the department to be used and disposed of in accordance with the provisions of this Act, except that:

(1) In case any available land is under lease by the Territory of Hawaii, by virtue of section 73 of the Hawaiian Organic Act, at the time of the passage of this Act, such land shall not assume the status of Hawaiian home lands until the lease expires or the board of land and natural resources withdraws the lands from the operation of the lease. If the land is covered by a lease containing a withdrawal clause, as provided in subdivision (d) of section 73 of the Hawaiian Organic Act, the board of land and natural resources shall withdraw such lands from the operation of the lease whenever the department gives notice to the board that the department is of the opinion that the lands are required by it for the purposes of this Act; and such withdrawal shall be held to be for a public purpose within the meaning of that term as used in subdivision (d) of section 73 of the Hawaiian Organic Act;

(2) Any available land, including lands selected by the department out of a larger area, as provided by this Act, not leased as authorized by the provisions of section 207(a) of this Act, may be returned to the board of land and natural resources as provided under section 212 of this Act, or may be retained for management by the department.

In the management of any retained available lands not required for leasing under section 207(a), the department may dispose of such lands to the public, including native Hawaiians, on the same terms, conditions, restrictions and uses applicable to the disposition of public lands as provided in chapter 171, Hawaii Revised Statutes; provided that the department may not sell or dispose of such lands in fee simple except as authorized under section 205 of this Act; provided further that the department is expressly authorized to negotiate, prior to negotiations with the general public, the disposition of a lease of Hawaiian home lands to a native Hawaiian, or organization or association owned or controlled by native Hawaiians, for commercial, industrial or other business purposes, in accordance with the procedure set forth in section 171-59, Hawaii Revised Statutes, subject to the notice requirement of section 171-16(c), Hawaii Revised Statutes, and the lease rental limitation imposed by section 171-17(b), Hawaii Revised Statutes.

(3) The department may, with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, in order to consolidate its holdings or to better effectuate the purposes of this Act, exchange the title to available lands for land, privately or publicly owned, of an equal value. All land so acquired by the department shall assume the status of available lands as though such land were originally designated as available lands under section 203 hereof, and all lands so conveyed by the department shall assume the status of the land for which it was exchanged. The limitations imposed by section 73(1) of the Hawaiian Organic Act and the land laws of Hawaii as to the area and value of land that may be conveyed by way of exchange shall not apply to exchanges made pursuant hereto. No such exchange of land publicly owned by the State shall be made without the approval of two-thirds of the members of the board of land and natural resources. For the purposes of this paragraph, lands "publicly owned" means land owned by a county or the State or the United States.

Section 212. Lands returned to control of board of land and natural resources. The department may return any Hawaiian home lands not leased as authorized by the provisions of section 207 of this Act to the control of the board of land and natural resources. Any Hawaiian home lands so returned shall, until the department gives notice as hereinafter in this section provided, resume and maintain the status of public lands in accordance with the provisions of the Hawaii Revised Statutes; provided that such lands may not be sold, leased, set aside, used, transferred or otherwise disposed of except under a general lease only. Any lease by the board of land and natural resources hereafter entered into shall contain a withdrawal clause, and the lands so leased shall be withdrawn by the board, for the purpose of this Act, upon the department giving at its option, not less than one nor more than five years' notice of such withdrawal; provided that the minimum withdrawal-notice period shall be specifically stated in such lease. Each such lease, whether or not stipulated therein, shall be deemed subject to the right and duty of the board of land and natural resources to terminate the lease and return the lands to the department whenever the department gives notice to the board that the department is of the opinion that the lands are required.

Notwithstanding the provisions of section 171-95, Hawaii Revised Statutes, in the leasing of Hawaiian home lands by the board to a public utility or other governmental agency, where such use directly benefits the department of Hawaiian home lands or the homestead lessees, the rental may be nominal; in all other instances, the lease rental shall be no less than the value determined in accordance with section 171-17(b), Hawaii Revised Statutes.

Any general lease of Hawaiian home lands hereafter entered into by the board shall be void unless prior to the disposition of such lease by public auction, direct negotiation or otherwise, approval shall be obtained from the department of Hawaiian home lands.

Section 213. Funds and accounts. (a) There are established in the treasury of the State seven revolving funds, to be known respectively as the Hawaiian home loan fund, the additional receipts loan fund, the Hawaiian home general loan fund, the Hawaiian home replacement loan fund, the Hawaiian home repair loan fund, the Hawaiian home farm loan fund and the Hawaiian home operating fund.

- (1) Hawaiian home loan fund. Thirty per cent of the state receipts derived from the leasing of cultivated sugarcane lands under any other provision of law or from water licenses shall be deposited into this fund. The aggregate amount of this fund including:
 - (A) The outstanding principal of all loans, advances and transfers which have been made to other funds for which this fund has not been or need not be reimbursed; and
 - (B) The installments of principal paid by the lessees upon loans made to them from this fund, or payments representing reimbursements, on account of advances, but not including interest on such loans or advances,shall not exceed $5,000,000. The moneys in this fund shall be available for the purposes enumerated in section 214 of this Act.

That portion of the thirty per cent of the state receipts derived from the leasing of cultivated sugarcane lands under any other provision of law or from water licenses, in excess of the present ceiling in the Hawaiian home loan fund of $5,000,000, which amount is called "additional receipts," shall be transferred to the Hawaiian home development fund, to the additional receipts loan fund and the Hawaiian home education fund as follows: fifteen per cent to the additional receipts loan fund; thirteen per cent to the Hawaiian home development fund and seventy-two per cent to the Hawaiian home education fund; provided that until June 30, 1979, the aggregate amount so transferred shall not exceed the maximum amount of $5,000,000, which maximum amount shall be increased to $5,000,000 from and after July 1, 1979.

- (2) Additional receipts loan fund. Moneys transferred to this fund, installments of principal paid by the lessees upon loans made to them from this fund, or as payments representing reimbursement on account of advances, but not including interest on such loans or advances, shall be used for the purposes enumerated in section 214 of this Act.
- (3) Hawaiian home general loan fund. Moneys appropriated by the legislature for the construction of homes but not otherwise set aside for a particular fund, excluding moneys appropriated for construction of replacement homes; moneys transferred from the Hawaiian loan interest fund and installments of principal paid by the lessees upon loans made to them from this fund, or as payments representing reimbursements on account of advances, but not including interest on such loans or advances; shall be deposited to this fund. The moneys in the fund shall be used for purposes enumerated in section 214 of this Act.
- (4) Hawaiian home replacement loan fund. The moneys in this fund shall be used to make loans to lessees to construct replacement homes upon their residence lots. Moneys appropriated by the legislature for replacement home construction loans; moneys transferred from the Hawaiian loan interest fund; installments of principal paid by the lessees upon loans made to them from this fund and moneys transferred from other funds or accounts by legislative authorization shall be deposited into this fund.
- (5) Hawaiian home repair loan fund. Moneys appropriated to this fund by the legislature; moneys transferred from the Hawaiian loan interest fund and installments of principal paid by the lessees upon loans made to them from this fund shall be deposited to this fund. The moneys in this fund shall be used to make loans in amounts not in excess of $10,000 to lessees for repairs to their existing homes and for additions to such homes.
- (6) Hawaiian home farm loan fund. Moneys appropriated to this fund by the legislature; moneys transferred from the Hawaiian loan interest fund and installments of principal paid by the lessees upon loans made to them from this fund shall be deposited to this fund. The moneys in this fund shall be used to make loans not in excess of $35,000 to lessees of agricultural tracts leased under section 207 of this Act.

- (7) Hawaiian home operating fund. The interest transferred from the Hawaiian home loan fund, all fees received by the department from any other source and moneys transferred from the Hawaiian loan interest fund, except moneys received by the Hawaiian home administration account shall be directly deposited into the Hawaiian home operating fund. The moneys in this fund shall be available:
- (A) For construction and reconstruction of revenue-producing improvements intended to principally serve occupants of Hawaiian home lands, including acquisition or lease thereof of real property and interests therein, such as water rights or other interests;
 - (B) For payment into the treasury of the State of such amounts as are necessary to meet the interest and principal charges for state bonds issued for such revenue-producing improvements;
 - (C) For operation and maintenance of such improvements constructed from such funds or other funds;
 - (D) For the purchase of water or other utilities, goods, commodities, supplies or equipment needed for services, or to be re-sold, rented or furnished on a charge basis to occupants of Hawaiian home lands; and
 - (E) For appraisals, studies, consultants (architects, engineers) or any other staff services including those in section 202(b) required to implement, develop and operate these projects. The moneys in this fund may be supplemented by other funds available for, or appropriated by the legislature for, the same purposes. In addition to such moneys, this fund, with the approval of the governor, may be supplemented by transfers, made on a loan basis from the Hawaiian home loan fund for a period not exceeding ten years; provided that the aggregated amount of such transfers outstanding at any one time shall not exceed $500,000.

(b) There are established in the treasury of the State eight special funds, to be known respectively as the Hawaiian home development fund, the Hawaiian home administration account, the Hawaiian loan guarantee fund, the Hawaiian loan interest fund, the borrowed money fund, the Hawaiian home trust fund, the Hawaiian home education fund and the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund.

- (1) Hawaiian home development fund. Moneys transferred to this fund shall be available with the prior written approval of the governor for off-site improvements and development necessary to serve present and future occupants of Hawaiian home lands; for improvements, additions and repairs to all assets owned or leased by the department excluding structures or improvements that the department is obligated to acquire under section 209 of this Act; for engineering, architectural and planning services to maintain and develop properties; for such consultant services as may be contracted for under this Act; for purchase or lease of necessary equipment; for acquisition or lease of real property and interest therein and for improvements constructed for the benefit of beneficiaries of this Act and not otherwise permitted in the various loan funds, the administration account or the operating fund.
- (2) Hawaiian home administration account. The entire receipts derived from any leasing of the available lands defined in section 204 of this Act shall be deposited into this account. The moneys in this account shall be expended by the department for salaries and all other administration expenses of the department in conformity with general law applicable to all departments of the State, and no sums shall be expended for structures and other permanent improvements. This account shall be subject to the following conditions and requirements:
 - (A) The department shall, when required by the governor but not later than November 15 preceding each regular session of the legislature, submit to the state director of finance its budget estimates of expenditures for the next fiscal period in the manner required by general law.

- (B) The department's budget as approved by the governor shall be included in the governor's budget report and shall be transmitted to the legislature for its approval.
- (C) Upon legislative approval of a budget, the amount appropriated shall be made available to the department. If no budget is approved by the legislature prior to its adjournment, sums accruing to this account shall not be expended for any other purpose but shall remain available for future use. Any amount in this account which is in excess of the amount approved by the legislature or made available for the fiscal period may be transferred to the Hawaiian home development fund.
- (3) The Hawaiian loan guarantee fund. There may be created a fund to support the guarantee of repayment of loans made by government agencies or private lending institutions to those holding leases or licenses issued under section 207 of this Act. The department's guarantee of repayment shall be adequate security for a loan under any state law prescribing the nature, amount or form of security or requiring security upon which loans may be made.
- (4) Hawaiian loan interest fund. All interest moneys from loans or investments received by the department from any fund except the borrowed money fund and the Hawaiian home loan fund shall be deposited in this fund. At the end of each quarter, all moneys in this fund shall be transferred to the Hawaiian home development fund, the Hawaiian home operating fund and any loan fund in accordance with rules adopted by the department.
- (5) Borrowed money fund. The department may borrow from government agencies or private lending institutions and deposit borrowed moneys into this fund to be used for the purpose enumerated in section 214 of this Act. Installments of principal and that part of the interest equal to the interest charged to the department by the lender paid by the lessees upon loans made to them from this fund shall be deposited into this fund.
- (6) Hawaiian home trust fund. All moneys deposited into this fund shall be available for transfers into any other fund or account authorized by the Act or for any public purpose deemed by the commission to further the purposes of the Act.
- (7) Hawaiian home education fund. Moneys transferred to this fund may be drawn upon from time to time by the department of education, with prior written approval of the governor, for such educational projects as shall be developed and directed by the department of education and department of Hawaiian home lands; provided that such projects shall be directed primarily to the educational improvement of the children of lessees, the funds to be used primarily at the preschool and elementary grade levels.
- (8) Native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund. Pursuant to Article XII, Section 1, of the State Constitution, thirty percent of the state receipts, derived from lands previously cultivated as sugarcane lands under any other provision of law and from water licenses, shall be deposited into this fund. The department shall use this money solely for the rehabilitation of native Hawaiians which shall include but not be limited to the educational, economic, political, social and cultural processes by which the general welfare and conditions of native Hawaiians are thereby improved and perpetuated.

Section 221. Water. (a) When used in this section:

- (1) The term "water license" means any license issued by the board of land and natural resources granting to any person the right to the use of government-owned water; and

(2) The term "surplus water" means so much of any government-owned water covered by a water license or so much of any privately owned water as is in excess of the quantity required for the use of the licensee or owner, respectively.

(b) All water licenses issued after the passage of this Act shall be deemed subject to the condition, whether or not stipulated in the license, that the licensee shall, upon the demand of the department, grant to it the right to use, free of all charge, any water which the department deems necessary adequately to supply the livestock or the domestic needs of individuals upon any tract.

(c) In order adequately to supply livestock or the domestic needs of individuals upon any tract, the department is authorized (1) to use, free of all charge, government-owned water not covered by any water license or covered by a water license issued after the passage of this Act or covered by a water license issued previous to the passage of this Act but containing a reservation of such water for the benefit of the public, and (2) to contract with any person for the right to use or to acquire, under eminent domain proceedings similar, as near as may be, to the proceedings Hawaiians, on the same terms, conditions, restrictions and uses applicable to the disposition of public lands as provided in chapter 171, Hawaii Revised Statutes; provided covered by a water license issued previous to the passage of this Act, but not containing a reservation of such water for the benefit of the public. Any such requirement shall be held to be for a public use and purpose. The department may institute the eminent domain proceedings in its own name.

(d) The department is authorized, for the additional purpose of adequately irrigating any tract, to use, free of all charge, government-owned surplus water tributary to the Waimea river upon the island of Kauai, not covered by a water license or covered by a water license issued after July 9, 1921. Any water license issued after that date and covering any such government-owned water shall be deemed subject to the condition, whether or not stipulated therein, that the licensee shall, upon the demand of the department, grant to it the right to use, free of all charge, any of the surplus water tributary to the Waimea river upon the island of Kauai, which is covered by the license and which the department deems necessary for the additional purpose of adequately irrigating any tract.

Any funds which may be appropriated by Congress as a grant-in-aid for the construction of an irrigation and water utilization system on the island of Molokai designed to serve Hawaiian home lands, and which are not required to be reimbursed to the federal government, shall be deemed to be payment in advance by the department and lessees of the department of charges to be made to them for the construction of such system and shall be credited against such charges when made.

(e) All rights conferred on the department by this section to use, contract for, acquire the use of water shall be deemed to include the right to use, contract for or acquire the use of any ditch or pipeline constructed for the distribution and control of such water and necessary to such use by the department.

(f) Water systems in the exclusive control of the department shall remain under its exclusive control. If any provision or the application of such provision is inconsistent with the provision contained herein, this section shall control.

Water systems include all real and personal property together with all improvements to such systems acquired or constructed by the department for the distribution and control of such water for domestic or agricultural use.

ARTICLE XIII

ORGANIZATION; COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

PRIVATE EMPLOYEES

Section 1. Persons in private employment shall have the right to organize for the purpose of collective bargaining.

PUBLIC EMPLOYEES

Section 2. Persons in public employment shall have the right to organize for the purpose of collective bargaining as provided by law.

ARTICLE XIV

CODE OF ETHICS

The people of Hawaii believe that public officers and employees must exhibit the highest standards of ethical conduct and that these standards come from the personal integrity of each individual in government. To keep faith with this belief, the legislature, each political subdivision and the constitutional convention shall adopt a code of ethics which shall apply to appointed and elected officers and employees of the State or the political subdivision, respectively, including members of the boards, commissions and other bodies.

Each code of ethics shall be administered by a separate ethics commission, except the code of ethics adopted by the constitutional convention which shall be administered by the state ethics commission. The members of ethics commissions shall be prohibited from taking an active part in political management or in political campaigns. Ethics commissioners shall be selected in a manner which assures their independence and impartiality.

Each code of ethics shall include, but not be limited to, provisions on gifts, confidential information, use of position, contracts with government agencies, post-employment, financial disclosure and lobbyist registration and restriction. The financial disclosure provisions shall require all elected officers, all candidates for elective office and such appointed officers and employees as provided by law to make public financial disclosures. Other public officials having significant discretionary or fiscal powers as provided by law shall make confidential financial disclosures. All financial disclosure statements shall include, but not be limited to, sources and amounts of income, business ownership, officer and director positions, ownership of real property, debts, creditor interests in insolvent businesses and the names of persons represented before government agencies.

ARTICLE XV

STATE BOUNDARIES; CAPITAL; FLAG; LANGUAGE AND MOTTO

BOUNDARIES

Section 1. The State of Hawaii shall consist of all the islands, together with their appurtenant reefs and territorial and archipelagic waters, included in the Territory of Hawaii on the date of enactment of the Admission Act, except the atoll known as Palmyra Island, together with its appurtenant reefs and territorial waters; but this State shall not be deemed to include the Midway Islands, Johnston Island, Sand Island (offshore from Johnston Island) or Kingman Reef, together with their appurtenant reefs and territorial waters.

CAPITAL

Section 2. Honolulu, on the island of Oahu, shall be the capital of the State.

STATE FLAG

Section 3. The Hawaiian flag shall be the flag of the State.

OFFICIAL LANGUAGES

Section 4. English and Hawaiian shall be the official languages of Hawaii, except that Hawaiian shall be required for public acts and transactions only as provided by law.

MOTTO

Section 5. The motto of the State shall be, "Ua mau ke ea o ka aina i ka pono."

ARTICLE XVI

GENERAL AND MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

CIVIL SERVICE

Section 1. The employment of persons in the civil service, as defined by law, of or under the State, shall be governed by the merit principle.

EMPLOYEES' RETIREMENT SYSTEM

Section 2. Membership in any employees' retirement system of the State or any political subdivision thereof shall be a contractual relationship, the accrued benefits of which shall not be diminished or impaired.

DISQUALIFICATIONS FROM PUBLIC OFFICE OR EMPLOYMENT

Section 3. No person shall hold any public office or employment who has been convicted of any act to overthrow, or attempt to overthrow, or conspiracy with any person to overthrow the government of this State or of the United States by force or violence.

OATH OF OFFICE

Section 4. All public officers, before entering upon the duties of their respective offices, shall take and subscribe to the following oath or affirmation: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States, and the Constitution of the State of Hawaii, and that I will faithfully discharge my duties as...to the best of my ability." The legislature may provide further oaths or affirmations.

INTERGOVERNMENTAL RELATIONS

Section 5. The legislature may provide for cooperation on the part of this State and its political subdivisions with the United States, or other states and territories, or their political subdivisions, in matters affecting the public health, safety and general welfare. Funds may be appropriated to effect such cooperation.

FEDERAL LANDS

Section 6. The United States shall be vested with or retain title to or an interest in or shall hold the property in the Territory of Hawaii set aside for the use of the United States and remaining so set aside immediately prior to the admission of this State, in all respects as and to the extent set forth in the act or resolution providing for the admission of this State to the Union.

COMPLIANCE WITH TRUST

Section 7. Any trust provisions which the Congress shall impose, upon the admission of this State, in respect of the lands patented to the State by the United States or the proceeds and income therefrom, shall be complied with by appropriate legislation. Such legislation shall not diminish or limit the benefits of native Hawaiians under Section 4 of Article XII.

ADMINISTRATION OF UNDISPOSED LANDS

Section 8. All provisions of the Act of Congress approved March 18, 1959 reserving rights or powers to the United States, as well as those prescribing the terms or conditions of the grants of lands or other property therein made to the State of Hawaii are consented to fully by the State and its people.

TAX EXEMPTION OF FEDERAL PROPERTY

Section 9. No taxes shall be imposed by the State upon any lands or other property now owned or hereafter acquired by the United States, except as the same shall become taxable by reason of disposition thereof by the United States or by reason of the consent of the United States to such taxation.

HAWAII NATIONAL PARK

Section 10. All provisions of the act or resolution admitting this State to the Union, or providing for such admission, which reserve to the United States jurisdiction of Hawaii National Park, or the ownership or control of lands within Hawaii National Park, are consented to fully by the State and its people.

JUDICIAL RIGHTS

Section 11. All those provisions of the act or resolution admitting this State to the Union, or providing for such admission, which reserve to the United States judicial rights or powers are consented to fully by the State and its people; and those provisions of such act or resolution which preserve judicial rights and powers for the State are hereby accepted and adopted, and such rights and powers are hereby assumed, to be exercised and discharged pursuant to this constitution and the laws of the State.

QUIETING TITLE

Section 12. No person shall be deprived of title to an estate or interest in real property by another person claiming actual, continuous, hostile, exclusive, open and notorious possession of such lands, except to real property of five acres or less. Such claim may be asserted in good faith by any person not more than once in twenty years.

PLAIN LANGUAGE

Section 13. Insofar as practicable, all governmental writing meant for the public, in whatever language, should be plainly worded, avoiding the use of technical terms.

TITLES, SUBTITLES; CONSTRUCTION

Section 14. Titles and subtitles shall not be used for purposes of construing this constitution.

GENERAL POWER

Section 15. The enumeration in this constitution of specified powers shall not be construed as limitations upon the power of the State to provide for the general welfare of the people.

PROVISIONS ARE SELF-EXECUTING

Section 16. The provisions of this constitution shall be self-executing to the fullest extent that their respective natures permit.

ARTICLE XVII

REVISION AND AMENDMENT

METHODS OF PROPOSAL

Section 1. Revisions of or amendments to this constitution may be proposed by constitutional convention or by the legislature.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

Section 2. The legislature may submit to the electorate at any general or special election the question, "Shall there be a convention to propose a revision of or amendments to the Constitution?" If any nine-year period shall elapse during which the question shall not have been submitted, the lieutenant governor shall certify the question, to be voted on at the first general election following the expiration of such period.

ELECTION OF DELEGATES

If a majority of the ballots cast upon such a question be in the affirmative, delegates to the convention shall be chosen at the next regular election unless the legislature shall provide for the election of delegates at a special election.

Notwithstanding any provision in this constitution to the contrary, other than Section 3 of Article XVI, any qualified voter of the district concerned shall be eligible to membership in the convention.

The legislature shall provide for the number of delegates to the convention, the areas from which they shall be elected and the manner in which the convention shall convene. The legislature shall also provide for the necessary facilities and equipment for the convention. The convention shall have the same powers and privileges, as nearly as practicable, as provided for the convention of 1978.

MEETING

The constitutional convention shall convene not less than five months prior to the next regularly scheduled general election.

ORGANIZATION; PROCEDURE

The convention shall determine its own organization and rules of procedure. It shall be the sole judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its members and, by a two-thirds vote, may suspend or remove any member for cause. The governor shall fill any vacancy by appointment of a qualified voter from the district concerned.

RATIFICATION; APPROPRIATIONS

The convention shall provide for the time and manner in which the proposed constitutional revision or amendments shall be submitted to a vote of the electorate. The revision or amendments shall be effective only if approved at a general election by a majority of all the votes tallied upon the question, this majority constituting at least thirty-five percent of the total vote cast at the election, or at a special election by a majority of all the votes tallied upon the question, this majority constituting at least thirty percent of the total number of registered voters.

The provisions of this section shall be self-executing, but the legislature shall make the necessary appropriations and may enact legislation to facilitate their operation.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED BY LEGISLATURE

Section 3. The legislature may propose amendments to the constitution by adopting the same, in the manner required for legislation, by a two-thirds vote of each house on final reading at any session, after either or both houses shall have given the governor at least ten days' written notice of the final form of the proposed amendment, or, with or without such notice, by a majority vote of each house on final reading at each of two successive sessions.

Upon such adoption, the proposed amendments shall be entered upon the journals, with the ayes and noes, and published once in each of four successive weeks in at least one newspaper of general circulation in each senatorial district wherein such a newspaper is published, within the two months' period immediately preceding the next general election.

At such general election the proposed amendments shall be submitted to the electorate for approval or rejection upon a separate ballot.

The conditions of and requirements for ratification of such proposed amendments shall be the same as provided in section 2 of this article for ratification at a general election.

VETO

Section 4. No proposal for amendment of the constitution adopted in either manner provided by this article shall be subject to veto by the governor.

CONFLICTING REVISIONS OR AMENDMENTS

Section 5. If a revision or amendment proposed by a constitutional convention is in conflict with a revision or amendment proposed by the legislature and both are submitted to the electorate at the same election and both are approved, then the revision or amendment proposed by the convention shall prevail. If conflicting revisions or amendments are proposed by the same body and are submitted to the electorate at the same election and both are approved, then the revision or amendment receiving the highest number of votes shall prevail.

ARTICLE XVIII

SCHEDULE

DISTRICTING AND APPORTIONMENT

Section 1. Until the next reapportionment the senatorial districts and the number of senators to be elected from each shall be as set forth in the 1973 reapportionment plan. Until the next reapportionment the representative districts and the number of representatives to be elected from each shall be as set forth in the 1973 reapportionment plan.

1978 SENATORIAL ELECTIONS

Section 2. Article III, Section 4, to the contrary notwithstanding, the terms of office of the members of the senate elected in the 1978 general election shall be as follows: members of the senate shall be divided into two classes. The first class shall consist of the following number elected with the highest number of votes from their respective senatorial districts: first district, one; second district, one; third district, one; fourth district, two; fifth district, two; sixth district, two; seventh district, two; eighth district, one. Members of the first class shall hold office for a term of four years beginning with their election and ending on the day of the second general election held thereafter. The remaining members elected shall constitute the second class and shall hold office for a term of two years beginning with their election and ending on the day of the next general election held thereafter.

SALARIES OF LEGISLATORS

Section 3. Until otherwise provided by law in accordance with Section 9 of Article

III, the salary of each member of the legislature shall be twelve thousand dollars a year.

EFFECTIVE DATE FOR TERM LIMITATIONS FOR GOVERNOR AND LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Section 4. The amendments to Sections 1 and 2 of Article V shall limit the term of any person elected to the office of governor or lieutenant governor in the 1978 general election to two consecutive full terms commencing from noon on the first Monday in December, 1978.

JUDICIARY: TRANSITION; EFFECTIVE DATE

Section 5. The three members initially appointed to the judicial selection commission by the governor shall serve for terms of two, four and six years respectively. The members initially appointed to the commission by the president of the senate and the speaker of the house of representatives shall serve for two years. The two members initially appointed to the commission by the chief justice of the supreme court shall serve terms of four and six years respectively. The two members initially elected to the commission by the members of the bar of the State shall serve for terms of four and six years respectively. The current terms of justices and judges in office shall terminate as heretofore provided by law, subject to earlier termination and removal as provided in Article VI. The amendments to Article VI shall take effect upon ratification. The judicial selection commission shall be created no later than April 1, 1979.

EFFECTIVE DATE AND APPLICATION OF REAL PROPERTY TAX TRANSFER

Section 6. The amendment to Section 3 of Article VIII shall take effect on the first day of July after two full calendar years have elapsed following the ratification of such amendment; provided that for a period of eleven years following such ratification, the policies and methods of assessing real property taxes shall be uniform throughout the State and shall be established by agreement of a majority of the political subdivisions. Each political subdivision shall enact such uniform policies and methods of assessment by ordinance before the effective date of this amendment, and in the event the political subdivisions fail to enact such ordinances, the uniform policies and methods of assessment shall be established by general law. Any amendments to the uniform policies and methods of assessment established by the political subdivisions may only be made by agreement of a majority of the political subdivisions and enactment thereof by ordinance in each political subdivision.

Real property tax exemptions and dedications of land for specific use for assessment at its value in such use as provided by law and in effect upon ratification of the amendment to Section 3 of Article VIII shall be enacted by ordinance and shall not be eliminated or diminished for a period of eleven years following such ratification; provided that increases in such exemptions, or the additions of new and further exemptions or dedications of lands, may be established or granted only by agreement of a majority of the political subdivisions, and such increases or additions shall be enacted by ordinance in each political subdivision.

1978 BOARD OF EDUCATION ELECTIONS

Section 7. Members elected to the board of education in the 1978 general election shall serve for two-year terms.

EFFECTIVE DATE FOR OFFICE
OF HAWAIIAN AFFAIRS

Section 8. The legislature shall provide for the implementation of the amendments to Article XII in Sections 5 and 6 on or before the first general election following ratification of the amendments to Article XII in Sections 5 and 6.

CONTINUITY OF LAWS

Section 9. All laws in force at the time amendments to this constitution take effect that are not inconsistent with the constitution as amended shall remain in force, mutatis mutandis, until they expire by their own limitations or are amended or repealed by the legislature.

Except as otherwise provided by amendments to this constitution, all existing writs, actions, suits, proceedings, civil or criminal liabilities, prosecutions, judgments, sentences, orders, decrees, appeals, causes of action, contracts, claims, demands, titles and rights shall continue unaffected notwithstanding the taking effect of the amendments and may be maintained, enforced or prosecuted, as the case may be, before the appropriate or corresponding tribunals or agencies of or under the State or of the United States, in all respects as fully as could have been done prior to the taking effect of the amendments.

DEBTS

Section 10. The debts and liabilities of the Territory shall be assumed and paid by the State, and all debts owed to the Territory shall be collected by the State.

RESIDENCE, OTHER QUALIFICATIONS

Section 11. Requirements as to residence, citizenship or other status or qualifications in or under the State prescribed by this constitution shall be satisfied pro tanto by corresponding residence, citizenship or other status or qualifications in or under the Territory.

EFFECTIVE DATE

This constitution shall take effect and be in full force immediately upon the admission of Hawaii into the Union as a State. Done in Convention, at Iolani Palace, Honolulu, Hawaii, on the twenty-second day of July, in the year one thousand nine hundred fifty and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and seventy-fifth.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 105

Your Committee on Public Health and Welfare; Labor and Industry, to which was referred Resolution No. 28, requesting the state legislature to address the problem of rising health care costs and to establish legislation to reduce medical care costs in the State of Hawaii, begs leave to report as follows:

The purpose of this resolution is to request the legislature to address the problem of rising health care costs throughout the State.

Section 1 of Article VIII of the State Constitution provides that the State must provide for the protection and promotion of the public health. Your Committee felt that medical care at reasonable rates, although not recognized as a constitutional right, is somewhat entwined with the concepts enumerated in Section 1 of Article VIII and is necessary for the well-being of the community. Thus, this resolution was adopted to provide the legislature some direction as to what should be done in this area. However, your Committee decided that the legislature and not the Constitutional Convention was the appropriate body to implement specific programs.

Your Committee recognizes that about 95 percent of the residents of this State are covered by some kind of hospital-medical insurance and most of this includes some form of protection against illness. In addition, in 1974 the Hawaii legislature passed Hawaii Revised Statutes (HRS) Chapter 393 which mandates that employers of even a single employee must provide health insurance for every employee who works 20 hours a week or more.

Nevertheless, your Committee feels that there exists a large gap group not covered by HRS Chapter 393. This group is composed of immigrants, persons who work less than 20 hours a week and persons with assets too great to qualify for public assistance programs but who have no health insurance.

It is with this latter group that your Committee is concerned. Your Committee feels that recent immigrants and those people who work less than 20 hours a week are adequately protected under existing Medicaid and Medicare programs. Persons who do not qualify for Medicaid and Medicare and do not have health insurance usually fall within the middle class and as such bear most of the financial burdens of our society. People in this situation often have to pay high medical expenses from savings which they have accumulated over a lifetime. And, if that fund is insufficient, oftentimes a loan with accompanying liability is negotiated. Thus, your Committee felt that a request should be made to the legislature so that it can provide legislation to protect these people.

Your Committee deleted the first paragraph of Resolution No. 28 that speaks of needed medical care at reasonable rates as a "right," and instead included the two new paragraphs which are evidenced by Resolution No. 28, RD. 1. It was felt that this action was appropriate because this committee and the Committee on Bill of Rights, Suffrage and Elections have not manifested any intention to include medical care at reasonable rates as one of the rights embodied within our State Constitution.

Your Committee on Public Health and Welfare; Labor and Industry is in accord with Resolution No. 28 as amended herein and recommends adoption of the resolution in the form attached hereto as Resolution No. 28, RD. 1.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates Cabral, Calvin Ching, Chung, Ellis, Hashimoto, Hokama, Ishikawa, Marion Lee, Penebacker, Stone, and Sutton. Delegate Peterson did not concur.

RESOLUTION NO. 28, RD. 1

REQUESTING THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF HAWAII TO ADDRESS THE PROBLEM OF RISING HEALTH CARE COSTS AND TO ESTABLISH LEGISLATION TO REDUCE MEDICAL CARE COSTS IN THE STATE OF HAWAII.

WHEREAS, the future of Hawaii's people to obtain needed medical care at a reasonable cost is being readily eroded; and

WHEREAS, Article VIII, Section 1 of the Hawaii State Constitution states: "The State shall provide for the protection and promotion of the public health"; and

WHEREAS, 7.3 percent of the total personal income of all the people in Hawaii was spent on health care costs in 1977; and

WHEREAS, the per capita expenditure for health care services has risen approximately 53 percent in the last 2 years and 149 percent in the last 7 years; and

WHEREAS, the cost for a day in a Hawaii hospital bed is approximately $200 and rising; now, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED by the Constitutional Convention of Hawaii of 1978, that this body hereby requests the Legislature to address and resolve the problem of rising health care costs throughout the State; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that duly authenticated copies of this Resolution be transmitted to the Governor, the Department of Health, and to the Legislature.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 106

Your Committee on Bill of Rights, Suffrage and Elections begs leave to report as follows:

Your Committee decided to adopt the attached resolution because it believes that the progress of modern science has created a moral dilemma that is not addressed by current laws. Modern science has developed life-support systems capable of maintaining and prolonging life in an extraordinary manner. A patient may become comatose and have no hope of recovering to a cognitive and sapient state but continues to exist because of life-support systems. Of necessity, this results in great economic hardship for loved ones and also great trauma and tragedy for those who must endure the wait while the patient is kept alive by machines. Though a physician may believe that no medical reason exists to continue the patient on a life-support system, he cannot "unplug" the machine without fear of civil and criminal liability.

Your Committee recognizes the complexity of the problem but believes that the legislature is the appropriate body to study the legal, medical, philosophical, political and religious implications. Any solution to the problem must include within the equation the conflict of a person's right to privacy, balanced against society's interest in preserving the life and welfare of its people. While the Karen Quinlan case in New Jersey held that a patient may refuse medical treatment in certain circumstances, the question is so complex that your Committee believes that the legislature should consider the circumstance under which a refusal would be appropriate. Your Committee believes that the legislature should also determine a procedure to make a record of any decision to refuse medical treatment. It is also important that there be assurance that the competence of the patient be sound at the time of the decision because your Committee believes it should be a voluntary and intelligent decision.

Your Committee on Bill of Rights, Suffrage and Elections recommends the adoption of Resolution No. 16.

Signed by Delegate Weatherwax, Chairperson.

RESOLUTION NO. 16

RELATING TO DEATH WITH DIGNITY.

WHEREAS, your Committee on Legislature is aware that modern science is capable of keeping a person alive through the use of life-support systems even though the person would not be alive but for the systems and has no hope of recovering; and

WHEREAS, the artificial prolongation of human life where none exists only serves to increase costs, both human and economic; and

WHEREAS, physicians cannot accommodate the wishes of relatives, family friends, and of the patient without incurring the risk of legal liability; and

WHEREAS, though a law defining death was enacted in 1978, Hawaii law does not provide for a procedure to die with dignity; now, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED by the Constitutional Convention of Hawaii of 1978, that all persons of sound mind shall have the right to refuse medical treatment for terminal illness and to die with dignity and that the legislature implement the sense and purpose of this Resolution; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a copy of this Resolution be transmitted to the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 107

Your Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing begs leave to report that Res. Nos. 36 through 52 and Stand. Com. Rep. Nos. 108 and 109 have been printed and distributed.

Signed by Delegates Ledward, Chairperson, Crozier, Vice-Chairperson; Hale and Lacy members.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 108

Your Committee on Bill of Rights, Suffrage and Elections begs leave to report as follows:

Your Committee decided to adopt the attached resolution because your Committee believes that one section of Title III of the Voting Rights Act has a deleterious effect on Hawaii. Although your Committee is in full agreement with the intent of the Voting Rights Act to encourage participation of those unable to speak or read English, your Committee believes that this law of national importance is of little relevance here. Because of the progressive nature of our society, Hawaii has made great strides in reducing illiteracy among the foreign language subgroups. Further, the act defines an illiterate as a person who has not completed the fifth grade, but your Committee believes that there are many in Hawaii who through their own perseverance have learned the English language despite the lack of formal training. Proof of this is suggested by the fact that only 191 persons requested foreign language ballots in the 1976 election. The cost to the state and county governments to provide the required multilingual assistance for those 191 persons was over $500,000.

Your Committee is aware of the existence of voter registration and voter education programs which have been very effective in encouraging voter participation.

Accordingly, your Committee believes that Hawaii should be exempted from the multilingual requirements of Title III of the Voting Rights Act, as amended in 1975.

Your Committee on Bill of Rights, Suffrage and Elections recommends the adoption of Resolution No. 33.

Signed by Delegate Weatherwax, Chairperson.

RESOLUTION NO. 33

REQUESTING THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS TO EXEMPT HAWAII FROM THE MULTI-LINGUAL REQUIREMENTS OF TITLE III OF THE VOTING RIGHTS ACT, AS AMENDED IN 1975.

WHEREAS, in 1975 the United States Congress amended the Voting Rights Act, and such amendments were designed to encourage full participation in the electoral process by the citizens of the country; and

WHEREAS, one of the amendments to Title III of the act requires the states to provide voting assistance to certain foreign language minority groups with high illiteracy rates; and

WHEREAS, the guidelines of the United States Justice Department recognized four subgroups of Asian-Americans, the Japanese, Chinese, Filipinos and Koreans, but failed to consider the various dialects spoken by the subgroups; and

WHEREAS, to comply with the intent of the congressional mandate, Hawaii accommodated such dialects in providing voter materials in the 1976 elections; and such assistance included printing registration and voting forms and informational materials in Ilocano, Japanese and Chinese, and providing persons to orally assist members of the Japanese, Chinese and Filipino subgroups at the polls; and

WHEREAS, Hawaii's state and county governments expended more than $500,000 to provide the required multi-lingual assistance in the 1976 elections; and

WHEREAS, statistics compiled by the office of the Lieutenant Governor reveal that only 191 persons requested foreign language ballots in the 1976 elections; and

WHEREAS, the Voting Rights Act defines an illiterate person as one who has not completed the fifth elementary grade in any school, but there are many individuals in Hawaii who have learned to read and write the English language without formal education; and such individuals would therefore not require a foreign language ballot; and

WHEREAS, another reason for the low demand for foreign language ballots may be the substantial decline in the illiteracy rate in English of the foreign language subgroups since 1970; and

WHEREAS, the experience of the 1976 elections indicates that the printing of voter information forms and ballots in foreign languages is a financial burden on the State, especially when the cost-effectiveness ratio of such assistance is very low; and

WHEREAS, to this date the Constitution of the State has not been translated into any foreign language; and to comply with the Voting Rights Act, the office of the Lieutenant Governor must provide multi-lingual voter information and material with respect to the amendments to the State's Constitution proposed by the Constitutional Convention of Hawaii of 1978; and

WHEREAS, since 1968 the office of the Lieutenant Governor has developed and conducted various voter registration and education programs, and such programs have been successful, as indicated by the 6% increase in voter turnout between the 1974 general election and the 1976 general election; and

WHEREAS, in Hawaii the voter information programs of the office of the Lieutenant Governor have been more effective than the multi-lingual requirements of Title III of the Voting Rights Act in promoting voter participation; now, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED by the Constitutional Convention of Hawaii of 1978, that the United States Congress be requested to exempt Hawaii from the multi-lingual requirements of Title III of the Voting Rights Act, as amended in 1975; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that duly authenticated copies of this Resolution be transmitted to the Congress of the United States, the members of Hawaii's congressional delegation and the Lieutenant Governor of Hawaii.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 109

Your Committee on Submission and Information begs leave to report as follows:

Your Committee on Submission and Information, to which was referred Resolution No. 32 relating to delegates who are candidates for public office, begs leave to report as follows:

The purpose of this resolution is to mandate the Committee on Submission and Information to avoid featuring any candidate for public office in this election year in its voter information program and to refrain from authorizing candidates for public office to speak on behalf of the Convention.

The committee was sympathetic to the intent of the resolution. It was recognized that the visibility afforded to one delegate might constitute an advantage over other candidates. However, incumbents likewise have a similar advantage over other candidates. The committee, however, concluded that to place restraints on certain delegates merely because they were candidates might infringe upon those delegates' right to free speech.

There was some question as to whether the fairness doctrine of "equal time" might apply to the delegate-candidate who received media coverage in speaking about the work of the Convention. Your Committee intends that if a delegate-candidate is required to speak on behalf of the speakers bureau, then that delegate would be speaking in the capacity of a delegate only and not a candidate. The fairness doctrine applies only to radio and television. If the fairness doctrine were found to apply, an opposing candidate could request equal time from the electronic media involved. In any event the speakers bureau will involve many different types of informational forums in addition to the electronic media.

Your Committee was of the opinion that the committee's primary responsibility is to provide information to the public as thoroughly, accurately and understandably as possible. Your Committee, knowing it had no power to restrict candidates who were requested individually to speak on behalf of the Convention, felt that it should also refrain from restricting delegates sent out by the speakers bureau to noncandidates. To eliminate candidates from the speakers bureau would constitute a disservice to the public, possibly depriving them of speakers who are highly qualified to explain particular complex issues.

Your Committee, in Standing Committee Report No. 99, addressed this concern by stating that the information will feature no individual delegate's role in the Convention. The speakers bureau will separate political matters from convention matters.

Your Committee intends to operate the speakers bureau in a manner of fairness and impartiality to all those who wish to participate.

Your Committee felt that the intent of the resolution was thus embodied in the philosophy and plan of the committee and for this reason the resolution was filed.

Signed by all members of the Committee except Delegates Harris, Kaapu, Miller, Odanaka, Peterson and Waihee.

Committee Proposals

In the following section on committee proposals, original constitutional material to be deleted has been bracketed; new material proposed by the standing committee has a single underscore; amendments or revisions to the committee proposal have double underscores; and deletions to new material, either the committee's or later amendments, are underscored and bracketed.

Article and section numbers referred to in the text of proposals are the numbers which were in effect prior to the renumbering that occurred as a result of the 1978 amendment ratifications.

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL NO. 1

RELATING TO CODE OF ETHICS.

RESOLVED, that the following be agreed upon as adding a new article, deleting Article XIV, Section 5, and renumbering Sections 6 to 15 of Article XIV of the State Constitution.*

1. A new article is added to read:

ARTICLE XIV

CODE OF ETHICS

The people of Hawaii believe that public officers and employees must exhibit the highest standards of ethical conduct[,] and that [such] these standards [derive] come from the personal integrity of each individual in government. [In keeping] To keep faith with this belief, the legislature, each political subdivision[,] and the constitutional convention shall adopt a code of ethics[,] which shall apply to appointed and elected officers and employees of the State or the political subdivision, respectively, including members of the boards, commissions and other bodies.

Each code of ethics shall be administered by a separate ethics commission, except [that] the code of ethics adopted by the constitutional convention which shall be administered by the [State Ethics Commission.] state ethics commission. [No member of an ethics commission shall, during his term of office, run for or hold any office in any political organization, or directly or indirectly make any political contribution, or take part in any political campaign. The members of commissions] The members of ethics commissions shall be prohibited from taking an active part in political management or in political campaigns. Ethics commissioners shall be selected in a manner which assures their independence and impartiality.

*For background, discussion and rationale on the amendments proposed herein, refer to Stand. Com. Rep. No. 26, Com. Whole Rep. No. 1, Stand. Com. Rep. No. 43, Stand. Com. Rep. No. 104 and the appropriate Second Reading debate.

Each code of ethics shall include, but not be limited to, provisions on gifts, confidential information, [the] use of position, contracts with government agencies, post-employment, financial disclosure[,], and lobbyist registration and restriction. The financial disclosure [provision] provisions shall require all elected officers, all candidates for elective office[,], and such appointed officers and employees as [shall be] provided by law to make public financial [disclosure.] disclosures. Other public officials [with] having significant discretionary or fiscal powers as provided by law shall make confidential financial [disclosure.] disclosures. All financial disclosure statements shall include [at least the following areas:], but not be limited to, sources and amounts of income, [ownership and officership interests in businesses,] business ownership, officer and director positions, ownership of real property, debts, creditor interests in insolvent businesses and the names of persons represented before government agencies.

2. Article XIV, Section 5, reading as follows, is deleted:

[CODES OF ETHICS

Section 5. The legislature and each political subdivision shall adopt a code of ethics, which shall apply to appointed and elected officers and employees of the State or the political subdivision, respectively, including members of boards, commissions and other bodies.]

3. Sections 6 to 15 of Article XIV are renumbered Sections 5 to 14, respectively.

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL NO. 4

RELATING TO THE PREAMBLE, GENERAL AND MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS, REVISION AND AMENDMENT.

RESOLVED, that the following be agreed upon as amending the Preamble and Articles XIV and XV of the State Constitution.*

1. The Preamble is amended to read:

PREAMBLE

We, the people of [the State of] Hawaii, grateful for Divine Guidance [,] and mindful of our Hawaiian heritage [,] and uniqueness as an island State, dedicate our efforts to fulfill the philosophy decreed by the [Hawaiian] Hawaii State motto, "Ua mau ke ea o ka aina i ka pono[".] ."

We reserve the right to control our destiny [;], to nurture the integrity of our people and culture [;], and to preserve the quality of life that we desire.

We reaffirm our belief in a government of the people, by the people and for the people, and with an understanding and compassionate heart toward all the peoples of the earth, do hereby ordain and establish this constitution for the State of Hawaii.

2. Article XIV, Section 3, is amended to read:

*For background, discussion and rationale on the amendments proposed herein, refer to Stand. Com. Rep. No. 34, Com. Whole Rep. No. 4, Stand. Com. Rep. No. 48 and the appropriate Second Reading debate.

Bracketed punctuation was deleted by the Committee on Style in Stand. Com. Rep. No. 48 but inadvertently retained in subsequent drafts as presented for final reading.

DISQUALIFICATIONS FROM PUBLIC

OFFICE OR EMPLOYMENT

Section 3. No person shall hold any public office or employment who[, knowingly and intentionally, does] has been convicted of any act to overthrow, or [attempts] attempt to overthrow, or [conspires] conspiracy with any person to overthrow the government of this State or of the United States by force or violence.

3. Article XIV is amended by adding a new section to read:

PLAIN LANGUAGE

Section [16.] 13. Insofar as practicable, all [All] governmental writing meant for the public, in whatever language, should be plainly worded, avoiding the use of technical terms.

4. Article XV, Section 2, is amended to read:

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

Section 2. The legislature may submit to the electorate at any general or special election the question, "Shall there be a convention to propose a revision of or amendments to the Constitution?" If any [ten] nine-year period shall elapse[, or if it would elapse if ten days were added to any period less than 10 years,] during which the question shall not have been submitted, the lieutenant governor shall certify the question, to be voted on at the first general election following the expiration of [or within 10 days of the expiration of] such period.

ELECTION OF DELEGATES

If a majority of the ballots cast upon such a question be in the affirmative, delegates to the convention shall be chosen at the next regular election unless the legislature shall provide for the election of delegates at a special election.

Notwithstanding any provision in this constitution to the contrary, other than Section 3 of Article [XIV,] XVI, any qualified voter of the district concerned shall be eligible to membership in the convention.

[Unless the] The legislature shall [otherwise] provide for [, there shall be] the [same] number of delegates to the convention, [who shall be elected from] the [same] areas from which they shall be elected [,] and [the convention shall be convened in] the [same] manner [and] in which the convention shall convene. The legislature shall also provide for the necessary facilities and equipment for the convention. The convention shall have the same powers and privileges, as nearly as practicable, as provided for the convention of [1968] 1978.

MEETING

The constitutional convention shall convene not less than five months prior to the next regularly scheduled general election.

ORGANIZATION; PROCEDURE

The convention shall determine its own organization and rules of procedure. It shall be the sole judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its members and, by a two-thirds vote, may suspend or remove any member for cause. The governor shall fill any vacancy by appointment of a qualified voter from the district concerned.

RATIFICATION; APPROPRIATIONS

The convention shall provide for the time and manner in which the proposed constitutional revision or amendments shall be submitted to a vote of the electorate. The revision or amendments shall be effective only if approved at a general election by a majority of all the votes tallied upon the question, this majority constituting at least thirty-five percent of the total vote cast at the election, or at a special election by a majority of all the votes tallied upon the question, this majority constituting at least thirty percent of the total number of registered voters.

The provisions of this section shall be self-executing, but the legislature shall make the necessary appropriations and may enact legislation to facilitate their operation.

diminished for a period of eleven years following such ratification; provided that increases in such exemptions, or the additions of new and further exemptions or dedications of lands, may be established or granted only by agreement of a majority of the political subdivisions, and such increases or additions shall be enacted by ordinance in each political subdivision.

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL NO. 8

RELATING TO THE LEGISLATURE AND REAPPORTIONMENT.

RESOLVED, that the following be agreed upon as amending Articles III and XVI of the State Constitution. *

1. Article III, Section 2, is amended to read:

[SENATE; COMPOSITION]

COMPOSITION OF SENATE

Section 2. The senate shall be composed of twenty-five members, who shall be elected by the qualified voters of the respective senatorial districts. [Until the next reapportionment the] The senatorial districts and the number of senators to be elected from each shall be as set forth in the [Schedule] reapportionment plan as established by the reapportionment commission.

2. Article III, Section 3, is amended to read:

[HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES; COMPOSITION]

COMPOSITION OF HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Section 3. The house of representatives shall be composed of fifty-one members, who shall be elected by the qualified voters of the respective representative districts. [Until the next reapportionment, the] The representative districts and the number of representatives to be elected from each shall be as set forth in the [Schedule] reapportionment plan as established by the reapportionment commission.

3. Article III, Section 4, relating to reapportionment is deleted in its entirety. **

4. Article III, Section 10, is amended to read:

SALARY; ALLOWANCES; COMMISSION ON

LEGISLATIVE SALARY

Section [10] 9. The members of the legislature shall receive allowances reasonably related to expenses [and a salary,] as [prescribed] provided by law, and a salary prescribed

*For background, discussion and rationale on the amendments proposed herein, refer to Stand. Com. Rep. No. 46, Com. Whole Rep. No. 8, Stand. Com. Rep. No. 81, Stand. Com. Rep. No. 104 and the appropriate Second Reading debate.

The substance of Section 4 has been retained in a new article--Article IV, "Reapportionment"; changes therein are indicated by brackets for deleted material, and underscoring for new.

pursuant to this section. [Any change in salary shall not apply to the legislature that enacted the same.]

There shall be a commission on legislative salary, which shall be appointed by the governor on or before [June 1, 1971, and every four years after the first commission is appointed. Within sixty days after its appointment,] November 30, 1978, and every eight years thereafter. Not later than the fortieth legislative day of the 1979 regular session and every eight years thereafter, the commission shall submit to the legislature and the governor recommendations for a salary plan for members of the legislature, and then dissolve. The salary plan submitted shall become effective as provided in the plan unless the legislature disapproves the plan by adoption of a concurrent resolution prior to adjournment sine die of the legislative session in which the plan is submitted or the governor disapproves the plan by a message of [the] disapproval transmitted to the legislature prior to [the said] such adjournment. Any change in salary which becomes effective shall not apply to the legislature to which the recommendation for the change in salary was submitted.

5. Article III, Section 11, is amended to read:

Section [11] 10. The legislature shall convene annually in regular session at 10:00 o'clock a.m. on the third Wednesday in January.

At the written request of two-thirds of the members to which each house is entitled, the presiding officers of both houses shall convene the legislature in special session. The governor may convene both houses or the senate alone in special session.

Regular sessions shall be limited to a period of sixty days [,]* and special sessions shall be limited to a period of thirty days. Any session may be extended a total of not more than fifteen days. Such extension shall be granted by the presiding officers of both houses at the written request of two-thirds of the members to which each house is entitled or may be granted by the governor.

Each regular session shall be recessed for not less than five days at some period between the twentieth and fortieth days of the regular session. The legislature shall determine the dates of the mandatory recess by concurrent resolution. Any session may be recessed by concurrent resolution adopted by a majority of the members to which each house is entitled. Saturdays, Sundays, holidays, the days in mandatory recess and any days in recess pursuant to a concurrent resolution shall be excluded in computing the number of days of any session.

*Bracketed punctuation was deleted by the Committee on Style in Stand. Com. Rep. No. 81 but inadvertently retained in subsequent drafts as presented for final reading.

All sessions shall be held in the capital of the State. In case the capital shall be unsafe, the governor may direct that any session be held at some other place.

6. Article III, Section 13, is amended to read:

ORGANIZATION; DISCIPLINE; RULES; PROCEDURE

Section [13] 12. Each house shall be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members and shall have, for misconduct, disorderly behavior or neglect of duty of any member, power to punish such member by censure or, upon a two-thirds vote of all the members to which such house is entitled, by suspension or expulsion of such member. Each house shall choose its own officers, determine the rules of its proceedings and keep a journal. The ayes and noes of the members on any question shall, at the desire of one-fifth of the members present, be entered upon the journal.

Twenty days after a bill has been referred to a committee in either house, the [same] bill may be recalled from such committee by the affirmative vote of one-third of the members to which such house is entitled.

Every meeting of a committee in either house or of a committee comprised of a member or members from both houses held for the purpose of making decision on matters referred to the committee shall be open to the public.

[Each house shall provide by rule of its proceedings for a date, applicable to both houses but no sooner than the twentieth day of the session, by which date all bills to be considered in a regular session shall be introduced; provided that such date shall precede the commencement of the mandatory recess of not less than five days under Section .]

By rule of its proceedings, applicable to both houses, each house shall provide for the date by which all bills to be considered in a regular session shall be introduced. This date shall be after the nineteenth day of the session and shall precede the commencement of the mandatory recess of not less than five days [under Section 10.] as provided in section 10 of this article.

7. Article III, Section 16, is amended to read:

PASSAGE OF BILLS

Section [16] 15. No bill shall become law unless it shall pass three readings in each house on separate days. No bill shall pass third or final reading in either house unless printed copies of the bill in the form to be passed shall have been made available to the members of that house for at least [twenty-four] forty-eight hours.

Every bill when passed by the house in which it originated, or in which amendments thereto shall have originated, shall immediately be certified by the presiding officer and clerk and sent to the other house for consideration.

Any bill pending at the final adjournment of a regular session in an odd-numbered year shall carry over with the same status to the next regular session. Before the carried-over bill is enacted, it shall pass at least one reading in the house in which the bill originated.

8. Sections numbered 5 to 20, inclusive, of Article III are renumbered to read sections 4 to 19 inclusive, respectively.

9. A new article*, to be appropriately numbered, is added to the State Constitution and shall read:

ARTICLE IV

REAPPORTIONMENT

REAPPORTIONMENT YEARS

Section [4] 1. The year 1973, the year 1981, and every [eighth] tenth year thereafter shall be reapportionment years.

REAPPORTIONMENT COMMISSION

Section 2. A [legislative] reapportionment commission shall be constituted on or before March 1 of each reapportionment year and whenever reapportionment is required by court order. The commission shall consist of nine members. The president of the senate and the speaker of the house of representatives shall each select two members. Members of each house belonging to the party or parties different from that of the president or the speaker shall designate one of their number for each house and the two so designated shall each select two members of the commission. The eight members so selected shall, promptly after selection, be certified by the selecting authorities to the chief election officer and shall within thirty days thereafter select, by a vote of six members, and promptly certify to the chief election officer the ninth member who shall [serve as chairman of] [chair] serve as chairperson of the commission.

Each of the four officials designated above as selecting authorities for the eight members of the commission shall, at the time of the commission selections, also select one person from each basic island unit to serve on an apportionment advisory council for that island unit. The councils shall remain in existence during the life of the commission and each shall serve in an advisory capacity to the commission for matters affecting its island unit.

A vacancy in the commission or a council shall be filled by the initial selecting authority within fifteen days after the vacancy occurs. Commission and council positions and vacancies not filled within the times specified shall be filled promptly thereafter by the supreme court.

The commission shall act by majority vote of its membership and shall establish its own procedures, except as may be provided by law.

*This reflects the substance of Section 4 of Article III; changes to Section 4 are indicated by brackets for deleted material, and underscoring for new.

Not more than one hundred [twenty] fifty days from the date on which its members are certified, the commission shall file with the chief election officer a reapportionment plan for the state legislature and a reapportionment plan for the United States congressional districts[,] which shall become law after publication as provided by law. Members of the commission shall hold office until [the] each reapportionment plan becomes effective or until such time as may be provided by law.

No member of the reapportionment commission or an apportionment advisory council shall be eligible to become a candidate for election to either house of the legislature or to the United States House of Representatives in either of the first two elections under any such reapportionment plan.

Commission and apportionment advisory council members shall be compensated and reimbursed for their necessary expenses as provided by law.

The chief election officer shall be secretary of the commission without vote and, under the direction of the commission, shall furnish all necessary technical services. The legislature shall appropriate funds to enable the commission to carry out its duties.

CHIEF ELECTION OFFICER

Section 3. The legislature shall provide for a chief election officer of the State, whose responsibilities shall be as [prescribed] provided by law and shall include the supervision of state elections, the maximization of registration of eligible voters throughout the State and the maintenance of data concerning registered voters, elections, apportionment and districting.

APPORTIONMENT AMONG BASIC ISLAND UNITS

Section 4. The commission shall allocate the total number of members of each house of the state legislature being reapportioned among the four basic island units, namely: (1) the island of Hawaii, (2) the islands of Maui, Lanai, Molokai and Kahoolawe, (3) the island of Oahu and all other islands not specifically enumerated, and (4) the islands of Kauai and Niihau, on the basis of the number of voters registered in the last preceding general election in each of the basic island units and computed by the method known as the method of equal proportions[,]; except that no basic island unit shall receive less than one member in each house.

APPORTIONMENT WITHIN BASIC ISLAND UNITS

Section 5. Upon the determination of the total number of members of each house of the state legislature to which each basic island unit is entitled, the commission shall apportion the members among the districts therein and shall redraw district lines where necessary in such manner that for each house the average number of registered voters per member in each district is as nearly equal to the average for the basic island unit as practicable.

In effecting such redistricting, the commission shall be guided by the following criteria:

1. No district shall extend beyond the boundaries of any basic island unit.
2. No district shall be so drawn as to unduly favor a person or political faction.
3. Except in the case of districts encompassing more than one island, districts shall be contiguous.
4. Insofar as practicable, districts shall be compact.
5. Where possible, district lines shall follow permanent and easily recognized features, such as streets, streams and clear geographical features, and, when practicable, shall coincide with census tract boundaries.
6. Where practicable, representative districts shall be wholly included within senatorial districts.
7. Not more than four members shall be elected from any district.
8. Where practicable, submergence of an area in a larger district wherein substantially different socio-economic interests predominate shall be avoided.
9. No consideration shall be given to holdover senators in effecting redistricting.

PLACEMENT OF HOLDOVER SENATORS

Section 6. If a senator is serving a term which will extend past the general election at which an apportionment plan becomes effective, the reapportionment commission shall designate in the plan the senatorial district the senator shall represent for the remaining period of the senator's term. In making such designation, the senator need not live in the senatorial district which the senator is designated as representing during the remainder of the term which extends past the general election [at] for which the reapportionment plan becomes effective; provided the reapportionment commission shall consider the following criteria:

1. The senatorial district from which the senator was elected.
2. The senatorial district in which the senator will reside under the reapportionment plan.
3. The requirement of continuing the staggered terms of senators in each district as established by Section 2 of Article [XVI,] XVIII, the next [paragraph] section in this article[,], and the number of senators in a senatorial district under the reapportionment plan of the commission.

RETENTION OF STAGGERED TERMS FOR THE SENATE

Section 7. The senate shall be composed of senators who serve staggered terms of office as follows: senatorial districts with one member, the term of office shall end as provided by the constitution; senatorial districts with two members, each member shall serve a term ending on the date of a different general election; senatorial districts with three members, (A) two members shall serve a term ending on the date of the same general election and (B) one member shall serve a term ending on the date of a general election different than the other two members; senatorial districts with four members, (A) two members shall serve a term ending on the date of the same general election and (B) two members shall serve a term ending on the date of a general election different than the other two members.

If, in the first or second general election in which senators are elected after a reapportionment, the number of senators in a senatorial district whose terms would end on a date of a general election will be more than that set forth in the above paragraph, then at such general election the members of the senate shall be divided into two classes. The members of the first class shall hold office for a term of four years beginning with their election and ending on the day of the second general election held thereafter. The first class shall consist of that number of persons with the highest number of votes necessary to fulfill item (B) in the above paragraph for senatorial districts with three or four members or one person in senatorial districts with two members. The remaining persons shall constitute the second class and shall hold office for a term of two years beginning with their election and ending on the day of the next general election held thereafter.

CONGRESSIONAL REDISTRICTING FOR

UNITED STATES HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Section 8. The commission shall, at such times as may be required by this [section] article and as may be required by law of the United States, redraw congressional district lines for the districts from which the members of the United States House of Representatives allocated to this State by Congress are elected.

MANDAMUS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW

Section 9. Original jurisdiction is vested in the supreme court of the State to be exercised on the petition of any registered voter whereby it may compel, by mandamus or otherwise, the appropriate person or persons to perform their duty or to correct any error made in a reapportionment plan, or it may take such other action to effectuate the purposes of this section as it may deem appropriate. Any such petition [must] shall be filed within forty-five days of the date specified for any duty or within forty-five days after the filing of a reapportionment plan.

10. Article XVI, Section 1, relating to districting and apportionment, is deleted in its entirety and a new Section 1 is inserted in lieu thereof, to read:

DISTRICTING AND APPORTIONMENT

Section 1. Until the next reapportionment the senatorial districts and the number of senators to be elected from each shall be as set forth in the 1973 reapportionment plan. Until the next reapportionment the representative districts and the number of representatives to be elected from each shall be as set forth in the 1973 reapportionment plan.

11. Article XVI, Section 2, is amended to read:

[1968] 1978 SENATORIAL ELECTIONS

Section 2. [Senators elected in the 1968 general election shall serve for two-year terms.] Article III, Section [5] 4, to the contrary notwithstanding, the terms of office of the members of the senate elected in the 1978 general election shall be as follows: members of the senate shall be divided into two classes. The first class shall consist of the following number elected with the highest number of votes from their respective senatorial districts: first district, one; second district, one; third district, one; fourth district, two; fifth district, two; sixth district, two; seventh district, two; eighth district, one. Members of the first class shall hold office for a term of four years beginning with their election and ending on the day of the second general election held thereafter. The remaining members elected shall constitute the second class and shall hold office for a term of two years beginning with their election and ending on the day of the next general election held thereafter.

12. Sections 3, 4, 5 and 6 of Article XVI of the State Constitution relating to transitional provisions for the 1968 reapportionment of the state legislature and which provisions are no longer applicable are deleted in their entirety.

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL NO. 9

RELATING TO EXECUTIVE AND ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICES AND DEPARTMENTS.

RESOLVED, that the following be agreed upon as amending Article IV of the State Constitution.*

1. Article IV, Section 6, is amended to read:

EXECUTIVE AND ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICES AND DEPARTMENTS

Section 6. All executive and administrative offices, departments and instrumentalities of the state government and their respective [functions,] powers and duties shall be allocated by law among and within not more than twenty principal departments in such a manner as to group the same according to [major purposes so far as practicable.] common purposes and related functions. Temporary commissions or agencies for special purposes may be established by law and need not be allocated within a principal department.

Each principal department shall be under the supervision of the governor and, unless otherwise provided in this constitution or by law, shall be headed by a single executive. Such single executive shall be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the governor [and he]. That person shall hold office for a term to expire at the end of the term for which the governor was elected, unless sooner removed by the governor; except that the removal of the chief legal officer of the State shall be subject to the advice and consent of the senate.

Except as otherwise provided in this constitution, whenever a board, commission or other body shall be the head of a principal department of the state government, the members thereof shall be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the governor. The term of office and removal of such members shall be as [prescribed] provided by law. Such board, commission or other body may appoint a principal executive officer [,] who, when authorized by law, may be an ex officio [a], voting member thereof, and who may be removed by a majority vote of the members appointed by the governor.

The governor shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint all officers for whose election or appointment provision is not otherwise [made] provided for by this constitution or by law. If the manner of removal of an officer is not prescribed in this constitution, [his] removal shall be [in a manner] as [prescribed] provided by law.

When the senate is not in session and a vacancy occurs in any office, appointment to which requires the confirmation of the senate, the governor may fill the office by granting a commission which shall [,] expire, unless such appointment is confirmed, [expire] at the end of the next session of the senate[; but the] The person so appointed shall not be eligible for another interim appointment to such office if the appointment [shall have] failed [of confirmation] to be confirmed by the senate.

No person who has been nominated for appointment to any office and whose appointment has not received the consent of the senate shall be eligible to an interim appointment thereafter to such office.

Every officer appointed under the provisions of this section shall be a citizen of the United States and shall have been a resident of this State for at least one year immediately preceding [his] that person's appointment[;], except that this [residence] residency requirement shall not apply to the president of the University of Hawaii.

Section [4] 5. [Whenever a commission or agency, authorized by law for such purpose, shall certify to the governor that any justice of the supreme court or judge of a circuit court appears to be so incapacitated as substantially to prevent him from performing his judicial duties or has acted in a manner that constitutes wilful misconduct in office, wilful and persistent failure to perform his duties, habitual intemperance, or conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice that brings the judicial office into disrepute, the governor shall appoint a board of three persons, as provided by law, to inquire into the circumstances. If the board recommends that the justice or judge should not remain in office, the governor shall remove or retire him from office.] The supreme court shall have the power to reprimand, discipline, suspend with or without salary, retire [and] or remove from office[,] any justice or judge for misconduct or disability, [any justice or judge, according to such rules governing exercise of this power] as provided by rules adopted by the supreme court [shall adopt].

The supreme court shall create a commission on judicial discipline which shall have authority to investigate and conduct hearings concerning allegations of misconduct or disability and to make recommendations to the supreme court concerning reprimand, discipline, suspension, retirement or removal of any justice or judge.

5. Article V is amended by adding a new section to be appropriately designated and to read:

[THE] JUDICIAL SELECTION COMMISSION

Section 4. There shall be a judicial selection commission that shall consist of nine members. The governor shall appoint three members to the commission[, the initial appointments to be for terms of two, four and six years respectively]. No more than one of the three members shall be a licensed attorney. The president of the senate and the speaker of the house of representatives shall each respectively [elect] appoint one member to the commission[, the initial appointments to be for a term of two years respectively]. The chief justice of the supreme court shall [elect] appoint two members to the commission[, the initial appointments to be for terms of four and six years respectively]. No more than one of the two members shall be a licensed attorney. Members in good standing of the bar of the [state] State shall elect two of their number to the commission in an election conducted by the supreme court or its delegate[, the initial election to be for terms of four and six years respectively]. No more than four members of the commission shall be licensed attorneys.

The commission shall be selected and shall operate in a wholly nonpartisan manner. After the initial formation of the commission, elections and appointments to the commission shall be for staggered terms of six years each. No member of the commission shall serve for more than one full six-year term on the commission. [The legislature shall by statute provide for the time and manner of appointments and elections to conform with this section.]

Each member of the judicial selection commission shall be a resident of the State and a citizen of the United States. No member shall run for or hold any other elected office under the United States, the State[,] or its political subdivisions. No member shall take an active part in political management or in political campaigns. No member shall be eligible for appointment to judicial office of the State so long as [he] the person is a member of the judicial commission[,] and for a period of three years thereafter.

No act of the judicial selection commission shall be valid [unless concurred in by a] except by concurrence of the majority of its voting members.

[Any attorney member of the commission or [his employer or] that member's law firm representing any party before any nominee for justice or judge, shall disqualify himself in any judicial proceeding before the nominee for the period the nominee is being considered. Any non-attorney member of the commission who is a party or if his employer or firm is a party in any judicial proceeding before any nominee for justice or judge shall disqualify himself from voting.]

The judicial selection commission shall select one of its members to serve as [chairman.] chairperson. The commission shall promulgate rules which shall have the force and effect of law. The deliberations of the commission shall be confidential.

[No member of the judicial commission shall receive any compensation for commission services, but shall be allowed necessary expenses for travel, board and lodging incurred in the performance of commission duties. The legislature shall provide for [operation,] the staff and [other] operating expenses [incidental to the performance of commission duties.] of the commission in a separate budget. The Judicial Selection Commission shall be attached to the Judiciary Branch of the State Government for purposes of administration.]

The legislature shall provide for the staff and operating expenses of the judicial selection commission in a separate budget. No member of the judicial selection commission shall receive any compensation for commission services, but shall be allowed necessary expenses for travel, board and lodging incurred in the performance of commission duties.

The judicial selection commission shall be attached to the judiciary branch of the state government for purposes of administration.

6. Article [V] XVI is amended by adding a new section to be appropriately designated and to read:

The two members initially appointed to the commission by the chief justice of the supreme court shall serve terms of four and six years respectively. The two members initially elected to the commission by the members of the bar of the [state] State shall serve for terms of four and six years respectively. The current terms of justices and judges in office shall terminate as heretofore provided by law, subject to earlier termination and removal as provided in [this article.] Article [V.] VI. The amendments to Article [V] VI shall take effect upon ratification. The [Judicial Selection Commission] judicial selection commission shall be created no later than April 1, 1979.

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL NO. 11

RELATING TO HAWAIIAN AFFAIRS.

RESOLVED, that the following be agreed upon as amending Article XI of the State Constitution and the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended.*

1. Section 1 of Article XI is amended to read:

HAWAIIAN HOMES COMMISSION ACT

Section 1. Anything in this constitution to the contrary notwithstanding, the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, enacted by the Congress, as the same has been or may be amended prior to the admission of the State, is hereby adopted as a law of the State, subject to amendment or repeal by the legislature[,]; provided[,], that[,], if and to the extent that the United States shall so require, [said] such law shall be subject to amendment or repeal only with the consent of the United States and in no other manner[,]; provided[,], further[,], that[,], if the United States shall have been provided or shall provide that particular provisions or types of provisions of [said] such Act may be amended in the manner required for ordinary state legislation, such provisions or types of provisions may be so amended. The proceeds and income from Hawaiian home lands shall be used only in accordance with the terms and spirit of [said] such Act[,], and the]. [(A)] The legislature [may, from time to time, make additional] shall make sufficient sums available for the following purposes [of]: (1) development of home, agriculture, farm and ranch lots; (2) home, agriculture, aquaculture, farm and ranch loans; (3) rehabilitation projects to include, but not limited to, educational, economic, political, social[,] and cultural processes by which the general welfare and conditions of native Hawaiians are thereby improved; (4) the administration and operating budget of the department of Hawaiian [Home Lands;] home lands; in furtherance of (1), (2), (3) and (4) herein, [said Act] by appropriating the same in the manner provided by law.

[(B)] Thirty percent of the [State] state receipts derived from the leasing of cultivated sugarcane lands under any provision of law or from water licenses shall be transferred to the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund, [Section] section 213 of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, for the purposes enumerated in [said] that section. Thirty percent of the [State] state receipts derived from the leasing of lands cultivated as sugarcane lands on the effective date of [the] this section [herein] [1(B)] shall continue to be so transferred to the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund whenever [said] such lands are sold, developed, leased, utilized, transferred, set aside[,] or otherwise disposed of for purposes other than the cultivation of sugarcane. There shall be no ceiling established for the aggregate amount transferred into the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund.

2. Section 213 of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, is amended to add a new subsection (b) (8) to read as follows:

(b) There are established in the treasury of the State [seven] eight special funds, to be known respectively as the Hawaiian home development fund, the Hawaiian home administration account, the Hawaiian loan guarantee fund, the Hawaiian loan interest fund, the borrowed money fund, the Hawaiian home trust fund, [and] the Hawaiian home education fund[.][,] and the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund.

(8) Native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund. Pursuant to Article [XI] XII, Section 1 [(B)], of the State Constitution, thirty percent of the state receipts, derived from lands previously cultivated as sugarcane lands under any other provision of law and from water licenses, shall be deposited into this fund. The department shall use this money solely for the rehabilitation of native Hawaiians which shall include but not be limited to the educational, economic, political, social and cultural processes by which the general welfare and conditions of native Hawaiians are thereby improved and perpetuated.

3. Section 204 is amended to read:

Section 204. [(Control by department of "available lands"[,],) return to board of land and natural resources, when. [)] Upon the passage of this [act,] Act, all available lands shall immediately assume the status of Hawaiian home lands and be under the control of the department to be used and disposed of in accordance with the provisions of this [title] Act, except that:

(1) In case any available land is under lease by the Territory of Hawaii, by virtue of section 73 of the Hawaiian Organic Act, at the time of the passage of this Act, such land shall not assume the status of Hawaiian home lands until the lease expires or the board of land and natural resources withdraws the lands from the operation of the lease. If the land is covered by a lease containing a withdrawal clause, as provided in subdivision (d) of section 73 of the Hawaiian Organic Act, the board of land and natural resources shall withdraw such lands from the operation of the lease whenever the department[, with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior,] gives notice to [it] the board that the department is of the opinion that the lands are required by it for the purposes of this [title] Act; and such withdrawal shall be held to be for a public purpose within the meaning of that term as used in subdivision (d) of section 73 of the Hawaiian Organic Act;

(2) Any available land, including lands selected by the department out of a larger area, as provided by this Act, [as may not be immediately needed for the purposes of this Act,] not leased as authorized by the provisions of section 207(a) of this Act, may be returned to the board of land and natural resources [and may be leased by it as provided in chapter 171, Hawaii Revised Statutes] as provided under section 212 of this Act, or may be retained for management by the department.

[Any lease by the board of land and natural resources of Hawaiian home lands hereafter entered into shall contain a withdrawal clause, and the lands so leased shall be withdrawn by the board of land and natural resources, for the purpose of this Act, upon the department giving at its option, not less than one nor more than five years' notice of such withdrawal; provided, that the minimum withdrawal-notice period shall be specifically stated in such lease.]

In the management of any retained available lands not required for leasing under section 207(a), the department may dispose of such lands to the public, including native Hawaiians, on the same terms, conditions, restrictions and uses applicable to the disposition of public lands as provided in chapter 171[;], Hawaii Revised Statutes; provided[,] that the department may not sell or dispose of such lands in fee simple except as authorized under section 205 of this Act[.]; provided further[,] that the department is expressly authorized to negotiate, prior to negotiations with the general public, the disposition of a lease of Hawaiian home lands to a native Hawaiian, or organization or association owned or controlled by native Hawaiians, for commercial, industrial[,] or other business purposes, in accordance with the procedure set forth in section 171-59, Hawaii Revised Statutes, subject to the notice requirement of section 171-16(c), Hawaii Revised Statutes, and the lease rental limitation imposed by section 171-17(b) [.] , Hawaii Revised Statutes.

[(3) The department shall not lease, use, nor dispose of more than twenty thousand (20,000) acres of the area of Hawaiian home lands, for settlement by native Hawaiians, in any calendar five-year period.]

[4] (3) The department may, with the approval of [the governor and] the Secretary of the Interior, in order to consolidate its holdings or to better effectuate the purposes of this Act, exchange the title to available lands for land, privately or publicly owned, of an equal value. All land so acquired by the department shall assume the status of available lands as though [the same] such land were originally designated as [such] available lands under [Section] section 203 hereof, and all lands so conveyed by the department shall assume the status of the land for which it was exchanged. The limitations imposed by [Section] section 73(1) of the Hawaiian Organic Act and the land laws of Hawaii as to the area and value of land that may be conveyed by way of exchange shall not apply to exchanges made pursuant hereto. No such exchange of land publicly owned by the State shall be made without the approval of two-thirds of the members of the board of land and natural resources. For the purposes of this [sub]paragraph, lands "publicly owned" means land owned by a county or the State or the United States.

4. Section 212 is amended to read:

Section 212. [(Lands returned to control of board of land and natural resources. [.)]
The department may return any Hawaiian home lands not leased as authorized by the provisions of section 207 of this [title] Act to the control of the board of land and natural resources. Any Hawaiian home lands so returned shall, until the department gives notice as hereinafter in this section provided, resume and maintain the status of public lands in accordance with the provisions of the [(Hawaii Revised Statutes[.)]; [except] provided that such lands may not be sold, leased, set aside, used, transferred[,] or otherwise disposed of except under a general lease only. Any lease by the board of Hawaiian home lands hereafter entered into shall contain a withdrawal clause, and the lands so leased shall be withdrawn by the board, for the purpose of this Act, upon the department giving at its option, not less than one nor more than five years' notice of such withdrawal; provided[,] that the minimum withdrawal-notice period shall be specifically stated in such lease. Each such lease, whether or not stipulated therein, shall be deemed subject to the right and duty of the board of land and natural resources to terminate the lease and return the lands to the department whenever the department[, with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior,] gives notice to the board that the department is of the opinion that the lands are required [by it for leasing as authorized by the provisions of section 207 of this title or for a community pasture].

Notwithstanding the provisions of [Hawaii Revised Statutes Section] section 171-95, Hawaii Revised Statutes, in the leasing of Hawaiian home lands by the board to a public utility or other governmental agency, where such use directly benefits the department of Hawaiian home lands or the homestead lessees, the rental may be nominal; in all other instances, the lease rental shall be no less than the value determined in accordance with [Hawaii Revised Statutes Section] section 171-17(b) [.] , Hawaii Revised Statutes.

Any general lease of Hawaiian home lands hereafter entered into by the board shall be [null and] void unless prior to the disposition of [said] such lease by public auction, direct negotiation or otherwise, approval shall be obtained from the department of Hawaiian home lands.

5. Section 221 is amended by adding a new subsection (f):

Section 221. [()Water. ()]

(f) Water systems in the exclusive control of the department shall remain under its exclusive control; if] . If any provision or the application of such provision is inconsistent with the provision contained herein, this section shall control.

Water systems [includes] include all real and personal property together with all improvements to [the same] such systems acquired or constructed by the department for the distribution and control of such water for domestic or agricultural use.

Section 2. In enacting any law imposing a tax on or measured by income, the legislature may define income by reference to provisions of the laws of the United States as they may be or become effective at any time or from time to time, whether retrospective or prospective in their operation. The legislature may provide that amendments to such laws of the United States shall become the law of the State upon their becoming the law of the United States. The legislature shall in any such law set the rate or rates of such tax. The legislature may in so defining income make exceptions, additions or modifications to any provisions of the laws of the United States so referred to and provide for retrospective exceptions or modifications to those provisions which are retrospective.

2. Article VI, Section 2, is amended to read:

APPROPRIATIONS FOR PRIVATE PURPOSES

PROHIBITED

Section [2.] 4. No tax shall be levied or appropriation of public money or property made, nor shall the public credit be used, directly or indirectly, except for a public purpose. No grant shall be made in violation of Section [3] 4 of Article I of this constitution. No grant of public money or property shall be made except pursuant to standards provided by law.

3. Article VI, Section 3, is amended to read:

[BONDS; DEBT LIMITATIONS

Section 3. For the purposes of this section, the term "bonds" shall include bonds, notes and other instruments of indebtedness; the term "general obligation bonds" means all bonds for the payment of the principal and interest of which the full faith and credit of the State or a political subdivision are pledged[; and the term "revenue bonds" means all bonds payable solely from and secured solely by the revenues, or user taxes, or any combination of both, of a public undertaking, improvement or system.] and, unless otherwise indicated, includes reimbursable general obligation bonds; the term "net revenues" or "net user tax receipts" means the revenues or receipts derived from a public undertaking, improvement or system remaining after the costs of operation, maintenance and repair of such public undertaking, improvement or system and the required payments of the principal of and interest on all revenue bonds issued therefor have been made; the term "person" means an individual, firm, partnership, corporation, association, cooperative or other legal entity, governmental body or agency, board, bureau or other instrumentality thereof, or any combination of the foregoing; the term "rates, rentals and charges" means all revenues and other moneys derived from the operation or lease of a public undertaking, improvement or system, or derived from any payments or return on security under a loan program or a loan thereunder; the term "reimbursable general obligation bonds" means general obligation bonds issued for a public undertaking, improvement or system for which revenues, or user taxes, or a combination of both, may be derived for the payment of the principal and interest as reimbursement to the general fund and for which reimbursement is required by law, and, in the case of general obligation bonds issued by the State for a political subdivision, general obligation bonds for which the payment of the principal and interest as reimbursement to the general fund is required by law to be made from the revenue of the political subdivision; the term "revenue bonds" means all bonds payable from the revenues, or user taxes, or any combination of both, of a public undertaking, improvement, system or loan program and any loan made thereunder and secured as may be provided by law; the term "special purpose revenue bonds" means all bonds payable from rental or other payments made to an issuer by a person pursuant to contract and secured as may be provided by law; and the term "user tax" means a tax on goods or services or on the consumption thereof, the receipts of which are substantially derived from the consumption, use or sale of goods and services in the utilization of the functions or services furnished by a public undertaking, improvement or system.]

DEFINITIONS; ISSUANCE OF INDEBTEDNESS

Section [3.] 12. For the purposes of this article:

1. The term "bonds" shall include bonds, notes and other instruments of indebtedness.
2. The term "general obligation bonds" means all bonds for the payment of the principal and interest of which the full faith and credit of the State or a political subdivision are pledged and, unless otherwise indicated, includes reimbursable general obligation bonds.

3. The term "net revenues" or "net user tax receipts" means the revenues or receipts derived from a public undertaking, improvement or system remaining after the costs of operation, maintenance and repair of such public undertaking, improvement or system and the required payments of the principal of and interest on all revenue bonds issued therefor have been made.

4. The term "person" means an individual, firm, partnership, corporation, association, cooperative or other legal entity, governmental body or agency, board, bureau or other instrumentality thereof, or any combination of the foregoing.

5. The term "rates, rentals and charges" means all revenues and other moneys derived from the operation or lease of a public undertaking, improvement or system, or derived from any payments or return on security under a loan program or a loan thereunder.

6. The term "reimbursable general obligation bonds" means general obligation bonds issued for a public undertaking, improvement or system [for] from which revenues, or user taxes, or a combination of both, may be derived for the payment of the principal and interest as reimbursement to the general fund and for which reimbursement is required by law, and, in the case of general obligation bonds issued by the State for a political subdivision, general obligation bonds for which the payment of the principal and interest as reimbursement to the general fund is required by law to be made from the revenue of the political subdivision.

7. The term "revenue bonds" means all bonds payable from the revenues, or user taxes, or any combination of both, of a public undertaking, improvement, system or loan program and any loan made thereunder and secured as may be provided by law.

8. The term "special purpose revenue bonds" means all bonds payable from rental or other payments made to an issuer by a person pursuant to contract and secured as may be provided by law.

9. The term "user tax" means a tax on goods or services or on the consumption thereof, the receipts of which are substantially derived from the consumption, use or sale of goods and services in the utilization of the functions or services furnished by a public undertaking, improvement or system.

[All bonds issued by or on behalf of the State or a political subdivision must be authorized by the legislature, and bonds of a political subdivision must also be authorized by its governing body.] The legislature, by a majority vote of the members to which each house is entitled, shall authorize the issuance of all general obligation bonds, bonds issued under special improvement statutes and revenue bonds issued by or on behalf of the State and shall prescribe by general law the manner and procedure for such issuance. The legislature by general law shall authorize political subdivisions to issue general obligation bonds, bonds issued under special improvement statutes and revenue bonds [and may authorize any board or agency of such political subdivision to issue revenue bonds] and[, in either case,] shall prescribe the manner and procedure for such issuance. All [general obligation] such bonds issued by or on behalf of a political subdivision shall be authorized by the governing body of such political subdivision [and all revenue bonds issued by or on behalf of a political subdivision shall be authorized by the governing body of such political subdivision or the governing body of any board or agency of such political subdivision authorized by law to issue revenue bonds].

Special purpose revenue bonds shall only be authorized or issued to finance facilities of or for, or to loan the proceeds of such bonds to assist, manufacturing, processing or industrial enterprises, utilities serving the general public, health care facilities provided to the general public by not-for-profit corporations or low and moderate income government housing programs, each of which is hereinafter referred to in this paragraph as a special purpose entity. The legislature, [by general law may authorize] by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house is entitled, [and by a separate bill for each authorization and for each different type of project, by general law may authorize] may enact enabling legislation for the issuance of special purpose revenue bonds separately for each special purpose entity, and, by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house is entitled and by separate legislative bill, may authorize the State [or political subdivisions, or both,] to issue special purpose revenue bonds [and, in such case, shall prescribe the manner and procedure for such issuance[.];] for each single project or multi-project program of each special purpose entity; provided that the issuance of such special purpose revenue bonds is found to be in the public interest by the legislature. The legislature may enact enabling legislation to authorize political subdivisions to issue special purpose revenue bonds. If so authorized, a political subdivision by a two-thirds vote of the members to which its governing body is entitled and by separate ordinance may authorize the issuance of special purpose revenue bonds for each single project or multi-project program of each special purpose entity; provided that the issuance of such special purpose revenue bonds is found to be in the public interest by the governing body of the political subdivision. [No special purpose revenue bonds shall be authorized or issued except to finance facilities of or for, or to loan the proceeds of such bonds to assist, manufacturing, processing or industrial enterprises, utilities serving the general public, health care facilities provided to the general public by not-for-profit corporations or low and moderate income government housing programs[, which facilities or loan the legislature finds to be in the public interest].] No special purpose revenue [bond] bonds shall be secured directly or indirectly by the general credit of the issuer or by any revenues or taxes of the issuer other than receipts derived from payments by a person under contract or from any security for such contract or special purpose revenue bonds and no moneys other than such receipts shall be applied to the payment thereof. The governor shall provide the legislature in November of each year with a report on the cumulative amount of all special purpose revenue bonds authorized and issued, and such other information as may be necessary.

DEBT LIMIT; EXCLUSIONS

Section 13. [Bonds] General obligation bonds may be issued by the State [when authorized by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house of the legislature is entitled,]; provided that such bonds at the time of [authorization] issuance would not cause the total [of state indebtedness] amount of principal and interest payable in the current or any future fiscal year, whichever is higher, on such bonds and on all outstanding general obligation bonds to exceed: a sum equal to [three and one-half times] twenty percent of the average of the general fund revenues of the State in the three fiscal years immediately preceding such issuance until June 30, 1982; and thereafter, a sum equal to eighteen and one-half percent of the average of the general fund revenues of the State in the three fiscal years immediately preceding [the session of the legislature authorizing] such issuance. Effective July 1, 1980, the legislature shall include a declaration of findings in every general law authorizing the issuance of general obligation bonds that the total amount of principal and interest, estimated for such bonds and for all bonds authorized and unissued and calculated for all bonds issued and outstanding, will not cause the debt limit to be exceeded at the time of issuance. Any bond issue by or on behalf of the State may exceed the debt limit if an emergency condition is declared to exist by the governor and concurred to by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house of the legislature is entitled. For the purpose of this paragraph, general fund revenues of the State shall not include [monies] moneys received as grants from the federal government and receipts in reimbursement of any [indebtedness that is] reimbursable general obligation bonds which are excluded [in computing the total indebtedness of the State.] as permitted by this section.

[By majority vote of the members to which each house of the legislature is entitled and without regard to any debt limit, there may be issued by or on behalf of the State: bonds to meet appropriations for any fiscal period in anticipation of the collection of revenues for such period or to meet casual deficits or failures of revenue, if required to be paid within one year; bonds to suppress insurrection, to repel invasion, to defend the State in war or to meet emergencies caused by disaster or act of God; and revenue bonds.]

A sum equal to fifteen percent of the total of the assessed values for tax rate purposes of real property in [any] each political subdivision, as determined by the last tax assessment rolls pursuant to law, is established as the limit of the funded debt of such political subdivision that is outstanding and unpaid at any time.

[Bonds to meet appropriations for any fiscal period in anticipation of the collection of revenues for such period or to meet casual deficits or failures of revenue, if required to be paid within one year, may be issued by any political subdivision under authorization of law and of its governing body without regard to any debt limit.]

All general obligation bonds for a term exceeding [one year] two years shall be in serial form maturing in substantially equal installments of principal, or maturing in substantially equal [installment] installments of both principal and interest[, the]. The first installment of principal [to] of general obligation bonds and of reimbursable general obligation bonds shall mature not later than five years from the date of [the] issue of such series[, and the]. The last installment on general obligation bonds shall mature not later than [thirty-five] twenty-five years from the date of such issue[.] and the last installment on general obligation bonds [paid] sold to the federal government, on reimbursable general obligation bonds and on bonds constituting instruments of indebtedness under which the State or a political subdivision incurs a contingent liability as a guarantor shall mature not later than thirty-five years from the date of such issue. The interest and principal payments of general obligation bonds shall be a first charge on the general fund of the State or political subdivision, as the case may be.

[(a)] 1. Bonds that have matured, or that mature in the then current fiscal year, or that have been irrevocably called for redemption and the redemption date has occurred or will occur in the then fiscal year, [and] or for the full payment of which [monies] moneys or securities have been irrevocably set aside.

[(b)] 2. Revenue bonds, [authorized or issued,] if the issuer thereof is obligated by law to impose rates, rentals and charges for the use and services of the public undertaking, improvement or system[,] or the benefits of a loan program or a loan thereunder or to impose a user tax, or to impose a combination of rates, rentals and charges and user tax, as the case may be, sufficient to pay the cost of operation, maintenance and repair, if any, of the public undertaking, improvement or system or the cost of maintaining a loan program or a loan thereunder and the required payments of the principal of and interest on all revenue bonds issued for the public undertaking, improvement or system[,] or loan program, and if the issuer is obligated to deposit such revenues or tax or a combination of both into a special fund and to apply the same to such payments in the amount necessary therefor. [For the purposes of this section a user tax shall mean a tax on goods or services or on the consumption thereof, the receipts of which are substantially derived from the consumption, use or sale of goods and services in the utilization of the functions or services furnished by the public undertaking, improvement or system.]

contract with a person obligating such person to make rental or other payments to the issuer in an amount at least sufficient to make the required payment of the principal of and interest on such special purpose revenue bonds.

[(c)] [(d)] 4. Bonds [authorized or] issued under special improvement statutes when the only security for such bonds is the properties benefited or improved or the assessments thereon.

[(d)] [(e)] 5. General obligation bonds [authorized or] issued for assessable improvements, but only to the extent that reimbursements to the general fund for the principal and interest on such bonds are in fact made from assessment collections available therefor.

[(e)] [(f)] 6. [General] Reimbursable general obligation bonds issued for a public undertaking, improvement or system [from which revenues, user taxes, or a combination of both may be derived for the payment of all or part of the principal and interest as reimbursement to the general fund,] but only to the extent that reimbursements to the general fund are in fact made from the net revenue, or net user tax receipts, or combination of both, as determined for the immediately preceding fiscal year. [For the purposes of this section, net revenue or net user tax receipts shall be the revenue or receipts remaining after the costs of operation, maintenance and repair of such public undertaking, improvement or system and the required payments of the principal of and interest on all revenue bonds issued therefor have been made.]

[(f)] General obligation bonds of the State, authorized but unissued, for an existing public undertaking, improvement or system that produces revenues, or user tax receipts, or a combination of both, but only if in the fiscal year immediately preceding the authorization, the public undertaking, improvement or system produced a net revenue, net user taxes or a combination of both, that was sufficient to pay into the general fund the full amount of the principal and interest then due for all general obligation bonds then outstanding for such public undertaking, improvement or system.]

[(g)] General obligation bonds of the State, authorized but unissued, for an existing public undertaking, improvement or system that has not been self-sustaining as determined for the immediately preceding fiscal year, and that produces revenues, or user tax receipts, or a combination of both, but only if the rates or charges for the use and services of the undertaking have been, or the rate of such user tax has been, increased by law or by the issuing body as authorized by law, in an amount that is determined will produce sufficient net revenue or net user taxes, or any combination thereof, for reimbursement to the general fund for the payment of principal and interest on all general obligation bonds then outstanding and authorized for such public undertaking, improvement or system.]

for any political subdivision, whether issued before or after the effective date of this section, but only for as long as reimbursement by the political subdivision to the State for the payment of principal and interest on such bonds is required by law; provided that in the case of bonds [authorized or] issued after the effective date of this [amendment,] section, the consent of the governing body of the political subdivision has first been obtained; and provided further that during the period that such bonds are excluded [from total indebtedness of] by the State, the principal amount then outstanding shall be included within the funded debt of such political subdivision.

[(h)] 8. Bonds constituting instruments of indebtedness under which the State or any political subdivision incurs a contingent liability as a guarantor, but only to the extent the principal amount of such bonds does not exceed [six] seven percent of the principal amount of all outstanding general obligation bonds not otherwise excluded under this section; provided that the State or political subdivision shall establish and maintain a reserve in an amount in reasonable proportion to the outstanding loans guaranteed by the State or political subdivision as provided by law.

[(i)] 9. Bonds issued by or on behalf of the State or by any political subdivision to meet appropriations for any fiscal period in anticipation of the collection of revenues for such period or to meet casual deficits or failures of revenue, if required to be paid within one year, and bonds issued by or on behalf of the State to suppress insurrection, to repel invasion, to defend the State in war or to meet emergencies caused by disaster or act of God.

[Determinations of the exclusions from the] The total outstanding indebtedness of the State or funded debt of any political subdivision [provided for in] and the exclusions therefrom permitted by this section shall be made annually and certified by law or as [prescribed] provided by law. For the purposes of section [3] 12 and this section, amounts received from on-street parking may be considered and treated as revenues of a parking undertaking.

Nothing in section [3] 12 or in this section shall prevent the refunding of any bond at any time.

4. Article VI, Section 4, is amended to read:

THE BUDGET

Section [4] 8. Within such time prior to the opening of each regular session in an odd-numbered year as may be [prescribed] provided by law, the governor shall submit to the legislature a budget in a form provided by law setting forth a complete plan of proposed expenditures of the executive branch, estimates as provided by law of the aggregate expenditures of the judicial and legislative branches, and anticipated receipts of the State for the ensuing fiscal biennium, together with such other information as the legislature may require. A complete plan of proposed expenditures of the judicial branch for the ensuing fiscal biennium shall be submitted by the chief justice to the legislature in a form and within such time prior to the opening of each regular session in an odd-numbered year as shall be provided by law. The budget prepared by the governor and the plan of proposed expenditures prepared by the chief justice shall also be submitted in [a] bill form [prescribed by law]. The governor shall also, upon the opening of each such session, submit bills to provide for such proposed expenditures and for any recommended additional revenues or borrowings by which the proposed expenditures are to be met. [Such bills shall be introduced in the legislature upon the opening of each such session.] The proposed general fund expenditures in the plan of proposed expenditures, including estimates of the aggregate expenditures of the judicial and legislative branches, submitted by the governor shall not exceed the general fund expenditure ceiling established by the legislature under [Section] section [5] 9 of this article; provided that proposed general fund expenditures in the plan may exceed such ceiling if the governor sets forth the dollar amount and the rate by which the ceiling will be exceeded and the reasons therefor.

5. Article VI, Section 5, is amended to read:

LEGISLATIVE APPROPRIATIONS; PROCEDURES;

[LAPSING;] EXPENDITURE CEILING

Section [5.] 9. In each regular session in an odd-numbered year, the legislature shall transmit to the governor an appropriation bill or bills providing for the anticipated total expenditures of the State for the ensuing fiscal biennium. In such session, no appropriation bill, except bills recommended by the governor for immediate passage, or to cover the expenses of the legislature, shall be passed on final reading until the bill authorizing operating expenditures for the ensuing fiscal biennium, to be known as the general appropriations bill, shall have been transmitted to the governor.

In each regular session in an even-numbered year, at such time as may be [prescribed] provided by law, the governor may submit to the legislature a bill to amend any appropriation for operating expenditures of the current fiscal biennium, to be known as the supplemental appropriations bill, and bills to amend any appropriations for capital expenditures of the current fiscal biennium, and at the same time [he] the governor shall submit a bill or bills to provide for any added revenues or borrowings that such amendments may require. In each regular session in an even-numbered year, bills may be introduced in the legislature to amend any appropriation act or bond authorization act of the current fiscal biennium or prior fiscal periods. In any such session in which the legislature submits to the governor a supplemental appropriations bill, no other appropriation bill, except bills recommended by the governor for immediate passage, or to cover the expenses of the legislature, shall be passed on final reading until such supplemental appropriations bill shall have been transmitted to the governor.

GENERAL FUND EXPENDITURE CEILING

Notwithstanding any other provision to the contrary, the legislature shall establish a general fund expenditure ceiling which shall limit the rate of growth of general fund appropriations, excluding federal funds received by the general fund, to the estimated rate of growth of the State's economy as provided by law. No appropriations in excess of such ceiling shall be authorized during any legislative session unless the legislature shall, by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house of the legislature is entitled, set forth the dollar amount and the rate by which the ceiling will be exceeded and the reasons therefor.

LAPSING OF APPROPRIATIONS

Section 11. All appropriations for which the source is general obligation bond funds or general funds shall be for specified periods, and no such appropriation shall be made for a period exceeding [two] three years. Any such appropriation or any portion of any such appropriation which is unencumbered at the close of the fiscal period for which the appropriation is made shall lapse[.]; provided that no appropriation for which the source is general obligation bond funds nor any portion of any such appropriation shall lapse[;] if the legislature determines such appropriation or any portion of such appropriation is necessary to qualify for federal aid financing and reimbursement. Where general obligation bonds have been authorized for an appropriation, the amount of the bond authorization shall be reduced in an amount equal to the amount lapsed.

Any appropriation for which the source is general obligation bond funds or general funds or any portion of any such appropriation which is effective on the date of ratification of this amendment and which is unencumbered on June 30, 1980 shall lapse on that date unless earlier lapsed by law[.]; provided that no appropriation for which the source is general obligation bond funds nor any portion of any such appropriation shall lapse if the legislature determines such appropriation or any portion of such appropriation is necessary to qualify for federal aid financing and reimbursement. Where general obligation bonds have been authorized for an appropriation, the amount of the bond authorization shall be reduced in an amount equal to the amount lapsed on June 30, 1980.

[Notwithstanding any other provision to the contrary, the legislature shall establish a general fund expenditure ceiling which shall limit the rate of growth of general fund appropriations, excluding federal funds received by the general fund, to the estimated rate of growth of the State's economy as provided by law. No appropriations in excess of such ceiling shall be authorized during any legislative session unless the legislature shall by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house of the legislature is entitled set forth the dollar amount and the rate by which the ceiling will be exceeded and the reasons therefor.]

6. Article VI, Section 6, is amended to read:

EXPENDITURE CONTROLS

Section [6.] 5. Provision for the control of the rate of expenditures of appropriated state [monies,] moneys, and for the reduction of such expenditures under prescribed conditions, shall be made by law.

No public money shall be expended except pursuant to appropriations made by law. General fund expenditures for any fiscal year shall not exceed the State's current general fund revenues and unencumbered cash balances, except when the governor publicly declares the public health, safety or welfare is threatened as provided by law.

7. Article VI, Section 7, is amended to read:

AUDITOR

Section [7.] 10. The legislature, by a majority vote of each house in joint session, shall appoint an auditor who shall serve for a period of eight years and thereafter until a successor shall have been appointed. The legislature, by a two-thirds vote of the members in joint session, may remove the auditor from office at any time for cause. It shall be the duty of the auditor to conduct post-audits of [all] the transactions [and of all], accounts [kept by or for], programs and performance of all departments, offices and agencies of the State and its political subdivisions, to certify to the accuracy of all financial statements issued by the respective accounting officers and to report [his] the auditor's findings and recommendations to the governor and to the legislature at such times as shall be [prescribed] provided by law. [He] The auditor shall also make such additional reports and conduct such other investigations as may be directed by the legislature.

8. Article VII is amended by adding a new section to read:

TRANSFER OF MANDATED PROGRAMS

Section 5. If any new program or increase in the level of service under an existing program shall be mandated to any of the political subdivisions by the legislature, it shall provide that the State share in the cost.

9. Article XVI, Section 8, reading as follows, is deleted:

[START OF BIENNIAL BUDGETING

AND APPROPRIATIONS

Section 8. Anything in this constitution to the contrary notwithstanding, the provisions relating to biennial budgeting and appropriations in Article VI shall take effect for the biennial period beginning July 1, 1971.]

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL NO. 17

RELATING TO CONSERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT OF RESOURCES.

RESOLVED, that the following be agreed upon as amending Articles X and XVI of the State Constitution.

1. Article X, Section 1, reading as follows, is deleted:

[RESOURCES; CONSERVATION, DEVELOPMENT AND USE

Section 1. The legislature shall promote the conservation, development and utilization of agricultural resources, and fish, mineral, forest, water, land, game and other natural resources.]

*This bracketed material was deleted by floor amendment in the Committee of the Whole debate; however, the correction was inadvertently omitted, and the bracketed material retained, in subsequent drafts of the amendment as presented for final reading.

For background, discussion and rationale on the amendments proposed herein, refer to Stand. Com. Rep. No. 77, Com. Whole Rep. No. 18, Stand. Com. Rep. No. 100, Stand. Com. Rep. No. 104 and the appropriate Second Reading debate.

2. Article X is amended by adding a new section to be designated Section 1 and to read:

CONSERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT OF RESOURCES

Section 1. For the benefit of present and future generations, the State and its political subdivisions shall conserve and protect Hawaii's natural beauty and all natural resources, including land, water, air, minerals[,] and energy sources[;], and shall promote the development and utilization of these resources in a manner consistent with their conservation and in furtherance of the self-sufficiency of the State.

All public natural resources are held in trust by the State for the benefit of the people.

3. Article X, Section 3, is amended to read:

[SEA FISHERIES] MARINE RESOURCES

Section [3.] 6. The State shall have the power to manage and control the marine, seabed and other resources located [inside] within the boundaries of the State, including the archipelagic waters of the State, and reserves to itself all such rights outside [State] state boundaries not specifically limited by federal or international law.

All fisheries in the sea waters of the State not included in any fish pond, [or] artificial [inclosure] enclosure[,] or state-licensed [marine] [mari-culture] mariculture operation shall be free to the public subject to vested rights and the right of the State to regulate the same[.][,]; provided that [mari-culture] mariculture operations shall be established under guidelines enacted by the legislature, which shall protect the public's use and enjoyment of the reefs. The State may condemn such vested rights for public use.

4. Article XVI, Section 13, reading as follows, is deleted:

[CONDEMNATION OF FISHERIES

Section 13. All vested rights in fisheries in the sea waters not included in any fish pond or artificial inclosure shall be condemned to the use of the public upon payment of just compensation, which compensation, when lawfully ascertained, shall be paid out of any money in the treasury of the State not otherwise appropriated.]

5. Article X, Section 5, reading as follows, is deleted:

[FARM AND HOME OWNERSHIP

Section 5. The public lands shall be used for the development of farm and home ownership on as widespread a basis as possible, in accordance with procedures and limitations prescribed by law.]

6. Article X is amended by adding a new section to be designated Section 5 and to read:

AGRICULTURAL LANDS

Section [5.] 3. The State shall conserve and protect agricultural lands, promote diversified agriculture, increase agricultural self-sufficiency[,] and assure the availability of agriculturally suitable lands. The legislature shall [enact laws that will set forth] provide standards and criteria [applicable] to accomplish the foregoing.

[Reclassification of lands indentified by the State as "prime", "unique", or "other important" agricultural lands in agricultural districts shall be subject to approval by two thirds of each house of the legislature. These lands shall be protected and maintained for bona fide agricultural use. Necessary support facilities are permissible.]

Lands identified by the State as important agricultural lands needed to fulfill the purposes above shall not be reclassified by the State or rezoned by its political subdivisions without meeting the standards and criteria established by the legislature and approved by a two-thirds vote of the body responsible for the reclassification or rezoning action.

7. Article X is amended by adding a new section to be appropriately designated and to read:

PUBLIC LAND BANKING

Section 4. The State shall have the power to acquire interests in real property to control future growth, development and land use within the State. The exercise of such power is deemed to be for a public use and purpose.

8. Article X is amended by adding a new section to be appropriately designated and to read:

WATER RESOURCES

Section 7. [All waters shall be held by the State as a public trust for the people of Hawaii.] The State has an obligation to protect, control and regulate the use of Hawaii's water resources for the benefit of its people.

The [Legislature] legislature shall provide for a water resources agency which, as provided by law, shall[, in accordance with] set[, as provided by law,] [set] overall water conservation, quality and use policies; define beneficial and reasonable uses; protect [groundwater] ground and surface water resources, watersheds[,] and natural stream environments; establish criteria for water use priorities while assuring appurtenant rights and existing correlative and riparian uses[;] and establish procedures for regulating all [new] uses of Hawaii's water resources.

9. Article X is amended by adding a new section to be appropriately designated and to read:

ENVIRONMENTAL RIGHTS

Section 9. Each person has the right to a clean and healthful environment, as defined by laws relating to environmental quality, including control of pollution [control] and [natural resources] conservation, protection[,] and enhancement[.] of natural resources. Any person may enforce this right against any party, public or private, through appropriate legal proceedings, subject to reasonable limitations and regulation as provided by law.

10. Article X is amended by adding a new section to be appropriately designated and to read:

NUCLEAR ENERGY

Section 8. No nuclear fission power plant shall be constructed or radioactive material disposed of in the State [of Hawaii] without the prior approval by a two-thirds vote in each house of the legislature.

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL NO. 18

RELATING TO THE USE OF NONDISCRIMINATORY TERMS IN THE CONSTITUTION.

RESOLVED, that the following be agreed upon as amending the State Constitution.*

1. Article I, Section 2, is amended to read:

RIGHTS OF [MAN] INDIVIDUALS

Section 2. All persons are free by nature and are equal in their inherent and inalienable rights. Among these rights are the enjoyment of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and the acquiring and possessing of property. These rights cannot endure unless the people recognize their corresponding obligations and responsibilities.

[2. Article I, Section 4, is amended to read:

DUE PROCESS AND EQUAL PROTECTION

Section 4. No person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor be denied the equal protection of the laws, nor be denied the enjoyment of [his] the person's civil rights or be discriminated against in the exercise thereof because of race, religion, sex or ancestry.]

[3.] 2. Article I, Section 8, is amended to read:

INDICTMENT [,] ; DOUBLE JEOPARDY [,] ; SELF-INCRIMINATION

Section [8.] 10. No person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the armed forces when in actual service in time of war or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy; nor shall any person be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against [himself.] oneself.

[4. Article I, Section 11, is amended to read:

RIGHTS OF ACCUSED

Section 11. In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, or of such other district to which the prosecution may be removed with the consent of the accused; to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against [him;] the accused; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in [his] the accused's favor; and to have the assistance of counsel for [his] the accused's defense. The State shall provide counsel for an indigent defendant charged with an offense punishable by imprisonment for more than sixty days.]

[5.] 3. Article II, Section 2, is amended to read:

DISQUALIFICATION

Section 2. No person who is non compos mentis shall be qualified to vote. No person convicted of a felony shall be qualified to vote except upon [his] the person's final discharge or earlier as provided by law.

[6.] 4. Article II, Section 3, is amended to read:

RESIDENCE

Section 3. No person shall be deemed to have gained or lost residence simply because of [his] the person's presence or absence while employed in the service of the United States, or while engaged in navigation or while a student at any institution of learning.

[7.] 5. Article III, Section 7, is amended to read:

QUALIFICATIONS OF MEMBERS

Section [7.] 6. No person shall be eligible to serve as a member of the senate unless [he] the person shall have been a resident of the State for not less than three years, have attained the age of majority and be a qualified voter of the senatorial district from which [he] the person seeks to be elected. No person shall be eligible to serve as a member of the house of representatives unless [he] the person shall have been a resident of the State for not less than three years, have attained the age of majority and be a qualified voter of the representative district from which [he] the person seeks to be elected.

[8.] 6. Article III, Section 8, is amended to read:

PRIVILEGE OF MEMBERS

Section [8.] 7. No member of the legislature shall be held to answer before any other tribunal for any statement made or action taken in the exercise of [his] the member's legislative functions; and members of the legislature shall, in all cases except felony or breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the sessions of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same.

[9.] 7. Article III, Section 9, is amended to read:

DISQUALIFICATIONS OF MEMBERS

Section [9.] 8. No member of the legislature shall hold any other public office under the State, nor shall [he,] the member, during the term for which [he] the member is elected or appointed, be elected or appointed to any public office or employment which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased, by legislative act during such term. The term "public office[",],"," for the purposes of this section, shall not include notaries public, reserve police officers or officers of emergency organizations for civilian defense or disaster relief. The legislature may prescribe further disqualifications.

[10.] 8. Article III, Section 17, is amended to read:

APPROVAL OR VETO

Section [17.] 16. Every bill which shall have passed the legislature shall be certified by the presiding officers and clerks of both houses and shall thereupon be presented to the governor. If [he] the governor approves it, [he] the governor shall sign it and it shall become law. If the governor does not approve such bill, [he] the governor may return it, with [his] the governor's objections to the legislature. Except for items appropriated to be expended by the judicial and legislative branches, [he] the governor may veto any specific item or items in any bill which appropriates money for specific purposes by striking out or reducing the same; but [he] the governor shall veto other bills, if at all, only as a whole.

The governor shall have ten days to consider bills presented to [him] the governor ten or more days before the adjournment of the legislature sine die, and if any such bill is neither signed nor returned by the governor within that time, it shall become law in like manner as if [he] the governor had signed it.

RECONSIDERATION AFTER ADJOURNMENT

The governor shall have forty-five days, after the adjournment of the legislature sine die, to consider bills presented to [him] the governor less than ten days before such adjournment, or presented after adjournment, and any such bill shall become law on the forty-fifth day unless the governor by proclamation shall have given ten days' notice to the legislature that [he] the governor plans to return such bill with [his] the governor's objections on that day. The legislature may convene at or before noon on the forty-fifth day in special session, without call, for the sole purpose of acting upon any such bill returned by the governor. In case the legislature shall fail to so convene, such bill shall not become law. Any such bill may be amended to meet the governor's objections and, if so amended and passed, only one reading being required in each house for such passage, it shall be presented again to the governor, but shall become law only if [he] the governor shall sign it within ten days after presentation.

In computing the number of days designated in this section, the following days shall be excluded: Saturdays, Sundays, holidays [,] and any days in which the legislature is in recess prior to its adjournment as provided in [Section 11.] section 10 of this article.

[11.] 9. Article III, Section 19, is amended to read:

PUNISHMENT OF NONMEMBERS

Section [19.] 18. Each house may punish by fine, or by imprisonment not exceeding thirty days, any person not a member of either house who shall be guilty of disrespect of such house by any disorderly or contemptuous behavior in its presence or that of any committee thereof; or who shall, on account of the exercise of any legislative function, threaten harm to the body or estate of any of the members of such house; or who shall assault, arrest or detain any witness or other person ordered to attend such house, on [his] the witness' or other person's way going to or returning therefrom; or who shall rescue any person arrested by order of such house.

Any person charged with such an offense shall be informed in writing of the charge made against [him,] the person and have opportunity to present evidence and be heard in [his] the person's own defense.

[12.] 10. Article IV, Section 3, is amended to read:

COMPENSATION: GOVERNOR, LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Section 3. The compensation of the governor and of the lieutenant governor shall be [prescribed] as provided by law, but shall not be less than thirty-three thousand five hundred dollars, and twenty-seven thousand five hundred dollars, respectively, a year. Such compensation shall not be increased or decreased for their respective terms, unless by general law applying to all salaried officers of the State. When the lieutenant governor succeeds to the office of the governor, [he] the lieutenant governor shall receive the compensation for that office.

[13.] 11. Article IV, Section 4, is amended to read:

SUCCESSION TO GOVERNORSHIP;

ABSENCE OR DISABILITY OF GOVERNOR

Section 4. When the office of the governor is vacant, the lieutenant governor shall become governor. In the event of the absence of the governor from the State, or [his] the governor's inability to exercise and discharge the powers and duties of [his] the governor's office, such powers and duties shall devolve upon the lieutenant governor during such absence or disability.

When the office of lieutenant governor is vacant, or in the event of the absence of the lieutenant governor from the State, or [his] the lieutenant governor's inability to exercise and discharge the powers and duties of [his] the lieutenant governor's office, such powers and duties shall devolve upon such officers in such order of succession as may be provided by law.

In the event of the impeachment of the governor or of the lieutenant governor, [he] the governor or the lieutenant governor shall exercise the powers of [his] the applicable office until acquitted.

[14.] 12. Article IV, Section 5, is amended to read:

EXECUTIVE POWERS

Section 5. The governor shall be responsible for the faithful execution of the laws. [He] The governor shall be commander in chief of the armed forces of the State and may call out such forces to execute the laws, suppress or prevent insurrection or lawless violence or repel invasion. [He] The governor shall, at the beginning of each session, and may, at other times, give to the legislature information concerning the affairs of the State and recommend to its consideration such measures as [he] the governor shall deem expedient.

The governor may grant reprieves, commutations and pardons, after conviction, for all offenses, subject to regulation by law as to the manner of applying for the same. The legislature may, by general law, authorize the governor to grant pardons before conviction, to grant pardons for impeachment and to restore civil rights denied by reason of conviction of offenses by tribunals other than those of this State.

The governor shall appoint an administrative director to serve at [his] the governor's pleasure.

[15. Article V, Section 2, is amended to read:

SUPREME COURT

Section 2. The supreme court shall consist of a chief justice and four associate justices. When necessary, the chief justice shall assign a judge or judges of a circuit court to serve temporarily on the supreme court. As prescribed by law, retired justices of the supreme court also may serve temporarily on the supreme court at the request of the chief justice. In case of a vacancy in the office of chief justice, or if [he] the chief justice is ill, absent or otherwise unable to serve, an associate justice designated in accordance with the rules of the supreme court shall serve temporarily in [his] the chief justice's place.]

[16. Article V, Section 3, is amended to read:

APPOINTMENT OF JUSTICES AND JUDGES

Section 3. The governor shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint the justices of the supreme court and the judges of the circuit courts. No nomination shall be sent to the senate, and no interim appointment shall be made when the senate is not in session, until after ten days' public notice by the governor.

QUALIFICATIONS

No justice or judge shall hold any other office or position of profit under the State or the United States. No person shall be eligible for the office of justice or judge unless [he] the person shall have been admitted to practice law before the supreme court of this State for at least ten years. Any justice or judge who shall become a candidate for an elective office shall thereby forfeit [his] any state judicial office [.] held.

TENURE; COMPENSATION; RETIREMENT

The term of office of a justice of the supreme court and of a judge of a circuit court shall be ten years. They shall receive for their services such compensation as may be prescribed by law, but no less than twenty-eight thousand dollars for the chief justice, twenty-seven thousand dollars for associate justices and twenty-five thousand dollars for circuit court judges, a year. Their compensation shall not be decreased during their respective terms of office, unless by general law applying to all salaried officers of the State. They shall be retired upon attaining the age of seventy years. They shall be included in any retirement law of the State.]

[17. Article V, Section 4, is amended to read:

RETIREMENT FOR INCAPACITY AND REMOVAL

Section 4. Whenever a commission or agency, authorized by law for such purpose, shall certify to the governor that any justice of the supreme court or judge of a circuit court appears to be so incapacitated as substantially to prevent [him] the justice or judge from performing [his] judicial duties or has acted in a manner that constitutes wilful misconduct in office, wilful and persistent failure to perform [his] judicial duties, habitual intemperance, or conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice that brings the judicial office into disrepute, the governor shall appoint a board of three persons, as provided by law, to inquire into the circumstances. If the board recommends that the justice or judge should not remain in office, the governor shall remove or retire [him] the justice or judge from office.]

[18.] [15.] 13. Article V, Section 5, is amended to read:

ADMINISTRATION

Section [5.] 6. The chief justice of the supreme court shall be the administrative head of the courts. [He] The chief justice may assign judges from one circuit court to another for temporary service. With the approval of the supreme court [he] the chief justice shall appoint an administrative director to serve at [his] the chief justice's pleasure.

[19.] [16.] [14. Article VI, Section 5, is amended to read:

LEGISLATIVE APPROPRIATIONS; PROCEDURES

Section 5. In each regular session in an odd-numbered year, the legislature shall transmit to the governor an appropriation bill or bills providing for the anticipated total expenditures of the State for the ensuing fiscal biennium. In such session, no appropriation bill, except bills recommended by the governor for immediate passage, or to cover the expenses of the legislature, shall be passed on final reading until the bill authorizing operating expenditures for the ensuing fiscal biennium, to be known as the general appropriations bill, shall have been transmitted to the governor.

In each regular session in an even-numbered year, at such time as may be prescribed by law, the governor may submit to the legislature a bill to amend any appropriation for operating expenditures of the current fiscal biennium, to be known as the supplemental appropriations bill, and bills to amend any appropriations for capital expenditures of the current fiscal biennium, and at the same time [he] the governor shall submit a bill or bills to provide for any added revenues or borrowings that such amendments may require. In each regular session in an even-numbered year, bills may be introduced in the legislature to amend any appropriation act or bond authorization act of the current fiscal biennium or prior fiscal periods. In any such session in which the legislature submits to the governor a supplemental appropriations bill, no other appropriation bill, except bills recommended by the governor for immediate passage, or to cover the expenses of the legislature, shall be passed on final reading until such supplemental appropriations bill shall have been transmitted to the governor.]

[20.] [17.] [15.] Article VI, Section 7, is amended to read:

AUDITOR

Section 7. The legislature, by a majority vote of each house in joint session, shall appoint an auditor who shall serve for a period of eight years and thereafter until a successor shall have been appointed. The legislature, by a two-thirds vote of the members in joint session, may remove the auditor from office at any time for cause. It shall be the duty of the auditor to conduct post-audits of all transactions and of all accounts kept by or for all departments, offices and agencies of the State and its political subdivisions, to certify to the accuracy of all financial statements issued by the respective accounting officers and to report [his] the auditor's findings and recommendations to the governor and to the legislature at such times as shall be prescribed by law. [He] The auditor shall also make such additional reports and conduct such other investigations as may be directed by the legislature.]

[21.] [18.] [16.] 14. Article XIV, Section 13, is amended to read:

TITLES, SUBTITLES[, PERSONAL PRONOUNS]; CONSTRUCTION

Section [13.] 14. Titles and subtitles shall not be used for purposes of construing this constitution.

[Whenever any personal pronoun appears in this constitution, it shall be construed to mean either sex.]

Digest of Proposals Offered by Delegates

Committee proposals, the actual vehicles employed by the Convention in adopting the several articles which comprise the Constitution, are set forth in the preceding Documents section.

The proposals made by individual delegates--which initiated committee consideration of the various subject matter areas and which were frequently incorporated in committee proposals--are digested on the following pages in the form of summaries.

Names of the delegates introducing particular proposals can be ascertained from the Journal.

1 - Requires counties to establish neighborhoods and neighborhood boards to increase effective citizen participation in county government.

2 - Allows counties to establish neighborhoods and neighborhood boards to increase effective citizen participation in county government. Requires counties establishing neighborhoods and neighborhood boards to provide operational funds for such boards based on percent of the total county budget and distributed to each neighborhood board in a proportion equal to the proportion the number of registered voters in each neighborhood is to the total number of registered voters in the county. Empowers neighborhood boards to recommend and determine priorities for capital expenditures to the state legislature and to review and make recommendations on any general plan, development plan, zoning change and building permit requests within the neighborhood.

Provides that in any session where the legislature enacts an appropriation bill for capital expenditures or bond authorizations for capital expenditures, the legislature is required to provide for the implementation of the bill, or items or authorizations within the bill, based on priorities that may be established by county neighborhood boards and submitted to the legislature 30 days prior to the convening of that session.

3 - Provides the board of education and the board of regents of the University of Hawaii with power to adopt rules and regulations without approval of the governor.

4 - Requires preservation of secrecy of the political party of the person voting if the person is not a candidate.

5 - Provides for election by qualified voters of members of board of regents of the University of Hawaii. Deletes appointment of board by the governor subject to the advice and consent of the senate.

6 - Requires that constitutional conventions be held at the state capitol unless it is unsafe, whereupon the governor may direct that the convention be held at another place. Provides convention will have same powers and privileges as convention of 1978 instead of 1968.

7 - Provides that it shall be the duty of the State, instead of merely giving the State the power, to conserve and develop its natural beauty, objects and places of historic or cultural interest, public sightliness and good order.

8 - Redefines the boundaries of the State of Hawaii by amending the Constitution to describe the state as being all islands located in the Pacific Ocean about 2,100 miles southwest from San Francisco between 18 degrees and 23 degrees north latitude and 154 degrees and 161 degrees west longitude. Deletes description that the State of Hawaii includes territorial waters included in the Territory of Hawaii on the date of enactment of the Admission Act. Provides a detailed description by naming the islands and their respective areas that are within the state boundary: Hawaii, Maui, Oahu, Kauai, Molokai, Lanai, Niihau, Kahoolawe, Molokini, Lehua, Nihoa, Laysan, Gardeners Island, Liscansky Island, Ocean Island, Necker Island, Palmyra Island, Kaula and French Frigate Shoal.

- 9 - Provides that no person shall establish title to an estate or an interest in real property by claiming, under color of title, a continuous, actual and exclusive possession of such land.
- 10 - Provides that the State of Hawaii shall pay for all the expenses, including attorneys' fees, in securing land court titles to all estates or interests in real property when title to these lands is in dispute.
- 11 - Makes it mandatory instead of discretionary for the legislature to provide for presidential preference primaries each year in which a President of the United States is to be nominated.
- 12 - Provides that no person shall be denied economic security under the law and requires legislature to establish state and local governments as employers of last resort for all those who are willing and are able to work.
- 13 - Prohibits mandatory retirement solely on the basis of age.
- 14 - Provides that it shall be the policy of the State to promote the preservation of agricultural lands, and that the State shall purchase agricultural land at fair market value whenever such land is offered to the State. Requires the legislature to implement this section and to appropriate moneys as needed for implementation.
- 15 - Provides that no citizen shall be denied the right to adequate medical care in accordance with the law.
- 16 - Establishes a state system of community colleges and constitutes it as a body corporate which shall have title to all the real and personal property now or hereafter set aside or conveyed to it to be held in public trust for its purposes, and administered and disposed of according to law. Creates a board of governors of the state system of community colleges consisting of 9 members elected by qualified voters in accordance with law.
- 17 - Provides for control of highways and parks by political subdivisions unless otherwise required by the United States laws.
- 18 - Provides for a public education coordinator to be appointed and removed by the governor for the purpose of coordinating the plans, policies and activities for the state systems of lower and higher education.
- 19 - Requires government to inform and gives people right to secure facts, motives, and reasons for governmental action and requires meetings, decisions, policies and rules be conducted or adopted as openly as possible and made available to public as soon as possible. Allows meetings and records to be closed only as expressly provided by law.
- 20 - Provides that the state debt limit shall be the lesser of (1) a sum equal to 3-1/2 times the average of the general fund revenues of the State in the 3 fiscal years immediately preceding the session of the legislature authorizing the issuance of bonds, or (2) the expenditure of more than _____ per cent of the total state budget in any fiscal year for debt service.
- 21 - Requires the establishment of a general fund expenditure ceiling for each fiscal biennium by the legislature by concurrent resolution. Provides that the ceiling shall not be exceeded, except by a 2/3 vote of the legislature. Provides that no bill other than the legislative expense bill and bills recommended by the governor for immediate passage shall pass until the ceiling is established.
- 22 - Provides that no bill shall pass third or final reading in the form to be passed unless copies are available to the members of either house and the public for 72 hours and provides that otherwise 24 hours shall elapse between readings.
- 23 - Allows the legislature in enacting laws imposing a tax measured by income to define income by reference to provisions of the laws of the United States as they may or become effective at any time or from time to time, whether retrospective or prospective in operation. Allows legislature to provide that amendments to such United States law become the law of the State upon becoming the law of the United States. Requires the legislature in any such law to set the rate or rates of such tax. Allows the legislature in defining income to make exceptions, additions or modifications to the United States laws referred to and to provide for retrospective exceptions or modifications to the provisions which are retrospective.

24 - Provides that authorized but unissued bonds and unencumbered and unexpended balances of appropriations lapse 3 years after the effective date of the act making the authorization or appropriation, except that, as provided by law, authorizations or appropriations necessary to qualify for federal-aid financing and reimbursement shall not lapse. Provides that existing authorizations and appropriations on the date of ratification of this amendment lapse on June 30, 1979, if the bonds are unissued or the appropriation balances are unencumbered and unexpended.

25 - Provides for 90-day regular sessions of the legislature. Requires the legislature to set deadlines for bill introduction, third reading in the first house, and third reading in the second house. Requires a 10-day recess after each deadline, to start the day after such deadline. Provides that the 90-day regular session includes the 10-day recesses.

26 - Provides that there shall be an elected attorney general having the same qualifications as the governor; admitted to practice law before the supreme court of this State for at least 5 years; to be elected at the same time, for the same term and in the same manner as the governor and to perform such duties as may be prescribed by law; and not subject to the supervision or removal by the governor. Provides amendment shall not apply to any person holding the office of attorney general when amendment takes effect or to any person who may hold office of attorney general or act as attorney general and shall not prevent any such person from taking or holding the office of attorney general or so acting until the initial election of the attorney general in

Provides until the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, , the removal of the chief legal officer of the State shall continue to be subject to the advice and consent of the senate.

27 - Staggers terms of senators as of 1978. Requires senators elected in 1978 to draw lots to determine whether they serve 6 or 4 years. After staggered terms are established, all will run for 4-year terms.

Provides that in districts with:

1. 1 senator - the senator serves a 4-year term.
2. 2 senators - 1 senator serves 6 years, 1 senator 4 years.
3. 3 senators - 2 senators serve 6 years, 1 senator 4 years.
4. 4 senators - 2 senators serve 6 years, 2 senators 4 years.

Requires the reapportionment commission to designate which district is to be represented by senators whose terms extend past reapportionment. Provides in making such designation the senator need not live in the district the senator is designated to represent. Requires commission in making designation to consider (1) the senatorial district the senator was elected from, (2) the senatorial district in which the senator will reside under the reapportionment plan, and (3) the requirement of continuing staggered terms and the number of senators in a senatorial district under the commission's reapportionment plan. Requires the commission to give no consideration to holdover senators in redistricting. Deletes minimum representation for basic island units.

28 - Requires reapportionment commission to make reapportionment plan for Congress, makes members of commission ineligible for Congress for first 2 elections under plan, and requires commission to redraw congressional district lines as may be required by law.

29 - Proposes to use 1978 convention instead of 1968 convention as the base year on which future constitutional conventions, number of delegates, districts, convening, powers and privileges would be consistent with, in the event the legislature does not provide otherwise.

30 - Recognizes right of the people to a healthful environment, clean air and water, freedom from excessive and unnecessary noise and the natural, scenic, historic and esthetic qualities of their environment for the benefit of this and future generations. Allows each person to enforce these rights against the government or private persons through legal proceedings, subject to reasonable limitations and regulations as provided by law.

31 - Provides that a code of ethics adopted by the legislature shall also apply to Constitutional Convention delegates.

32 - Provides for a board of education composed of 9 members, each of whom shall be elected at-large, instead of members who shall be elected by qualified voters in accordance with law. Requires that at least 7 of the 9 members shall be a resident of the following districts: Hawaii school district, Maui school district, Honolulu school district, Central Oahu school district, Leeward Oahu school district, Windward Oahu school district and Kauai school district. Sets forth district boundaries.

Deletes requirement that at least part of the membership of the board represent geographic subdivisions of the State.

33 - Provides that the legislature shall have the power to promote and maintain a healthful environment for the people and to enact legislation to prevent excessive demands on the environment and the State's resources.

34 - Provides that the State shall have the power to plan and manage its population growth to protect and preserve the public health and welfare.

35 - Provides that the legislature shall have the power to develop and implement a selective growth management program to protect and enhance the environment, promote the proper allocation of physical and natural resources and maintain and improve the socio-economic conditions of the people.

36 - Gives the legislature the power to assure that sufficient groundwater is made available for public use.

37 - Gives the State the power to manage its growth to efficiently utilize the State's resources.

38 - Provides that the State shall have power to provide assistance for persons unable to maintain a standard of living compatible with decency and health subject to the following:

Provides that any program of public assistance wholly administered and funded by the State is restricted to bona fide state residents unable to support themselves or their dependents, who are disabled, or 55 years or older or who have dependent children.

Provides that bona fide residency shall be determined in accordance with law and provides determination shall consider, but not be limited to, enrollment and receipt of welfare benefits from another jurisdiction, physical presence and maintenance of a place of residence in the State, availability of furnishing and household and personal effects leading to a reasonable conclusion that the place of residence is more than a public accommodation, qualification as to residence for voting purposes, change in vehicle operation license, vehicle registration, enrollment of children in local schools and location of bank accounts.

Gives the State power to provide public assistance to persons who are disabled, between the ages of 18 and 65 and found to be in need thereof consistent with law, not covered or eligible for such assistance under a federal program and unable to work at least 30 hours a week due to a physical or mental impairment as determined and certified by a licensed physician subject to law. Provides that persons eligible for public assistance as a disabled person may be referred for and required to participate in vocational rehabilitation programs, to seek employment and to participate in public work projects and public employment projects as conditions of eligibility.

Gives the State the power to provide public assistance to persons with children and to persons 55 years of age or older, if they are unemployed for reasons other than voluntary separation without good cause or for misconduct, are actively and diligently seeking gainful employment, have not refused to accept employment when offered, are registered and available for work as required by law for eligibility for unemployment compensation benefits and have exhausted their rights, if any, to benefits under unemployment compensation; provided that persons receiving unemployment compensation benefits at a level less than public assistance benefits may be provided public assistance equivalent to the difference between the benefits being received and the public assistance otherwise entitled to, but for the receipt of unemployment compensation benefits. Defines child as a person ineligible for and unable to receive assistance from any federal program, in need and without sufficient income or resources for health care and support to maintain a standard set by law, less than 18 years of age or 18 to 21 years of age and attending 96 - Provides for initiative and referendum powers for statutory and constitutional amendments.

Requires an initiative or referendum application to be signed by no less than 100 persons who are registered voters who voted in the last gubernatorial election to be filed with the lieutenant governor for certification. Prohibits the lieutenant governor from making judgments as to the substance of the proposed measure. Subjects denial of certification to judicial review. Limits an initiative measure to 1 subject.

Requires the lieutenant governor, after certification, to prepare a petition containing the text of the proposed measure and a summary of the subject matter for circulation by the sponsors. To qualify for submission to the voters, requires signatures of percent of the votes for all gubernatorial candidates cast by registered voters. Requires that the signatures on the petition be from all counties with the number of signatures from each county in relation to the minimum number of signatures required in the same proportion as the number of votes cast from each county in relation to total votes cast in the preceding gubernatorial election.

Allows an initiative petition to be filed at any time. Requires the lieutenant governor to prepare a ballot title and proposition summarizing the proposed change for placement on the ballot for the first general election after adjournment of the regular legislative session following the petition filing. Voids a petition if the exact same measure is enacted by the legislature. Requires that any act similar to the initiative measure passed by the legislature before the election be placed on the ballot together with the initiative measure. Allows the governor to call a special statewide election for an initiative measure.

Prohibits initiative measures that name any individual to head office or private corporations to perform a function or to have any power or duty.

Provides that initiatives prohibiting a specific activity or terminating an existing right or privilege shall be submitted to the people in such form that an affirmative vote is a vote in favor of the right to engage in the activity or continuance of the right or privilege.

Provides that if after an initiative request is made with the lieutenant governor, any bill similar or contrary to the initiative request is enacted by the legislature, that law and the initiative measure shall both be submitted to the people and the measure receiving the highest number of votes shall prevail. Voids the similar or contrary law if the initiative measure is approved. Provides that the similar or contrary law shall remain in effect pending the general election ballot. Provides that if the lieutenant governor determines that a law enacted is the same or similar to and accomplishes the same purpose as an initiative measure, the lieutenant governor shall declare the initiative measure void by public announcement and order it stricken from the ballot.

Prohibits resubmittal of a defeated initiative measure by petition in either the same form or essential substance as determined by the lieutenant governor for a period of years.

Provides that referendum petitions may be filed only within 90 days after adjournment of the legislative session which passed the act. Requires the lieutenant governor to prepare a ballot title and proposition summarizing the act for placement on the ballot at the next general election. Allows the governor to call a special statewide election for a referendum measure. Provides that when a referendum petition is signed by percent of the registered voters who voted in the last gubernatorial election, a special statewide election shall be held in the calendar year that the petition is filed 180 days after the adjournment of the session which passed the act to be referred. Provides that upon the filing and certification of a referendum petition with the requisite number of signatures, the operation of the act or part thereof being referred to the people shall be suspended without delaying the operation of the remainder of the act.

Provides that initiative and referendum measures approved by a majority of votes from each congressional district become effective the day after the election unless otherwise provided in the measure. Provides that when 2 or more conflicting measures are approved at the same election, the measure receiving the highest affirmative vote shall prevail.

Prohibits veto of initiative statutes and legislative repeal within 2 years of its effective date. Provides that no initiative or referendum measure approved by the electorate shall be subject to legislative repeal or amendment except upon a roll call vote approval of 2/3 of the members of each house.

Prohibits use of initiatives to make or repeal appropriations for current expenses of programs and agencies at least 2 years old, to create courts or define jurisdiction of courts or prescribe court rules. Prohibits application of the referendum to appropriations for current expenses of programs and agencies at least 2 years old or to laws necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health, peace or safety. Requires that such laws pass the legislature by a roll call vote of 2/3 of the members of each house and contain separate sections explaining why such law is necessary.

Requires the lieutenant governor to prepare a publication containing arguments for and against the proposed initiative or referendum. Requires the lieutenant governor to send such publication to all individual residences in the State and to make any additional distribution necessary to reasonably assure each voter the opportunity to study the measures prior to the election. Allows the legislature to substitute the preparation of the publication with any other reasonable method of publicity. Requires the legislature to provide funds to the lieutenant governor to carry out duties prescribed in this proposal.

Allows the enactment of laws to facilitate the operation of this proposal but prohibits the enactment of laws that hamper, restrict or impair the exercise of the initiative and referendum rights.

Amends the legislature provisions to provide that the people reserve the powers of initiative and referendum and to clarify that only laws passed by the legislature be by bill.

Amends revision and amendment provisions to allow constitutional revision and amendment by the people through the power of the initiative. Prohibits veto of constitutional amendments adopted through the initiative process. Provides that when the legislature and the people propose conflicting revisions or amendments and both are approved, the one with the highest vote shall prevail. Provides that when conflicting revisions or amendments are proposed by the same body or by the people and submitted at the same election and both are approved, the one with the highest number of votes shall prevail.

97 - Requires all candidates for office to appear on 1 ballot, whether the candidate is political or nonpartisan. Allows voters to vote for any candidate in a primary election, regardless of party or nonpartisanship. Requires secrecy of the political party of the person voting unless the person is a candidate. Requires primary elections to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in September in even-numbered years.

98 - Provides that there shall be a judicial commission consisting of 5 members for each judicial district in the State: 3 persons to be elected by the registered voters of the district and 2 persons to be appointed by the governor.

Requires the members of each commission to be elected and serve without regard to political affiliation. Requires the appointment and elections to be made within days after the commencement of regular sessions of the legislature and if no appointment or election, selection of members to be made by the supreme court within days after such failure.

Provides that there shall be a statewide justice commission consisting of 5 members appointed by the governor. Requires the governor to appoint at least 1 member from each judicial commission, 2 of whom shall have been elected by the voters of the State.

Provides each member of the justice and judicial commissions shall be a resident of the State and a citizen of the United States; that none shall be eligible for appointment to a judicial office so long as a member of the commission and for a period of 3 years thereafter; hold any other public office or office in any political party or organization; and they shall exercise their duties without regard to partisan politics. Provides that members serve 4-year terms of office.

Provides that in case of death, resignation, disqualification or incapacity to serve of a member, vacancies in the justice commission shall be filled by the governor and in the judicial commissions as provided by law.

Requires the justice and judicial commissions to submit a list of 3 persons to the governor whenever there is a vacancy to be filled in the supreme, circuit or district court and binds the governor to the recommendation of the justice or judicial commission to appoint 1 of the 3 persons to the supreme, circuit or district court.

Requires the justice and judicial commissions to review the performance and conduct of the members of the supreme, circuit or district court and to accept complaints regarding wilful misconduct, wilful and persistent failure to perform duties, habitual intemperance or conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice that brings the supreme, circuit or district court into disrepute. Provides that if the justice or judicial commission recommends a justice of the supreme court or judge of a circuit or district court should not remain in office, the governor shall remove or retire that person from office.

Requires the justice and judicial commissions to select one of their members to serve as chairperson.

Provides the governor shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint the judges of the district courts.

Deletes commission or agency, authorized by law for such purpose, to certify to the governor for the retirement or removal of a judge or justice from judicial office.

Deletes requirement that governor shall appoint a board of 3 persons to inquire into judicial behavior.

99 - Creates a separate section under the Bill of Rights article providing that the right to privacy is recognized and shall not be infringed without the showing of a compelling state interest and mandating the legislature to take affirmative steps to implement this right. Deletes references to invasion of privacy and the communications sought to be intercepted from the searches and seizures section.

100 - Mandates State and political subdivisions to enforce, protect and preserve any traditional right-of-way to sea, water-courses or public lands. Prohibits any abridgment or extinguishment of this right by private or state action or the passage of time.

101 - Provides that the term of office of a justice of the supreme court and of a judge of a circuit court shall be 4 years.

102 - Requires the lieutenant governor to place on the ballot the question calling for a constitutional convention if the legislature does not submit the question after a period of 25 years elapses rather than after 10 years as presently provided.

103 - Prohibits discrimination in employees' retirement benefits unless benefits bear a reasonable relationship to individual contributions made or are based upon special problems or those employees whose duties involve danger to life.

104 - Limits election of person to office of governor to no more than twice and further restricts to a single election any person previously holding office as governor or acting as governor for more than 2 years.

Exempts person holding governor's office at time of adoption of amendment.

105 - Provides for the establishment of an intermediate court of appeals consisting of a chief judge and associate judges.

Provides that the chief justice of the supreme court shall assign a judge or judges of a circuit court, when necessary, to serve temporarily on the intermediate court of appeals. Provides that retired justices of the supreme court and of the intermediate court of appeals, as prescribed by law, may serve temporarily on the intermediate court of appeals at the request of the chief justice. Provides that in case of a vacancy in the office of the chief judge due to illness, absence or otherwise inability to serve, an associate judge designated in accordance with the supreme court rules shall serve temporarily as chief judge.

Provides that the judicial power of the State shall be vested in an intermediate court of appeals as well as in the present courts. Provides that the governor shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint the judges of the intermediate court of appeals. Provides that the term of office of a judge of the intermediate court of appeals shall be 10 years. Provides that the chief judge of the intermediate court of appeals shall receive $ and an associate judge of the intermediate court of appeals shall receive $ for their services, a year. Provides that a commission or agency, authorized by law for such purpose, may certify to the governor a judge of the intermediate court of appeals for incapacity and removal.

106 - Prohibits constitutional convention delegates from receiving financial or in-kind compensation other than that prescribed by law as allowances reasonably related to expenses and salary.

Provides that delegates shall not be compensated for the period the convention meets for any employment, activity or interest which may conflict with the discharge of their duties and responsibilities.

107 - Requires State and its political subdivisions to develop and implement a program of growth management consistent with the carrying capacity of each island.

108 - Requires a majority vote of the lessees under the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act and native Hawaiians not less than 21 years old who are pending applicants at the time the notice to vote is given, before a rule can be adopted, amended or repealed by the department of Hawaiian home lands. Requires the department to give a 20-day notice to vote prior to the tabulation of the votes. Requires that voting by ballot be held at and supervised by the district offices within the department.

Requires the department to conduct a public hearing to review a rule, in the manner provided by law, when petitioned to do so by at least 10 percent of the lessees under the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act. Defines rule as a rule adopted under the Hawaii Administrative Procedure Act or any successor statute.

109 - Requires lobbyists at constitutional conventions to register with the clerk of the convention and provides that such lobbyists be subject to the same regulations for lobbyists at the legislature.

110 - Repeals existing provisions of Article V relating to the judiciary and makes new provisions, retaining some of the old provisions except as otherwise noted herein. Authorizes the legislature to establish other courts inferior to the supreme court and an intermediate appellate court if necessary, which may sit in panels. Increases the number of associate justices from 4 to 6. Provides that the chief justice may assign judges of the intermediate court of appeals to sit temporarily on the supreme court. Adds the provision that retired justices not in active legal practice may also serve temporarily on the supreme court at the chief justice's request.

Provides that the supreme court may sit in panels or en banc. Sitting en banc, the court shall consist of all active justices and shall include those temporarily assigned if necessary to make up a court of 5. Provides that the size and composition of the panels shall be as provided by court rule, but shall have at least 3 members, with not more than 1 temporarily assigned. Provides that any 3 active justices may require a hearing or rehearing en banc.

Requires the governor to fill a judicial vacancy by nominating from a list provided by the judicial commission containing 3 to 5 names, and by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointing a person to office. Allows use of the list to fill more than 1 vacancy where the list is presented not more than 60 days prior to nomination, and provides that judicial commission shall make nomination and appointment in manner provided for governor where governor fails to do so.

Requires justices and judges to be United States citizens and state residents. Specifies that circuit court judges or justices of a court superior to the circuit court must have practiced law for at least 10 years. Prohibits a justice or judge from practicing law, running for or holding any office under the United States, the State, or its political subdivisions, or in any political organization, or making political contributions or taking part in political campaigns.

Provides that term of office of judges and justices of the circuit court and courts superior to the circuit court shall be 10 years, and terms of judges of inferior courts shall be as provided by law. Requires a justice or judge at least 6 months prior to expiration of the term, to petition the judicial commission to be retained or announce retirement. Allows the judicial commission to retain the person for another term. Provides that salaries shall be as provided by law and shall not be reduced while in office. Omits old provisions on minimum salaries and allowing reduction of salaries if applied to all salaried officers. Omits mandatory retirement age of 70.

Provides that the supreme court may discipline, suspend, retire and remove any justice or judge for misconduct or disability pursuant to rules. Provides for a commission on judicial discipline and disability retirement made up of 9 members, 4 of whom are licensed to practice law in Hawaii to be appointed by the executive board of the state bar association, 2 appointed by the governor, and 1 each appointed by each legislative house and supreme court, with staggered 4-year terms, and with power to investigate, hold hearings and make recommendations regarding judicial misconduct or disability. Requires proceedings to be kept confidential until formal allegations are made. Provides for absolute immunity for conduct during performance of duties and power to adopt rules. Provides for expenses but no salaries. Requires the legislature to provide for staff and operating expenses.

Provides for selection by the judicial commission of the chief justice from the associate justices for a 5-year term, and that chief justice may retire from chief justice position and remain on the supreme court.

Provides for judicial commission to ensure a learned, capable, and just judicial system, consisting of 9 members, 4 of whom are licensed to practice law in Hawaii and appointed by the executive board of the Hawaii State Bar Association, 2 appointed by the governor, and 1 each appointed by each legislative house and supreme court, for staggered 4-year terms. Requires appointment and operation of judicial commission in nonpartisan manner. Requires commission members to be United States citizens, state residents and not to hold office under the United States, the State or its political subdivisions, political organizations and not to participate in any political campaign. Provides that members shall not be eligible for judicial office while member and 3 years thereafter, and that no judge shall be appointed thereto. Requires approval by 6 members for commission action.

Provides that the supreme court shall have the sole power to adopt rules in civil and criminal process, procedure and appeals.

Omits commission provided by law to certify judicial incapacity.

Provides that judges shall serve out current terms.

111 - Provides that no person shall be held to answer for a felony, instead of a capital or otherwise infamous crime, except by the filing of an information, in addition to presentment or indictment by a grand jury. Requires a preliminary hearing when the prosecutor does not proceed by indictment.

112 - Requires the State to seek to expedite the return of federal lands to the State for public use including its use to meet future housing needs.

113 - Requires legislature to promote conservation, development and utilization of solar, wind, thermal, ocean currents, and natural energy sources in addition to the agricultural and natural resources.

114 - Provides that there shall be an elected attorney general having the same qualifications as the governor; admitted to practice law before the supreme court of this State for at least _____ years; not subject to the supervision of or removal by the governor; and to be elected at the same time, for the same term and in the same manner as the governor and shall perform such duties as may be prescribed by law. Provides that the attorney general shall be limited to 2 full consecutive 4-year terms.

Provides amendment shall not apply to any person holding the office of attorney general when amendment is voted upon by the electorate and shall not prevent any person who may be holding the office of attorney general or acting as attorney general during the term within which amendment becomes operative from holding the office of attorney general or so acting during the remainder of such term which shall end upon the election of the attorney general in _____

Provides that until the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, _____, the removal of the chief legal officer of the State shall continue to be subject to the advice and consent of the senate.

115 - Limits the number of terms for the governor, lieutenant governor, and mayors to 2 consecutive terms or terms not exceeding a total of 8 consecutive years.

Provides that the term limitations imposed by this proposal become effective for the 1978 general election but shall not prevent a person in office at that time or elected at the 1978 election from serving in that office for the remainder of the term.

116 - Provides that any code of ethics shall apply to members of the constitutional convention.

Requires the codes of ethics to include, but not be limited to, the following:

1. No elected or appointed officer or employee shall receive financial or in-kind compensation for or be party to any activities, interests, or employment which conflict with the discharge of public duties and responsibilities nor shall they hire or supervise any member of their household or immediate family.

2. Members of the public appointed to boards, commissions, or other bodies shall not be employed by or have an interest in organizations financially affected by the work and decisions of the bodies on which they sit.

117 - Prohibits legislative action, except for reasonable regulation, prohibiting any ceremony, pastime, sport or recreational activity considered traditional to the heritage and culture of any resident national group in the State, unless it infringes upon personal or property rights of any other person.

118 - Prohibits a person from election to the office of mayor of any county more than twice. Provides this amendment shall not apply to any person holding the office of mayor when this amendment was proposed by the constitutional convention and shall not prevent any person holding the office of mayor, during the term within which this amendment becomes operative, from holding that office during the remainder of the term.

119 - Prohibits a person from election to the office of governor more than twice, but if a person has held the office of or acted as governor for more than 2 years of a term to which some other person was elected governor, that person shall not be elected more than once. Provides that this amendment shall not apply to any person holding the office of governor when this amendment was proposed by the constitutional convention and shall not prevent any person holding such office during the term within which this amendment becomes operative from holding the office of governor or acting as governor during the remainder of such term.

120 - Requires the State to conduct a survey for every general election to determine the 5 issues of the most public concern; to allow candidates an opportunity to respond to prepared questions relating to the 5 issues in 50 words or less; to list candidates' names and response in a voters guide; and to publish, in a newspaper of statewide circulation, the voters guide at least 2 weeks prior to the general election.

121 - Provides that teachers of ethnic or cultural history, who lack formal education, shall have an equivalency to those teachers with 4-year college education certificates.

122 - Provides that the people reserve the power of the initiative to propose statutes and to enact or reject such statutes at the polls.

Provides that statutes may be proposed by either (direct submission to voters) or indirect (submission to the legislature) initiative. Requires sponsors to declare the measure either direct or indirect before soliciting signatures. Requires solicitors of signatures to be registered voters in the State.

Requires sponsors to incorporate in the initiative measure a ballot title, statement of purpose, full text of the proposal and a summary of not more than 150 words which shall be descriptive or expository but not argumentative or prejudicial. Requires sponsors to submit the initiative petition before soliciting signatures to the lieutenant governor who shall certify, within 10 days thereafter, the ballot title, statement of purpose and summary either in its original form or clarified to more accurately represent and more nearly conform to the proposal's text.

Requires signatures of 8 percent of the number of registered voters in the most recent prior election for direct initiatives and 6 percent for indirect initiatives. Provides that initiative measures be submitted to the lieutenant governor for initial certification no earlier than 1 day after the most recent prior election. Provides that indirect initiative petitions be filed no later than 30 days prior to the second legislative session following the general election and no later than 90 days prior to the next general election for direct initiatives.

Requires direct initiatives to be submitted to the voters at the first general election following petition certification. Provides that indirect initiatives, if not enacted in the original form by the legislature, be submitted to the voters together with the legislative version, if any. Provides that if both are approved, the one receiving the greater number of votes shall prevail.

Requires the legislature to provide methods of publicity of initiative measures with arguments for and against the statutes or proposed amendments, including the issuance of a voter education publication. Requires the lieutenant governor to send a copy of the publication to each registered voter residence in the State and to make such additional distribution necessary to reasonably assure each voter the opportunity to study the initiative measures prior to the election.

Requires the lieutenant governor to submit an initiative measure by its ballot title with the question appearing in such form that an affirmative vote is a vote for change. Requires statutory initiative measures to be approved by a majority of votes tallied on the question. Provides that approved measures become effective immediately, except measures requiring authorization of funds, or providing for tax reductions or increases which shall take effect the following fiscal year. Limits an initiative to one subject.

Requires public disclosure of funds contributed and expended to influence the outcome of initiative measures according to the same laws and regulations prescribed for campaign spending by candidates for legislative office.

Prohibits veto of initiative laws and legislative amendment or repeal within a period of 2 years of adoption, except by a 3/4 vote in each house of the legislature.

123 - Provides for constitutional revisions or amendments by the initiative. Provides that constitutional amendments may be proposed by either direct (direct submission to voters) or indirect (submission to the legislature) initiative. Requires sponsors to declare the measure either direct or indirect before soliciting signatures.

Requires sponsors to incorporate in the initiative measure a ballot title, statement of purpose, full text of the proposal and a summary of not more than 150 words which shall be descriptive or expository but not argumentative or prejudicial. Requires sponsors to submit the initiative petition before soliciting signatures to the lieutenant governor who shall certify, within 10 days thereafter, the ballot title, statement of purpose and summary either in its original form or clarified to more accurately represent and more nearly conform to the proposal's text.

Requires signatures of 12 percent of the number of registered voters in the most recent prior election for direct initiatives and 10 percent for indirect initiatives. Provides that initiative measures be submitted to the lieutenant governor for initial certification no earlier than 1 day after the most recent prior election. Provides that indirect initiative petitions be filed no later than 30 days prior to the second legislative session following the general election and no later than 90 days prior to the next general election for direct initiatives.

Requires direct initiatives to be submitted to the voters at the first general election following petition certification. Provides that indirect initiatives, if not enacted in the original form by the legislature, be submitted to the voters together with the legislative version, if any. Provides that if both are approved, the one receiving the greater number of votes shall prevail.

Requires the legislature to provide methods of publicity of initiative measures with arguments for and against the proposed amendments, including the issuance of a voter education publication. Requires the lieutenant governor to send a copy of the publication to each registered voter residence in the State and to make such additional distribution necessary to reasonably assure each voter the opportunity to study the initiative measures prior to the election.

Requires the lieutenant governor to submit an initiative measure by its ballot title with the question appearing in such form that an affirmative vote is a vote for change. Requires constitutional initiative measures to be approved by a majority of the votes tallied on the question, this majority constituting at least 35 percent of the total votes cast at the election. Provides that approved measures become effective immediately except measures requiring authorization of funds, or providing for tax reductions or increases which shall take effect the following fiscal year. Limits an initiative to 1 subject.

Requires public disclosure of funds contributed and expended to influence the outcome of initiative measures according to the same laws and regulations prescribed for campaign spending by candidates for legislative office.

124 - Provides there shall be a public prosecutor for each county who shall enforce the criminal laws of the State and county in which that prosecutor holds office and shall perform other duties as prescribed by law. Requires the prosecutor to have the same qualifications as the governor and also to have been admitted to practice law before the supreme court of the State for a period of at least 5 years. Requires the prosecutor to be elected at the same time, for the same term and in the same manner as the governor but to be elected by the majority vote of the registered voters of the county wherein the election is held.

Provides that the compensation for the position of prosecutor shall be as provided by law but cannot be reduced during a term of office. Provides that if a vacancy occurs, succession shall be as prescribed by law.

125 - Requires independent counsel to advise grand jury. Provides for chief justice to appoint person admitted to practice law in Hawaii who is not a public employee. Provides for compensation of counsel to be same as per diem judges.

126 - Provides that the judicial power of the State shall be vested in intermediate appellate courts, in addition to existing courts, as the legislature may from time to time establish. Requires the supreme court to accept and review cases in its discretion.

Provides that the intermediate appellate court shall consist of 1 or more panels of 3 judges which shall hear and decide all matters brought before them according to rules of appellate procedure promulgated by the supreme court. Provides that tenure and compensation of all intermediate appellate court judges shall be the same as that provided for the circuit court judges.

127 - Provides there shall be an elected attorney general, who shall perform such duties as may be prescribed by law and who shall be the chief legal officer of the State.

Requires the attorney general to have the same qualifications as the governor; to have been admitted to practice law before the supreme court of the State for a period of at least 5 years; and to be elected at the same time, for the same term and in the same manner as the governor.

Provides that compensation shall be as provided by law but cannot be reduced during a term of office. Provides that if a vacancy occurs, succession shall be as prescribed by law.

128 - Provides that there shall be a judicial commission consisting of 11 members: 8 members to be elected at large by the registered voters for 4-year terms where at least 1 member shall reside in each senatorial district in the State and 3 members to be selected by the 8 elected members to serve 4-year terms. Requires that not less than 3 attorneys and not less than 3 lay persons shall serve on the commission. Provides that 4 persons with the highest vote in the first election shall serve for 4 years while the remainder shall serve for 2 years and thereafter, all shall serve 4-year terms.

Requires the members of the commission to be nominated, elected and appointed to serve without regard to political affiliation. Requires the appointment and elections to be made within days after commencement of regular sessions of the legislature and if there is no appointment or election, selection shall be made by the supreme court within days after such failure.

Provides each member of the judicial commission shall be a resident of the State and a citizen of the United States; that none shall hold any other public office or office in any political party or organization or be eligible for appointment to judicial office so long as a member of the commission and for a period of 3 years thereafter; and they shall exercise their duties without regard to partisan politics.

Provides that in case of the death, resignation, disqualification or incapacity to serve of a member, vacancies shall be filled by the commission in the case of appointed members, while vacancies of elected members shall be filled as provided by law.

Requires the commission to recommend 3 highly qualified persons to the governor whenever there is a judicial vacancy to be filled in the supreme, circuit or district courts. Requires the governor to be bound by the recommendations of the commission and to appoint 1 of the 3 persons recommended to fill the judicial vacancy, subject to the advice and consent of the senate.

Requires the commission to review the performance and conduct of the justices and judges and to rate them well qualified, qualified or unqualified. Provides that the governor may reappoint a justice or judge who is rated well qualified or qualified, but shall not reappoint one rated unqualified.

Requires the commission to select one of its members to serve as chairperson.

Provides the governor shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint the judges of the district courts.

Requires the term of office of a justice of the supreme court and of a judge of a circuit or district court to be 6 years instead of 10 years.

129 - Provides that there shall be a judicial commission consisting of 11 members: 8 members to be elected at large by the registered voters for 4-year terms where at least 1 member shall reside in each senatorial district in the State and 3 members to be selected by the 8 elected members to serve 4-year terms. Requires that not less than 3 attorneys and not less than 3 lay persons shall serve on the commission. Provides the 4 persons with the highest vote in the first election shall serve for 4 years while the remaining elected members shall serve for 2 years and thereafter, all shall serve 4-year terms.

Requires the members of the commission to be nominated, elected and appointed to serve without regard to political affiliation. Requires the appointment and election to be made within days after commencement of regular sessions of the legislature and if there is no appointment or election, selection of members to be made by the supreme court within days after such failure.

Provides each member of the judicial commission shall be a resident of the State and a citizen of the United States; that none shall hold any other public office or office in any political party or organization or be eligible for appointment to judicial office so long as the person is a member of the commission and for a period of 3 years thereafter; and they shall exercise their duties without regard to partisan politics.

Provides that in case of the death, resignation, disqualification or incapacity to serve of a member, vacancies shall be filled by the commission in the case of appointed members, while vacancies of elected members shall be filled as provided by law.

Requires the commission to recommend 1 highly qualified person to the governor whenever there is a judicial vacancy to be filled in the supreme, circuit or district court. Allows governor to appoint this person to fill the vacancy, subject to the advice and consent of the senate. Provides that if the governor does not accept the recommendation of the commission, the commission has the power to override the governor's decision and appoint the person so recommended by a 2/3 vote of the membership, subject to the advice and consent of the senate.

Requires the commission to review the performance and conduct of the justices and judges and to rate them well qualified, qualified or unqualified. Provides that the governor may reappoint a justice or judge who is rated well qualified or qualified, but shall not reappoint one rated unqualified.

Requires the commission to select one of its members to serve as chairperson.

Provides the governor shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint the judges of the district courts.

Requires the term of office of a justice of the supreme court and of a judge of a circuit or district court to be 6 years instead of 10 years.

130 - Provides that legislative conference committees consist of members of each house of the legislature appointed to resolve differences between the houses on any matters where the joint agreement of the houses is required. Provides that the authority of such committee is limited to resolving differences between the house and the senate versions of a bill or resolution. Prohibits a conference committee from (1) amending provisions of a bill or resolution which are identical in both versions; provided such identical provisions may be amended to conform to all other provisions of the bill or resolution; and (2) amending a bill or resolution by inserting any unrelated or new subject. Exempts general appropriations, supplemental appropriations and the general improvements bills from the above provisions. Requires increases to salaries, pension or retirement benefits for any elected or appointed officer of the State or county to be considered in a separate bill other than the aforementioned appropriations and public improvement bills or any bill ratifying collective bargaining agreements.

Provides that meetings of such committees shall be conducted as agreed upon by members of the committee subject to the other provisions of this amendment and that meetings and decision-making sessions shall be open to the public with notice of such meetings to be posted or announced.

131 - Provides that all negotiations between a public employer and an employee organization relating to employment shall be open to the public.

132 - Deletes provision requiring a board of education composed of members elected in accordance with law and representing at least in part the geographic subdivisions of the State. Requires establishment of a board of 9 members, appointed by the governor, 7 of whom must each represent a school board district and be an elected member of the district school advisory council of the respective school board district, as provided by law.

Requires establishment of a district school advisory council in each of the school board districts.

Requires the following number of elected members for each of the following district school advisory councils: Hawaii school district, 7 members; Maui school district, 5 members; Honolulu school district, 5 members; Central Oahu school district, 5 members; Leeward Oahu school district, 5 members; Windward Oahu school district, 5 members; and Kauai school district, 5 members.

137 - Based on Oregon recall provisions provides for the recall of all elected public officers in Hawaii by the qualified voters of the state or electoral district from which an officer is elected. Provides that a recall petition setting forth the reasons for the recall may be filed with the requirement of not more than 25 percent of electors who voted in the electoral district at the preceding general election for governor.

Provides that unless the officer to be recalled offers a resignation within 5 days of the filing of the petition, a special election to vote on the recall issue shall be held within 20 days. Requires the sample ballot to contain in not more than 200 words, the reasons for demanding the recall and, in not more than 200 words, the officer's justification for the officer's course in office.

Provides that the officer shall continue the duties of office until the results of the special election are officially declared. Requires that any vacancy arising from recall shall be filled in the same manner provided by law for vacancies arising from any other cause.

Provides that no recall petition shall be circulated against any officer who has held office less than 6 months, except that it may be filed against a senator or representative in the legislature after 5 days from the beginning of the first session after election.

Provides that after one recall petition and special election, no further recall petition shall be filed against the same officer for the remainder of the officer's term unless such further petitioners shall first pay into the general fund the whole amount of its expenses for the preceding special election.

Provides that the legislature shall provide any additional legislation to aid the operation of the recall, including provision for payment by the general fund of the reasonable special election campaign expenses of the officer faced with a recall petition.

138 - Provides that a referendum of any law may be submitted to the people for approval, amendment or repeal upon the filing of a petition signed by registered voters of not less than _____ percent of all votes cast for all candidates for governor at the last general election. Provides that there shall be no referendum of measures deemed necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety, and for tax levies, bonds and other forms of revenue measures for the usual and current expenses of the State. Requires the petition to be filed with the chief election officer no later than _____ days prior to the general election at which the referendum will be submitted to the people. Provides that the law subject to referendum shall remain in effect until the referendum is enacted. Requires referendums to be approved by a majority of the votes cast thereon.

Requires that after a referendum petition has been filed and the law is either repealed or amended by the legislature so that in the opinion of the attorney general it differs from the referendum measure, both the repealed or amended law and the referendum measure shall be submitted to the people and the measure with the highest number of votes shall prevail. Allows the chief election officer to void referendum if the legislature repeals or amends a law so it is the same or similar to and accomplishes the same purpose as the referendum measure, if so determined by the attorney general and allows petitioner to appeal such determination to the supreme court. Prohibits a defeated referendum from resubmittal either affirmatively or negatively within _____ years.

Provides that prior to circulation for signatures, referendum petitions shall be submitted to the attorney general for preparation of a title and a summary not exceeding _____ words. Provides that all such petitions shall be submitted to the chief election officer for certification of name and registration of the signer. Prohibits enactment of laws limiting the number of copies of a petition which may be circulated. Provides that any registered voter may circulate such petitions and provides for the signing of such.

Provides that the petition shall not be released for inspection by the public or any governmental agency, except upon the order of the supreme court when a question is raised regarding its sufficiency. Requires an insufficient petition be returned to the circulators within _____ days of its filing with notations of specific insufficiencies. Requires measures to be presented in the form of a yes or no ballot, where a yes shall indicate an affirmative vote. Provides that an approved referendum measure shall be effective 1 day after the election results are announced unless otherwise provided by the measure. Prohibits the governor's veto on referendum measures approved by the people. Prohibits legislative repeal or amendment unless otherwise provided in the measure or that which shall be submitted to a referendum.

Requires the petitioner to bear all costs of the preparation and circulation of the petition, except for the services of the attorney general. After the petition is filed all further costs shall be borne by the State.

Provides that while the legislative power of the State is vested in a legislature, the people reserve to themselves the referendum power and that power as well as the legislative power shall extend to all rightful subjects of legislation not inconsistent with this constitution or the U.S. Constitution.

139 - Provides that there shall be a judicial commission consisting of 9 members appointed by the governor: 4 persons admitted to practice law before the supreme court from a list of 10 persons presented by the bar association and 5 lay persons from a list of 10 persons submitted by the legislature.

Requires the members of the judicial commission to be appointed and to serve without regard to political affiliation; to be a resident of the State and a citizen of the United States; not to hold any other public office or office in any political party or organization; not to be eligible for appointment to judicial office of the State so long as a member of the commission and for a period of 3 years thereafter; to exercise their duties without regard to partisan politics; and to select one of themselves to serve as chairperson. Provides members serve staggered 4-year terms of office.

Provides that in case of the death, resignation, disqualification or incapacity to serve as a member of the commission, vacancies shall be filled by the governor.

Requires the judicial commission to submit a list of 3 persons to the governor for appointment to the supreme, circuit or district courts in which a vacancy exists and binds governor to select 1 person recommended by the commission.

Requires the governor to nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint the judges of the district courts. Provides that the term of office of a judge of a district court shall be years.

Provides instead that the judicial commission, after inquiry, shall certify to the governor for the retirement or removal of a justice or judge from judicial office.

Deletes requirement that governor shall appoint a board of 3 persons to inquire into judicial behavior. Provides instead that if the judicial commission recommends a justice or judge should not remain in office, the governor shall remove or retire the person from office.

140 - Provides that a person who is being investigated by a grand jury shall have the right to be notified of the subject of investigation, to be confronted by evidence against that person and to present evidence, to compel appearance of evidence and to refute the evidence against that person. Provides that this person and any witness shall have the right to counsel during the proceeding, and if indigent, to have counsel appointed. Requires the prosecutor to present any evidence which tends to exculpate the person being investigated.

141 - Provides that every person appointed to the public office of supreme court justice or circuit or district court judge is subject to recall.

Limits recall to reasons of physical or mental lack of fitness, incompetence, neglect of duty, conviction of malfeasance or misfeasance in office, violation of oath of office or a felony offense. Provides no person may be recalled for performing a mandatory duty of the office held or for not performing any act that, if performed, would subject the person to prosecution for official misconduct.

Provides that a recall petition shall not name more than 1 justice or judge to be recalled. Provides recall petitions for a supreme court justice to contain signatures equalling not less than percent of the votes for all gubernatorial candidates in the preceding general election and petitions for a circuit or district court judge to contain signatures equalling not less than percent of the votes in a judicial district for all gubernatorial candidates in the preceding general election. Provides for the form of the recall petition.

Requires that before circulation of a petition for signatures, a sample circulation sheet shall be submitted to the chief election officer in the form in which it will be circulated and requires the chief election officer to review the petition for sufficiency as to form and approve or reject it with reasons within weeks of receipt.

Requires the petition form submitted to be accompanied by a written statement containing the reasons for the desired recall as stated on the petition and requires submission to be made within months of the date the form of the petition was approved.

Requires the chief election officer to verify each signature on the petition is that of a registered voter and to determine if there are the necessary number of signatures within days after submission.

Provides that if the person named in the petition for recall submits a resignation in writing, it shall be accepted and become effective the day it is offered. Requires vacancy created by such resignation to be filled as provided by law, provided that the person named in the petition for recall shall not be appointed to fill such vacancy. Provides that if the person named in the petition for recall refuses to resign or does not resign, the question shall be placed on a separate ballot at the same time as the general election.

Requires the ballot at a recall election to set forth the statement contained in the recall petition stating the reasons for demanding the recall of such person and the person's statement of reasons why the person should not be recalled. Sets forth the form of the question with the form of the ballot to be as provided by law.

Allows the person named in the recall petition to continue in office until resignation or the results of the recall election are officially declared. Requires that if a majority vote to remove the person, the office of justice or judge shall become vacant and the vacancy shall be filled as provided by law, provided that the person recalled shall in no event be appointed to fill the vacancy.

142 - Provides that no grand jury shall be convened for any purpose unless the government official responsible for criminal prosecutions applies to a circuit court for an order to convene the grand jury which order is entered after the official shows to the court's satisfaction that there is good cause to convene a grand jury to investigate criminal conduct. Provides that application may be heard without notice to and participation of persons being investigated.

Provides for preliminary hearing right for all offenses for which accused is entitled to jury trial, even if prior indictment by grand jury. Requires court to commit accused for trial if the court finds probable cause to believe accused guilty and to release accused otherwise.

Provides that the accused at the hearing shall have the right to be notified of the charge, to be confronted by evidence against that person, to present evidence, to compel appearance of evidence, and to refute the evidence against that person. Provides that this person and any witness shall have the right to counsel during the proceeding, and if indigent, to have counsel appointed. Requires the prosecutor to present any evidence which tends to exculpate the accused.

143 - Provides that the judicial power of the State shall be vested in district courts and neighborhood mediation boards, in addition to existing courts, as the legislature may from time to time establish.

Provides that salary plan shall become effective unless disapproved by the legislature by concurrent resolution.

148 - Provides for establishment of native crops research center to promote development and growth of indigenous cultivars of economic value.

149 - Based on the California constitutional provision, defines the initiative as the power of the electors to propose statutes and amendments to the Constitution and to adopt or reject them.

Provides that an initiative measure may be proposed by presenting to the chief election officer a petition signed by not less than 5 percent of the registered voters in the case of a statute, and not less than 8 percent in the case of an amendment to the Constitution, of all votes cast for all candidates for governor at the last preceding general election.

Requires submittal of an initiative petition to the attorney general for preparation of a title and summary of the measure as provided by law, prior to the circulation for signatures.

Requires an initiative petition to set forth the full text of the proposed law or amendment to the constitution and limits the proposed law or amendment to but 1 subject.

Requires the chief election officer to place the initiative measure on the ballot at the next general election held at least 131 days after the petition qualifies or at any special statewide election held prior to that general election. Allows the governor to call a special election for initiative measures.

Provides that an initiative measure, if approved by a majority of votes cast, shall take effect one day after the election results are officially announced unless otherwise provided for in the measure. Provides that in case 2 or more measures approved at the same election are in conflict, the measure receiving the highest affirmative vote shall prevail.

Allows the legislature to amend or repeal an initiative statute by another statute subject to approval by the electors unless the initiative statute permits otherwise.

Requires the legislature to provide the manner in which petitions shall be circulated, presented and certified, and measures submitted to the electors.

Prohibits the use of initiative on a constitutional amendment or statute that names any individual to hold any office, or any private corporation to perform any function or to have any power or duty.

Provides that the initiative may be exercised by the electors of each county pursuant to procedures as provided in the county charter.

Provides that while the legislative power of the State is vested in a legislature, the power of initiative is reserved to the electorate and both powers shall extend to all rightful subjects of legislation not inconsistent with the state or U.S. constitutions. Clarifies that only laws passed by the legislature need be by bill.

Provides that constitutional revisions or amendments may be proposed by the electorate as well as by constitutional convention or by the legislature. Provides that when the legislature and the electorate propose conflicting revisions or amendments and both are approved, the version proposed by the electorate prevails. Provides that when conflicting revisions or amendments are proposed by the same body and the electorate and all or any combination thereof are approved, the one with the highest number of votes prevails.

150 - Provides that the State shall have power to provide for treatment and rehabilitation, as well as domiciliary care, of emotionally handicapped persons in addition to the mentally and physically handicapped.

governor by the judicial commission. Provides that in case more than 1 vacancy exists in any of the courts, the governor may fill such vacancies from any list of nominees for the court in question presented by the commission not more than 60 days prior to the appointment. Provides that if the governor fails to make an appointment within 60 days from the day any such list is presented, such appointment shall be made by the judicial commission from the same list or lists.

Deletes requirement that no justice or judge shall hold any other office or position of profit under the State or the United States; that no person is eligible for the office of justice or judge unless admitted to practice law before the supreme court of this State for at least 10 years; provision that any justice or judge who becomes a candidate for an elective office forfeits office.

Requires justices and judges to be residents and citizens of the State and of the United States and licensed to practice law by the supreme court. Requires a judge of the circuit court and a judge or justice of any court superior to that court, to be licensed for a period of not less than 10-years preceding nomination.

Provides that no justice or judge shall, during the term of office, engage in the practice of law, or run for or hold any other office or position of profit under the United States, the State or its political subdivisions or run for or hold any office in any political party or organization, or directly or indirectly make any political contribution, or take part in any political campaign.

Deletes provision that the term of office of a justice of the supreme court and of a judge of a circuit court is 10 years. Deletes amount of compensation justices, associate justices and circuit court judges shall receive for their services.

Provides that the term of office of justices and judges of the circuit courts and any court superior to the circuit court shall be 10 years. Requires judges of inferior courts to hold office for the periods prescribed by law. Requires that at least 6 months prior to the expiration of a justice's or judge's term of office, every justice and judge shall petition the judicial commission to be retained in office or shall inform the commission of the intention of the justice or judge to retire. Provides that if the judicial commission determines that the justice or judge should be retained in office, the commission shall renew the term of office of the justice or judge for the period prescribed by law. Requires that they be retired upon attaining the age of 70 years.

Provides that justices and judges shall have salaries as prescribed by law, shall be included in any retirement law of the State and their compensation shall not be reduced while in office.

Deletes commission or agency, authorized by law for such purpose, to certify to the governor for the retirement or removal of a justice or judge from judicial office.

Provides that the supreme court shall have power to discipline, to suspend with or without salary, to retire and to remove from office, for misconduct or disability, any justice or judge, according to such rules as the supreme court adopts.

Requires the legislature to provide for the creation of a commission on judicial discipline and disability retirement consisting of not less than 9 members who shall be lay persons, attorneys and judges (excluding justices of the supreme court) in equal numbers. Requires the members to have staggered terms and be appointed in the manner prescribed by law. Provides the commission, on its own initiative or upon receipt of information from any source, has the authority to investigate and conduct hearings concerning allegations of misconduct or disability and to make recommendations to the supreme court concerning discipline, suspension, retirement or removal, of any justice or judge. Provides the commission shall keep all of its proceedings confidential until service of formal allegations of misconduct or disability based on probable cause and the commission shall have absolute immunity from suit, for its members and staff, for all official conduct. Provides that the commission shall promulgate rules having the force and effect of law.

Provides no member of the commission shall receive compensation for services, except necessary expenses for travel, board and lodging incurred in the performance of duties as such. Requires the legislature to provide for the staff and operating expenses of the commission in a separate budget.

Requires the chief justice of the supreme court to be selected by the judicial commission from among the justices of the supreme court for a term of 5 years, renewable in the discretion of the commission. Provides that the chief justice may resign or retire from the office without resigning or retiring from the supreme court.

Amends ability of supreme court to promulgate rules and regulations in all civil and criminal cases for all courts to state it has the sole power to so promulgate.

235 - Limits the number of terms a person may serve in the office of governor to 2 consecutive terms.

Provides that the term limitation imposed by this proposal shall become effective for the 1978 general election and shall not prevent any person in office at that time or elected to office in the 1978 general election from holding that office during the remainder of the term.

236 - Limits the number of standing committees each house has to 12 and provides that each house shall have the same standing committees. Provides that every bill passed by 1 house shall be referred to the same committee or committees as in the house of origin.

237 - Requires the membership of board of education to reside in, rather than represent, different geographic subdivisions of the State.

238 - Provides that the office of the governor and lieutenant governor shall be limited to 2 full terms.

Provides that the 2-term limitation of the governor and lieutenant governor becomes effective with the 1978 general election and that any person elected in 1978 as governor or lieutenant governor may complete the term of office to which such person was elected.

239 - Deletes requirement that the governor nominates and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoints the justices of the supreme court and the judges of the circuit courts. Deletes provision that no nomination shall be sent to the senate nor interim appointments made when the senate is not in session.

Provides that whenever a vacancy occurs in the office of justice of the supreme court or judge of the circuit court, the governor shall fill the vacancy by appointing 1 of 3 persons possessing the qualifications for such office, who are nominated and whose names are submitted to the governor by the appropriate commission established and organized as provided herein.

Provides that each justice or judge appointed hereunder shall hold office for a term ending December 31st following the next general election after the expiration of 12 months in office. Requires any justice or judge holding office, or elected thereto, at the time of the election by which this amendment becomes applicable, unless removed for cause, to remain in office for the term to which entitled. Provides that not less than 60 days before a general election held before the expiration of a justice's or judge's term of office, any justice or judge may file with the chief election officer a declaration of candidacy for election to succeed in office. Requires that if a declaration is not filed, the vacancy resulting from the expiration of the term of office shall be filled by appointment as provided. Requires that if the declaration is filed, the justice's or judge's name shall be submitted at the next general election on a statewide basis, or circuit if the office is that of circuit judge, on a separate judicial ballot, without party designation. Sets forth the form of the ballot.

Provides that if a majority voting on the question vote against retention, upon the expiration of the term of office, a vacancy shall exist to be filled by appointment; otherwise, the justice or judge, unless removed for cause, remains in office for 10 years after December 31st following such election and at the expiration of each term is eligible for retention by election.

Provides that whenever a declaration of candidacy for election to succeed in office is filed by any justice or judge, the chief election officer shall place the justice's or judge's name on the ballot, and the election upon the question of retention shall be conducted in the manner now provided by the law governing elections.

Provides that nonpartisan judicial commissions whose duty it shall be to nominate and submit to the governor names of persons for appointment as provided by this section are established which shall be organized on the following basis: for vacancies in the office of justice of the supreme court, 1 commission to be known as "The Justice Commission"; for vacancies in the office of judge of any circuit and district court, 1 commission, to be known as "The Judge Commission", for each circuit.

Provides that the justice commission shall consist of 9 members: the chief justice of the supreme court, acting as chairperson and the remaining 8 members chosen as follows: the members of the bar of this State residing in each circuit shall elect one of their number and the governor shall appoint 1 citizen, not a member of the bar, from among the residents of each circuit.

Provides that each judge commission shall consist of 5 members: the presiding judge of the circuit court within the judicial circuit of such commission, acting as chairperson and the remaining 4 members chosen as follows: the members of the bar of this State residing in the judicial circuit of such commission shall elect 2 of their number and the governor shall appoint 2 citizens, not members of the bar, from among the residents of the judicial circuit. Provides that the terms of office of the members of such commission shall be fixed by the supreme court and may be changed from time to time, but shall not affect the term of any member then in office.

Requires all citizen members appointed by the governor to be subject to the advice and consent of the senate. Allows no member of any commission other than the chairperson to hold any public office or to hold any official position in a political party. Requires each commission to act only by a majority. Provides that none of the members shall receive a salary or other compensation for their services except necessary traveling and other expenses incurred while actually engaged in the discharge of their official duties. Provides that all commissions shall be administered, and all elections provided for shall be held and regulated, under supreme court rules.

Requires all expenses incurred in administering this provision when approved by the supreme court to be paid out of the state treasury.

Allows that no justice or judge, appointed to or retained in office in the manner prescribed herein to, directly or indirectly, make any contribution to or hold any office in a political party or organization, or take part in any political campaign.

Requires all of the provisions to be self-enforcing, except those as to which action by the legislature may be required.

Provides that except as otherwise provided, the term of office of a justice of the supreme court and of a judge of a circuit and district court shall be 10 years.

Deletes commission or agency, authorized by law for such purpose, to certify to the governor for the retirement or removal of a justice or judge from judicial office.

Provides that there shall be a commission on retirement, removal and discipline, composed of 2 citizens who are not members of the bar, appointed by the governor, 2 attorneys appointed by the governing body of the Hawaii bar association, 1 justice of the supreme court to be selected by a majority of the justices of the supreme court and 1 judge of the circuit court to be selected by a majority of the circuit court judges. Requires the commission to receive and investigate all requests and suggestions for retirement for disability and all complaints concerning misconduct of justices, judges, members of the justice and judge commissions of each judicial circuit, and of this commission. Allows no member of the commission to participate in any matter in which the member has a personal interest. Provides that if a member is disqualified to participate in any matter before the commission, the respective appointing or selecting authority shall appoint or select a substitute to sit during any such disqualification. Requires that of the members first appointed, each of the citizen members shall be appointed for a term of 2 years, each of the attorney members for a term of 4 years and each of the justice or judge members for a term of 6 years; thereafter members shall be appointed for a term of 6 years.

Provides that upon recommendation by an affirmative vote of at least 4 members of the commission, the supreme court en banc shall retire from office any justice or judge, or any member of any judicial commission, or any member of this commission found to be unable to discharge the duties of office with efficiency because of permanent sickness or physical or mental infirmity. Provides that a justice or judge so retired shall receive 1/2 of the justice's or judge's regular compensation during the remainder of the justice's or judge's term of office. Requires where a justice or judge, subject to retirement under other provisions of law, has been retired hereunder, the time during which the justice or judge was retired for disability hereunder shall count as time served for purposes of retirement under other provisions of law.

Provides that upon recommendation by an affirmative vote of at least 4 members of the commission, the supreme court en banc, upon concurring, shall remove, suspend or discipline any justice or judge of any court or any member of any judicial commission or of this commission, for the commission of a crime, or for misconduct, habitual drunkenness, wilful neglect of duty, corruption in office, incompetency or any offense involving moral turpitude or oppression in office. Provides that no action taken hereunder shall be a bar to or prevent any other action authorized by law.

Provides that a justice or judge is disqualified from acting as a judicial officer while there is pending an indictment or information charging the justice or judge in any court in the United States with a crime punishable as a felony under the laws of Hawaii or the United States, or a recommendation to the supreme court by the commission for the justice's or judge's removal, discipline or retirement or after articles of impeachment have been voted by the house of representatives. Requires a justice or judge so disqualified to continue to receive the salary to which entitled.

Provides that on recommendation of the commission, the supreme court shall suspend a justice or judge from office without salary when in any court in the United States the justice or judge pleads guilty or no contest to, or is found guilty of, an offense punishable as a felony under the laws of this State or the United States, or of any other offense that involves moral turpitude. Provides that if the justice or judge is suspended and conviction becomes final, the supreme court shall remove the justice or judge from office. Provides that if the conviction of the justice or judge is reversed and the justice or judge is discharged from that charge by order of court or of the prosecuting officer, whether without further trial or after further trial and a finding of not guilty, the suspension of the justice or judge terminates and he shall be paid his salary for the period of suspension.

Provides that recommendations to the supreme court by the commission shall be made only after notice and hearing. Provides that rules for the administration and for the procedures hereunder shall be prescribed by supreme court rule unless otherwise provided by law.

Requires members of the commission to be reimbursed for their actual and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their duties.

Provides that all supreme court justices and circuit and district court judges serving when the amendments are ratified shall not be subject to the selection provisions until the expiration of their present terms or unless removed as provided herein.

240 - Provides that whenever a vacancy occurs in the office of justice of the supreme court or judge of a circuit court or district court, the governor shall fill the vacancy by appointing 1 of 3 persons possessing the qualifications for such office, to be nominated and whose names shall be submitted to the governor by the appropriate commission established and organized as provided herein.

Provides for a nonpartisan commission whose duty it is to nominate and submit to the governor names of persons for appointment as provided herein to be established and organized as follows: for vacancies in the office of justice of the supreme court, one commission known as "The Justice Commission;" for vacancies in the office of judge of any circuit or district court, one commission known as "The Judge Commission," for each judicial circuit.

Provides that the justice commission consists of 9 members, the chief justice of the supreme court acting as chairperson, and the remaining 8 to serve 4-year terms chosen as follows: the members of the bar residing in each judicial circuit elect 1 of their number to serve as a commission member and the governor appoints 1 citizen, not a member of the bar, from among the residents of each circuit.

Provides that each judge commission consists of 5 members, the presiding judge of the circuit court within the judicial circuit of such commission acting as chairperson, and the remaining 4 chosen as follows: the members of the bar residing in the judicial circuit of such commission elect 2 of their number to serve as members and the governor appoints 2 citizens, not members of the bar, from among the residents of the judicial circuit; the terms of office to be fixed by the supreme court and may be changed from time to time, but not so as to shorten or lengthen the term of any member then in office.

Provides all citizen members appointed by the governor are subject to the advice and consent of the senate; no member of any commission other than the chairperson shall hold any public office or any official position in a political party. Requires commissions to act only by the concurrence of a majority of members. Provides that none of the commission members shall receive a salary or other compensation for their services but shall receive necessary traveling and other expenses incurred in the discharge of official duties. Provides that all commissions shall be administered, and all elections provided for shall be under such rules as the supreme court adopts.

Provides that all expenses incurred in administration when approved by the supreme court shall be paid out of the state treasury.

Provides that no justice or judge appointed to or retained in office under this amendment shall make any contribution to or hold any office in a political party or organization, or take part in any political campaign.

Provides that amendment is self-enforcing, except where action by the legislature may be required.

Requires the governor to nominate, subject to amendment, and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint the judges of the district courts as well as justices of the supreme court and judges of the circuit courts.

Provides that the term of office of the district court judges shall be 10 years, similar to a justice of the supreme court and judge of a circuit court.

Deletes commission or agency that certifies to the governor to remove justices or judges and requires that after a justice or judge has served for 5 years, the senate shall review performance and conduct through a public hearing and if the senate finds that any justice or judge is so incapacitated as substantially to prevent the justice or judge from performing judicial duties or has acted in a manner that constitutes wilful misconduct in office, wilful and persistent failure to perform duties, habitual intemperance, or conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice that brings the judicial office into disrepute, that person may be removed or retired from office by a majority vote of the senate. Provides that the senate may remove or retire any justice or judge from judicial office before the expiration of a term of office for any of the above reasons.

241 - Provides that the lieutenant governor, rather than the governor, is given the power to grant reprieves, commutations and pardons.

242 - Provides for direct statutory and constitutional initiatives.

Provides that an initiative measure application to be signed by at least 100 registered voters may be submitted to the chief election officer for certification. Subjects denial of certification to judicial review. Limits an initiative measure to 1 subject.

Requires the chief election officer, after certification, to prepare a summary and title for the initiative measure prior to circulation among registered voters. Requires statutory and constitutional initiative measures to contain signatures of at least percent of voters of the State and not less than percent of the voters from at least 2/3 of the senatorial districts of the State and be filed with the chief election officer at least days prior to the next general election to qualify for placement on the ballot at that election.

Provides that initiative measures become effective day(s) after certification of the election results, if approved by a majority vote, unless otherwise provided in the measure. Provides that when 2 or more measures conflict, the one with the highest affirmative vote prevails.

Prohibits veto of initiative statutes. Prohibits legislative repeal within a -year period but allows legislative amendments at any time in open session and by recorded vote. Allows amendment of an initiative constitutional amendment in the same manner as other constitutional amendments.

Prohibits initiatives that name individuals to hold any office or private corporations to perform a function or to have a power or duty. Prohibits initiatives on revenue dedication, appropriations, creation of and rules for courts or local special legislation.

Requires the legislature to enact provisions for the public financing of initiative campaigns.

Amends the legislative provision to reserve the power of initiative to the electorate and to extend such power to all rightful subjects of legislation consistent with the State and U. S. Constitutions and to clarify that only laws passed by the legislature be by bill.

Amends revision and amendment provisions to allow constitutional revision and amendment by the electorate through the power of initiative. Provides that when the legislature and the electorate propose conflicting revisions or amendments and both versions are approved, the electorate's revision or amendment shall prevail. Further provides that when conflicting revisions or amendments proposed by the electorate and by the same body are submitted to the electorate at the same election and all or any combination thereof are approved, the revision or amendment with the highest number of votes shall prevail.

243 - Amends provisions of the legislative salary commission to provide that the commission shall be appointed on or before November 30, 1978 and every 4 years thereafter. Provides that the commission shall submit a legislative salary plan not later than the 40th day of the legislative session and every 4 years thereafter. Provides that the plan becomes effective as provided in the plan unless the legislature disapproves the plan by adoption of a concurrent resolution prior to the adjournment sine die of the legislative session to which the plan was submitted.

244 - Provides that the total appropriations from state tax revenues shall in no year exceed percent of the average of total state personal income for the 2 years preceding the previous legislative session. Excludes appropriations to be expended in consideration of federal funds from limitation. Provides that appropriations may exceed this limit upon a 2/3 vote of the members to which each house of the legislature is entitled. Provides that such an appropriation shall contain no other subject matter and shall set forth the dollar amount and percentage by which the limit will be exceeded.

Provides that the ratio expressed by appropriations to total state personal income shall decline by percent each year after the ratification of this amendment. Provides that ratio shall continue to decline by percent until it has reached percent, at which time the legislature may by a 2/3 vote of the members to which each house is entitled to stop additional decreases.

245 - Allows lands under the administration of the Hawaiian homes commission to be leased to the State or other governmental agencies for public purposes, provided just compensation is paid to perpetuate the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act.

246 - Provides that a law qualifies as a general law only if it is applicable to more than 1 county and deletes the ability of a law to so qualify even though it is inapplicable to 1 or more counties.

247 - Requires accused person who intends to rely upon defense of a mental disease, disorder, or defect excluding responsibility to notify court and prosecuting attorney. Requires bifurcated trial, first to determine whether accused committed the act, and if so, whether defense is valid. Requires legislature to implement section and permits legislation relating to this defense.

248 - Reserves the power of the initiative to the people and provides that an initiative measure shall be presented to the people upon presentation of a petition signed by not less than 10 percent of the registered voters in the case of a state law, and 15 percent in the case of an amendment to the constitution, of all votes cast for governor at the last general election. Requires the petition to be filed with the chief election officer no later than 60 days before the general election at which will be submitted the initiative. Requires each initiative to embrace only 1 subject. Provides that the initiative shall be enacted by a majority of those voting, or if conflicting measures are presented, by the highest number of votes. Disallows any initiative on the levying of taxes. Provides that if the legislature enacts a law which is similar or contrary to the initiative measure, both the law which remains in effect and the initiative measure shall be submitted to the people and the measure receiving the highest vote shall prevail. Voids the similar or contrary law if the initiative measure is approved. Provides that a defeated initiative shall not be submitted again, either affirmatively or negatively, within years.

Provides that prior to circulation for signatures, an initiative petition shall be submitted to the attorney general for preparation, within 30 days, of a title and summary not exceeding words. Provides that all such petitions shall be submitted to the chief election officer for certification of names and voter registration of the signers. Provides that any registered voter may circulate such petitions as long as that person is not paid for such work and provides for the signing of the petition.

Prohibits the release of a petition for inspection by the public or any governmental agency, except upon the order of the supreme court, when a question is raised regarding the sufficiency of the petition. Requires an insufficient petition to be returned to the circulators within 30 days of its filing with notations of specific insufficiencies.

Requires the chief election officer to publish and distribute by mail to all registered voter households a brochure stating the arguments for and against an initiative measure. Also, requires the chief election officer to publish, in a newspaper of general circulation in each senatorial district, the arguments for and against an initiative measure 4 times during the month preceding the general election which will submit the initiative measure. Requires the measure to be presented in the form of a yes or no ballot, where a yes shall indicate an affirmative vote.

Provides that an initiative measure shall be effective, if approved, 1 day after the election returns are announced unless otherwise provided in the measure. Allows the legislature to amend an initiative statute by another statute subject to approval by the electorate unless otherwise permitted by the initiative statute.

Requires the petitioners to bear all costs of the preparation and circulation of the petition, except for the services of the attorney general, but after the petition is filed, all further costs shall be borne by the State.

Provides that while the legislative power of the State is vested in a legislature, the power of initiative is reserved to the electorate and both powers shall extend to all rightful subjects of legislation not inconsistent with the state or U.S. constitutions. Clarifies that only laws passed by the legislature need be by bill.

Provides that constitutional revisions or amendments may be proposed by the electorate as well as by constitutional convention or the legislature. Provides that if conflicting revisions or amendments are proposed by the same body or by the electorate and are submitted at the same election and all or any combination thereof are approved, the one receiving the highest number of votes shall prevail.

249 - Provides that the governor and the lieutenant governor be elected as a team, during the primary election in addition to the general election and provides the lieutenant governor shall perform duties commensurate with the responsibility of the executive branch and as may be delegated by the governor in addition to those delegated by law.

259 - Provides that the total appropriations from state tax revenues shall in no year exceed percent of the average of total state personal income for the 2 years preceding the previous legislative session. Excludes appropriations to be expended in consideration of federal funds from limitation. Provides that appropriations may exceed this limit upon a 2/3 vote of the members to which each house of the legislature is entitled. Provides that such an appropriation shall contain no other subject matter and shall set forth the dollar amount and the percentage by which the limit will be exceeded.

260 - Provides that the legislature shall not impose increased expenditure requirements, decreased revenue collections or both on the political subdivisions without the State sharing in the cost.

261 - Mandates the legislature to provide for the recall of all elected state officials through a petition signed by registered voters equal to at least 10 percent of the votes cast in the official's election district at the last preceding general election.

262 - Provides that an elected state official may be recalled upon petition signed by registered voters equal to at least 10 percent of the votes cast in the official's election district at the last preceding general election.

Requires each elector signing a recall petition to add to the elector's signature, address, voting district and the date of signing. Provides that signatures on a recall petition may be on separate sheets but requires each sheet to have appended thereto an affidavit that to the best of the affiant's knowledge and belief the persons whose signatures appear on the sheet are registered electors of the State, that they signed with full knowledge of the contents of the petition, and that their residences are correctly given.

Requires a recall petition to be tendered for filing with the chief election officer. Requires the chief election officer to examine it to see whether it contains a sufficient number of apparently genuine signatures of registered voters. Allows the chief election officer to question the genuineness of any signature appearing on the recall petition and if any such signature is not genuine, to disregard them in determining the sufficiency of the petition. Requires the chief election officer to also disregard any signature dated more than 60 days before the petition was tendered for filing and to eliminate any sheet of the petition not accompanied by the required affidavit. Provides that the invalidity of any sheet of the petition shall not affect the validity of the petition if a sufficient number of signatures remains after eliminating the invalid sheet. Requires the chief election officer to complete the examination of the petition within 15 days after the submission and to file the petition if valid or reject it if invalid.

Provides that after the chief election officer accepts a recall petition for filing, the chief election officer shall notify the elected officer that the petition has been filed. Provides that upon receipt of such notice, such officer may resign from office and the proceedings shall terminate.

Provides that if the elected officer does not resign from office within 10 days after notice of the filing has been given, the chief election officer shall arrange a recall election. Provides that if a general election or special election is to be held not less than 30 days nor more than 90 days after the 10 days have expired, the recall question shall be placed before the electors at such an election; otherwise a special recall election shall be held not earlier than 30 days nor later than 90 days after the 10 days have expired. Provides that the elected officer may resign at any time prior to the recall election and if so no election shall be held. Provides for the appropriate question concerning recall to be presented to the electorate.

Provides that if a majority of the voters on the question at the election vote yes, the elected officer is recalled and removed from office, otherwise the elected officer remains in office.

Provides that no person, removed from elected office or resigning therefrom after a recall petition directed to the person has been filed, is eligible for election or appointment to any office of the State within 2 years after such removal or resignation.

Changes all references of "political subdivisions" to "counties" throughout the remainder of this proposal.

Provides each county the power to amend and repeal a charter in addition to its powers to frame and adopt a charter for its own self-government. Requires all charters or charter amendments to be submitted to the voters of the county to become effective if approved by a majority of those voting on the specific question; provided that a county charter ratified by the voters of that county remains in force as though adopted after the effective date thereof. Deletes provisions limiting the political subdivision's power to adopt and frame a charter under such procedures as prescribed under general law and prohibiting such prescribed procedures from requiring charter approval by a legislative body.

Provides that charter provisions are superior to statute with respect to the county's procedure in addition to executive, legislative and administrative structure and organization provisions. Deletes provisions subjecting charter provisions to the authority of the legislature to enact general laws allocating and reallocating powers and functions. Also deletes provision that a law qualifies as a general law even though inapplicable to 1 or more counties.

Provides counties exclusive power to levy a tax on real property. Allows any county, except Kalawao, to levy a general excise tax in an amount not to exceed 25 percent of any state general excise tax. Deletes provision allowing political subdivisions taxing power as may be delegated by the legislature.

Provides that any state law increasing expenditures by or reducing the income of a county shall not be effective unless approved by the affected county by ordinance and until the legislature appropriates funds equal to the increase or reduction to the affected county. Further provides that for enactments not applicable uniformly to all counties, a county may, by ordinance, exempt itself from the whole or any part of any enactment by the legislature which in effect or by legislative classification applies to such county.

Requires the State to designate all lands in the State as urban or nonurban. Defines nonurban land as land consisting of (1) agricultural districts which include activities characterized by the cultivation of crops, forage and forestry; farming operations or uses related to animal husbandry, and game and fish propagation; and (2) conservation districts which include areas necessary for protecting watersheds and water services; preserving scenic and historic areas; providing park lands, wilderness and beach and open space areas wherein the retention of existing openness, natural condition or present state of use would enhance the value of abutting or surrounding communities or would maintain or enhance the conservation of natural or scenic resources and areas of value for recreational purposes. Classifies land used for all other purposes as urban land.

Provides that subject to the permitted uses under nonurban and urban designations, the counties shall have exclusive power to control and regulate all land uses and development. Provides that land designated urban as of the effective date of this amendment shall continue in full force and effect until changed. Provides that any law changing land use designations is subject to approval by the county within which the affected land is situated.

367 - Prohibits introduction of bill affecting appropriations, revenues, fiscal liability or expenditures, with a combined total effect of $50,000 or more in the next 6 years, without a fiscal note. Requires fiscal note to inform about source of funding, projected costs and change in revenues over next 6 years, source of information and basis for computation, and such other information as required by law. Requires amendment of note to reflect amendment of bill. Makes fiscal note only advisory and not to become law. Exempts executive budget and supplemental budget bills from requirements.

368 - Provides that no public money shall be expended, except under appropriations made by law and that expenditures shall not exceed the State's revenues and reserves, including the proceeds of any debt obligation for a year. Provides that no debt obligation, except those repaid within the fiscal year of issuance, shall be authorized for the current operation of any state service or program, nor shall the proceeds of any such obligation be expended for a purpose other than that for which authorized. Provides that the rate of growth of appropriations from state tax revenues shall not exceed the rate of growth of the State's economy as determined by law. Allows appropriations in excess of such rate when the legislature by law sets forth the dollar amount and the rate by which the limit will be exceeded. Provides that any law requiring the expenditure of state funds shall be void unless an appropriation is made for the estimated first year's funding. Provides that no law of general application shall impose increased expenditure requirements on counties unless the legislature provides the State share in the cost. Requires an accurate financial statement of the State's fiscal condition to be published annually.

369 - Requires that 12 percent of excise and use tax revenues be set aside for apportionment to the State's political subdivisions as prescribed by law. Requires distribution of 60 percent of total available to be equally distributed and 40 percent on a per capita basis based on resident population defined and adjusted periodically in accordance with law.

370 - Changes the state indebtedness limitation from a sum not exceeding 3-1/2 times the average of the general fund revenues of the State in the 3 fiscal years immediately preceding the session of the legislature authorizing such issuance to the maximum annual debt service in any future year for all general obligation bonds outstanding which shall not exceed percent of the average of the general fund revenues of the State in the fiscal years immediately preceding the session of the legislature authorizing such issuance.

371 - Requires the State to provide counsel for all defendants charged with an offense punishable by imprisonment for more than 60 days and deletes limitation thereto to indigents.

372 - Provides for the nonpartisan election of legislative bodies of any political subdivision if such body is elected.

373 - Provides for single member districts for the state senate. Deletes provision in reapportionment for minimum representation for basic island units.

374 - Provides that the executive power of the State shall be vested in the lieutenant governor as well as the governor.

Provides that the lieutenant governor shall be the chief environment and conservation officer of the State. Makes the lieutenant governor responsible for the policy and administrative management of the natural resources of the State and for the faithful execution of the applicable laws.

Provides that each principal department shall be under the supervision of the governor or lieutenant governor.

Provides that the lieutenant governor in addition to the legislature shall promote the conservation, development and utilization of agricultural resources, and fish, mineral, forest, water, land, game and other natural resources.

Provides that the legislature shall vest in 1 or more boards or commissions within 1 executive department under the supervision of the lieutenant governor powers for the management of natural resources owned or controlled by the State and such powers of disposition thereof as may be authorized by law.

375 - Requires each member of the board of education to be elected from the school district in which the member resides. Provides for a 13-member board with election at-large of other members. Deletes provision that at least part of membership shall represent geographic subdivisions.

376 - Provides punishment by death is cruel and unusual punishment.

377 - Requires an elected state or county official to resign from office before seeking another public elective office, the term of which begins before that official's present term of office expires.

378 - Provides no person shall be disqualified to serve as a juror because of occupation in addition to sex.

379 - Provides that the terms for county chief executives shall be either 2 or 4 years and coincide with the governor's term.

380 - Provides that in all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy trial by an impartial jury representing a wide cross section of the community and a right to a trial in the district wherein the crime was committed.

Provides that where the crime is serious, the juries shall consist of 12 persons.

Deletes the accused's right to a trial in the district wherein the crime shall have been committed and the district previously ascertained by law. Deletes 60-day imprisonment limitation concerning an indigent defendant's right to counsel.

381 - Provides the State and each person has the duty to provide and maintain a healthful environment for the benefit of present and future generations. Provides a healthful environment includes, but is not limited to, clean air and water, sustainable sources of food, freedom from excessive and unnecessary noise, unnatural or excessive levels of ionizing radiation, the preservation of the natural, scenic, historic and aesthetic qualities of the environment and population levels consistent with these qualities.

Prohibits interference by any party, public or private, with the right of the people, and each person to a clean, healthful environment. Provides that in case of disputes over a proposed action's environmental consequences, the agency or individual taking the disputed action has the burden of showing that the action will not have deleterious effects upon the environment or the public health.

Provides for enforcement of the rights and principles embodied in this amendment against any party, government or private, through appropriate legal proceedings. Provides each person has the right to a trial de novo in a judicial proceeding.

382 - Provides that the salary of each member of the legislature shall be $18,000 instead of $12,000 a year.

Provides that a commission on legislative salary shall be appointed by the governor on or before June 1, 1984, and every 10 years thereafter, instead of on or before June 1, 1971 and every 4 years thereafter.

383 - Provides there shall be a constitutional revision commission which shall undertake a continuous review of the constitution of the State and recommend amendments to the legislature and constitutional conventions. Requires the legislature by law to provide for the implementation of this section.

384 - Provides that right of police officers and firefighters to collective bargaining shall not include the right to strike. Requires the legislature to provide orderly, impartial and reasonable procedures for arbitration, mediation or conciliation to settle unresolved disputes involving police officers and firefighters.

385 - Provides that available water, in addition to lands, within those available lands or water within lands designated as Hawaiian home lands pursuant to the Act controlled by the department shall be sold or leased only in the manner and for the purposes set forth in the Act; deletes requirement that any valid agreement of sale or lease in effect at the time of passage of the Act be completed; deletes reference to the limitations on unselected portions of land and provides that the control of water within available lands or lands designated as Hawaiian home lands pursuant to the Act shall remain in the exclusive control of the department for the betterment of the conditions of native Hawaiians and that the law concerning available lands shall control if other provisions of the Act are inconsistent.

386 - Requires that the board of education be composed of members who are representatives of district school advisory councils, as provided by law. Requires establishment of district school advisory councils with duties and responsibilities as provided by law, to reflect geographic subdivisions of the State and to be composed of representatives of individual school advisory councils, which are to have duties and responsibilities and be composed of members elected, as provided by law. Deletes provision for board to be elected by voters in accordance with law and to represent at least in part the geographic subdivisions of the State.

Amends the power of the board to advise the superintendent of education in matters of policy rather than to formulate policy and to exercise control over the superintendent. Provides for administration of the public school system by a superintendent appointed by the governor with senate approval from a list of 3 nominees provided by the board instead of by the board through the superintendent, its executive officer. Deletes provision that the superintendent serves as secretary to the board and provides for board to appoint its own secretary.

387 - Provides that right of people to possess and cultivate marijuana for personal use in the privacy of the home shall not be violated but shall be regulated by law.

388 - Mandates the legislature to provide for complete public disclosure of all campaign contributions and expenditures by candidates for any election.

389 - Reduces the maximum number of principal state departments in which state executive and administrative offices, departments and instrumentalities shall be placed from 20 to 10.

390 - Requires the organization of the legislature to assure proportional representation of all members regardless of political affiliation as committee chairpersons and members. Prohibits depriving member of full right to vote as committee member because of political party membership or leadership.

391 - Provides for the recall of single executive heads of a principal department appointed by the governor and excludes members of boards and commissions. Requires that a recall election be placed on a separate ballot at a general election. Requires the legislature to provide for the manner and procedure for the recall process; provided that a petition names only 1 officer and that no restrictions be placed on the basis for filing a petition. Provides that the recall shall be in addition to any other method of removal provided by law.

392 - Prohibits amendment or repeal of that portion of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act which allocates 30 percent of the state receipts derived from the leasing of cultivated sugarcane lands under any provision of law or from water licenses to the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund for the purposes enumerated in those provisions except by constitutional amendment. Provides no ceiling shall be established for the aggregate amount deposited into the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund.

Amends Act to provide for the inclusion of the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund increasing the number of Hawaiian special funds established in the treasury of the State to 8. Requires 30 percent of state receipts derived from the leasing of cultivated sugarcane lands under any other provision of law or from water licenses to be deposited into this fund. Requires the department of Hawaiian home lands to use this money solely for the rehabilitation of native Hawaiians including, but not limited to, the social, economic, cultural and social processes by which the general welfare and conditions of native Hawaiians are improved and perpetuated. Authorizes the Hawaiian Homes Commission to refund this money to the State.

393 - Requires the governor to submit to the legislature for review and approval all federal grants-in-aid and federal funding for state programs before the expenditure of such funds.

394 - Authorizes legislature to establish a budget review committee which shall, if established, be full-time and shall in odd-numbered years after due consideration of the budget and other information either affirm revenue projections contained in budget submitted by governor or establish its own projection for the ensuing fiscal biennium. Requires review committee, if established, to monitor budget and expenditures made thereunder, report as necessary to supervising committees and the governor and perform other duties as required by law. Makes review committee subject to joint supervision of legislative committees responsible for budget and finance. Allows review committee to amend projected revenue figures from time to time. Requires governor to obtain consent of legislative committees responsible for budget and finance in setting capital improvement priorities, fund restrictions, and transfer of funds. Requires the review committee to make the revenue estimate and amendments thereto available to the public and to submit them to the governor and legislature. Provides for lapse of capital improvement project funds after 4 years or less as provided by law.

395 - Establishes a joint committee made up of 5 members elected from each house to review rules and regulations of executive agencies of the State and its political subdivisions to determine whether such rules are adopted pursuant to law and to report to the legislature prior to the following session.

396 - Provides that special sessions may be convened at request of 1/2 instead of 2/3 of members of each house and that legislature may consider matters within its powers as deemed necessary or desirable in special session whether called by members of the legislature or the governor.

397 - Provides that the State shall provide counsel for a defendant charged with an offense punishable by imprisonment.

Deletes the requirement that defendant be an indigent charged with an offense punishable by imprisonment for more than 60 days before the State shall provide counsel.

398 - Amends the Bill of Rights to provide that the people delegate political power as set forth in the constitution but the people reserve the initiative power and the right to exercise that power. Amends legislative article to provide that while legislative power of the State is vested in a legislature, the people reserve the initiative power and the right to exercise that power.

Provides that the people individually or collectively reserve the initiative power to propose statutes and constitutional amendments and to enact or reject them by ballot vote.

Provides that an initiative petition signed by at least 1 registered voter of the State who shall become the sponsor(s) may be submitted to the chief election officer at any time. Requires the initiative measure to include a ballot title, statement of purpose, summary of the text and the full text of the proposed measure. Requires the chief election officer, within 10 working days of the filing of the petition, to certify that the sponsor is a registered voter and verify that the petition's ballot title, statement of purpose and summary of the text are written without prejudice. Provides that the chief election officer, with the concurrence of the attorney general, shall not verify petitions embracing local laws, private gain or more than 1 subject. Subjects verification to sponsor approval and judicial review.

Requires verified petition to be circulated in its entirety. Allows any registered voter of the State to circulate and sign a verified initiative petition.

Allows a sponsor to file a verified petition with the chief election officer at any time who shall certify the number of required signatures. Requires signatures of 3 percent or more for any initiative measure to be referred to the legislature and 5 percent or more for any initiative measure to be placed on a separate initiative ballot at the next general election.

Allows the legislature a full session to act upon a referred initiative measure in the original form. Qualifies the measure for the separate initiative ballot at the next general election if the legislature fails to enact the measure after the passing of 1 full session.

Allows the chief election officer at least 60 days to certify and prepare an initiative measure for the ballot. Requires an initiative measure to be placed on the ballot in such form that an affirmative vote for the measure as written is cast with a yes vote. Requires approval of initiative measures by a majority of votes cast thereon, except that for constitutional initiatives the majority shall constitute at least 35 percent of the total votes cast. Provides that approved initiatives become effective 1 day after certification of the election results. Provides that when conflicting measures are approved, the one with the highest affirmative votes prevails.

Prohibits veto of initiative laws; prohibits legislative repeal or amendment by the legislature, except by a 3/4 vote in each house.

Provides that if after a petition is verified a similar or contrary law is enacted by the legislature, both measures shall be submitted to the voters. Provides that the similar or contrary law shall remain in effect pending the general election. Provides that the measure with the highest number of votes shall prevail and voids the similar or contrary law if the initiative measure is approved. Provides that, with concurrence of the attorney general, if any law enacted is the same as or similar to and accomplishes the same purpose as an initiative measure, the chief election officer may by public announcement declare the initiative measure void and order it stricken from the ballot.

Prohibits resubmittal of a defeated initiative measure in the same form or essential substance, as determined by the chief election officer with the attorney general's concurrence, either affirmatively or negatively prior to the opening and closing of 2 consecutive regular legislative sessions.

Prohibits the legislature from enacting any law or the chief election officer from making any regulation or rules which abridge the initiative power and its free exercise or denial.

Amends the legislative article to clarify that only laws passed by the legislature must be by bill.

Provides for constitutional revisions and amendments by the people as well as by constitutional convention or by the legislature. Prohibits veto of constitutional amendments adopted in any manner provided by the constitution. Provides that when the legislature and the people propose conflicting revisions or amendments and both are approved, the one with the highest vote shall prevail. Provides that when conflicting revisions or amendments are proposed by the people and are submitted at the same election and both are approved, the one with the highest number of votes shall prevail.

399 - Provides that the Hawaiian flag shall be a flag depicting the state seal on a field of white.

400 - Deletes section 3 of Article I relating to freedom of religion, speech, press, assembly and petition and provides that everyone has the right to communicate including a right to assemble, to participate, to inform, be informed, to privacy and freedom of speech and language; and establishes the claim of all citizens to communication resources required to implement such rights.

401 - Requires the State to be responsible for preserving and developing the cultural and traditional arts of its various ethnic groups as well as fostering the creative energy, imaginativeness and artistic skills of its people and for this purpose requires the State to promote and support activities and experiences of cultural and artistic value.

402 - Provides that the people shall have access to all government records and proceedings in the absence of a proven and compelling state interest as defined by law. Provides that journalists shall not be compelled to divulge their confidential sources of information. Provides that the people's right to know the sources of all money spent to influence political elections at any level of government shall not be diminished nor impugned.

403 - Requires all candidates for an office to appear on 1 ballot, whether a candidate is a nonpartisan or represents a political party. Allows voters to vote for any candidate for office in a primary election, regardless of the political party or nonpartisanship of the candidate. Requires preservation of secrecy of the political party of the voter, if the person is not a candidate.

404 - Provides that the code of ethics adopted by the legislature shall also apply to members of the constitutional convention.

Provides that no delegate to the constitutional convention shall appoint, employ, promote, advance or advocate for appointment, employment, promotion or advancement to the convention any individual who is a relative of that delegate or a relative of a fellow delegate. Defines relative as an individual who is related as father, mother, son, daughter, brother, sister, uncle, aunt, first cousin, nephew, niece, husband, wife, father-in-law, mother-in-law, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, brother-in-law, sister-in-law, stepfather, stepmother, stepson, stepdaughter, stepbrother, stepsister, half brother or half sister.

Provides that no delegate to the constitutional convention shall accept, receive or solicit any compensation or other consideration for the performance of their official duties or responsibilities from government employment, private employment, unions or other groups.

405 - Provides for the establishment of a commission on Hawaiian affairs to have but not be limited to the functions of (1) coordinating all governmental affairs directly pertaining to the Hawaiian people, culture, history and lands except as executed by other parts of the amendment and (2) establishing facilities to protect and preserve the Hawaiian people, culture, history and lands.

Provides the commission consists of 28 members. Requires persons of full or part-Hawaiian ancestry in each of the 27 representative districts meet as provided by law and submit a list of names to the governor from which the governor is to appoint 1 commissioner from each of the 27 districts, without the advice and consent of the senate. Provides the chairperson of the Hawaiian homes commission serves as an ex officio, nonvoting member. Requires the legislature to implement the amendment.

406 - Provides that there shall be an ombudsman commission, consisting of 2 legislators chosen by the legislature and the judicial commission, created by the constitution or by law, which is also the commission that recommends persons to the governor to fill judicial vacancies. Provides that the ombudsman commission shall appoint or remove an ombudsman with the confirmation of 2/3 of the legislature. Provides that the ombudsman commission shall not accept any applications for the position of ombudsman but shall solicit qualified nominees for such position. Provides that except for the appointment or removal the tenure, qualifications, compensation, vacancy and duties of the office of ombudsman shall be as prescribed by law.

407 - Provides that the constitutional convention's official opening shall be in any year other than a general election year.

Provides that there shall be the same number of delegates to the convention, who shall be elected from the same areas, and that the convention shall be convened in the same manner and have the same powers and privileges, as nearly as practicable, as provided for the convention of 1978 instead of 1968.

408 - Provides for 4-year term for state representatives. Provides that the members of the senate and house of representatives shall serve staggered terms. Provides that in the general election of 1978 the members to which each district is entitled shall be divided in half. The members obtaining the highest vote shall be members of the first class and elected for 4 years. The remaining members from the district shall be in the second class and shall be elected for 2 years. Thereafter the successors of the members of the second class shall be elected for 4 years. Provides that where unable to determine class due to tie, the tie shall be decided by lot supervised by the chief election officer with the winner to be in the class with the longest term.

Requires the reapportionment commission to designate which district is to be represented by senators or representatives whose terms extend past reapportionment. Provides in making such designation the senator or representative need not live in the district the senator or representative is designated to represent. Requires commission in making designation to consider (1) the senatorial or representative district the senator or representative was elected from, (2) the senatorial or representative district in which the senator or representative will reside under the reapportionment plan, and (3) the requirement of continuing staggered terms and the number of senators or representatives in a senatorial or representative district under the commission's reapportionment plan. Requires the commission to give no consideration to holdover senators or representatives in redistricting. Deletes minimum representation for basic island units.

409 - Prohibits levy on sales, transaction, gross income, general excise or similar tax upon food purchased for domestic preparation and consumption or upon prescription drugs, as defined by law. Provides that food and drugs shall be defined by law. Makes section effective July 1 following ratification and inapplicable to income taxed under Hawaii income tax law or its successor.

410 - Requires State to provide assistance to the aged as provided by law. Establishes an old age pension fund whose income sources include revenue from old age pension tax to be imposed by the State, percent of all general excise tax revenues each year, federal grants-in-aid for old age assistance and other moneys as provided by law. Prohibits use of moneys for purposes other than old age pensions and transfers of moneys in part or in whole to any other fund.

411 - Adds Aina Malama provisions. Defines Aina Malama as consisting of those waters and lands considered by the people to have important social, cultural, historical, ecological, environmental, agricultural, educational, recreational or aesthetic value, requiring protection under the constitution and laws for the benefit of each and every citizen. Provides that Aina Malama shall be designated only by vote of the people, and that designation shall be made from nominations submitted by the legislature, any county or by the people as provided by this section and by law. Requires lands nominated to be those areas designated as conservation districts or park and recreational areas on or after adoption of this amendment. Requires each nomination to contain a description of the land by traditional name, a metes and bounds description of the boundaries and an appropriate category of use as set forth herein. Requires the legislature to provide for the manner and procedure of nominations but petitions by the people must contain a certain percentage of registered voters of the State and of the county where the land is located.

Requires lands nominated be presented for a vote at the next general or special election. Approval requires a majority of all votes cast statewide and a majority of votes in the county where the land is located.

Removal of lands or changes in the category of use is not permitted unless approved by the people. Provides 2 categories of use: conservation lands may be nominated for either category 1 or 2; parks and recreational areas may be nominated for only category 2.

Provides category 1 areas are subject only to those uses which preserve the natural resources of an area. Requires lands be protected and managed so as to preserve the existing resources and to insure their continued availability. Permits only those structures, improvements, recreational activities or historic sites having a minimum adverse impact on the natural environment and which are consistent with the physical geography and ecology of the area.

Provides category 2 areas are subject to only those uses which provide opportunities for recreational activities consistent with the existing environment. Provides preservation of historic sites is deemed a permissible use and preference shall be given to the repair and modernization of existing structures and facilities. Provides that unless specified in the nominating petition, permissible uses shall be determined by the commission after a public hearing.

Prohibits new nonconforming uses; requires existing nonconforming uses to terminate as early as possible and those remaining to be subject to the directives of the commission.

Entrusts the guardianship of Aina Malama lands to the Aina Malama commission consisting of 9 members with the president of the senate, the speaker of the house of representatives and mayors of the 4 counties each selecting 1 member and the governor selecting 2 members. Provides the 8 members shall select the ninth person to serve as the chairperson. Provides each member shall serve no more than terms of years. Requires the legislature to appropriate funds to facilitate the operation of the commission and to reimburse members for necessary expenses.

Requires the commission to exercise final approval over any proposed uses of Aina Malama lands and to impose conditions necessary to effectuate the restrictions imposed by the applicable category of use. Empowers the commission to terminate nonconforming uses and to require the dedication of lands to enforce the principles and standards embodied in this amendment.

Requires the commission to maintain a registry and establish rules and regulations for the supervision and administration of Aina Malama lands. Provides the people have the right to appeal decisions of the commission before the circuit courts of the State.

412 - Provides that the legislative power of the State shall be in one house called the senate, composed of 51 members. Substitutes the term "senate" for "each house", "house of representatives" or similar terms throughout the constitution.

Provides that the senatorial districts and the number of senators from each shall be as provided by the most recent reapportionment plan instead of according to the Schedule until the next reapportionment. Deletes provision for house of representatives. Provides for selection of 2 members of reapportionment commission by majority floor leader instead of by speaker of house of representatives and of 2 members by minority party members (other than that of senate president) of the senate instead of 1 each by each house's minority parties. Deletes provision for minimum representation of basic island units in reapportionment. Deletes provision for inclusion of representative districts within senatorial districts.

Deletes provisions for term of office, qualifications and privileges for members of house of representatives.

Provides for regular session limited to 60 days, split into 20- and 40-day sessions separated by 15-day recess. Limits bill introduction to the 20-day session. Provides that no more than 500 bills shall be identified and read no more than once during the 20-day session and that these bills shall be formally considered during the 40-day session, subject to waiver of requirement by 2/3 vote.

Deletes provision prohibiting adjournment for more than 3 days without consent of other house. Requires bill, to pass third or final reading in senate, shall be made available to the senators for at least 72 hours. Deletes provision for sending a bill to the other house and for at least one reading in the house in which it originated to enact a carry-over bill.

Provides that the senate shall have the sole power of impeachment and to try impeachment of the governor and lieutenant governor. Makes amendment applicable to elections of 1982.

413 - Provides that primary elections be held, in accordance with law, but in no case less than 45 days before a general election.

414 - Provides that lands owned or controlled by the State or any political subdivision, agency or instrumentality thereof, corporate or otherwise, as of November 7, 1978 or thereafter acquired in any manner shall not be sold or disposed of except by lease, but excludes lands designated in the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920.

415 - Provides that in any primary election a qualified voter may vote for any candidate regardless of party or nonpartisan affiliation of the voter or the candidate.

416 - Provides that it shall be the public policy of the State and the duty of each person to protect, maintain and preserve the natural, cultural and aesthetic resources of the State. Gives the people the right to insure that the use of any renewable or nonrenewable resources shall be beneficial. Provides for enforcement of the rights set forth in amendment against any party, governmental or private, through the appropriate legal proceedings.

Defines Aina Malama as those waters and lands considered by the people to have important social, cultural, historical, ecological, environmental, agricultural, educational, recreational or aesthetic value requiring protection under the constitution and laws for the benefit of each and every citizen.

Requires designations to be made from nominations submitted by the legislature, any county or petitions by the people accompanied by signatures of not less than 8 percent of all registered voters residing in the county in which subject land is located and not less than 5 percent of all registered voters in the State.

Requires petitions be received by the chief election officer not less than 90 days before the next scheduled general or special election.

Requires nominations to contain the popular, traditional or descriptive name of the proposed area, the metes and bounds description of the boundaries of the proposed area, if any, and an appropriate category of use.

Requires lands nominated be those areas designated as conservation districts or park and recreational areas as of the date of adoption of this amendment.

Provides that if nomination includes more than 1 area or proposed area to be divided with different uses, the nomination shall clearly define areas, boundaries and uses.

Requires that prior to circulation of a petition, a copy is to be submitted to the commission which shall within 15 days certify whether the language meets necessary requirements.

Provides there shall be no limit on the number of copies of petitions which may be circulated; every petition must be verified by affidavit of the circulator; the chief election officer must certify that the petitioners are registered voters of the State; any petition found to be insufficient shall be returned to the circulator within 30 days with reasons. Requires that once the petition is certified by the chief election officer for placement on the ballot, a moratorium be placed on the proposed, pending or existing land use designations of the lands in question. Requires petitioners bear all costs of preparation and circulation; after filing, costs are borne by the State.

Provides a majority of all votes cast statewide and a majority of all votes cast in the county in which the subject land is located are required for inclusion in Aina Malama on a ballot presenting the question in a yes or no fashion. Provides that unless otherwise specified, designations become effective 1 day after the election results are announced and if the nomination is not approved, the moratorium on land use designations ceases 1 day after such announcement.

Provides that if 2 or more conflicting nominations are introduced and approved by the voters, the nomination receiving the highest number of votes shall prevail.

Provides that removal of lands from Aina Malama or changes in use are prohibited unless approved by the people and that upon removal the appropriate governmental agency shall assume jurisdiction of the land. Requires lands included in Aina Malama to be recorded in a registry to be maintained by the Aina Malama commission, which shall be published or otherwise made available to the public.

Provides 2 categories of use: conservation lands may be nominated for either category 1 or 2; parks and recreational areas may be nominated for only category 2.

Provides category 1 areas are subject only to those uses which preserve the natural resources of an area. Requires lands to be protected and managed so as to preserve existing resources and to insure their continued availability. Permits only those structures, improvements, recreational activities or historic sites having a minimum adverse impact on the natural environment and which are consistent with the physical geography and ecology of the area.

Provides category 2 areas shall be subject to only those uses which provide opportunities for recreational activities consistent with the existing environment. Deems preservation of historic sites a permissible use and gives preference to the repair and modernization of existing structures and facilities. Provides that unless specified in the nominating petition, permissible uses shall be determined by the commission after a public hearing.

Requires the appropriation of Aina Malama lands for the repair and expansion of public infrastructures not benefitting the land in question directly to be approved by the commission after public hearings and that land of at least equal size and substantially equal value is required to be replaced in Aina Malama before the use will be permitted.

Prohibits new nonconforming uses; requires existing nonconforming uses to terminate as early as possible and those remaining to be subject to the directives of the commission. Requires any proposed use of Aina Malama lands be shown to be for the long-term benefit of the people.

Entrusts the guardianship of Aina Malama lands to the Aina Malama commission consisting of 9 members with the president of the senate, the speaker of the house of representatives and mayors of the 4 counties each selecting 1 member and the governor selecting 2 members. Requires the 8 members to select the ninth person to serve as the chairperson. Provides commissioners may serve only one 4-year term and are to be reimbursed for their expenses incurred in facilitating the operation of the commission. Allows governor to reduce terms of those initially appointed so that terms are staggered.

Requires the commission act by majority vote of its membership and to establish its own procedures except as may be provided by this amendment. Requires the commission to exercise final approval over any proposed uses of Aina Malama lands and to impose conditions necessary to effectuate the restrictions imposed by the applicable category of use.

Requires the commission to establish rules and regulations assigning the administration of lands to an agency, providing supervision and administration of such lands, providing for surveys of parcels to be included in Aina Malama, if such descriptions are not available and are necessary, providing for timely certification or rejection of petitions submitted under this amendment and insuring the public health, safety and welfare from immediate dangers on such lands.

Requires all hearings of the commission be open to the public and all actions of the commission to be held in accordance with government agency procedures. Gives the people the right to appeal decisions of the commission before the circuit courts.

417 - Provides that every person has the right to examine public records or to observe the deliberations of public bodies of the state government and its subdivisions except when the public welfare or the right of privacy shall require otherwise.

Requires sessions of the legislature and meetings and hearings of its committees to be open to the public.

Provides that no bill shall pass third or final reading in either house unless a public hearing has been held on the bill.

418 - Provides that the code of ethics is intended to guide public officers and employees to avoid conflicts between private interests and public duty and to seek a high level of ethical conduct in order that the public interest is served.

Requires the code of ethics to conform with the principles and standards expressed in this section.

Provides that any officer or employee should: put loyalty to government service above loyalty to private persons and party; expose corruption whenever discovered; discharge the duties of office in a faithful, impartial and efficient manner; never use public office for private gain; never accept favors, gifts or other benefits under circumstances in which it can reasonably be construed as influencing the performance of official duties or as a reward for any official action; never disclose confidential information acquired in the course of official duties or use such information for other than official purposes; not engage in any activity or have any financial interest incompatible with the proper discharge of official duties tending to impair independence of judgment in the performance of official duties; not participate in any decision where there is substantial conflict between official duties and private interests; uphold principles, ever conscious that public office is a public trust.

Provides that any officer or employee should divulge those interests which might reasonably tend to create a conflict with the interest.

Requires any officer or employee who participates in decision making of a significant nature to file a disclosure of financial interests and those of that officer's or employee's immediate family concerning the businesses with whom the officer or employee is associated; the amounts and sources of principal income; stockholdings; real property holdings in the community; and creditors to whom significant debts are owed.

Provides that there shall be an ethics commission granted powers to administer the code of ethics, comprised of members who are not public officers or employees. Requires the major branches of government to participate in the selection of commission members.

Provides that there shall be appropriate sanctions against violations of the code of ethics to include fines and suspension, demotion or removal from office or employment.

Requires all disclosures of interests made under the article and all violations of the code found by the commission to become a matter of public record.

419 - Requires the lieutenant governor to be elected independently of the governor and deletes requirement that votes cast for governor are deemed cast for lieutenant governor.

Provides that the lieutenant governor shall perform, in addition to such duties as may be prescribed by law, the following:

1. Serve as secretary of state including the responsibilities for the supervision of elections, recordation of legislative and gubernatorial acts, certification of state documents and custodian of rules and regulations promulgated by governmental agencies.
2. Supervise the enforcement of all laws and rules governing the licensing, operation and conduct of trades, businesses and professions.
3. Serve as a coordinator of volunteer programs in the State.

Provides that the responsibilities of the chief election officer shall be as prescribed by law and shall include the existing constitutional duties and deletes requirement that legislature shall provide for a chief election officer.

420 - Provides for the recall of state and political subdivision elected officials by the electors entitled to vote for a successor of the incumbent which shall be in addition to any other method of removal provided by law. Allows the legislature to enact legislation to facilitate the operation of this section; provided that such legislation does not restrict or limit the provisions or powers in this section.

Requires a recall measure to be submitted to the people for a vote when signed by _____ percent of all registered voters able to vote for the office subject to the recall at the general election preceding recall. Limits petition circulators and signers to those voters entitled to vote for the officer named on the recall petition. Prohibits solicitors from receiving payment for circulating petitions. Requires the petition to state in not more than 200 words, the reason for the recall vote.

Prohibits a recall petition against any elected officer until more than 6 months of the officer's term is served. Prohibits a recall petition within 60 days of a primary election in which the officer is required to seek nomination for reelection. Provides that a petition filed against an officer whose term expires at a general election after a forthcoming general election be submitted to the voters at the forthcoming election if the petition is filed not more than _____ days and not less than _____ days prior to that election. Provides that all other recall measures be submitted at a special election called by the chief election officer between 90 and 95 days after the filing of the recall petition.

Requires the governor to appoint another officer to fulfill the duties of the chief election officer when a recall petition is filed with the attorney general against the lieutenant governor.

Requires the certification of recall petitions by the chief election officer. Prohibits enactment of any law limiting the number of copies of a petition which may be circulated. Requires petition signers to add their address as shown on the voter registration form and date of signing the petition. Provides verification procedures for the petition signatures. Allows the removal of a signer's name upon the signer's request at any time prior to certification. Prohibits the use of the names of petition signers for any purpose other than certification. Prohibits the release of a petition for inspection except when ordered by the supreme court on questions regarding the sufficiency or validity of a petition. Requires an insufficient or invalid petition to be returned to the circulators within _____ days of its filing with the reasons for such return.

Requires that the text of a recall measure be published in a newspaper of general circulation once in each of 4 successive weeks within the 1-month period immediately preceding the election at which the measure is submitted.

Requires recall measures to be presented in such a form that a yes indicates an affirmative vote for the measure. Requires a recall ballot to contain 2 parts: (1) question on whether the officer shall be removed, and (2) selection of a successor from a list of nominees if the majority vote for the first question is for removal; provided that no vote for a candidate shall be counted unless the voter also voted "Yes" or "No" on the recall question. Prohibits the person against whom the recall petition is filed from appearing on the ballot as a candidate. Requires a majority vote for removal of an officer and the candidate with the highest number of votes for the office shall be declared elected for the remainder of the term.

Provides that once an officer is subjected to a recall vote no other recall petition may be filed against that officer for the remainder of the term of office.

Provides that the recall measure shall be effective, if approved, one day after the election results are announced, unless otherwise provided in the measure.

Requires the petitioner to bear the cost of the preparation and circulation of the petition, except for the attorney general's services. Requires the State to bear all costs after the petition is filed.

425 - Provides that no person shall be eligible for the office of justice or judge unless he shall have practiced law before the supreme court of this State for at least 10 years instead of having been admitted to practice for at least 10 years.

Requires additional qualifications and criteria for the selection of judges and judicial offices to be prescribed by law.

426 - Provides that the initiative is the reserved power of the people to propose statutes and constitutional amendments and to adopt or reject them.

Allows the use of either the direct or indirect initiative. Defines direct initiative as a measure to be submitted directly to the voters and an indirect initiative as a measure to be submitted to the legislature. Requires sponsors to declare a measure either direct or indirect before soliciting signatures. Requires solicitors of signatures for an initiative measure to be registered voters in the State.

Requires the initiative petition to contain a ballot title, statement of purpose, full text of the proposal and a summary of no more than 150 words which shall be descriptive or expository but not argumentative or prejudicial. Limits an initiative measure to 1 subject. Requires the submittal of the petition to the chief election officer for initial certification before the solicitation of signatures no earlier than 1 day after the last general election for placement on the ballot for the next general election. Requires the chief election officer to certify, within 10 days, the ballot title, statement of purpose and summary either in the original form or clarified to more accurately represent and more nearly conform to the text of the proposal.

Requires direct initiative petitions to undergo public discussion during a comment period prior to final certification. Provides that after a direct initiative petition contains signatures of at least 1 percent of the registered voters of the last general election, the sponsors shall resubmit the petition to the chief election officer who shall issue, within 10 days, a public notice of a 30-day comment period during which time a public hearing shall be held. Provides that after the comment period, the sponsors of an initiative petition may amend the text of the petition provided that any amended petition shall undergo a new qualifying process.

Provides that for final certification and submission to voters, direct initiative petitions shall contain signatures of 8 percent of the registered voters in the last general election for a statute and 12 percent for a constitutional amendment. Requires that all direct initiative petitions be filed for final certification not later than 90 days prior to the forthcoming general election. Requires the chief election officer to submit the initiative measure to the voters at the first general election following final certification.

Requires indirect initiative petitions to contain signatures of 7 percent of the number of registered voters in the last general election for a statute and 11 percent for a constitutional amendment to qualify for final certification. Requires indirect initiative petitions to be filed for final certification not later than 30 days prior to the legislative session preceding the next general election. Provides that if an indirect initiative is not enacted by the legislature in the original form proposed, both the original and the amended versions shall be submitted to the voters at the next general election and the measure with the highest number of votes shall prevail.

Requires the legislature to provide methods of publicity for all initiative measures with arguments for and against the proposed statute or constitutional amendment, including a voter education publication. Requires the chief election officer to send such publication to each individual residence in the State and to make such additional distribution necessary to assure each voter an opportunity to study the initiative measure prior to the election.

Requires the initiative measure to be placed on the ballot in such form that an affirmative vote is a vote for change. Requires a majority vote approval on statutory and constitutional initiatives except that for a constitutional initiative the majority shall constitute at least 35 percent of the total vote cast. Provides that approved measures become effective immediately except for measures requiring authorization of funds, or providing tax reductions or increases which shall take effect the following fiscal year.

Prohibits the governor from vetoing initiative statutes. Prohibits legislative repeal or amendment of an initiative statute within a 2-year period after its adoption, except by a 3/4 vote of the members to which each house of the legislature is entitled.

Requires the disclosure of funds contributed and expended to influence the outcome of an initiative measure.

Provides that while the legislative power of the State is vested in a legislature, the power of initiative is reserved to the electorate and both powers shall extend to all rightful subjects of legislation not inconsistent with the state or U.S. constitutions. Clarifies that only laws passed by the legislature need be by bill.

Provides that constitutional revisions or amendments may be proposed by the electorate as well as by constitutional convention or the legislature. Provides that when conflicting revisions or amendments are proposed by the same body or by the electorate and are submitted at the same election and all or any combination thereof are approved, the one receiving the highest number of votes shall prevail.

Requires the governor to appoint a person to fill a judicial office until the next general election at which the vacancy shall be filled. Provides that the justice or judge then elected shall hold office for the unexpired term.

Requires all justices and judges to serve full time and not engage in the practice of law while holding office. Provides that a justice or judge may become a candidate for an elective office by forfeiting office other than that of justice or judge.

Provides that the term of office of a district court judge shall be 6 years.

Provides that judges of the district court may be retired or removed in the same manner as supreme court justices or circuit court judges whenever a commission or agency, authorized by law for such purpose, certifies to the governor on a judge or justice's incapacity or removal.

441 - Excludes from the total indebtedness of the State and the funded debt of any political subdivision bonds that were refunded in advance of their maturity, for which monies have been irrevocably set aside to meet all payments.

442 - Changes all references of political subdivisions to counties in the local government article.

Grants counties powers and authorities which shall be liberally construed to give the counties the largest measure of self-government. Deletes provision authorizing the legislature to create counties and other political subdivisions with such powers as conferred under general laws.

Establishes the following counties in the State: (1) Hawaii county; (2) Maui county; (3) Kauai county; (4) Honolulu city and county; and (5) Kalawao county and describes their boundaries.

Confers upon all the counties, except the county of Kalawao, all the powers of government not denied by the constitution, general law or by charter. Provides that the county of Kalawao shall have only such powers as conferred under law.

Provides each county the power to amend or repeal a charter in addition to its powers to frame and adopt a charter for its own self-government. Requires all charters or charter amendments to be submitted to the voters of the county to become effective if approved by a majority of those voting on the specific question; provided that a county charter ratified by the voters of that county remains in force as though adopted after the effective date of these amendments. Deletes provisions limiting the political subdivision's power to adopt and frame a charter under such procedure as prescribed under general law and prohibiting such prescribed procedures from requiring charter approval by a legislative body.

Provides that charter provisions are superior to statute with respect to the county's procedure and regulation of lands not under federal, state or Hawaiian homes commission jurisdiction in addition to executive, legislative and administrative structure and organization provisions. Provides that the statute shall be the superior authority with respect to judicial review of administrative proceedings. Deletes provisions subjecting charter provisions to the authority of the legislature to enact general laws allocating and reallocating powers and functions. Also deletes provision that qualifies a law as a general law even though inapplicable to 1 or more counties.

Provides counties with exclusive use of the net real property tax realizations and the power to determine real property tax rates and exemptions. Requires 3 percent of all general excise taxes to be equally distributed among the counties, excluding Kalawao, and an additional 12 percent to be distributed among the same counties in proportion to resident population as determined by law. Empowers the legislature to grant state revenues to the counties.

Provides that any state law increasing expenditures by or reducing the income of a county shall be subject to approval by the affected county by county ordinance. Further provides that for enactments not applicable uniformly to all counties, a county may, by ordinance, exempt itself from the whole or any part of any enactment by the legislature which in effect or by legislative classification applies to such county.

443 - Provides that civil service law relating to wages, hours and other terms and conditions of employment shall not apply to any public employee if similar provision is applicable under a collective bargaining agreement.

444 - Continues provision that the constitutional convention shall determine its own organization and rules of procedure but provides for pre-convention ad hoc organizational committees, composed of duly elected delegates, to be established. Requires these committees to consist of committees on facilities, rules, budget, and ethics, and requires committees to make a report to the convention delegates on opening day.

445 - Authorizes the commission on legislative salary to set legislative salaries whenever the governor appoints a commission. Provides that the commission's recommendations become law after being filed with the governor. Provides that no commission member shall be a candidate for any legislative office for the first 2 elections following the effective date of the salary plan. Requires commission to act by majority vote and to establish its own procedures.

Requires members of the commissions to serve 4-year staggered terms.

Provides that the commissions may make necessary rules, regulations and criteria for the selection of judicial candidates subject to a public hearing.

Requires all of the provisions to be self-enforcing, except those as to which action by the legislature may be required.

Provides that except as otherwise provided, the term of office of a justice of the supreme court and of a judge of a circuit and district court shall be 10 years.

Deletes the commission or agency, authorized by law for such purpose, to certify to the governor for the retirement or removal of a justice or judge from judicial office.

Provides that there shall be a commission on retirement, removal and discipline, composed of 2 citizens who are not admitted to practice law anywhere in the United States appointed by the governor, 2 attorneys appointed by the governing body of the Hawaii bar association, 1 justice of the supreme court to be selected by a majority of the justices of the supreme court and 1 judge of the circuit court to be selected by a majority of the circuit court judges. Requires the commission to receive and investigate all requests and suggestions for retirement for disability and all complaints concerning misconduct of justices, judges, members of the justice commission and of the judge commissions of each judicial circuit, and of this commission. Allows no member of the commission to participate in any matter in which the member has a personal interest. Provides that if a member is disqualified to participate in any matter before the commission, the respective appointing or selecting authority shall appoint or select a substitute to sit during any such disqualification. Provides that of the members first appointed, each of the citizen members shall be appointed for a term of 2 years, each of the attorney members for a term of 4 years and each of the justice or judge members for a term of 6 years; thereafter members shall be appointed for a term of 6 years.

Provides that upon recommendation by an affirmative vote of at least 4 members of the commission, the supreme court en banc shall retire from office any justice or judge, or any member of any judicial commission, or any member of this commission found to be unable to discharge the duties of office with efficiency because of permanent sickness or physical or mental infirmity. Provides a justice or judge so retired shall receive 1/2 of the justice's or judge's regular compensation during the remainder of the justice's or judge's term of office. Provides that where a justice or judge, subject to retirement under other provisions of law, has been retired hereunder the time during which the justice or judge was retired for disability hereunder shall count as time served for purposes of retirement under other provisions of law.

Provides that upon recommendation by an affirmative vote of at least 4 members of the commission, the supreme court en banc, upon concurring, shall remove, suspend or discipline any justice or judge of any court or any member of any judicial commission or of this commission, for the commission of a crime, or for misconduct, habitual drunkenness, wilful neglect of duty, corruption in office, incompetency or any offense involving moral turpitude, or oppression in office. Provides that no action taken hereunder shall be a bar to or prevent any other action authorized by law.

Provides that a justice or judge is disqualified from acting as a judicial officer while there is pending an indictment or information charging the justice or judge in any court in the United States with a crime punishable as a felony under the laws of Hawaii or in the United States, or a recommendation to the supreme court by the commission for the justice's or judge's removal, discipline or retirement, or after articles of impeachment have been voted by the house of representatives. Provides that a justice or judge so disqualified shall continue to receive the salary to which entitled.

Provides that on recommendation of the commission, the supreme court shall suspend a justice or judge from office without salary when in any court in the United States the justice or judge pleads guilty or no contest to, or is found guilty of, an offense punishable as a felony under the laws of this State or the United States, or of any other offense that involves moral turpitude. Requires that if the justice or judge is suspended and conviction becomes final, the supreme court shall remove the justice or judge from office. Provides that if the conviction of the justice or judge is reversed and the justice or judge is discharged from that charge by order of court or of the prosecuting officer, whether without further trial or after further trial and a finding of not guilty, the suspension of the justice or judge terminates and he shall be paid his salary for the period of suspension.

Requires recommendation to the supreme court by the commission to be made only after notice and hearing. Provides that rules for the administration and for the procedures hereunder shall be prescribed by supreme court rule unless otherwise provided by law.

Provides that members of the commission shall be reimbursed for their actual and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their duties.

Provides that all supreme court justices and circuit and district court judges serving when the amendments are ratified shall not be subject to its selection provisions until the expiration of their present terms or unless removed as provided herein.

Deletes provision that a person must be 30 years of age to be eligible for the office of governor.

618 - Requires the legislature to promote the diversified and open ownership of newspapers, television stations, radio stations and other media in the broadcasting and publication of news. Requires the press to abide by antitrust provisions of federal and state law and provides for a fiduciary relationship between newspapers and newspaper subscribers.

Requires the legislature to provide for a media abuse commission to receive, publicize and investigate citizen complaints and to record such complaints for use by the Federal Communications Commission.

Provides that the press shall not be covered by qualified or absolute privileges and shall be treated like any other person for purposes of appearance before state and federal grand juries and other proceedings and disclosure of sources of information.

619 - Reserves to the people the power to initiate legislation, except for legislation relating to public employee collective bargaining and taxation and finance, by indirect initiative. Requires all sponsors or solicitors of signatures for an indirect initiative measure to be registered voters in the State.

Requires the sponsors of an indirect initiative measure to incorporate a ballot title, statement of purpose, full text of the proposal and summary of no more than 150 words which shall be descriptive or expository but not argumentative or prejudicial. Requires sponsors to submit initiative petitions to the chief election officer for certification no earlier than 1 day after the most recent prior general election and before soliciting any signatures. Requires the chief election officer, within 10 days thereafter, to certify the indirect initiative measure's ballot title, statement of purpose and summary either in the original form or clarified to more accurately represent and more nearly conform to the text of the proposal.

Requires indirect initiative measures to be signed by percent of the registered voters in the most recent general election. Requires indirect initiative petitions to be filed with the chief election officer for certification no later than 30 days prior to the second legislative session following the general election. Requires approval by a majority vote of each house of the legislature for an indirect initiative measure to be enacted. Provides that an indirect initiative measure, not enacted in the original form proposed, shall be submitted by the chief election officer to the voters at the first general election thereafter, together with the legislature's amended version, if any, and the one receiving the greater number of votes prevails.

Requires the legislature to provide methods of publicity for all indirect measures with arguments for and against the proposed statutes or amendments, including the issuance of a voter education publication, designed to reasonably assure that each voter will have an opportunity to study the indirect initiative measures prior to the election. Requires each indirect initiative measure submitted to the voters to be identified by its ballot title with the question appearing in such form that an affirmative vote is a vote for change. Provides that indirect measures approved at the general election by a majority of the votes tallied on the question shall be effective immediately. Limits indirect initiative measures to one subject.

Requires disclosure of funds contributed and expended to influence the outcome of indirect initiative measures in the manner and according to the laws and regulations prescribed for campaign spending disclosure by candidates for legislative office.

Prohibits the governor from vetoing laws adopted by the indirect initiative method and prohibits legislative repeal or amendment within a period of 2 years of adoption except by a 3/4 vote in each house of the legislature.

Provides that while the legislative power of the State is vested in a legislature, the power of indirect initiative is reserved to the people and both powers shall extend to all rightful subjects of legislation not inconsistent with the state or U.S. constitutions. Provides that no law, except for laws enacted by the indirect initiative method, shall be passed except by bill. Deletes the provision requiring that the enacting clause of each law shall be, "Be it enacted by the legislature of the State of Hawaii."

620 - Empowers each political subdivision to formulate policy and exercise control over all land and growth rates within its boundaries. Requires the legislature to enact laws only with respect to state-owned lands.

621 - Requires both houses of the legislature to recess for 10 working days between the 20th and 40th day of each regular session to conduct district public hearings. Provides that the time of the recess shall be set by a concurrent resolution adopted by a majority of the members to which each house is entitled provided that both houses recess at the same time.

Provides that during this recess, called the district recess, each member of both houses shall return to the member's respective representative or senatorial district to conduct district public hearings on bills pending before the legislature and other subjects of public interest. Requires the district public hearings to be held on each of the 10 working days of the recess and to be held within each member's respective district. Provides that the members of the same district may meet jointly or severally.

Provides that no bill shall be introduced after the district recess except by 3/4 vote of the house in which it originated.

622 - Deletes provision that any bill pending at the final adjournment of a regular session in an odd-numbered year shall carry over with the same status to the next regular session and before the carried-over bill is enacted, it shall pass at least 1 reading in the house in which the bill originated.

Provides instead that any bill pending at the adjournment sine die of a regular session shall not carry over to the next regular session.

623 - Provides that the members of the legislature shall receive allowances reasonably related to expenses paid on a vouchered, expense-incurred basis. Provides that any change in salary shall not be effective until approved by the electorate at any general or special election by a majority of the votes cast. Deletes provision that changes in salary shall not apply to the enacting legislature. Deletes provisions on salary commission.

624 - Provides that the committee to which a bill has been referred shall decide at a public meeting if the bill warrants a public hearing and upon the affirmative vote of a majority of those members present at the meeting, the bill shall be scheduled for a public hearing. Provides that the public meeting shall be held within 12 working days of referral of a bill to a committee.

625 - Mandates the State to insure the health and well-being of all residents through the provision of health care services, facilities and materials, through the establishment by the legislature, within 2 years of the adoption of this amendment of a comprehensive health care program defining the limits and coverage of health services and establishing a payment system by the government for all health care provided. Establishes, in accordance with law, a comprehensive health care panel to administer the program.

Requires all residents of the State to be eligible for the program's benefits. Requires all health care institutions and entities, physicians and dentists providing health care services in the State and such other health care providers, as provided by law, to participate in membership of the program. Stipulates that all health care provided must be offered or administered to any state resident for compensation as provided by this program.

Requires the program coverage to include all medical, surgical, psychiatric and psychological care, all drugs, all dental care and all therapeutic and rehabilitative devices and all other necessary and appropriate materials for healthful maintenance or restoration or the diagnosis and prevention of disease or rehabilitation of disabled persons.

Requires the comprehensive health care program to also include for the health care provided a schedule of payments which shall be the sole compensation payable to the provider and shall be made by the State which is the sole source of liability. Permits a comprehensive health care panel to amend the payment schedules from time to time.

Mandates the provider to render services and the State to fund without charge to the recipients all payments and costs of program from the state general revenues. Allows any health care recipient to seek health care at own expense in a private arrangement with a health care provider for discretionary services, but prohibits any denial of appropriate and necessary health care to residents. Mandates the State to penalize any failure to provide appropriate and necessary health care, as provided by law.

Requires all claims of error or omission in the provision of medical services provided hereunder to be made under law; all payments for such claims to be resolved either by settlement, judgment or otherwise to be paid out of the general revenues of the State, with final approval of settlements to be made by the circuit court of the circuit wherein the injury occurred. Requires all claims to be forwarded when made, to the attorney general, which office shall participate in the processing, settlement and litigation, if any, of all such claims.

626 - Gives legislative auditor the authority to audit and review financial records and operations of businesses created or regulated by law to determine whether excess profits not in the public interest are being made. Requires all reports to be made available to all legislators.

627 - Amends provisions on political power by deleting "and the responsibility for the exercise thereof rests with the people. All government is founded on this authority."

Provides instead that all political power of the State inherent in the people be grounded in the recognition that each citizen makes a difference.

Provides the purpose of government is to enable every citizen to seek and experience a personal responsibility for choosing and creating the destiny most befitting the islands. Provides the aim of government is to empower citizens, not restrain them; to join freedom with responsibility in creating a government of the people, not separate from them.

628 - Provides for treatment, rehabilitation and domiciliary care of otherwise seriously handicapped persons in addition to mentally and physically handicapped persons.

629 - Voids all laws setting minimum consumer prices for sale of intoxicating liquors and for goods and services in effect on the date amendment is ratified. Prohibits enactment of new laws in these areas.

630 - Requires the legislature to provide a program designed to assure that a person on fixed income does not pay total state, county and federal taxes out of proportion to the total of that person's fixed income.

631 - Deletes current provision that the 27th representative district shall consist of the islands of Kauai and Niihau with 3 state representatives to be elected therefrom and instead provides for 3 representative districts with one representative elected from each district. Provides that the 27th representative district consists of the island of Niihau and certain portions of Kauai, and the newly created 28th and 29th representative districts consist of the other enumerated portions of Kauai.

632 - Provides that in situations where normal judicial processes would be inadequate to secure the right of due process and equal protection, the parties involved shall enjoy the right to a fair hearing and that such hearing must be conducted in a manner consistent with the requirements of due process and equal protection and include the opportunity of one whom the decision will affect to present evidence in his favor, as well as to be apprised of the evidence against him in the manner so that he will be fully aware of the basis for the judgment.

633 - Provides that the State shall have the power to provide for the education of the handicapped as well as for their treatment and rehabilitation.

634 - Prohibits alien, defined as individual who is not United States citizen, from acquiring interest in real property in Hawaii after ratification of section and provides all such acquisitions are void. Prohibits formation of any business entity in which majority of ownership is by aliens. Prohibits transfer of ownership interest in businesses which result in majority ownership by aliens or while majority owned by aliens.

635 - Provides that there shall be an attorney general selected at random as prescribed by law from a list of candidates submitted by the state commission provided in this section.

Requires attorney general to have the same qualifications as the governor and to have been admitted to practice law before the supreme court of this State for a period of at least 5 years preceding selection.

Provides that the attorney general selected to, or retained in office shall not, directly or indirectly, make any contribution to or hold any office in a political party or organization, or take part in any political campaign. Provides that any attorney general who becomes a candidate for an elective office shall forfeit the office.

Provides that each person selected as attorney general shall hold office for a term ending December 31st following the next general election after the expiration of 12 months in office. Provides that the attorney general holding office, or elected thereto, at the time of the election when this amendment becomes effective shall, unless removed for cause, remain in office for the term to which the attorney general would have been entitled had this section not become effective. Provides that not less than 60 days prior to the holding of the general election before the expiration of the attorney general's term, the attorney general may file with the chief election officer a declaration of candidacy for election to succeed in office. Provides if such declaration is not filed, the vacancy resulting from the expiration of the term of office shall be filled by selection as herein provided. Provides that if the declaration is filed, the attorney general's name shall be submitted at the next general election to the voters, on a separate ballot, without party designation and the election shall be conducted and the votes counted in the manner now provided by the law governing elections. Provides that, if a majority of those voting on the question vote against retaining the attorney general in office, upon the expiration of the term of office, a vacancy will exist to be filled by selection as provided and the attorney general failing to be retained shall not be a candidate for selection. Provides that the attorney general shall, unless removed for cause, remain in office for the number of years after December 31st following such election as a full term of the office, and at the expiration of the first term shall be eligible for retention in office by election as prescribed.

Provides that the term of office of the attorney general shall be for a period of 4 years; that no person shall serve as attorney general for more than 2 consecutive terms or a total of 8 years; and that compensation shall be as prescribed by law.

Provides that the state commission which shall review applicants and submit for random selection names of persons qualified for the office of attorney general shall establish and organize in such manner that there shall be 1 statewide commission of 5 members, who shall be selected in the following manner: the legislature shall select 1 citizen from each county, not a member of the bar, and the governor shall appoint 1 member of the bar as the fifth member of the commission. Provides that no member of the commission is eligible for selection as attorney general so long as a member of the commission and for a period of 2 years thereafter; and that members serve staggered 4-year terms.

Allows commission to make necessary rules, regulations and criteria for the selection of attorney general candidates subject to a public hearing.

Provides commission shall receive and investigate all requests or suggestions for retirement for disability and complaints concerning misconduct of the attorney general. Provides the attorney general may be removed from office as prescribed by law and upon an affirmative vote of the commission.

636 - Prohibits any person not a citizen of the United States from acquiring title to or owning land in the State. Provides that no corporation, copartnership or association, a majority of the stock or interest of which is owned or controlled by aliens or persons who are not citizens of the United States, shall acquire title, leasehold or other interest in land in the State.

637 - Mandates the State, rather than permitting it, to provide assistance for persons not able to sustain a living standard compatible with decency and health.

638 - Requires the State to protect public health, provide basic health care, assure a healthful environment and promote health education and preventive care. Deletes provision permitting the State to provide for public health protection and promotion.

639 - Provides that the legislature may prohibit certain classes of individuals deemed dangerous to society from owning and keeping arms and may require that all firearms be registered in the name of the owner or owners.

640 - Provides that types of uses authorized within conservation districts, instead of a reserve for conservation purposes, need not be placed under the jurisdiction of a board or commission.

641 - Establishes state ethics commission whose membership, duties and responsibilities are to be provided by law.

Provides for commission to hear case appeals from political subdivisions, but mandates that decisions made by commission on appeals be based upon code of ethics of respective political subdivisions.

642 - Authorizes State to establish pension fund for the aged, with eligibility based on a stated age and number of years of service within the State, including self-employment, housewives and househusbands, and public or private employment. Allows benefits to be decreased as outside income increases and fund to be contributory or noncontributory. Requires appropriations until fund achieves solvency.

643 - Provides that legislature shall appoint an ombudsman who shall serve for a term of 6 years and thereafter until a successor is appointed and who may be removed from office by a 2/3 vote of its members in joint session.

Provides that the duties of the ombudsman shall be to receive, investigate and resolve complaints concerning the administrative agencies of the State and its political subdivisions and the officers and employees thereof.

Provides that the ombudsman shall be nominated by an ombudsman commission consisting of the speaker of the house, president of the senate, the minority leaders of the house and senate and the chairperson of the judicial commission.

Prohibits commission from accepting applications for the position of ombudsman but requires it to solicit qualified nominees and to recommend a nominee to the legislature.

Provides that the tenure, qualifications, compensation, duties and the filling of the vacancy of the office of the ombudsman shall be as prescribed by amendment and by law.

644 - Provides no taxes shall be imposed upon kuleana lands in the possession, use and control of any individual who is a direct lineal descendant of a person given an original award under the Great Mahele of 1848.

645 - Requires a comprehensive education program stressing Hawaiian language, culture and history in the public school system.

646 - Provides the people have the right to use traditional rights-of-way to the ocean, freshwater and public lands; also provides for the enforcement of this right by each person against any party, governmental or private, through appropriate legal action, subject to reasonable limitation and regulation as provided by law. Prohibits destruction or abridgement of these rights-of-way by private or public sectors.

647 - Provides for partial public financing in primary and general elections for elective state executive and legislative offices with funds derived from a voluntary check-off system on the state income tax form and from state general revenues. Requires a candidate to raise an amount established by law in private contributions before qualifying for public funds. Requires that candidates immediately receive the public funds upon qualifying. Authorizes the legislature to implement amendment and to extend its provisions to other elective offices.

648 - Requires public employment to reflect ethnic ratios in the State and gives this requirement priority over merit principle of civil service. Requires State and its political subdivisions to implement section and to hire people whose ethnic group is underrepresented until the group is proportionately represented. Does not require termination of employees whose ethnic group is overrepresented in public employment on the date amendment is ratified.

649 - Requires legislature to provide for individual income tax refunds where in regular session it finds that sum of 25 percent of the state general fund balance at the close of the previous fiscal year exceeds 10 percent of the total individual income tax collections for the previous income tax year.

650 - Provides that all persons are entitled to access to the courts for resolution of disputes and it is the policy of the State to encourage the use of the courts for this purpose. Provides that no law restricting, limiting or denying the right to sue to any person who has failed to incur a certain level or amount of medical or medically related expense for injuries sustained in an automobile accident shall be enacted or enforced. Provides that nothing contained herein shall limit the right of the legislature to establish jurisdictional limits designating which court has jurisdiction over claims on the basis of the amount claimed as damages.

651 - Requires State to establish state human organ registry, funded out of general revenues of the State, to register all human organs available or intended for transplantation and to assist in procurement and disbursement of these organs to needy recipients. Permits the State to contract its responsibilities and duties to 1 or more private agencies.

652 - Provides the cultivation or possession for personal use of marijuana or cannabis derivatives shall not be subject to criminal penalty, fine or imprisonment. Provides that marijuana and cannabis derivatives shall remain illegal as provided by law and shall be subject to forfeiture. Provides that no person found to have possessed or cultivated these substances shall have the status of a criminal law violator.

653 - Allows political subdivisions to have and exercise such powers as conferred under the laws of the State rather than general laws.

Provides a manager for each county and political subdivision, to be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the governor. Provides that the manager shall hold office for a term to expire at the end of the governor's term unless sooner removed by the governor.

Requires all executive and administrative offices, departments and instrumentalities of each political subdivision and the respective functions, powers and duties to be allocated by law to the same group according to major purposes so far as practicable, except that temporary commissions or agencies for special purposes, which may be established by law, need not be allocated within a principal department. Requires principal departments to be supervised by the manager and, unless otherwise provided in this constitution or by law, be headed by a single executive to be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the governor for a term of office to expire at the end of the governor's term unless sooner removed by the governor.

Requires the members of a board, commission or other body which is head of a principal department to be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by governor, unless otherwise provided. Requires the term of office and removal of such members to be prescribed by law. Allows such a board, commission or body to appoint a principal executive officer who, when authorized by law, may be an ex officio voting member and may be removed by a majority vote of the members of the appointing body.

Disqualifies a person from eligibility to an interim appointment to an office if that person was nominated for appointment to that office but did not receive senate consent. Requires every officer appointed under the provisions of this amendment to be a U.S. citizen and state resident for at least 1 year immediately preceding the appointment.

Empowers the legislature, instead of political subdivisions, to frame and adopt a charter for the government of each political subdivision within such limits as prescribed by law rather than general law. Deletes the provision prohibiting prescribed procedures from requiring charter approval by a legislative body. Deletes provision giving charter provisions, with respect to a political subdivision's executive, legislative and administrative structure and organization, superior authority to statutory provisions subject to the authority of the legislature to enact general laws allocating and reallocating powers and functions. Deletes provision qualifying a law as a general law even though it is inapplicable to 1 or more counties by reason of the provisions of this amendment.

654 - Amends proviso allowing political subdivisions to have and exercise such powers as shall be conferred under general laws by providing that each political subdivision shall have the same rights and privileges as every other political subdivision.

655 - Requires 5 percent of all state general fund tax revenues to be reserved for apportionment to the political subdivisions of the State and to be distributed quarterly. Requires 1/2 of such amount to be distributed equally among subdivisions and 1/2 on a per capita basis in accordance with each political subdivision's resident population as defined by law.

656 - Requires establishment in each school district, in accordance with law, of a district school advisory council to make recommendations on policy development in district school operations and programs to the board of education. Requires district school advisory council chairpersons to meet to select 2 council chairpersons for service on the board of education, in accordance with law.

657 - Deletes section 1 of Article X requiring the legislature to promote the conservation, development and utilization of resources. Adds new provision that all public natural resources of the State are held in trust by the State to benefit the people and the State shall conserve and protect such resources from destruction, impairment, pollution and depletion to the greatest extent possible and shall manage and regulate such resources consistent with public trust.

658 - Deletes Article VIII, section 5, relating to public sightliness and good order, Article X, section 1, relating to conservation, development and use of resources, Article X, section 2, relating to management and disposition of natural resources.

Adds provision that the State shall have the power and the duty to protect and conserve all natural resources of the State from destruction, impairment, pollution and depletion and shall manage and regulate all natural resources consistent with this policy and for the benefit of the people. Provides that the State shall have the power and duty to protect and maintain historical or culturally important objects, events and places and to regulate and plan population growth.

Requires legislature to vest in an executive department or board powers to manage, conserve and protect natural resources, to manage, protect and maintain historical or cultural objects, events and places and to manage and regulate population growth.

Provides the people with a right to a healthful environment, preservation of natural, scenic and aesthetic environmental values, and to preservation of cultural or historical objects, events and places. Allows legal enforcement of right against any party, public or private, as provided by law and requires legislature to provide for the reasonable exercise of this right.

659 - Lowers the maximum number of principal state departments from 20 to 12 and provides that all executive and administrative offices, departments and instrumentalities of the state government and the respective powers and duties be allocated among the 12 departments according to common purposes and related functions. Deletes provision requiring that such allocation be according to major purposes so far as practicable.

660 - Requires the legislature to enact appropriate measures providing that at least 30 days before any election, the State shall provide for a statewide newspaper supplement allowing each candidate for public office an equal opportunity to set forth the candidate's qualifications and beliefs.

661 - Redefines Hawaii's constitutional state boundaries to specify the territorial waters as inland and archipelago waters and to include all the waters between and dividing the islands.

Deletes provisions on the commission on legislative salary appointed by the governor.

731 - Provides that upon renegotiation or extension of the rental terms for a residential lot, the lease rent payable shall not exceed the amount derived by multiplying the "owner's basis" by 3 percent. Defines "owner's basis" as the current fair market value of the lot, excluding onsite improvements, valued as if the title were unencumbered; less the lessee's share, if any, of the current replacement cost of providing existing offsite improvements attributable to the land, which replacement cost includes an overhead and profit not exceeding 20 percent of the current replacement cost of the existing offsite improvements or less the original lot development credit to the lessee, whichever is greater. Defines "offsite improvements" as all physical improvements such as, but not limited to, roads, sewer lines, sewage treatment plants, and underground utility cables, constructed or placed in a subdivision or development off the land intended for occupancy, which are to be used in common by occupants of all lands (adjoining such improvements or by occupants of all lands) for whose benefit the improvements have been constructed or placed; and "onsite improvements" as all physical improvements placed on a residential lot intended for occupancy which are for the benefit of occupants of that lot, including, but not limited to, dwelling units, garages, service buildings, stairs, walkways, driveways, walls, trees, shrubs, landscaping and pools.

732 - Provides that the expenditure of appropriated monies of the State or its political subdivisions for the salaries or benefits of public employees who provide or furnish services which are reasonably attainable from private enterprises in this State shall be prohibited.

Provides that this prohibition shall not apply to personnel of fire, police, security forces of a military character, personnel directing the formulation of administrative policies, specifications, contracts, the review of compliance with public contracts, the administration of public education and public welfare programs, nor to the performance of functions of a strictly governmental character.

Provides that the burden of proof shall be on the governmental agencies to prove that the services supplied by these agencies are not reasonably attainable from private enterprise.

Provides that jurisdiction shall be vested in the circuit courts to hear and determine controversies arising under this section.

733 - Provides that it shall be the policy of the State and its political subdivisions to contract with private enterprise for public services except where unavailable or not competitively priced. Allows use of public employees to provide service as provided by law where private contractor breaches contract for services.

734 - Adds provision that the people of Hawaii believe that those who work with and for the government must exhibit the highest standards of ethical conduct and to promote this belief, the legislature and each political subdivision shall adopt a code of ethics. Adds justices, judges and persons working with the State or any political subdivision and lobbyists to those now covered by a code of ethics.

Requires each code to be administered by an ethics commission, the members of which, whether of the State or its political subdivisions, shall be selected from a list of recommendations prepared by the judicial council and submitted to the respective appointing body; that no member shall, during a term of office, run for or hold any office in any political party or organization, or directly or indirectly make any political contribution, or take part in any political campaign.

Requires each code of ethics to include provisions on the acceptance of gifts, the use of confidential information, the use of position, contracts with government agencies, post-employment and financial disclosure. Requires elected and appointed public officials, candidates for elected office and justices and judges to make public financial disclosure, and other public officials with significant discretionary or fiscal powers to make confidential financial disclosure in at least the following areas: sources and amounts of income, ownership and officership interests in businesses, ownership of real property, debts, creditor interests in insolvent businesses and the names of persons represented before government agencies.

735 - Provides right of people against loss of body or parts thereof by State or its political subdivisions.

736 - Provides that the State or its political subdivisions shall acquire by purchase or condemnation all roads, alleys or streets laid out or built by private parties, located in urban areas and used by motor vehicles, and shall maintain and repair them.

737 - Empowers the legislature to create special public authorities which shall have administrative powers limited to a specific subject matter and shall be placed under the governor's office for administrative purposes.

738 - Requires any state or political subdivision employee elected to public office to take a leave of absence without pay from such employment for the duration of that officer's term of elected office. Provides that such elected official shall not lose any accrued benefits with the State or political subdivision.

739 - Provides that pre-payment of taxes shall not be penalized.

740 - Provides the State rather than the legislature shall govern as well as promote the conservation, development and utilization of its natural resources of land, sea and air, including land and sea mining, being mindful to preserve a healthful environment while maximizing its resources. Deletes references to "agricultural resources" and to "fish, mineral, forest, water, land, game and other natural resources" in Article X, section 1.

741 - Prohibits issuance of warrant to search for materials in possession of any person not suspected of a crime, unless there is probable cause to believe that the possessor of the materials would disregard a court order not to remove or destroy them.

742 - Limits the rate of growth of appropriations from state tax revenues to the average rate of growth of total state personal income for the 2 most recent years for which statistics are available. Allows the legislature by a 2/3 vote of the members to which each house is entitled to exceed that limit by a law containing no other subject and which sets forth the dollar amount and the rate by which the limit will be exceeded.

743 - Requires the State to ensure that no fewer than 2 examples of each native ecotype found on each island of the State be forever preserved by mandating the state department empowered with protecting and managing conservation lands to define the native ecotypes and to create and manage special use areas within state-owned conservation districts on each island for each ecotype. Requires the State to acquire by purchase or condemnation any area outside the state-owned land, if a particular ecotype is found only in that area, and to make that area a special use area within a conservation district. Creates for each ecotype 2 types of special use areas on each island: the kapu area, which is protected from disturbance by humanity; and the kokua area, to which limited accessibility by humanity is permitted providing the ecological balance is not significantly disturbed.

744 - Provides that the State of Hawaii and its political subdivisions shall promote the establishment and revision of laws and regulations that are compatible with the operation of small businesses.

Provides that the legislature shall create a committee on small businesses to review proposed and existing legislation and regulations and their possible effect on small businesses and, if necessary, to make recommendations for revisions to such legislation and regulations.

745 - Requires the State to manage its growth in order to preserve the life-style of the Hawaiian islands. Requires the State and its political subdivisions to encourage agricultural self-sufficiency and discourage urbanization of agricultural, conservation and rural lands and the use of nonrenewable natural resources. Requires governmental actions to be consistent with this section.

746 - Requires at least 90 percent of all urban lands, within each political subdivision of State, to be developed before lands are added to urban districts as provided by law.

747 - Subjects every public officer in Hawaii to recall by the legal voters of the State or of the electoral district from which the public officer is elected.

Requires a recall measure, for submittal to the people for a vote, to contain signatures of (20, 25) percent of the number of electors voting in the officer's district at the preceding election. Allows only voters entitled to vote for the affected officer to sign the petition and vote at the special election. Provides that in districts where votes are cast for multiple representation to an office, the total votes cast for that office shall be divided by the number of seats from that district to arrive at the total to which the (20, 25) percent shall be applied.

Requires petitioners to set forth in the petition the reasons for recall of the official. Provides that if an official resigns, the resignation shall take effect the day it is offered and the vacancy shall be filled as may be provided by law, but if the official fails to resign, a special election shall be called within 90 and 100 days from the filing of the petition. Provides that the official must have served at least 6 months of the term of office.

Provides that if an official's term of office bypasses 1 or more general elections and a petition is filed between 6 and 3 months of a general election, that vote will be held at that general election.

Requires the sample ballot at the special or general election to contain in print in not more than 200 words the reasons for the recall demand and in not more than 200 words, the official's justification for the official's conduct in office. Allows the official to continue in office until the result of the special or general election is officially declared.

Requires the recall petition to be filed with the lieutenant governor for certification and requires the governor to appoint another officer to fulfill the duties of the chief election officer when a recall petition against the lieutenant governor has been requested and taken out with the attorney general.

Requires a recall to be approved by a majority of the votes cast thereon. Prohibits another recall vote for the same officer for the remainder of the officer's term of office if the recall vote fails. Requires petitioners to bear all costs of the preparation and circulation of the petition.

748 - Defines the term "reimbursable general obligation bonds" as general obligation bonds issued for an undertaking, improvement or system from which revenues, user taxes or a combination thereof may be derived to pay principal and interest to reimburse the general fund for which reimbursement is required by law or in the case of bonds issued by the State for a political subdivision, means general obligation bonds for which the payment of principal and interest as reimbursement to the general fund is required by law to be from the subdivision's revenues. Amends definition of "revenue bonds" to mean all bonds payable from various sources and including a loan program and secured as provided by law, instead of secured solely by such sources.

Provides that general obligation bonds may be issued by the State when authorized by the legislature, provided that at the time of issuance, instead of at time of authorization, such bonds will not cause total annual payments of principal and interest on general obligation bonds, issued and outstanding, to exceed in any fiscal year 15 percent of the estimated general fund revenues of the State for that fiscal year. Deletes existing provision for limitation on bond issuance providing for not more than 3-1/2 times the average general fund revenues for 3 preceding fiscal years.

Provides that the method of estimating the general fund revenues to compute the debt limit shall be the compounded annual growth rate of general fund revenues of the 3 immediately preceding fiscal years applied to the immediately preceding fiscal year. Provides that general fund revenues shall not include receipts in reimbursement of reimbursable general obligation bonds.

Provides that by majority vote of each house of legislature, there may be authorized, instead of issued, bonds to meet appropriations for any fiscal period in anticipation of revenue collections, for casual deficits or failures of revenue, if to be paid in 1 year, or to suppress insurrection, repel invasion, defend State in war, or meet emergencies; and revenue bonds, if the issuer thereof is obligated by law to impose rates, rentals and charges for the use and services of the undertaking, improvement or system or loan program benefits, or to impose a user tax or combination thereof, to pay operation and maintenance and repair costs of the undertaking, improvement or system or cost of maintaining loan, if any, and the required payments of principal of and interest on revenue bonds issued therefor and if the issuer is obligated to deposit such revenues or tax or combination thereof into a special fund to make such payments. Defines user tax as tax on goods or services or consumption thereof with receipts derived from sale, use or consumption of goods and services from the undertaking, improvement or system. Defines rates, rentals and charges as revenues or other moneys derived from operation or lease of an undertaking, improvement or system or derived from any payment or return on security under a program.

Requires all general obligation bonds for a term exceeding 5, instead of 1, years to be in certain serial forms.

Excludes from computing debt limit of the State instead of total indebtedness the (1) bonds presently excluded and those for which securities in addition to moneys have been irrevocably set aside; (2) revenue bonds issued and outstanding, deleting requirement that the issuer is obligated to impose rates and charges, user tax, or combination thereof, to pay operating, maintenance and repair costs and principal and interest on such bonds and deleting revenue bonds authorized; (3) bonds issued under special improvement statutes, deleting such bonds authorized under such statutes; (4) certain reimbursable general obligation bonds issued and outstanding for assessable improvements and substituting "reimbursable general obligation bonds" for "general obligation bonds"; (5) reimbursable general obligation bonds, instead of general obligation bonds, issued and outstanding, and deleting bonds for a public undertaking, improvement or system from which revenues, user taxes or both may be used to reimburse the general fund; (6) reimbursable general obligation, instead of general obligation, bonds issued by the State for any political subdivision; and (7) bonds constituting instruments of indebtedness whereby the State or a political subdivision incurs a contingent liability as guarantor with a reserve as required by law. Deletes from this list general obligation bonds, authorized but unissued, for an existing public undertaking, improvement or system that has not been self-sustaining or that produces revenues, user tax or both sufficient to pay the full amount of principal and interest. Provides that debt limit and permitted exclusions shall be certified instead of certifying determinations of exclusions. Deletes statement that amounts received from on-street parking may be considered and treated as revenues of a parking undertaking.

749 - Provides that public credit shall not be used, except for defraying the necessary expenses of government, instead of except for a public purpose.

750 - Provides that appropriations in regular legislative sessions shall not, in the aggregate, exceed the anticipated revenues as recommended by governor in odd-numbered years or as recommended and revised by the governor in even-numbered years.

751 - Gives governor, where anticipated revenues fall below estimates on which appropriations were based or when the governor is authorized by law to effect other economies, to the extent proper to effect such economies, the authority to reduce state expenditures below appropriations and through allotments or otherwise to control rate of expenditure of appropriations during the fiscal period.

752 - Deletes provision for unspecified number of board of education members elected by qualified voters in accordance with law, representing at least in part the geographic subdivisions of the State. Requires a board of 13 members: 10 to be elected at-large by registered voters of the city and county of Honolulu, 4 of whom must each reside in 1 of the 4 school districts within the city and county; 3 to be elected at-large by registered voters of the counties of Hawaii, Maui and Kauai, each of whom must reside in 1 of the 3 school districts within the 3 counties. Provides no person is eligible for election or appointment to the board if not a voter of the at-large district from which elected or appointed and, where residence in school district is a requirement, if not also a resident of the school district from which elected. Requires member to forfeit office, making seat vacant, if member ceases to be resident of at-large district, or if member holds seat requiring residency in school district and ceases to be resident of the school district. Prohibits members from holding any other state or county government office except notaries public, reserve police officers and officers of emergency organizations for civilian defense or disaster relief.

753 - Prohibits the president of the University of Hawaii from serving on any other board, private or public, besides the board of regents.

754 - Prohibits the superintendent of the board of education from serving on any other board, private or public.

755 - Provides that whenever the state general fund balance at the close of each of 2 successive fiscal years exceeds 5 percent of the general fund revenues for each of the 2 fiscal years, the legislature in the next regular session shall provide for special tax refunds to individual taxpayers in accordance with law.

Requires a statement of the State's financial condition to be published annually in accordance with law not later than 4 months following the end of each fiscal year.

Requires the establishment of a council on revenues which shall prepare revenue estimates of the state government and report them to the governor and the legislature at times prescribed by law. Requires the estimates to be considered by the governor in preparing the budget, recommending appropriations and revenues and controlling expenditures and by the legislature in appropriating funds and enacting revenue measures. Requires estimates to be made public.

Allows the legislature in enacting laws imposing a tax measured by income to define income by reference to provisions of the laws of the United States as they may or become effective at any time or from time to time, whether retrospective or prospective in operation. Allows legislature to provide that amendments to such United States laws become the law of the State upon becoming the law of the United States. Requires the legislature in any such law to set the rate or rates of such tax. Allows the legislature in defining income to make exceptions, additions or modifications to the United States laws referred to and to provide for retrospective exceptions or modifications to the provisions which are retrospective.

Provides that nothing in constitution requiring taxes and appropriations to be for a public purpose shall prohibit the authorization or issuance of revenue bonds by the State or a political subdivision for the purpose of or for, financing facilities or loaning the proceeds of such revenue bonds to, assist manufacturing, processing and industrial enterprises, utilities serving the general public, not for profit corporations providing health care facilities to the general public or low or moderate income government housing programs, if the legislature or the governing body of a political subdivision, in its sole discretion, finds such authorization or issuance to be in the public interest. Provides that no grant of public money or property shall be made except under standards prescribed by law.

Amends definition of revenue bonds to include loan programs referred to under (b) (1) below and rentals or other payments to the issuer under contracts referred to under (b) (2) below .

Provides that the authorization of issuance of revenue bonds by or on behalf of the State subject to exclusion under (b) (2) below may be by general law . Provides that bonds of a political subdivision shall be authorized by the legislature under general law in addition to the governing body of the political subdivision and provides the authorization of the issuance of revenue bonds by or on behalf of such subdivision subject to exclusion under (b) (2) below may be by ordinance .

Provides that bonds may be authorized by a majority instead of 2/3 of the members to which each house is entitled, provided that such bonds at the time of issuance would not cause the total amount of principal and interest payable in the current or any future fiscal year on such bonds and all outstanding bonds to exceed a sum equal to _____ percent of the average of the general fund revenues in the 3 fiscal years immediately preceding the issuance . Deletes the present bond limitation of 3-1/2 times the average of the general fund revenues in the 3 fiscal years immediately preceding authorization . Deletes issuance of bonds by State or a political subdivision to meet appropriations in any fiscal period in anticipation of revenues, to meet casual deficits, and failures of revenues or bonds to suppress insurrection, repel invasions, defend the State in time of war or to meet emergencies .

Deletes the sum equal to 15 percent of the total assessed values for tax rate purposes of real property as the limit of funded debt of a political subdivision and substitutes a sum equal to _____ percent .

Provides that general obligation bonds shall be in serial form if the term exceeds 2, instead of 1, years and that the last installment shall be not later than 25 instead of 35 years . Provides that instead of excluding the enumerated bonds from the total state indebtedness, they shall be excluded from the power of the State to issue bonds and from the funded debt of any political subdivision .

Amends exclusions from the State power to issue bonds and from the funded debt of a political subdivision as follows:

(a) By excluding bonds for which the full payment in securities as well as moneys has been irrevocably set aside .

(b) By amending revenue bonds to exclude them (1) if the issuer in addition to existing provisions is obligated by law to impose rentals for the use and services of existing provisions and adding for the benefits of a loan program and for the cost of maintaining a loan program, or (2) to finance facilities of or for or make loans to any person for purposes permitted by the constitution if the issuer is required by law to contract with such person obligating such person to make rental or other payments to the issuer in an amount at least sufficient to make the required payment of the principal of and interest on such revenue bonds . Provides that excluded revenue bonds under (2) above shall not be secured directly or indirectly by the credit of the issuer or by any revenues or taxes of the issuer other than receipts derived from payments under a contract entered into as provided in (2) or moneys derived from any security for such contract or revenue bonds . Defines rates, rentals and charges to mean all revenues, rentals or other moneys derived from the operation or lease of a public undertaking, improvement or system, or derived from any payments or return or security under a loan or loan program; and a person to be an individual, firm, partnership, corporation, association, cooperative or other legal entity, governmental body or agency, board, bureau or other instrumentality thereof or combination of the foregoing .

(c) By deleting reference to authorized but leaving reference to issued bonds for special improvement statutes .

(d) By deleting reference to authorized but leaving reference to issued general obligation bonds for assessable improvements .

(e) By amending provision that general obligation bonds issued for public undertakings the payment of all or part of the principal and interest of which may be a reimbursement to the general fund to add the requirement that such reimbursement be required by law .

(f) By deleting reference to general obligation bonds of the State authorized but unissued for an existing public undertaking, improvement or system that produces revenues, or user tax receipts, or a combination of both .

(g) By deleting reference to general obligation bonds of the State, authorized but unissued, for an existing public undertaking, improvement or system that has not been self-sustaining.

(h) By deleting references to bonds authorized after the effective date or total indebtedness in provision relating to general obligation bonds issued by the State for any political subdivision.

By inserting as an additional exclusion bonds issued by the State or any political subdivision to meet appropriations for any fiscal period in anticipation of the collection of revenues for the period, to meet casual deficits or failures of revenues, if they are required to be repaid within 1 year; or to suppress insurrection, repel invasion, defend the State in war or to meet emergencies.

Amends certification of total indebtedness of the State or funded debt of any subdivision to provide instead that the total outstanding indebtedness and the exclusions therefrom shall be certificated. Amends budget provisions to provide that the budget shall be submitted to the legislature in a form prescribed by law setting forth a plan of proposed expenditures and that the budget shall be in bill form. Deletes required submission of the governor of bills to provide for expenditures and additional revenues. Adds provision requiring that the proposed general fund expenditures submitted by the governor shall not exceed a general fund expenditure ceiling established by the legislature; provided the proposed expenditures may exceed the ceiling if additional revenues are proposed to meet the expenditures in excess of the ceiling. Requires such proposed additional revenues to be submitted before the opening of each regular session in bill form as provided by law.

Provides that all appropriations for which the source is general obligation bond funds or general funds shall be for specific periods not exceeding 2 years. Lapses any such appropriation or any portion which is unencumbered at the close of such period and provides that where general obligation bonds have been authorized for an appropriation, the amount of the bond authorization shall be reduced in an amount equal to the amount lapsed. Provides that all such appropriations in effect on the date of ratification of this amendment, which are unencumbered on June 30, 1980, shall lapse on that date unless earlier lapsed and that any bond authorizations shall be reduced in an amount equal to the amount lapsed.

Requires the legislature to establish a general fund expenditure ceiling in each even-numbered year for the forthcoming biennium. Provides that no appropriations in excess of the ceiling shall be made unless the legislature by a 2/3 vote of the members to which each house is entitled sets forth the dollar amount, the rate by which the ceiling will be exceeded and the reasons therefor or if the legislature enacts revenue measures estimated adequate to meet the expenditures proposed in excess of the ceiling.

Provides that no public money shall be expended except under appropriations made by law. Provides that general fund expenditures for any fiscal year shall not exceed the State's current general fund revenues and cash balances, except when the governor publicly declares the public health, safety or welfare is threatened as provided by law. Provides that the auditor shall in addition to conducting post-audits of the transactions, accounts, also conduct post-audits of the programs and performances of all departments, offices and agencies of the State and its political subdivisions and provides the duty of the auditor to certify to the accuracy of the financial statements issued by the accounting officers of the departments, offices and agencies of the State is exclusive.

756 - Gives tenants right to organize and bargain collectively on all lease conditions and right to conduct rent strikes. Prohibits discrimination by landlord against tenants on basis of sex, race, employment status or household size. Prohibits court from issuing writs of eviction or harassing tenants in the conduct of their rights under Article I.

757 - Deletes Article X, section 1, relating to "Resources; Conservation, Development and Use." Provides the State has an interest independent of and behind the titles of all of its citizens in all the natural resources within its domain. Provides the State has the duty and the power to conserve and protect the natural resources of the State from damage, destruction, unreasonable development and depletion as well as a responsibility to develop and utilize the natural resources of the State in the public interest.

758 - Amends the title of Article I, section 2, relating to the rights of man by replacing "man" with "people." Provides each person has an inalienable right to a healthful environment in addition to enjoyment of life, liberty, pursuit of happiness and the acquiring and possessing of property. Provides for the enforcement of these rights against any party, governmental or private, through appropriate legal proceedings subject to reasonable limitations and regulation by law.

759 - Provides that the delegates of the constitutional convention shall receive allowances reasonably related to expenses and a salary. Requires public employees, who are delegates, to receive compensation or subsidies to supplement their salary to the amount being earned before being elected. Allows delegates, employed by private employers, to receive compensation or subsidies to supplement their salary to the amount being earned before being elected.

760 - Provides for the same number of senatorial (8) districts, for the same number of senators from each district and for the same basic makeup of representative districts included in each senatorial district as provided in the 1973 reapportionment plan. Does not specify in detail particular boundary and geographical lines as does such plan for portions of representative districts included therein. Provides that such districts and number of senators shall be as provided therein until the next reapportionment. Provides for the same number of representative (27) districts and the number of representatives to be elected from each district as the 1973 reapportionment plan but makes some changes in particular boundary and geographical lines in some representative districts. Provides that such districts and number of representatives elected from each district shall be as provided therein until the next reapportionment.

761 - Provides it shall be the policy of the State and the affirmative duty of each individual to promote a healthful environment for the benefit of present and future generations. Requires the legislature to provide by law for implementation and enforcement.

764 - Limits the exercise of control of the board of regents of the University of Hawaii to the university and all other public institutions of higher learning except the state system of community colleges. Requires at least part of the membership of the board to be students and faculty members of the university system.

Requires establishment of a state system of community colleges and its constitution as a body corporate with title to all real and personal property, now or hereafter set aside or conveyed to it, to be held in public trust, administered and disposed of, according to law. Requires the establishment of a board of trustees of the state system of community colleges and the governor to nominate and to appoint, with senate approval, the members of the board, who shall represent, in part, geographic subdivisions of the State and consist of, in part, students and faculty members of the community colleges system. Provides board with power, in accordance with law, to formulate policy and to exercise control over the state system of community colleges through its executive officer, the chancellor of the community colleges, whom the board shall appoint.

765 - Increases the terms of office of the governor and lieutenant governor from 4 to 6 years and provides that no person shall be elected to those offices for consecutive terms.

Provides that the offices of the governor and lieutenant governor shall be subject to recall from office. Requires recall petitions to contain signatures equaling not less than 1/3 of the votes for all gubernatorial candidates in the preceding general election. Provides that if 2/3 of those voting on the question at a special recall or general election, if a general election is scheduled within days after the recall petition is filed, vote to remove a person from the office of the governor or lieutenant governor, that office shall become vacant and the vacancy shall be filled as provided by law, provided that the person recalled shall in no event be appointed to fill that vacancy. Provides that no recall petition shall be filed against the office of governor or lieutenant governor until more than months of that office have been served. Provides that except as provided recall measures shall be as prescribed by law.

766 - Provides for an executive-level cabinet composed of the state department heads and the lieutenant governor which shall serve as an advisory body to the governor.

767 - Requires governor to submit a budget annually instead of every 2 years. Deletes provision for supplemental appropriations bill.

Defines "local" or "local units of government" to mean all cities, counties, towns, school and special districts, authorities and other political subdivisions within the State; "year" to mean any consecutive 12-month period; "direct general expenditures" to mean all monies expended for any purpose and from any source over which the local unit or State has expenditure or appropriation authority, now or in future; and "personal income" as the total personal income for the State and for each county as defined by the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Provides that in no year shall the rate of change of total state and local direct general expenditures exceed the average rate of change in personal income over the preceding 3 years or in most recent year, whichever is lower.

Provides that beginning July 1, 1979 the total state and local direct general expenditures shall be reduced annually 2-1/2 percent over preceding year's expenditures, until the ratio between expenditures and personal income in Hawaii is equal to or less than the current national average ratio, and once attained, the legislature may by 2/3 vote eliminate future reductions.

Allows legislature to provide for emergency situations during which the spending limit may be exceeded subject to agreement, for the State by the governor and legislature by 2/3 vote and for local units by the mayor or similar executive and legislative body by 2/3 vote, on the nature of the emergency, estimated cost, and how funds are to be obtained. Limits action to meet the emergency to 1 year, and requires majority of registered voters to continue funding beyond such period.

Requires state and local units to avoid receipt of monies substantially in excess of spending limit and provides monies collected in excess may be used to establish a budget stabilization fund to meet revenue shortfall. Limits balance of fund to not more than 5 percent of total direct expenditures during the current year and requires excess above balance to be returned to taxpayers or used to reduce debt obligations or other purposes.

Provides that no public money shall be expended except for legally authorized appropriations and that expenditures for a fiscal year shall not exceed state revenues and reserves, including proceeds to meet debt obligations and federal funding.

Provides that any law requiring state or local expenditures shall be void unless during that same session an appropriation is made for the estimated first year's funding.

Provides that if a local unit or the State enacts a law providing for future payments or benefits, or if such laws exist, any appropriation made thereunder shall be adequate to assure such future payments or benefits when judged by sound or commonly accepted accounting and actuarial practices. Provides that any citizen of the State or of the local unit shall have standing to sue to challenge such adequacy.

Provides that for any fiscal year the proportion of state expenditures paid to local units shall not be reduced below the fiscal 1977 figure and that no new program or increase in services shall be mandated by the legislature without an appropriation to pay the costs. Provides that if responsibility for funding a program is transferred from 1 level of government to another after adoption of this amendment, the intent of this amendment is that the expenditure rate limit of the transferring jurisdiction be reduced and that of the receiving jurisdiction be increased and that no net increase occur in expenditures because of such transfer.

Gives priority in expenditures to principal and interest payments on existing bonded indebtedness or on bonds hereafter approved and provides that the expenditure limit may be exceeded to meet such payments. Provides that no debt obligation, except as shall be repaid within the same fiscal year of issuance, shall be authorized for the current operation of state or local services or programs and that no proceeds from debt obligations shall be expended for any purpose other than as authorized.

Provides that if any expenditure category or revenue source shall be exempt or excluded from the limitations provided herein pursuant to final court judgment, the spending limit shall be adjusted accordingly and will remain in full force as to other expenditures. Provides that if any portion of this article is declared invalid the remaining portion shall not be affected.

768 - Prohibits public or private entities, on or after ratification of this section, from increasing the withdrawal or use of nonrenewable resources originating within the State. Allows the legislature, by statute, to provide exceptions upon a showing of nonfinancial undue hardship. Requires the State and political subdivisions to reduce consumption of nonrenewable resources and to promote the use and wise management of renewable resources in an orderly manner as provided by law.

769 - Exempts from the total indebtedness of the State revenue bonds, authorized or issued, by the State for the purpose of financing housing programs.

770 - Requires the State to divide all deposits of state money equitably among all the federally insured financial institutions licensed to do business in this State.

771 - Provides that in limitation of public funds to public purpose "public purpose" shall be as determined by the legislature.

772 - Grants the right to decent housing at low cost, free from eviction, to all persons. Prohibits eviction or relocation of person, unless affordable and desirable housing can be provided. Mandates the State to provide low-cost public housing. Requires the following provisions, listed in order of priority, to be implemented in all public schools, at all levels at all times: to provide for motivation and habit patterns to achieve human decency in which every school, through all of its activities, shall become a training ground for human decency, kindness, thoughtfulness and concern for others, interwoven and interwrought through act-it-out methods, so that it is a pervasive pattern of every subject of the total school environment; and the total education program which shall include: the development of reading, writing and arithmetic skills, interwoven with a concern for others in each individual, to enable participation in society; the development of political awareness beginning with the entry level of schooling, with the participation of every student in practical training in government organization and the elective processes, to develop leadership experience and parliamentary skills; the development, based on each individual's aptitude, of at least one manual arts skill to a level of proficiency suitable for self-support; and the development of a feeling of being part-of, through student participation in school maintenance.

776 - Provides that revisions of or amendments to the constitution may be proposed by the constitutional revision commission in addition to constitutional convention or the legislature.

Requires a constitutional revision commission to be established to undertake a continuous review of the state constitution. Authorizes commission to propose revisions and amendments and to submit them directly to the voters at a general election, upon the affirmative vote of 5/6 of its membership. Provides that the conditions of and requirements for ratification of such proposed amendments are the same as provided for other amendments. Requires the commission to recommend changes to the legislature and constitutional conventions in a published annual report. Allows the commission to exercise the powers of the legislative committees in accordance with law. Composes commission of 18 members: 6 of whom are appointed by the governor, 3 by the house of representatives, 3 by the senate and 6 by the justices of the supreme court. Provides that the original appointments shall be made to establish staggered terms for the commission membership. Requires all members to be appointed from nonpartisan panels prepared by the chief election officer from nominees submitted by the general public.

Provides that members, after the original appointment terms, shall serve 3-year terms without compensation, but shall be reimbursed for expenses incurred in the performance of duties. Requires each member to be a citizen of the United States, a resident and a registered voter of the State; that no member of the commission shall hold any other elective or appointed public office or any office in any political party or organization; and that the members of the commission shall exercise their duties without regard to partisanship. Provides that in case of the death, resignation, disqualification or incapacity to serve as a member, vacancies shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointments.

Provides that the provisions of the amendment are self-executing, but allows the legislature to enact legislation to facilitate the original establishment and continuing operation of the commission and to make the necessary annual appropriations.

Provides that no proposal for revision in addition to amendment of the constitution adopted in any manner is subject to veto by the governor.

Provides that if a revision or amendment proposed by the constitutional revision commission is in conflict with a revision or amendment proposed by the legislature and both are submitted at the same election to the electorate and both are approved, then the revision or amendment proposed by the legislature prevails. Provides that if a revision or amendment proposed by a constitutional convention is in conflict with a revision or amendment proposed by the constitutional revision commission or the legislature and both are submitted at the same election to the electorate and both are approved, then the revision or amendment proposed by the convention prevails.

777 - Provides that the judicial power of the State shall be vested in an intermediate appellate court in addition to present courts. Provides that the intermediate appellate court shall hear and decide all cases brought before it within 1 year of the filing of the notice of appeal or the decision of the trial court shall be final and binding. Requires the supreme court to accept and review cases in its discretion, provided any case accepted for review from decision of the intermediate appellate court shall be decided within 2 years of the filing of the original notice of appeal to the intermediate appellate court or the decision of that court shall be final and binding.

778 - Prohibits revisions or amendments to Articles I and II which would reduce rights in these articles, but allows for expansion.

779 - Provides that all persons have a right to cultural heritage.

780 - Provides that political subdivisions shall have the power to levy conveyance taxes on real property transactions to prevent speculative transfers and conveyances, such taxes to be levied only against persons who have held the real property interest less than 10 years. Exempts any person who qualifies for a homeowner's exemption as provided by law from such conveyance tax. Provides that the price of the transfer or conveyance shall not be increased to compensate for such tax.

781 - Provides that, unless the legislature or this constitution otherwise provides, there shall be the same number of delegates to the convention, elected from the same areas and the convention shall be convened as provided for the convention of 1968.

782 - Provides that any taxing power delegated to the political subdivisions by the legislature shall be exclusive. Provides that each county shall receive from the State grants-in-aid at least equal to the cash amount distributed to the county in the fiscal year which began on July 1, 1971 and, in addition, shall receive a proportional share, based upon the ratio of the county's population to the State's population, of an amount equal to percent of the cumulative growth in the State's real personal income since the fiscal year which began on July 1, 1971. Provides that nothing in this amendment shall be construed to limit the power of the legislature to give additional grants-in-aid to the political subdivisions and to apportion the same.

Provides that anything in the constitution to the contrary notwithstanding, the amendment provided herein shall take effect for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1980.

783 - Mandates the legislature to promote development ecologically of agricultural and other resources in addition to their conservation and utilization thereof. Adds geothermal and other energy resources as resources to be promoted.

784 - Amends section 212 of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, to provide for the preferential leasing of lands controlled by the board of land and natural resources to persons who can trace their ancestry to the people living in the islands prior to 1778; eliminates the required approval of the Secretary of the Interior for the termination of such board leases and deletes the leasing limitations by permitting the department to recall lands from the board of land and natural resources for reasons other than for use as community pasture or those authorized by section 207 of the Act relating to leases to Hawaiians.

785 - Requires board of land and natural resources to grant preferential leasing of available Hawaiian home lands, through individual negotiation, to persons descended from Hawaiians living in Hawaii prior to 1778. Deletes necessity of obtaining approval of Secretary of Interior for department to consolidate holdings or to better effectuate the purposes of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, exchange title to available lands, publicly owned, or of equal value.

786 - Requires each justice or judge to file a financial disclosure report, as provided by law.

787 - Enables a voter to select or change his party preference for a period after the last date candidates for office must declare their candidacy.

788 - Requires the legislature to provide for the annual collection of statutes to occur after each legislative session and to be completed prior to a succeeding legislative session.

789 - Requires an appropriation bill to be based on the governor's plan of anticipated receipts.

790 - Requires budget bill or supplemental appropriations bill to pass no later than 15 days prior to adjournment.

791 - Provides that the governor shall not restrict operating funds but shall only regulate the release of appropriated funds.

792 - Provides for legislature to convene on second Wednesday, instead of third Wednesday, in January and to meet for 15 days to introduce bills; recess for 10 days by concurrent resolution; reconvene for 20 days; recess for 10 days by concurrent resolution; and then reconvene for 25 days.

793 - Requires the governor to submit to the legislature its biennial budget in an odd-numbered year for all departments except the department of education, which shall submit its own budget directly.

794 - Provides for legislative power to approve or decrease total expenditure of public schools support, but prohibits it from controlling or initiating educational programs.

795 - Amends provision empowering board of education to formulate policy and to exercise control over public school system by deleting provision that the power is in accordance with law.

796 - Requires the legislature to appoint a fiscal management staff, as prescribed by law, to be responsible for facilitating the legislative fiscal management responsibility.

797 - Provides that legislators shall have full-time staff.

798 - Provides that bonds may be issued by the State only if such bonds would not cause the total of state indebtedness to exceed a sum equal to 3, instead of 3-1/2, times the average of general fund state revenues in the 3 fiscal years preceding the legislative session authorizing such issuance, or cause the debt service payment to exceed 15 percent of the average of the state operating budget in the 3 fiscal years preceding the legislative session authorizing such budget, whichever is less.

799 - Requires a ceiling on the project readjustment fund to be set in accordance with law. Provides that any excess funds shall be used to pay debt service.

800 - Requires grants-in-aid to the counties to be disbursed from general fund revenues.

801 - Requires the legislature to appoint, by a majority vote in each house in joint session, an ombudsman to serve for a period of 6 years and thereafter until a successor is appointed. Allows the legislature, by a 2/3 vote of the members in joint session, to remove the ombudsman from office for cause. Provides it is the duty of the ombudsman to investigate citizen complaints of administrative acts of agencies. Allows the legislature to enact legislation to implement this section.

802 - Provides that the legislature may, during a 10-year period, present to the voters at any general election or special election, the question, "Shall there be a convention to propose a revision of or amendments to the Constitution?" and requires the question to include a preliminary plan of the number and districting of delegates and a preliminary estimate of costs. Requires such plan and estimate to be adopted by concurrent resolution of the legislature.

Provides that if any 10-year period elapses during which the question has not been submitted, the chief elections officer, instead of the lieutenant governor, shall certify the question, to be voted on at the first general election following the expiration of such period, provided that the chief elections officer is not required to include such preliminary plan and estimate with the question.

803 - Requires job openings, in the State and its counties, that are for a duration of 1 year or longer to be available to the general public. Provides that appropriate examinations shall be given to all applicants, the top 10 of whom pass the examination shall be interviewed for the position.

Provides that for the State, 3 persons shall form a committee called the "appointing authority" to perform oral interviewing and hiring. Requires the appointing authority to be made up of the director of the department of his authorized representative and 2 members elected by the registered voters of the State for a term of 4 years.

Provides that they shall receive an annual salary 70 percent of that of the governor. Allows governor to authorize 2 or more appointing authority committees if the volume of work so demands. Requires county to create a similar committee and that each of the 2 elected members shall receive a salary of 70 percent of the mayor of the county.

804 - Provides that the Hawaiian Homes Commission has the right to initiate and effect exchanges of land with the State and the counties for home sites in order to effectively carry out its objectives.

Requires the commission to first show it lacks sufficient usable residential lands in the respective county. Requires that the land belonging to either the State or the county be vacant and that lands of equal monetary value be offered by the Commission.

Provides the land exchange shall be mandatory, if the above criteria are met and the owner of the land cannot show that the land is to be used for residential purposes in the near future.

805 - Provides the Hawaiian Homes Commission has the right to purchase private lands through eminent domain proceedings if (1) the commission shows it has insufficient residential lands to meet the needs of applicants; (2) the lands with existing homes or buildings are exempt unless the owner consents to its sale; and (3) the price to be paid is either the fair market value or agreed to by both parties.

806 - Provides the Hawaiian Homes Commission has the right to sell up to $70,000,000 of revenue bonds. Provides the proceeds of the sale be used to build new homes on residential and farm lands and to construct off-site improvements and facilities to serve the new homes. Requires repayment of the bond sales be derived from the lessees of the lands involved. Requires the Hawaiian Homes Commission be the exclusive administrator of the fund.

807 - Provides the people, in order to maintain their public health and welfare, have the power to determine the population carrying capacity of the State and its political subdivisions that in their judgment will determine the future quality of life in the State.

Requires the State to provide, on the ballot of the 1980 primary election, 4 target annual population growth rates corresponding to 4 population ceilings to be reached no sooner than the year 2001. Provides the following choices are (1) zero net population growth rate at a state annual growth rate of 0.5 percent with a corresponding population of by the year 2000; (2) a steady state population rate at a 1.5 percent annual growth rate with a corresponding population of by the year 2000; (3) encouraged population growth at a 2.5 percent growth rate with a corresponding population of by the year 2000; and (4) rapid population growth at a 3.5 percent growth rate with a corresponding population of by the year 2000.

Requires each political subdivision to provide, on the ballot of the 1980 general election, 4 target annual population ceilings and growth rates within the respective political subdivision not to exceed the statewide growth rate chosen in the primary election.

Provides the State and its political subdivisions, chosen growth rates become public policy on January 1, 1981. Prohibits the conflict of any judicial, legislative or administrative action or policy with this policy unless otherwise provided by the U.S. Constitution.

Provides the State and its political subdivisions shall exercise but not be limited to the control of capital improvements, methods of transportation, land use district classifications, zoning, taxation, use of nonrenewable natural resources, development permit, licensing, social welfare payments and the acquisition of land and development rights as provided by law in order to carry out the chosen growth policies of the people.

Provides each citizen may enforce the right to legislative, administrative and judicial actions that promote the chosen growth policies of the State and its political subdivisions against any governmental party.

808 - Deletes Article X, section 1, relating to resources; conservation, development and use.

Amends Article X by adding a new section relating to resources; conservation, development, use, management and disposition. Requires the State to provide for the protection, maintenance and conservation of Hawaii's natural resources and cultural, historical and aesthetic qualities. Requires the State to promote the development and utilization of Hawaii's flora and fauna, natural energy, agricultural, water, mineral and oceanic resources in a manner consistent with this amendment.

Requires the legislature to vest in 1 or more executive boards or commissions, unless otherwise stated, powers for the management of natural resources owned or controlled by the State and such powers of disposition thereof as may be authorized by law. Exempts lands set aside for public use, other than for a reserve for conservation purposes, from the jurisdiction of such a board or commission.

Provides the State shall be custodian of all freshwater resources notwithstanding riparian and other vested rights. Requires the legislature to vest in a duly appointed central commission the authority to manage all freshwater resources in the State and to authorize, as prescribed by law, the use, methods of use, methods of diversion and all development of all freshwater in the State. Requires each political subdivision or agency thereof to supply freshwater to their respective subdivisions. Provides the general welfare of the State, the fullest beneficial use and the prevention of wasteful and unreasonable authorizations of water are of primary concern. Limits all rights to water reasonably required. Prohibits waste, unreasonable use, method of use or diversion of water.

Prevents the deprivation of an appurtenant owner's sufficient use of freshwater. Further provides that an appurtenant owner has a right to the sufficient use of water of the stream to which the owner's land is appurtenant under methods of diversion and use authorized under this amendment.

809 - Provides for a land commission consisting of 6 members to be elected at the same time, for the same term and in the same manner as the governor.

Empowers the land commission to make all decisions affecting the development and utilization of land in Hawaii. Requires the land commission to rule on special permits, land use districts, boundary changes, conservation districts and use applications. Further requires the commission to develop nonarbitrary criteria to be followed in such rulings. Requires the commission to retain as nearly as practicable the classification of land use districts as urban, rural, agricultural and conservation as provided by law. Requires the commission to foster restricting any expansion of existing urban district boundaries.

810 - Defines recall as the power of the electors to remove any elected official.

Provides that recall of a state officer may be initiated by delivering to the lieutenant governor a petition alleging reasons for recall. Provides recall only for physical or mental lack of fitness, incompetence, neglect of duty, violation of oath of office or conviction of a felony. Requires the lieutenant governor, within 24 hours after receipt of a petition, to notify the elected official that a petition has been filed. Allows the elected official to resign within 60 days of receipt of such notice, whereupon the recall proceedings shall terminate.

Allows proponents 180 days to file signed petitions. Requires a recall petition for a statewide officer to contain signatures of electors equal in number to 10 percent of the last vote for the office, with signatures from each of 4 counties equal in number to 1 percent of the last vote for the office in the county. Requires the lieutenant governor to maintain a continuous count of signatures certified to that office.

Provides that an election to recall an officer, and, if appropriate, to elect a successor, shall be called by the governor and held not less than 60 days nor more than 180 days from the date of certification of sufficient signatures. Requires a majority vote on the recall question to remove an officer and provides that if there is a candidate, the candidate receiving a plurality shall be the successor. Prohibits the officer from being a candidate. Requires the legislature to provide for circulation, filing, and certification of petitions, nomination of candidates and the recall election.

Provides that if recall of the governor or lieutenant governor is initiated, the recall duties of that office shall be performed by the lieutenant governor or president of the senate, respectively.

Provides that a state officer who is not recalled shall be reimbursed by the State for recall election expenses legally and personally incurred. Prohibits another recall against the officer until 6 months after the election. Requires the legislature to provide for recall of local officers for counties and cities whose charters do not provide for recall.

811 - Empowers the State to establish a quota system limiting in any year the number of dwelling and resort units that may be built; to limit further the number of dwelling units to 1/2 single-family and 1/2 multiple-family; to allocate the units per county on a pro rata share based upon each county's proportion of the total state population and to base selection of developers for units upon an annual competition among builders administered by each county, as provided by law.

812 - Provides for mandatory comprehensive health plan to cover health care coverage at minimum cost for all persons residing in State as provided by law, including protection against excessive health care costs. Requires all persons residing in the State to participate in the plan. Allows supplemental coverage by other plans. Provides for financing by government and contributions from employers, employees and other beneficiaries of the plan. Requires legislature to establish the plan to be maintained by board of trustees, as provided by law, which shall recommend action to reduce medical care costs throughout the State. Provides that no person shall pay more than percent of that person's or that person's family's income for coverage.

813 - Requires the State to establish a quota system limiting, with the exception of those used for agricultural purposes, the number of new water hookups issued in any year. Provides that the number of hookups per county be determined on a pro rata share of each county's proportion of the total state population.

814 - Provides that no person of sound mind or body shall receive welfare or unemployment benefits exceeding the taxed value of 40 hours a week of employment at minimum wage.

815 - Voids all laws setting minimum consumer prices for sale of goods and services in effect on the date amendment is ratified. Prohibits enactment of new laws in these areas.

816 - Reserves the power of advisory initiative to the people to advise the legislature on legislative action.

Requires that an advisory initiative petition be submitted, prior to circulation for signatures, to the attorney general for preparation of a title and summary not to exceed 200 words.

Prohibits enactment of any law limiting number of copies of petitions which may be circulated. Allows any registered voter of this State to circulate and sign the petition. Requires that each sheet with signatures be attached to the petition, that signers include their address and the date of signing and that the circulator verify each signature sheet. Provides for certification of petition signatures by chief election officer.

Requires signatures equal to percent of the votes cast for governor in the general election preceding the petition filing. Requires petitions to be submitted to the chief election officer not later than 120 days prior to the election at which the petition is to be submitted. Requires any petition released by the attorney general to be filed hereunder or to be void but it may be resubmitted to the attorney general and recirculated after the general election.

Prohibits the release of any initiative petition for inspection by the public or governmental agency except when the supreme court orders an inspection regarding the sufficiency of a petition. Requires an insufficient petition be returned to the circulators within days of its filing with notations of the specific insufficiencies.

Requires the advisory initiative measure to be submitted at the first general election following the approval of the petition by the chief election officer. Requires the measure to be presented in the form of a yes or no ballot, where yes shall indicate an affirmative vote. Specifies form of the measure, and requires that a measure embrace one subject, to be expressed in its title.

Requires that voting results tabulated for the State as a whole and by representative and senatorial district be sent to each state legislator by the chief election officer.

Requires the legislature to consider and act favorably or unfavorably on the advisory initiative proposal at the next regular session. Provides that if the legislature enacts a law similar to an advisory initiative measure after a request is made with the attorney general, the advisory initiative measure shall be void and stricken from the ballot.

817 - Amends the opening phrase of the Preamble to read: "We, the children of this land risen out of the sea, grateful for the Divine gift of these islands..." rather than "We, the people of the State of Hawaii, grateful for Divine Guidance..." Deletes the phrase stating a reaffirmation of belief in government of the people, by the people and for the people and adds a new phrase honoring the magnificence of the human spirit.

Amends the political power section of the bill of rights to provide that this constitution "joins freedom with responsibility in the law, as these radiant islands join the sky with the sea in nature." Provides that political power is grounded in the recognition that each child of the land makes a difference and that the purpose of government is to enable each to take and experience a personal responsibility for charting the future, to realize the human dignity of choosing and creating a destiny most befitting this precious land. Provides that government aims to empower people not to weaken them; to liberate not limit; to unite not divide. Further provides that in establishing this government, a commitment is made to a continuing celebration of the human spirit here at sea and the constitution is ordained as a torch to light the way. Deletes the provision stating that government is founded on the authority that the responsibility for the exercise of political power rests with the people.

818 - Provides that no person shall be denied the right to adequate medical care. Requires the legislature to implement this provision by appropriate legislation.

819 - Provides that no person shall be denied financial assistance solely because of inability to work or lack of suitable and satisfactory employment; nor due to refusal of employment: if the position offered is vacant due directly to a strike, lockout or other labor dispute, or if the wages, hours or other conditions of the work offered are substantially less favorable to the individual than those prevailing for similar work in the locality.

820 - Amends provision on public assistance by empowering the State to provide financial and medical assistance and social services. Changes qualifications for recipients by deleting those persons unable to maintain a standard of living compatible with decency and health and adding those persons in need of such assistance and services. Mandates the legislature to implement section through legislation.

821 - Prohibits denial of the rights to employment at wages sufficient to live in decency and comfort and to union membership with enjoyment of all benefits and protections, including job security and a decent pension after retirement, to all persons. Requires the State to be the employer of last resort. Provides for enforcement of these rights by all persons through appropriate proceedings subject to reasonable limitation and regulation, as the legislature may provide.

822 - Prohibits the legislature from passing any laws allowing legalized gambling in the State.

823 - Provides that a public office is a public trust and the people have the right to secure and sustain that trust against abuse. Provides that to assure this right the legislature and each political subdivision shall adopt a code of ethics applicable to appointed and elected officers and employees, including members of boards, commissions and other bodies.

Provides that each code of ethics shall contain, but not be limited to, the following minimum standards:

1. All elected constitutional officers and candidates therefor and, as may be determined by law, other public officers, candidates and employees shall file full and public disclosure of their financial interests.

2. All elected public officers and candidates therefor shall file full and public disclosure of their campaign finances.

3. Any public officer or employee who breaches the public trust for private gain and any person or entity inducing such breach is liable to the State for all financial benefits obtained by such actions with recovery and additional damages as provided by law.

4. Any public officer or employee convicted of a felony involving a breach of public trust is subject to forfeiture of rights and privileges under a public retirement system or pension plan as may be provided by law.

5. No member of the legislature or statewide elected officer shall personally represent another person or entity for compensation before the government body or agency of which the individual was an officer or member for a period of 2 years following vacation of office; nor shall a member of the legislature personally represent another person or entity for compensation during term of office before any state agency other than judicial tribunals. Allows similar restrictions on other public officers and employees to be established by law.

6. An independent commission shall be established to conduct investigations and make public reports on all complaints concerning breach of public trust by public officers or employees not within the jurisdiction of the judicial branch of government.

7. This section shall not be construed to limit disclosures and prohibitions which may be established by law to preserve the public trust and avoid conflicts between public duties and private interests.

Provides on the effective date of this amendment and until changed by law: (1) full and public disclosure of financial interests means filing with the independent commission by July 1 of each year a sworn statement showing net worth and identifying each asset and liability in excess of $1,000 and its value together with either a copy of the person's most recent federal income tax return, or a sworn statement identifying each separate source and amount of income exceeding $1,000. Requires the forms for such source disclosure and the rules under which they are to be filed to be prescribed by the independent commission and requires such rules to include disclosure of secondary sources of income. (2) Requires persons holding statewide elective offices to also file disclosure of their financial interests.

Provides that decisions of a commission are appealable, and the legislature shall provide the method of appeal. Provides that it shall be grounds for impeachment or cause for disqualification or removal from office if an officer or employee of the State is found guilty of violating a code of ethics.

824 - Empowers the legislature to provide for affordable housing for state residents through establishing demographically proportional quotas for all low and moderate cost housing in all new developments. Mandates the legislature to encourage low cost housing on government property and to furnish low interest housing loans and subsidies to residents. Permits establishment of residency requirements for this housing.

825 - Requires the State to protect the character of its communities and local life-styles. Extends possibility of reasonable regulation of private property to achieve this purpose.

826 - Mandates the legislature to establish quota system on the number of building permits, water hookups and extensions of utilities issued in any year.

827 - Provides that the legislative power of the State shall be vested in a legislature, but the people reserve the power of initiative and referendum. Provides that the power of the initiative and referendum, in addition to the legislative power shall extend to all rightful subjects of legislation not inconsistent with this Constitution or the U.S. Constitution. Clarifies that only laws passed by the legislature need be by bill.

Provides that constitutional revisions or amendments may be proposed by the power of initiative as well as by constitutional convention or the legislature. Prohibits veto of any constitutional amendment adopted in any manner provided in the constitution. Provides that when conflicting revisions are proposed by the same body or by the people and are submitted to the electorate at the same election and both are approved, the one with the highest number of votes shall prevail.

Defines the initiative as the power of the electorate to propose and pass or ratify laws and constitutional revisions and amendments. Limits initiative petitions to 1 subject. Requires initiative petitions to be submitted to the attorney general for certification of the proposal before becoming available for signature. Requires, for certification, that: (1) the proposal be constitutional; (2) no person or private organization is named to hold any office, perform any function or have any duty; and (3) each initiative petition contain either a full statement of the proposal or an adequate summary, and each page contain a short title. Requires the attorney general, within 30 days after receipt of the proposal, to certify or deny the proposal. Provides that a rejected proposal may be revised and resubmitted. Provides that once certified, a proposal is ready for circulation.

Requires a statutory petition, to be valid, to contain signatures of registered voters equal or greater in number to 7 percent, or if a constitutional amendment petition, 10 percent of the total number of votes cast in the last general election from each county in the State. Requires the chief election officer to determine the validity of the initiative. Provides that a valid initiative shall be submitted to the legislature which is required to act on the initiative within 30 days of a regular or special session. Provides that with approval of the legislature, the governor must sign the measure into law. Prohibits the governor's veto on initiated proposals passed by the legislature. Provides that in cases of rejection, revision or substitutions, both the initiated proposal and the legislative proposal, if any, shall be submitted to the electorate at the general election if action occurs in an election year, or at a special election held on or before the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November.

Defines referendum as the power of the electorate to adopt or veto bills passed by the legislature. Provides that referendums shall be optional in nature. Requires a referendum petition to be filed with the chief elections officer within 90 days of the adjournment of the legislative session which passed the bill. Requires a petition to contain the signatures of registered voters equal or greater in number than 5 percent of the total votes cast in the last general election from each county in the State. Requires after the chief elections officer certifies the petition as valid, the referendum be placed on the ballot of a general election or a special election on or before the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November if a general election is not scheduled that year.

Provides that the certification of a referendum petition prior to the approval of the bill by the governor shall suspend the power of the governor to approve the bill, but if the governor approves the bill prior to the petition certification, the validity of the act shall be suspended. Provides that when a petition is filed only against one section or part of an act, the other sections and parts of the act shall not be affected.

Requires that initiatives and referendums be approved by a majority of the total votes cast, provided that the majority is equal or greater in number to 30 percent of the total votes cast for governor at the preceding general election. Provides that approved proposals be effective 30 days after the voting date, unless otherwise provided in the proposal.

Requires the electorate to be able to vote on each initiative or referendum proposal separately. Provides that conflicting proposals on the ballot be clearly marked stating that only one shall pass and the one receiving the highest number of votes shall prevail, except that in a tie vote, both shall fail to pass. Provides that the veto, revision or amendment powers of the governor or legislature shall not extend to proposals initiated and passed by the electorate.

Requires each organization or association desiring to campaign for or against a proposal, and each person, organization or interest group receiving donations for a referendum or initiative campaign, to file with the campaign spending commission. Requires each person, organization or interest group making a donation to a campaign exceeding $100 to report the donation to the campaign spending commission and requires that such donations be made public. Empowers the campaign spending commission to monitor the signature gathering and initiative and referendum campaigns. Provides that all laws applicable to campaigns of elected officials shall apply to initiative and referendum campaigns, except where inconsistent with the provisions of this proposal.

828 - Provides that the people and the legislature may enact legislation through the indirect initiative procedure. Requires an initiative proposal to be submitted to the legislature for consideration upon certification by the chief election officer that registered voters, equal to or greater in number than _____ percent of the total votes cast for governor in the preceding gubernatorial election, have signed a petition for the initiative proposal.

Requires the legislature to pass or reject the proposal by a majority vote of the members to which each house is entitled, or pass a substantially similar proposal. Allows the legislature to propose a legislative proposal on the same subject matter in lieu of the initiative proposal and requires both the legislative and the initiative proposals to be submitted to the electorate at the next general election. Requires the legislature to take one of the aforementioned actions during the same session as the introduction of the proposal. Prohibits the initiative proposal from being submitted to the electorate until the legislature has taken such action but regardless of the action taken, it shall be submitted to the electorate for its approval or disapproval at the general election following its introduction in the legislature.

Requires the ballot to contain the full text of the initiative proposal and any legislative proposal. Prohibits a special election on an initiative or legislative proposal. Requires an initiative or legislative proposal to be approved by an affirmative vote of a majority of all the votes tallied on the question, provided that this majority is equal to or greater than 30 percent of the total number of registered voters.

Provides that when 2 or more proposals are approved and conflict as to the phraseology or substance, the one with the greater number of votes becomes law, provided that it receives votes equal to or greater than 30 percent of the total number of registered voters. Further provides that when there is a tie between 2 proposals, the initiative proposal shall take precedence over the legislative proposal but when 2 or more initiative proposals are tied, the proposal whose petition was first certified by the chief election officer becomes law. Provides approved proposals are effective upon certification of the election results by the chief election officer, unless otherwise provided in the proposal.

Requires an initiative proposal to be registered with the chief election officer and requires the attorney general to prepare a title and summary of the proposal after which the sponsors shall circulate a petition for the required signatures of registered voters. Requires the chief election officer to certify the validity of the petition within 15 days of receipt of the petition. Excludes Saturdays, Sundays and holidays from computing the 15-day period. Requires the chief election officer to return an invalid petition to the sponsor with the reasons for the invalidation. Prohibits submittal of a petition to the chief election officer for certification of validity after 4:30 p.m. of the 1st day of the regular session of the legislature. Requires the chief election officer to transmit, upon certification, the initiative proposal to the legislature for introduction in both houses of the legislature by the speaker and president respectively.

Requires all signatures for an initiative proposal to be obtained within the period between the general election preceding its registration and 4:30 p.m. of the 1st day of the regular session of the legislature in the next even-numbered year. Requires any initiative proposal pending at the end of a general election to be stricken from the roll of registered initiative proposals and any signature obtained thereon is void.

Prohibits initiatives on taxing power, budget or other appropriation measures, bond authorization acts, establishment of courts, expanding or decreasing the scope of original and appellate jurisdiction of courts, naming or designating any person to hold a public office, enacting or repealing laws or ordinances of political subdivisions or subjects inconsistent with this state or U.S. constitutions. Allows the legislature to enact legislation to implement and facilitate the provisions of this section.

829 - Requires dividends to be considered deductible in calculating state taxable income.

830 - Provides for governor to be elected by a majority of the legislature from the members thereof instead of by voters and for governor's term to begin at noon on the first Monday next following his election by legislature and for 6 years thereafter unless ended sooner by adoption of a motion passed by simple majority of the legislature, in which case it will end at noon on first Monday following election of new governor. Deletes old provisions for 4-year term for governor.

Changes wording in provisions on qualifications for governor to read he "or she" shall be qualified voter and requires governor to be resident for 7, instead of 5, years preceding election. Requires single executive of each principal department to be a member of the legislature.

Provides for 2-year terms for state senators as well as for representatives unless ended earlier by special election required after adoption by majority of legislature of a resolution of no-confidence in the governor.

831 - Requires the State to foster attitudes and activities conducive to the maintenance of agriculture as a major sector of Hawaii's economy, assure the availability of agriculturally suitable lands with adequate water and effectively accommodate the housing needs of the people. Requires the legislature to review all land related tax schedules, including capital gains tax and adopt any measures deemed necessary to discourage speculation and uncontrolled land costs in accordance with the policies of this amendment.

832 - Prohibits nuclear power projects in the State unless the people with all possible information before them so decide.

Requires the legislature to establish a commission to study and evaluate any proposed nuclear project. Requires the commission to respond affirmatively to at least the following questions: (1) is said project safe for the people and compatible with Hawaii's unique environment?; (2) is said project able to obtain full liability insurance?; (3) can the project be safely and economically dismantled at the termination of its function?; (4) can radioactive wastes from the project be safely stored through the centuries?; (5) are all safety systems of the project fully effective?; in order that the question "Shall the nuclear project be approved for the State of Hawaii in the County of _____?" be presented to the voters in the next general election for their approval or rejection. Requires a 2/3 majority vote statewide and in the affected county for passage.

833 - Provides that no voter must declare party preference in order to vote.

834 - Provides that no initiative or referendum measure shall pass if it eliminates any existing state or county jobs or reduces any existing employee's pay in effect at the time an initiative or referendum petition is being circulated.

835 - Amends provision for establishment, support and control of statewide system of educational institutions by deleting public libraries. Requires establishment, supported and administered by the State, of a department of public libraries and information services whose purpose is to acquire, organize, store, retrieve and provide to the public reliable and unbiased material in various media formats in order to: promote and support formal education; continue the educational process; keep pace with current developments; form opinions on controversial subjects; develop individual skills and talents; provide resources for political, social and occupational development in the community; and advance personal intellectual growth.

Minority Reports

MINORITY REPORT NO. 1

A minority of your Committee on Executive does not concur with that part of Stand. Com. Rep. No. 32 which recommends retention of the status quo on duties the lieutenant governor shall perform as may be prescribed by law.

The substance of the present system is in that part of Article IV, Section 2, which states in part: "He [the lieutenant governor] shall perform such duties as may be prescribed by law."

The majority report says in effect that the present system of having the duties of the lieutenant governor prescribed by law cannot be improved. The minority of this committee believes improvement is possible by prescribing certain duties constitutionally, while still having others prescribed by law.

The majority argues that, although it did consider expanding the duties of the office of lieutenant governor by constitutionally prescribing additional duties, such as supervision of the enforcement of laws regarding the licensing, operation and conduct of trades, businesses and professions, and coordination of volunteer programs, it believes that the duties should continue to be prescribed by statute, since this would give the legislature flexibility and the opportunity to take advantage of the individual lieutenant governor's area of expertise.

The minority argues that, to the contrary, certain duties of the office of lieutenant governor should be prescribed by the Constitution for the following reasons:

1. Legislative flexibility would not be greatly affected by constitutional prescription of duties, as the amendment does not delete that additional duties may be prescribed by law.
2. It would eliminate certain existing ambiguities regarding official and de facto duties.
3. It would serve to strengthen the office of lieutenant governor.
4. An individual lieutenant governor's area of expertise not included in the constitutional prescription could be prescribed by the legislature as additional duties as it sees fit. Additionally the governor, who heads the State, is responsible therefor, whether or not the governor has an area of expertise. Therefore, why is it necessary that the lieutenant governor have an area of expertise? A person qualified for the office should be able to carry out the duties of that office.
5. If the lieutenant governor is to be the immediate successor to the governor, then expanded responsibilities as prescribed constitutionally and legislatively would prepare the lieutenant governor for the more important office.
6. Since, as the majority indicates, the lieutenant governor is the only other statewide elective office, and therefore does provide a means by which a relative newcomer can be elected to statewide office before seeking election to the chief executive's office, an expanded role becomes even more necessary as preparation for the higher office.
7. It clarifies the position of the office of secretary of state, which in effect it already is under the present duties of that office.
8. It clarifies the position of the office of chief election officer, which it already is as designated by statute.

9. It would place the function of the department of regulatory agencies under the lieutenant governor, which would be consonant with the intent of the offices of the secretary of state and the chief election officer, thus making the lieutenant governor the director of regulatory agencies.

10. Although the duty of coordinator of volunteer programs for the State may have political implications, as pointed out in committee, if properly structured by law these duties would greatly benefit the State without being used for political purposes.

11. It would ease the administration of the executive branch while not lessening the governor's ultimate responsibilities and would enhance the concept of the governor and lieutenant governor as a working team.

The minority feels that Article IV, Section 2, should be amended to read:

"LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

"Section 2. There shall be a lieutenant governor, who shall have the same qualifications as the governor. He shall be elected at the same time, for the same term, and in the same manner, as the governor; provided that the votes cast in the general election for the nominee for governor shall be deemed cast for the nominee for lieutenant governor of the same political party. No person shall be elected to the office of lieutenant governor for more than two consecutive full terms. [He] The lieutenant governor shall perform, in addition to such duties as may be prescribed by law[.], the following:

1. Serve as secretary of state including responsibilities for the supervision of elections, recordation of legislative and gubernatorial acts, certification of state documents and custodian of rules and regulations promulgated by governmental agencies.

2. Supervise the enforcement of all laws and rules governing the licensing, operation and conduct of trades, businesses and professions.

3. Serve as a coordinator of volunteer programs in the State."

The minority feels that paragraph 10 of Section 4 of Article III should be amended as indicated below:

"CHIEF ELECTION OFFICER

"The [legislature shall provide for a chief election officer of the State, whose] responsibilities of the chief election officer shall be as prescribed by law and shall include the supervision of state elections, the maximization of registration of eligible voters throughout the State and the maintenance of data concerning registered voters, elections, apportionment and districting."

In summary, this minority of your Committee proposes that the people of Hawaii are best served by having certain duties of the lieutenant governor prescribed in the Constitution with provision for other duties to be prescribed by law. The ultimate decision on whether the present system, providing only legislative prescription of duties, can be improved would thus be left up to the people to adopt or reject such an amendment in the election to ratify the proposed amendments to the Constitution. We are confident such an amendment would be accepted.

MINORITY REPORT NO. 2

A minority of your Committee on Executive does not agree with that part of Stand. Com. Rep. No. 32 which recommends retention of an appointed attorney general.

After hearing all of the evidence presented at public hearings on the subject of an appointed or elected attorney general, after carefully considering the arguments presented by members of the committee and after careful deliberation, this minority believes that the public interest and welfare would be best served by election of the chief legal officer of the State.

As currently constituted, the department of the attorney general is part of the governor's cabinet and administration. He is appointed by the governor and though he is subject to the confirmation process, history has taught this minority that in practice confirmation by the senate has not served its function as a check on the executive branch of government.

Because he is an appointee of the governor, his independence is necessarily limited. It would be difficult to conceive of a situation where the governor would appoint someone truly independent, and not a supporter of the governor's campaign efforts. In addition, to insure the continuation of his job, the attorney general must become part of the "team" and avoid actions which may jeopardize the governor's chances for reelection. The attorney general may thus be less inclined or less than enthusiastic about fulfilling his role of investigating and prosecuting abuse and corruption within the executive branch if he deems it incompatible with the political fortunes of his superior. Thus he is placed in a position of conflict of interest and the public may forfeit their right to vigorous and zealous enforcement of laws. Conversely, an appointed attorney general may be more apt to pursue the governor's political enemies.

This statement regarding the potential conflict of interest and the resulting appearance of impropriety is not meant to point to specific examples but is intended to point out the potential conflict that current practice engenders. This minority believes that an elected attorney general would not be beholden to and dependent upon the governor for his job and thus would be free to actively and aggressively pursue his function as chief legal officer.

The office of attorney general is of extreme importance in that the attorney general exercises quasi-judicial and quasi-legislative power and therefore should not head an executive department but stand slightly apart. By the exercise of these powers, he exerts vast authority and influence on the entire legal system. By his actions as chief legal officer, he can set the tone of the appearance and reputation of the entire legal community. Lawyers are often called upon to be the "social engineers" of society, and in this post-Watergate era it is important that the public have confidence in those that play such an important role in society.

This minority recognizes the far-reaching effects of legal advice rendered by the opinions of the attorney general to state agencies and the legislature. Insofar as these groups are concerned, the word of the attorney general is law, and the net result of this unique position is to enable him to, in effect, legislate in areas where the law is ambiguous, obscure or nonexistent. The danger of a conflict of interest exists in this duty to service both the legislative and executive branches. A slanted opinion could be drafted to prevent the legislature from enacting law inimicable to the governor's interest. In effect, this situation encourages a breakdown in the separation of powers and reduces the ability of the legislature to serve as a check on the executive and judicial branches of government.

This minority sees a major role of the chief legal officer as the public "watchdog" of government. No other governmental agency is cloaked with the power to investigate abuse and corruption in state government. Though the ombudsman and the legislative auditor can be helpful in this area, they do not have the prosecutorial power to be effective. As an elected officer, the attorney general would be accountable to the public and not to the executive branch, and therefore would not be fearful of uncovering corruption within the executive branch that would be damaging to the political career of the governor. His investigation would be complete and impartial, zealous, unguided by concern about the political career of another and would keep the government on its "toes," thereby insuring that public tax dollars are spent for public service.

It is the belief of this minority that an elected attorney general would be more vigorous in his role as the legal representative of the consumer in rate cases and other activities before federal regulatory agencies. A 1975 legislative auditor's report identified several areas that it saw as weaknesses in the representation of Hawaii's consumers before federal agencies:

- a) A lack of policies guidelines, and objectives for handling federal regulatory matters.
- b) "The attorney general's office has no systematic means of identifying cases that may have an impact on Hawaii and of making sure that timely action can be taken on them..."

Hawaii's remoteness from Washington and the frequent slowness encountered in mail service accentuate Hawaii's problem." c) No follow-up system--"there are also no procedures for assuring coordination and follow-up on cases brought to the attention of the office."

The 1975 legislative auditor's report also stated: "...there is a very widespread need to resolve and redirect the State's organizational arrangements and administrative behavior to assure that proper attention is being given to Hawaii's interests before the various federal regulatory agencies and that appropriate steps are being taken to protect and promote those interests."

This minority believes that the 10-year period prior to the legislative auditor's 1975 report has demonstrated the lack of emphasis on federal-level consumer representation by appointed attorney generals; and this minority believes that an elected attorney general would best serve the public interest in this area, and in addition would protect the public interest in the matter of antitrust.

Concerns have been expressed that should an elected attorney general be politically ambitious and seek to use the office as a "stepping-stone," there would be much conflict and no cooperation between the governor and the elected attorney general. However, 42 states do have an elected attorney general and the lack of movement to change the system of selecting the attorney general is evidence that whatever conflict may be engendered by this system, it has not been severe. Further, our entire system of government--be it the three separate but co-equal branches or the adversary system of trials--is based on the theory that conflict can be healthy and serve as a useful check on another party. This minority believes that checks and balances has been successful in curbing the excesses of government, and accordingly this minority believes that an elected attorney general would be in the best tradition of checks and balances and best serve the public interest.

This minority is concerned as is the public that not enough attention is being devoted to crime. In the days of yesteryear, crime was unsophisticated, simple and generally contained within a county. In this modern age of plane travel and instant communication, crime is becoming more sophisticated and complex. No longer are the activities of criminals isolated within the boundaries of each county. Increasingly the need for coordination among the various county prosecutors as well as between state law enforcement agencies is becoming apparent. This minority believes that an elected attorney general, cognizant of public approval, would be more inclined to respond to public concern over organized crime.

The addition of another statewide elective office would be desirable for Hawaii in that it is considered a "short ballot" state, with relatively few statewide offices to vote for. Hawaii voters elect on a statewide basis only the governor and lieutenant governor. Board of education posts are presently semi-localized for this statewide board. It can be generally construed that the greater the opportunity for voting in elections, the greater the opportunity for citizen input and implementation of the democratic process.

Additionally, a First Hawaiian Bank poll indicates that 62.9 percent of the State favors an elected attorney general. This minority believes that, in light of the overwhelming public support for the concept, it is the duty of the Convention to present this concept to the electorate for approval or rejection in November. Anything less would constitute an abdication of the responsibility we pledged to fulfill as elected delegates to this Convention.

In this post-Watergate era when so many are disillusioned by the actions of government, it is important to restore public confidence in the integrity of government. One indication of the lack of public trust and apathy is reflected in the low voter turnout for the election of delegates to this Convention. Knowing that there is an elected and independent attorney general vigorously pursuing corruption in this State, the public would be justified in having confidence in their government officials and employees. Government was created to serve the needs of the people and if the people do not have confidence in the instrument of their will, society is truly in a state of crisis. This minority strongly believes that the creation of an elected and therefore independent attorney general would be a first and long step in the march to restore public confidence. Therefore, this minority will submit an amendment to Article IV and urge its adoption.

MINORITY REPORT NO. 3

A minority of your Committee on Public Health and Welfare; Labor and Industry does not concur with that part of Stand. Com. Rep. No. 36 which recommends retention of the status quo on collective bargaining negotiators for public employers.

Two different amendments are incorporated within this report, delegate proposals 216 and 131.

The substance of the present system is embodied in Article XII, Section 2: "Persons in public employment shall have the right to organize for the purpose of collective bargaining as prescribed by law."

After hearing all of the evidence presented at public hearings on the subject of collective bargaining negotiators for public employers, and after carefully considering the arguments and amending the original proposal, this minority feels that Section 2 of Article XII is more properly amended as indicated below:

"Section 2. Persons in public employment shall have the right to organize for the purpose of collective bargaining as prescribed by law. The chief negotiator representing the public employer in negotiations with an employee organization shall be a representative of the state legislature and the legislative bodies of the various political subdivisions. All negotiations between a public employer and an employee organization relating to wages, hours and other terms and conditions of employment shall be open to the public."

The changes are indicated by underscoring for additions.

This minority of your Committee urges the delegates to further deliberate and come forth with a constitutional amendment providing for state legislators and county councilmen to be privy to all collective bargaining sessions that are conducted with public moneys, with bargaining sessions open to the public. This should be done in the Committee of the Whole so all delegates may participate in the deliberations on this important issue. Failure to consider this subject further deprives the state legislature and the various county councils from making rational and informed decisions when acting on collective bargaining contracts which mandate the expenditure of public money.

The primary reasons this minority of your Committee feels that members of the state legislature or county councils should be privy to collective bargaining negotiations, as stated in delegate proposal 216, are as follows:

1. In its present form, the administrative negotiators liberally bargain for themselves. The negotiations set the base for all salaries and benefits of public employees.
2. It is ultimately the legislature and the political process which has to balance the interests of public employees with the rest of the community. Therefore, it is the legislature's and county councils' responsibility to be fully informed of developments, particularly with respect to revenues, expenditures and collective bargaining costs.
3. Presently negotiations between the executive branch and labor organizations are closed to the public. This situation leaves open the door for possible corruption, in that union support may be offered to the executive in exchange for favorable contracts. With more elected officials privy to the actual conduct of these negotiations, chances for undesirable deals being made are reduced substantially.
4. Any negotiation between a public employer and employee results in an adversary position between labor and the public. Any strike that may result is not against management, but against the people. Therefore the people should be represented directly through their elected officials.

Proponents of the status quo argue that:

1. Such an arrangement would place an unreasonable amount of political pressure to bear upon selected legislators or councilmen.

The minority responds that persons elected to public office can never enter this arena and expect to avoid areas of pressure. Hard decisions must be made when necessary, and any person abrogating this responsibility is not worthy of representing the people who elected them.

2. As one person stated at the public hearing, "it will be like leading a lamb to the lions," implying that legislators or councilmen do not have the expertise to be involved in negotiations.

This argument has missed one vital area--the legislature holds the sole authority over restrictions and matters of procedure concerning collective bargaining. The proposal asks for the chief negotiator to be a representative of the legislators or councilmen. The legislature, however, can still see fit to hire a professional negotiator for the State or county councils. This was done by the executive when the territory became a State and the governor hired the employers council to represent the State's interests. Since that time the office of collective bargaining has been established, which at first hired professional negotiators and later appointed negotiators. If the legislature feels that the necessary expertise is not possessed by elected officials, then the procedure can be changed to rectify this situation by hiring professional assistance. This would result in the people being directly represented by a chief negotiator, even though the chief negotiator may take advice from a hired professional.

3. Elected officials do not have the time to spend in lengthy negotiations.

The minority responds that the average appropriation by the legislature over the past 3 years has been over $20,000,000 a year for collective bargaining items. With the amount of public money expended each year, the time spent by legislators is more than justified. This also relates directly to the answer to number 2, since it will be totally up to the legislature to determine the procedure in this area.

4. The executive branch is the area of government responsible for management of the State and as such should be represented solely.

The minority responds that the executive represents only one branch of government. Unlike the private sector, the legislature or county council must balance the authority to negotiate with the ultimate authority to appropriate the given expenditure. In the area of public funds expended, the public is management and it should only follow that their representative be elected.

Delegate proposal 131 would provide for open collective bargaining negotiations by making such negotiations public.

This minority of your Committee adheres to the intent of the "sunshine law" as set forth in section 92-1, Hawaii Revised Statutes, stating that "the people are vested with the ultimate decision-making power.... Opening up the governmental processes to public scrutiny and participation is the only viable and reasonable method of protecting the public's interest." Open collective bargaining negotiations between public employers and employees will ensure that wheeling and dealing of public funds will be prevented from entering into negotiation sessions.

Stand. Com. Rep. No. 36 states that "closed negotiations are necessary to ensure the productivity of the negotiations and that legislative approval or disapproval of the final outcome of the bargaining process would prevent corruption from entering into the negotiation sessions." Also, attention was focused on the area of "grandstanding." Some of the majority of your Committee felt that being in the public eye would result in negotiators taking a position for the purpose of promoting their careers.

This minority of your Committee, after due consideration of these arguments, agrees that the legislature does have the ultimate authority over collective bargaining contracts but that a vital issue was missed when public hearings were conducted concerning this proposal: this is, that all bargaining sessions must have a starting point. Without knowledge of this starting point, it is impossible to know if the administration showed laxity in their position or not. With knowledge of this starting point, the administration would then be subject to giving their reasoning if it seemed that a favorable contract was bargained to a given union resulting in extra cost to the public.

This minority reviewed the concerns relating to "grandstanding" and concluded that it is a possibility, but one that is always present in areas that relate to public matters. Therefore, this minority feels that this concern has no valid backing and is minimal when compared with the public's right to know.

In summary, this minority of your Committee feels that the legislature or county councils should not abrogate, nor delegate, their responsibility by giving it to the administration. Therefore, this minority feels that the people of Hawaii are best served by being represented in collective bargaining sessions by an elected official serving their interest. Also, this minority feels that honesty in government is an important issue that this Convention must address. Mandating that collective bargaining sessions be open to the public will result in one more safeguard for the public's interest and will be paramount in making sure that no areas of corruption enter any bargaining sessions. To this end, the undersigned minority will submit an amendment to Article XII, Section 2, and urge its adoption. The ultimate decision on whether the present system can be improved would thus be left to the people to adopt or reject in the general election.

MINORITY REPORT NO. 4

A minority of your Committee on Public Health and Welfare; Labor and Industry does not concur with that part of Stand. Com. Rep. No. 36 which recommends the rejection of delegate Proposal No. 333 providing that the right of the people to uninterrupted public service shall not be violated.

The present State Constitution does not provide for any right to uninterrupted public services. Section 2 of Article XII provides for the right of public employees "to organize for the purpose of collective bargaining as prescribed by law" but is silent on this subject matter.

The majority report argues in rejecting such a provision that the right to strike by public employees will be restricted by this provision, that the present system is successful and such a limitation is unnecessary and that if restriction of the right of public employees to strike becomes necessary in the future, the manner and extent of such a restriction could and should be determined by the legislature.

The minority of the committee urges the delegates to further deliberate and come forth with a constitutional amendment providing for the right of the people to continuity of public services. This should be done in the Committee of the Whole so that all delegates may participate in the deliberations on this important issue. Failure to consider this subject deprives the people of Hawaii acting through this Convention of the opportunity to have continuity of important governmental services.

The majority report views delegate Proposal No. 333 as a restriction on the public employees' statutory right to strike. This is neither the purpose nor effect of this proposal. Public employees may legally strike under delegate Proposal No. 333 but the services performed by striking employees must be continued by other public employees or contracted out to the private sector.

For the following reasons the minority of the committee feels the people have a right to continuity of public services:

1. Many government services are monopolistic, mandated by law and supported by tax revenue. The people cannot refuse to buy or pay for such services and certainly cannot lawfully refuse to pay taxes, even where such services are interrupted for one reason or another which may include a public strike but may also include other sources of interruption.
2. In the American system, sovereignty is inherent in the people. The people delegate it to a government which they create and operate by law and give to that government the power and authority to perform certain duties and furnish certain services for the public good. The government thus created and empowered must employ people as its agents to carry on its task, and such public employees exercise some part of the sovereignty, duties and power entrusted to the government and occupy a status entirely different from those who carry on a private enterprise. The public employee serves the public welfare and not a private purpose.

3. The sovereign, whether absolute or representative, acts for the entire political entity involved and performs functions which are governmental tasks that need to be discharged on behalf of the whole society. These tasks, whether they are national defense, local security, running an educational system or other public services, are carried on and essential to further the public welfare. The public good demands that the people have a right to the continuity of public services, especially where such services are often essential to daily needs of the community.

The minority feels that a new section should be added to the State Constitution to read as follows:

"RIGHT TO CONTINUITY OF PUBLIC SERVICES

"Section . The right of the people to receive uninterrupted public service as performed by public employees or through contract for provision of public services, including, but not limited to, those services relating to public health, safety and the general welfare, shall not be violated."

In conclusion the minority of the Committee on Public Health and Welfare; Labor and Industry feels the people of Hawaii are best served by guaranteeing continuity of public services. The ultimate decision on whether the present system of providing public services can be improved by inclusion of such a right would thus be left up to the people to adopt or reject. We are confident such an amendment would be accepted.

Signed by Delegates Cabral and Peterson.

MINORITY REPORT NO. 5

A minority of your Committee on Education does not concur with that part of Stand. Com. Rep. No. 39 which relates to the governance of education.

The standing committee report reflects an acceptance of the concept of an elected board of education. The portions of the report which recommend changes to the constitutional provisions for an elected board ostensibly intend to strengthen the existing board and resolve the problems of reapportionment. We do not agree that these recommendations get at the basic issues of the governance of the public schools.

The issues of governance of lower education in Hawaii have recently centered on the reapportionment of the elected board. Historically, we have experienced both an appointed and an elected board of education. The change to an elected board occurred prior to the U.S. supreme court's ruling relating to the one-person, one-vote requirements for elections to substantive office. The legislature struggled to develop a reapportionment plan that would not only conform to the one-person, one-vote requirements but would also ensure that Kauai and Maui could elect their own respective members to the state board. The only viable alternatives which the legislature developed according to criteria that had been proven in federal court were large boards. These alternatives proved unacceptable to the legislature, and the federal court stepped in with the present temporary apportionment scheme. The reapportionment plan contained in Com. P. No. 6, while retaining the idea of two school board districts, injects a residential requirement which has not been put to court test. But even if it were to pass constitutional muster, we submit that it does not address the basic issue of educational governance.

That basic issue is this: within our fundamental three-branch structure of government, the governor and the board of education fall within the executive branch. By having both the governor and the board of education as elective entities, and therefore accountable "to the people," which entity has responsibility for administering the educational system? The governor has clear responsibilities for certain executive functions. Is it up to the governor to delegate some of his responsibilities to the board of education? How does the public hold either or both accountable for which decisions?

In examining the reasons advanced for making the board elected rather than appointed, from the mid-1960s through the present, it seems to this minority of your Committee that the concept of public input and public control weighed very heavily in favor of the franchise in lower education. But what does that franchise really mean when a state board is elected? Can the people really provide input in a meaningful way when they elect 9 or 11 or 13 or 17 members of a state board?

We believe that the public's input in education would be much more meaningful if the right to vote were brought to a lower level--the present administrative districts of the department of education. But it should be clearly understood here that we do not advocate a decentralization of the administration of the department of education to those districts. Rather, local boards of education should be elected to give the people of the smaller jurisdiction, the district, an opportunity to provide input at both the district and the state levels. The people's input at the state level would be ensured by providing that the chairpersons of the local boards would also sit on the state board of education. The members of the state board of education can bring their district perspectives to their state-level meetings at the same time that they can take back to their local boards the statewide perspective. Thus, by the exercise of the franchise according to our minority proposal, the public gains not one but two avenues for input into the public education system.

The problems of accountability inherent in our present governance structure would be eliminated by the adoption of our minority recommendations. The superintendent would become the head of the department of education as a cabinet member. The usual controls exercised by the legislature over the governor's appointees would be augmented by the power granted to the state board to select three names for superintendent, from which the governor must select one for nomination to the senate. Thus the public, through their elected representatives on the state board, would have a say in the selection of the superintendent. The state board would also be empowered to advise the superintendent on the policies and administration of the department, but the "buck" will clearly stop with the superintendent and the governor.

In recognition also that the individual schools of the public school system are dearest to the hearts of the public, we propose that a constitutional guarantee be added to Article IX, Section 2, to mandate the legislature to provide for some structure at the school level for public input. Little argument has been heard on the concept that the public should be able to suggest improvements and to channel its efforts on behalf of the school in its community. The very fact that the incumbent superintendent and board of education have adopted rules and regulations to establish school advisory councils attests to the validity of the concept. But we should be mindful that those same rules and regulations are the creations of the incumbents. As superintendents and board members change, regardless of any modifications that this Constitutional Convention might make on the structure of governance, there is presently no guarantee that school advisory councils will continue to be sanctioned. Without constitutional provision for such grass-roots input, this Constitutional Convention cannot be sure that parents, students and other members of a school's community will have a mechanism by which they might bring their views to the attention of the principal and teachers. School personnel also will not be assured of a group to which they can turn to marshal the support of parents and the immediate community.

Accordingly, we submit the following recommendations:

1. That the state board of education composed of the chairpersons of local boards of education be established to advise the superintendent on the policies and administration of the department of education and to submit three names to the governor whenever a vacancy occurs in the office of superintendent.
2. That the superintendent be appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the senate, from a list of three names submitted by the state board, to administer the department of education.
3. That local boards of education be elected in accordance with law to advise the district administration on district concerns, to provide input to the state board and to assist in disseminating a statewide perspective to their respective districts.
4. That a constitutional guarantee be provided for input at the local school level.

To this end, the undersigned minority will submit an amendment to Article IX and urge its adoption. This amendment will have the following objectives:

1. Eliminate the confusion and conflict in the executive branch over the operations of the school system.
2. Fix clear lines of accountability for public education.
3. Provide for exercise of the vote in public education at a level closer to the people.
4. Guarantee the public's right to participate meaningfully at the school level.

In summary, this minority of your Committee feels that the people of Hawaii would best be served if the Constitutional Convention of 1978 would address itself to the basic issues of governance of public education. Furthermore, we believe that these issues are best resolved in the manner which the minority will propose through amendment, so that the ultimate decision as to whether the present system can be improved would thus be left up to the people to adopt or reject in the general election.

MINORITY REPORT NO. 6

A minority of your Committee on Legislature does not concur with that part of Stand. Com. Rep. No. 46 which recommends retention of the bicameral, and rejection of the unicameral, legislature. The report made this recommendation, stating that it was not convinced that unicameralism is more effective than bicameralism and that the proponents of unicameralism failed in their burden of proof.

The minority of the committee urges the delegates to further deliberate and come forth with a constitutional amendment providing for a unicameral legislature. This should be done in the Committee of the Whole so that all delegates may participate in the deliberations of this vital issue.

The majority comes to the conclusion that the bicameral system presently in existence is as or more effective than a unicameral system.

The minority does not concur with this conclusion and recommends the adoption of a unicameral legislature for the following reasons:

1. Adoption of a unicameral legislature will enhance the public's ability to follow the progress of a bill. Presently if a bill is introduced in both houses, as many are, one must follow its progress through both houses.

2. This poses a difficult and challenging problem for the press in reporting on the progress of a bill concisely and accurately.

3. A unicameral system will promote greater public accountability. No longer can one legislative body point the finger at the other as the one responsible for killing a popular bill. Also, no longer will one body of the legislature be able to pass a bill in the expectation that the other house will kill it.

4. A unicameral legislature will also improve the deliberation process. Because of the need to provide time for a bill to pass both houses and to provide for conference committees, the legislative session becomes rather truncated.

5. Presently, the legislature has three deadlines: (A) crossover, (B) passage of bills from the other house and (C) conference committee. This results in a rush of last-minute decision-making, revisions and amendments, and committee report writing.

6. There is no longer any reason for two houses, as the 1964 supreme court decision in Reynolds v. Sims declared that both houses must be apportioned on the basis of population.

7. With a unicameral legislature, the checks and balances between the executive and legislative branches of government are more significant since the chief executive needs to deal with only one house.

8. Because each legislator remains individually responsible for actions and votes, it is more difficult for lobbyists to secure special interest legislation.

9. The majority states that in an evaluation of the 50 state legislatures by the Conference on State Legislatures, Hawaii's legislature ranked higher overall than Nebraska's one-house legislature. An article in the June 13, 1978 issue of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin stated: "A former executive of the conference ventured that Hawaii might have been rated No. 1 if it had had a single house. Nebraska was rated lower than Hawaii for reasons not basic to one house."

The majority goes into arguments that purportedly show the accessibility and accountability of the present two-house legislature. "Accountability" as defined by Webster means "responsibility." Who is responsible for passing or killing a bill? In a bicameral system there is buck-passing and finger-pointing at the other house to place responsibility for a certain action.

Following are 4 excerpts from some 14 testimonies studied by the minority.

1. Nelson K. Doi, Lieutenant Governor, State of Hawaii:

"I firmly believe that a unicameral system would facilitate achievement of the intended purposes of the legislature far better than a bicameral system, because it would create a climate and attitude that would foster more meaningful public participation in the legislative process and would attract candidates who would welcome service under those conditions."

"I am well aware that structure itself may not be sufficient to resolve the problems of any legislature--that people ultimately determine its quality. But I am convinced that a unicameral legislature would be a change for the better and we ought to be seeking better ways of doing things."

"I would like to cover one last point. A unicameral system is not an experiment--it is found in many European nations, most Canadian provinces, Latin America, the emerging nations of Africa, in the Far East and in most local American governments, including all of our counties. Moreover, most if not all constitutional conventions in the United States are unicameral bodies. As Delegate Robert Dodge so aptly stated in the 1968 Con Con:

"It is incongruous to me that an apparent majority of this Constitutional Convention accept this unicameral body as appropriate to draft our basic document--setting policies that will endure for years and at the same time demand a two-house body to establish policies for day-to-day happenings."

2. Frank F. Fasi, Mayor, City and County of Honolulu:

"[A] unicameral legislature would eliminate the need for the 'third house,' the conference committee. These ad hoc organizations have all too frequently thwarted the intent of legislation and have been the source of proposals that have been self-serving. As examples, I need only mention the pay raise and pension bill fiasco of a few years ago.

"I urge a full consideration of the proposals by your committee and strongly recommend that the subject be placed before the electorate for their consideration. The voters of our State should have the opportunity to be heard on this most important matter."

3. Mrs. Pearl R. Nishimura, veteran legislative staff worker:

"In 1947, the legislature met every other year. There were 15 senators and 30 representatives. Salary was $1,000 for the session. The session cost was $350,000 (salaries not included).

"In 1977, the legislature meets every year. There are 25 senators, 51 representatives, an office of legislative auditor, a legislative reference bureau, and an ombudsman office. Salaries of legislators are $12,000 per year. The session appropriation for this one year was $5,977,967 (salaries not included).

"A unicameral legislature would probably eliminate the 25-member senate. In 1977 the amount appropriated for the senate was $1,526,400.

"The citizen/taxpayer finds it difficult to participate in legislative proceedings because it usually costs him time and money. The paid lobbyist has an unfair advantage over the ordinary citizen.

"Desirable changes to the legislative branch must be made in the Constitution. The public's demand for a good, responsive, reasonably priced legislature must be secured by putting the changes and safeguards into the State Constitution.

"Change to a one-house legislature. Less members would cost us less money. I implore you to make the change...."

4. Adam A. Smyser, editor of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin:

"[T]here need be no danger of too hasty action. Rules like those of the Nebraska legislature could assure bill drafter review, fiscal analyst review and public hearings before a bill could become law."

To this end, the undersigned minority will submit an amendment to Article III to establish a unicameral legislature and urge its adoption. The ultimate decision on whether the legislative system and process can be improved by a unicameral system would thus be left up to the people to adopt or reject in the general election.

MINORITY REPORT NO. 7

A minority of your Committee on Legislature does not concur with those parts of Stand. Com. Rep. No. 46 which recommend certain changes in the setting of legislative salaries and retention of the annual legislative session.

The substance of the present provision on legislative salaries is embodied in Article III, Section 10, which reads:

"The members of the legislature shall receive allowances reasonably related to expenses and a salary, as prescribed by law. Any change in salary shall not apply to the legislature that enacted the same.

"There shall be a commission on legislative salary, which shall be appointed by the governor on or before June 1, 1971, and every four years after the first commission is appointed. Within sixty days after its appointment, the commission shall submit to the legislature recommendations for a salary plan for members of the legislature, and then dissolve."

Under this section, the legislature shall receive a salary as prescribed by law and can therefore prescribe legislative salaries. There is also a commission on legislative salary which meets every 4 years and is required to submit salary recommendations to the legislature and to then dissolve.

The majority of the committee argues that legislators are reluctant to prescribe their own salaries due to criticism from the voters, even though pay increases due to inflation are justified. The majority therefore recommends removal of the burden on legislators to prescribe their own salaries by an overt act, and that the salary plan recommended by a commission on legislative salary, meeting every 8 years, shall become effective unless disapproved by the legislature or the governor.

The minority does not concur with the recommendations and arguments presented by the majority for the following reasons:

1. As stated in the committee report, these changes remove the burden from legislators to set salaries by an overt act (legislation) and make acquiescence by the legislature enough. Thus, unless the legislature or governor disapproves the plan, the salary plan will become effective. This is in effect approval by silence and removes the burden and responsibility of an elected body to the electorate. Accountability to the public is necessary and protects the public's interest, also subjecting the process to public scrutiny. The majority's proposal contradicts the principle that the power of government is inherently in the people.

2. The commission on legislative salaries meets only once every 8 years under the committee proposal, is limited in scope to legislative salaries and does not cover other areas concerning the legislature. The commission should meet more often to increase accountability to the public and should be required to study other broader aspects of the legislature.

3. The time period given (fortieth day of session to report) to the commission to make recommendations is too short and does not allow sufficient time for proper consideration and public input.

4. Appropriations for legislative service agencies and for legislative salaries have risen, from 1967 to 1977, from $2,077,000 to $6,889,967. A commission authorized to study all aspects of the legislature might result in necessary savings in expenditures and in fairness in compensation to legislators.

The minority of your Committee therefore recommends that there be a legislative commission with expanded duties to study all aspects of the legislature, meeting every 4 years and submitting recommendations to the governor within 180 days. Under this recommendation, the plan submitted shall, upon approval by the governor, be submitted for voter approval.

The committee report also recommends that the present system of annual legislative sessions be retained, rejecting the biennial session. The report does not specify any reasons for this retention.

The minority agrees with the testimony of Mr. George Mason, representative of the Chamber of Commerce of Hawaii, and Mr. Donald Bremner, executive director of the Waikiki Improvement Association, that the annual session is too costly in terms of expenditures and time, not only by the legislative branch but by the executive branch as well (e.g., testimonies, etc.). Biennial sessions are less costly, more efficient, and would enable administrators of the laws time to review the laws' implementation. Any emergency arising between sessions could be handled by a special session called for such purpose.

The minority therefore recommends and urges the adoption of a biennial session.

To this end, the undersigned minority will submit amendments to Article III relating to legislative salaries and a biennial session and urge their adoption. The ultimate decision on whether the present system can be improved would thus be left up to the people to adopt or reject in the general election.

MINORITY REPORT NO. 8

A minority of your Committee on Legislature does not concur with that part of Stand. Com. Rep. No. 46 (page 10) which recommends the retention of multimember districts. The minority feels that the overwhelming evidence is in favor of single-member districts if the goal is accessible, accountable, responsible representative government.

With single-member districts, representative districts would be about half as large as at present in 20 of the 27 cases (five are single-member now, two have three members). Senatorial districts would be one quarter of the present size in half the districts, one third as large in two more and half as large in another. Each legislator would represent fewer people and be closer to his voters. Campaign expenses could be much less because mass-media promotions would be less worthwhile. Personal contact with the voters themselves would be the key to winning elections. That would make each elected official more responsive, more open, more sensitive to voters if he is to continue to win.

Voters would find it easier to keep track of what one representative is doing and could hold him more accountable, making him more responsible to his constituency. The election ballot would be shorter, making it easier for voters to make intelligent choices.

Single-member districts promote the two-party system by encouraging competing sides to put together the majority coalition in the smaller district to win the election.

By contrast, multimember districts are a sophisticated form of gerrymandering, of allowing districts to be tailored to the benefit of particular groups. In Hawaii there are numerous examples of political parties, ethnic groups or socio-economic groups being combined in such a way as to give advantage to one combination. In such cases, essentially the same block of voters that elect one legislator also elect the second, third, fourth.

The majority of your Committee held the view that minorities would benefit from multimember districts. However, this could be true only if all or most voters plunked for one legislator, leaving to other groups the second, third and fourth choices. In practice, the same plurality of voters can elect all four members of a four-member district, leaving minorities out altogether if desired. On the mainland, multimember districts have been used for years in the South to discriminate against black minority voters, as evidenced by recent supreme court decisions in Alabama, Texas, Louisiana and elsewhere. These decisions mandated single-member districts in order to stop discrimination against minorities.

The majority's arguments about incumbents and women are also ill-conceived. The turnover of incumbents involves many factors other than the size of the district. However, statistics establish nationwide a tendency for slightly more rapid turnover where there are single-member districts. It is in any case self-evident that a newcomer can compete more easily in a smaller, less expensive, more personalized campaign--if the incumbent is otherwise vulnerable. (Some incumbents cannot be beaten in any size district because they are so effective both in campaigning and in office.)

Likewise in the case of women, there are biases other than district size that have worked against the election of women. The number of cases is too few to give statistics validity but it is instructive that in the 51 Constitutional Convention districts 16 were led by a woman, while in only 14 cases did the woman elected run second. In six cases both elected delegates were women; in three of these cases, women captured the top three spots. It appears that when the established political machinery is not plugged in, women have good opportunities to be elected in smaller districts in spite of lingering social biases.

The minority of your Committee feels that Article III, Section 4, item 7 under "Apportionment Within Basic Island Units" should be amended to read:

"Not more than [four members] one member shall be elected from any district."

In conclusion, the minority of the Committee on Legislature feels the people of Hawaii are best represented in single-member legislative districts because these will promote lower campaign costs; more accessibility, accountability and responsibility; shorter ballots and less gerrymandering.

MINORITY REPORT NO. 9

A minority of your Committee on Judiciary does not concur with that part of Stand. Com. Rep. No. 52 which recommends that an intermediate appellate court be created.

The substance of the recommended provision reads in part:

"Section 1. The judicial power of the State shall be vested in one supreme court, one intermediate appellate court, circuit courts, district courts, and in such other courts as the legislature may from time to time establish."

The majority report says in effect that the evergrowing congestion of cases at the appellate level of our judicial system and the concurrent increase in the length of time it takes for both civil and criminal cases to reach a conclusion mandates the creation of an intermediate appellate court to alleviate some of the appellate congestion.

The minority of the committee urges the delegates to further deliberate and come forth with a constitutional amendment providing instead for an increase in the size of the present supreme court and allowing the court to sit in panels. This should be done in the Committee of the Whole so that all delegates may participate in the deliberations on this important issue. Failure to consider this subject further deprives the people of Hawaii acting through this Convention of the possibility of improving the present system.

The minority does not concur with the recommendations and arguments presented by the majority for the following reasons:

1. By creating an intermediate appellate court the judicial system will become more complicated. There will be increased litigation in terms of appeals. The creation of an intermediate appellate court only gives litigants another level to appeal their cases. An attorney may be required to take a case to the highest court for a final determination, and it will end up at the supreme court.

The majority recommends that the supreme court could use a bypass mechanism to immediately hear, in its discretion, special types of appeals. Can it be uniformly and fairly decided which case deserves hearing by the supreme court and which case should be heard by the intermediate court? There will no doubt be extensive litigation on the application of the bypass mechanism. If a case is heard by the intermediate appellate court and it renders an adverse decision, most diligent attorneys would petition the supreme court to hear the appeal also. There is no right to two trials; is it justifiable to possibly have two appeals?

2. The majority of the committee should be commended for inserting a provision that the courts "shall establish time limits for the disposition of cases." However, by creating an intermediate appellate court the judicial system may still produce delays. As previously mentioned, there will be increased litigation. The creation of an intermediate appellate court gives litigants another level to appeal their cases.

Also, because of an intermediate level of appeal, potential harassment by "deep pockets" is created. For example, if an insurance company loses a personal injury case at the trial court level, it will more than likely appeal the trial court's decision to the intermediate court. If it loses again at that level, the insurance company may well appeal to the supreme court. Because of these appeals, the poor plaintiff, who probably needs the money judgment as soon as possible to pay medical and other expenses, is denied the money which is "rightfully" the plaintiff's. In other words, justice delayed is justice denied.

A two-tiered appellate system, with its potential for "double appeals" and the delays inherent when a discretionary second appeal is granted, brings to mind two other examples of potential harassment. One is in the domestic relations area. Despite the merits of his/her appeal, a vindictive and recalcitrant ex-spouse may purposely appeal a family court order to pay alimony or a property settlement decree, first to the intermediate appellate court and, any adverse decision thereafter, to the supreme court. His/her purpose is to harass the ex-spouse and to deny the ex-spouse the finality of the judgment or decree. An embittered ex-spouse may well prefer to pay an attorney to appeal rather than his/her ex-spouse.

The other example exists in the criminal area, and the public may be adversely affected by the potential delays inherent in a two-tiered appellate system. Where a criminal defendant is free on bail pending the outcome of an appealed decision, that defendant may well be dangerous to society and could commit additional crimes during the pendency of an appeal to the intermediate appellate court and possibly thereafter to the supreme court.

A good criminal justice system is one that is fast, fair and final. If a criminal defendant is punished or finally imprisoned a number of years after the initial offense is committed, after two appeals, the deterrent effect of the punishment may be diminished.

3. By creating an intermediate appellate court there will be increased costs to the State and to the public. For example, salaries will have to be paid to the intermediate appellate court judges and their support personnel, such as law clerks and secretaries.

The majority has recommended a unitary filing system, which the minority finds will save some expense. However, such a system may create more confusion and complication than any of the funds that the filing system will attempt to save.

The minority believes that once an institution is established, there is a tendency for it to grow and perpetuate itself. We may start with three to five intermediate appellate court justices but soon there will be seven or nine, and the court also will soon require new or expanded physical facilities together with additional support personnel.

More important than the expenses for salaries and physical facilities, the public will be paying more in attorneys' fees. The middle-class litigant will have to pay the attorney's appellate fees, which are usually quite high and in most cases higher than trial fees. In an appellate case, usually a lot more research and documentation are required, thereby necessitating the higher fees. The taxpayer will also be paying, for public defender and legal aid attorneys to handle these appeals.

4. Also to be noted is the fact that 28 states at the present time have an intermediate appellate court system. The remaining 22 states have apparently found that their supreme courts are performing adequately or satisfactorily and that there is no need for an intermediate appellate court. Relatedly, is it justifiable that such a small state as Hawaii needs an intermediate appellate court when the judicial systems in larger or more populous states are functioning satisfactorily without one? While Hawaii does not necessarily have to follow these other states, the question still remains as to whether it is in the best interests of the public, including litigants, to create this additional appellate level.

The minority of the committee, after due consideration of these arguments, agrees that there is an evergrowing congestion of cases at the appellate court level and that it takes an undue length of time for both civil and criminal cases to achieve finality. This minority strongly believes that, instead of creating an intermediate appellate court, the size of the supreme court should be increased from five to seven members, and that the court should be allowed to sit in panels, or en banc.

By creating an intermediate appellate court, there will be increased expense to taxpayers for the additional court, a potential for double appeals which may well cause additional delays and higher costs to litigants, and a potential increase in workload caused by the need to determine whether the intermediate appellate court or the supreme court should exercise original appellate jurisdiction in a particular case and whether a case decided by the intermediate appellate court should be reviewed by the supreme court.

In summary, this minority of your Committee proposes that the people of Hawaii are best served not by creating an intermediate appellate court but rather by enlarging the size of the present supreme court. This minority is introducing an amendment to this effect, and we urge your serious and favorable consideration of the amendment. The ultimate decision as to whether our judicial system can be improved simply by increasing the membership of our supreme court would thus be left to the people to decide. We are confident that the electorate would prefer and thus be more likely to ratify an amendment providing for an enlarged supreme court rather than one creating an entirely new appellate court.

Signed by Delegates Takitani, Burgess, Chu and Liu.

MINORITY REPORT NO. 10

A minority of your judiciary committee strongly supports the concept of a merit system for selection of judges but disagrees with important provisions of the plan as recommended in Stand. Com. Rep. No. 52.

Although the majority report is replete with references to the desire of everyone to establish a nonpartisan system for selection of judges, the ultimate system recommended to the Convention very definitely ties the system to the political arena and also makes little effort to keep it a nonpartisan body.

Senate confirmation should be eliminated. First, all appointments made by the governor from the lists of candidates submitted to him must be submitted to the senate for confirmation. Not a single one of the 29 states with merit selection systems subject such permanent appointments to senate confirmation, the obvious reason being that the confirmation requirement dilutes the fundamental purpose of submitting a list of highly qualified candidates to the governor and requiring him to select one or have the choice taken away from him by the commission. In effect, it injects senatorial politics into the selection system, both at the commission level because of the need for ultimate confirmation and also at the selection level because the senate is given veto power over the governor's selections. If Hawaii desires to establish an outstanding merit selection system, it should be guided by the unanimous position of other state systems, which have chosen not to employ senate confirmation.

List should be less than six. Second, by requiring not less than six names on any list of candidates submitted to the governor, the system necessarily reduces the assurance that the most highly qualified candidates will be selected and confirmed. Obviously, a list of 3 or 4 candidates will result in the appointment of a more highly qualified judge than if the commission is required to add candidates until at least six have been included on the list.

Time limits should be included. Third, in connection with the pure mechanics of the proposal contained in the majority report, your minority believes it to be unwieldy and needing of clear-cut time requirements at every stage of the appointment process. One suggestion for amendment of the paragraph on page 3 in section 3 of Com. P. No. 10 would be as follows:

"If the governor should fail to make [the] any appointment within thirty days of presentment, or within ten days of the senate's rejection of any previous appointment, the appointment shall be made by the judicial selection commission from the list with the consent of the senate. If the senate should fail to [consent to any appointment, whether by the governor or commission,] reject any appointment within thirty days thereof it shall be deemed to have given its consent to such appointment. If the senate shall reject any appointment, the governor shall make another appointment from the list within ten days thereof. The same procedure shall be followed until a valid appointment has been made, or failing the making of a valid appointment, the commission shall make the appointment from the list, without senate consent."

Nonpartisan membership. Fourth, the system has rejected several very important elements which would have gone a long way toward eliminating political influence and partisanship on the commission. Some of these elements are:

Political activity by commission members should be barred. In order to maintain nonpartisanship on the commission, many states, and the particular proposal submitted by the Hawaii State Bar Association, prohibit any member from running for or holding any office in any political party or organization, or from taking part in any political campaign. This provision was eliminated, thus making it permissible for an officer of a political party, or a worker in some particular person's campaign, or a heavy contributor to a political campaign to continue membership on the commission. There could be no more obvious risks of political influence than would be afforded by the foregoing examples and they must not be permitted. The majority report contained 10 separate references to the desirability of nonpartisanship on the commission, thus setting the proper tone for the commission, but only the correction of the above flaws would go toward achieving such nonpartisanship.

Commission members should not hold other public office. The proposal submitted by the Hawaii State Bar Association would prohibit membership by anyone holding any office or position of profit under the United States, the State or its political subdivisions, thus prohibiting membership by a person holding elective or appointive government office or anyone in civil service. The clear purpose of this disqualification was to try and insulate the commission from politics. The majority report eliminates these protections except for disqualifying persons holding elective office. Thus, under the wording of the proposal recommended by the majority, the governor could appoint three persons on the government payroll who are beholden to him for their jobs and their future promotions, and the senate, the house of representatives and the supreme court could appoint four persons on the government payroll who are beholden to them for their jobs and future promotions. If so, or at least to the extent of such appointments, such members would serve as no more than pipelines to the commission rather than being the nonpartisan, independent members needed for the commission. Hawaii can and must do better in creating this commission and has the opportunity to do so by adopting the foregoing prohibitory language.

Disqualification clause will deter service by attorneys. One provision which will deter service by attorneys on the commission is the paragraph on page 8 in section 5 of Com. P. No. 10. This provision requires disqualification by any attorney member or his firm in any case before a justice or judge being considered for nomination. Your minority does not disagree that such a conflict should be avoided, but believes such conflicts should be resolved by rules and regulations of the commission and not by constitutional provision. Further, such a conflict could easily be resolved within the courts by such an attorney member (or his firm) asking the justice or judge to disqualify himself and assign the case to another justice or judge. The proposed constitutional language would appear to penalize the attorney member by taking away the normal method of avoiding such conflicts. Your minority recommends that the provision be deleted.

Commission members should not receive salaries. Although the majority report recommends that committee members serve without compensation, the language of the proposal does not so provide. A specific provision to this effect would accomplish two purposes. First, it would assure that membership on the commission would not be sought for private monetary gain. Ideally, membership would be made up of private citizens dedicated to selection of the most qualified judges for our judiciary. Second, it would assure the public that the commission is not just another layer of costly bureaucracy.

The balance between laymen and lawyers on the commission should be established. All other merit plan jurisdictions require given numbers of laymen and given numbers of lawyers on the commission. Most (about 24 jurisdictions) require a slight majority to be lawyers. Five or six jurisdictions require a slight majority to be laymen. The majority proposal does not provide this balance and only requires two attorney members on the commission, although attorneys could be appointed to one or more of the other seats. Under a proper lawyer-layman balance, the laymen represent the viewpoint of the general public and the lawyers represent the part of the public involved in litigation. The lawyers provide professional expertise and knowledge of the courts and of other lawyers. The lay people provide a more detached view of the system, bringing a consumer citizen perspective to bear. The interaction between these two groups is important to the success of the plan. Their numbers should be approximately equal to prevent domination by one or the other. The letter following from the American Judicature Society will amplify the above points.

In summary, your minority urges the Convention to adopt amendments to the proposal which will create the most nonpartisan, most qualified judicial selection commission available to the people of Hawaii. The paramount goal is to create a system which will recruit and submit to the governor the best legal talent in the State so that Hawaii will have the finest judiciary in the country. Only if the Convention adopts the foregoing recommendations will this goal be achieved.

Signed by Delegates Takitani, Burgess and Chu.

August 29, 1978

Mr. Daniel H. Case
P.O. Box 26
Honolulu, Hawaii 96810

Dear Mr. Case:

The judiciary committee's proposal for amending Article V of the Hawaii Constitution arrived in our office by teletype late Friday afternoon. Since time is short, I will offer you only my immediate impressions about the sections of the proposal dealing with merit selection.

First, although I was pleased to see that the members of the convention's judiciary committee are committed to merit selection in principle, I was rather disappointed to find that they have included features which may not result in a strong merit system in practice.

As you know, for merit selection to work effectively, the selection process should operate in as nonpartisan a manner as possible. Unfortunately, I notice that several clauses in the bar association's proposal, designed to achieve the goal of nonpartisanship, are conspicuously absent from the current draft. For example, the following language has been deleted from the section entitled "The Judicial Selection Commission":

Nor shall any [commission] member run for or hold any office in any political party or organization or take part in any political campaign.

Certainly members of the nominating commission should not be party office-holders or campaign managers. Nothing in the current draft, however, prevents commission members from having such political entanglements.

I also have difficulty with the addition of the word "elected" to the clause: "No member [of the commission] shall run for or hold any other elected office under the United States, the State or its political subdivisions." With this extra modifying word there is nothing to prevent the governor, the legislature or the chief justice from placing a loyal political appointee on the commission or someone who has already been rewarded with a civil service position. I do not believe there should be anything in the Constitution which implicitly or explicitly allows the nominating commission to be used to repay political debts.

My final comment about the composition of the judicial selection commission concerns the absence of any language requiring that a given number of commission members be non-lawyers. Nothing in the language of the current proposal prevents the governor, legislature and chief justice from appointing all lawyers to the commission. If the commission is to be composed exclusively of lawyers, the citizens of Hawaii would be justified in rejecting the proposal during the November balloting. Merit selection is not intended to be, and should not appear to be, a means by which lawyers can nullify the franchise. The Hawaii Bar Association apparently recognized this point, because the Bar's proposal provided for a majority of nonlawyers on the commission by requiring the governor, legislature and chief justice to appoint only nonlawyers.

If you consider redrafting this language, I might caution you, parenthetically, about providing for too few lawyers. The lawyer members of the commission are important, because they personally know about many judges who do or do not deserve to be elevated to higher judicial office, and they know other lawyers who are or are not qualified to serve on the bench. I sincerely hope that the committee does not overreact by providing too few lawyers on the commission for it to operate effectively. At the same time, if too many lawyers serve on the commission, as may happen under the current proposal, the entire merit selection process may look like a sham to the voters.

Second, besides the concerns I have discussed about qualifications for commission members, I am deeply troubled by the language in section 3 allowing the senate to consent to the nominees. I fear the growth of a practice similar to that which has dominated the federal system until recently, whereby the senators in effect control the selection of judges. Senatorial consent could elevate partisan political considerations over a nominee's judicial qualifications.

You may be interested in knowing that, according to our records, only two states which have constitutional provisions requiring the governor to pick judges from a list submitted by a nominating commission allow the senate to consent to judicial nominees. Even in these two states, Wyoming and Nevada, the senate is allowed to consent only to appointments filling interim vacancies, where the appointee is selected to serve the remainder of an unexpired term. In sum, I fear that senatorial consent would take the heart out of merit selection by allowing partisan political considerations to dominate over a candidate's ability to serve as a competent judge.

My third major problem concerns the provision for retention in the section entitled "Tenure; Compensation; Retirement." This section rejects retention elections in favor of a provision allowing the nominating commission to sit as a quasi-judicial discipline and removal body, ruling on a judge's fitness to remain in office. I would like to repeat my earlier comments about the dangers of this provision. Not only does it allow the nominating commission to undermine the responsibilities of the discipline and removal body, but it also threatens to compromise the independence and integrity of the judiciary. For example, the nominating commission may rule that a certain judge, who has just been cleared of charges of misconduct by the discipline commission, should not be retained because charges of misconduct had been leveled against him. This confrontation between two constitutional bodies can be avoided if the nominating commission does not have the right to rule on fitness for retention. Another example might occur when a judge nears the end of his term and must sit in judgment over cases argued before him by lawyer members of the nominating commission who will decide his right to remain in office. Whether or not the judge is influenced in his ruling by the knowledge that these lawyers serve on the nominating commission, the Constitution should not create the appearance of impropriety by putting judges and lawyers in that type of position.

Another problem with this system is illustrated by an occurrence in Wyoming several years ago. That state used a process similar to the one proposed by the judiciary committee. However, every time a commission attorney appeared in court, opposing counsel objected to litigating a case where the judge might be biased in favor of an attorney who would shortly help determine whether the judge could remain in office. Consequently, it was difficult to get trial attorneys to sit on the commission. Because of this problem, Wyoming has abolished the procedure.

Finally, I question the requirement in the current proposal that the nominating commission must submit not less than six names to the governor. This requirement may dilute the quality of the nominees by forcing the commission to send three or four exceptionally well qualified candidates to the governor along with two or three considerably less qualified candidates. Requiring a smaller minimum number of nominees would help insure that every name on the list meets the highest standards required by the commission. Naturally, if there is an abundance of exceptionally well qualified people, the commission would not be prevented from sending a larger number of names to the governor.

I hope these comments help in your efforts to institute a strong merit selection provision in Hawaii. I shall be happy to continue to help you in any way I can. Feel free to call upon me at your convenience.

Allan Ashman

MINORITY REPORT NO. 11

A minority of your Committee on Taxation and Finance does not concur with that portion of Stand. Com. Rep. No. 66 dealing with the expenditure ceiling. Specifically, we do not agree with the ceiling limitation expressed in Com. P. No. 14, at the end of section 5 thereof, reading in part "...limit the rate of growth of general fund appropriations, excluding federal funds received by the general fund, to the estimated rate of growth of the State's economy as provided by law."

To further pinpoint our objections, we do not concur with permitting the legislature to establish its own spending ceiling limitation. While we agree that the limitation should be geared to growth in the State's economy, the state legislature is in no better position to determine the index to be used than the delegates to this Convention.

"[E]stimated rate of growth of the State's economy" is a nebulous phrase. We believe the language should be explicit so that the legislators will not be faced with a cloudy issue. If the present provision should be approved by the electorate, there is no compulsion or even motivation placed upon the legislature to devise a limitation in consonance with the beliefs of the delegates or their constituencies.

Based on past history of legislative actions, the same persons involved in testifying before your Committee on Taxation and Finance on spending limitations would also be the persons testifying before the legislature. These witnesses agreed that total personal income is the best indicator available to measure the growth in the economy.

Dr. Thomas K. Hitch, Senior Vice-President, First Hawaiian Bank, expressed this point clearly when he stated that "...limiting the rate of growth of spending to no more than the rate of growth of total state personal income, thus putting increases in state spending on a one-to-one relationship with increased income of the residents, would be a sensible approach to determining automatic growth in government."

Moreover, the Tax Foundation of Hawaii has testified that "...personal income...is one of the best measurements of ability to support government."

Presently, three departments of state government (plus the university) are engaged in economic model-building in an attempt to forecast, by computerized econometric means, the changes in levels of the Hawaiian economy. These models are understood by few and the output depends upon the input. The input is judgmental and quite frankly can be rigged to produce wanted results.

Furthermore, if the legislature is permitted to develop its own measurement of growth in the economy, it will be possible for the legislature to circumvent the intent of the delegates to the Constitutional Convention by merely choosing its measurement or index for estimating the rate of growth of the State's economy to be the rate of growth of general fund revenues. The spending limit would also prove to be meaningless if the legislature changed the index from time to time if it found one or the other too restrictive. This is exactly what the electorate opposes--permitting the spending body to make its own rules.

This minority believes that total state personal income as reported by the U.S. Department of Commerce is the best measure to estimate growth in the State's economy. Averaged over a 3- to 5-year period it would eliminate "spurts and sputters." Total personal income is a measure of population growth, inflation and any increases in real wealth which occur. Thus, under the personal income formula, the State would be allowed to share in economic growth.

The minority proposes that the first sentence in the last paragraph in section 5 of Com. P. No. 14 be amended to read:

"Notwithstanding any other provision to the contrary, the legislature shall establish a general fund expenditure ceiling which shall limit the rate of growth of general fund appropriations, excluding federal funds received by the general fund, to the [estimated] rate of growth of the State's [economy as provided by law.] total personal income, utilizing the federal state personal income series."

In summary, this minority of your Committee believes that the people of Hawaii will be best served by limiting state government spending to the rate of growth of the State's personal income. The ultimate decision as to whether spending can be sensibly and effectively controlled will thus be left up to the people to adopt or reject such an amendment in the election to ratify all proposed amendments to the Constitution. We are confident such an amendment would be accepted by the people and therefore urge the Convention to adopt such an amendment.

MINORITY REPORT NO. 12

A minority of your Committee on Taxation and Finance does not concur with that part of Stand. Com. Rep. No. 66 which recommends the issuance of special purpose revenue bonds to assist "manufacturing, processing or industrial enterprises, utilities serving the general public, health care facilities provided to the general public by not-for-profit corporations or low and moderate income government housing programs...."

The minority does not concur with the above-stated section of the committee proposal for the following reasons:

1. It is not the function of government either to engage in private business or to directly aid private ventures. This section allows the State to become a lending institution to private business and to become extensively involved in promoting, sponsoring, regulating and controlling private enterprises. This should be neither the objective nor the function of our State.

2. Financing private or semi-private enterprises through the aid of special purpose revenue bonds does not fulfill the "public purpose" requirement as a prerequisite for the issuance of such bonds in general. Giant corporations and businesses would be the direct beneficiary of such bonds as they would be able to obtain cheaper financing for their projects and also benefit from the federal income tax exemption as well. The accruing benefit to the public would be only secondary or incidental.

Those enterprises that are able to obtain such inexpensive financing would have an advantage over their competitors in the State who could not obtain similar financial arrangements. It is obvious that private enterprises unable to obtain similar financing would have more difficulty in competing with enterprises operating thereunder. If on the other hand, revenue bond financing were equally available to all private enterprises, the result would be a flood on the bond market with a detrimental effect upon the borrowing power of state and local governments for needed public improvements.

3. Potentially, the expenses incurred by the State in this financing plan might exceed or equal the prospective savings realized in having private enterprises undertake public improvements.

First, since public moneys are obtained from the issuance of such bonds, the State has a moral obligation to protect the bondholders against default, fraud or other potential abuses resulting therefrom. This would require extensive and costly management on the part of the State in regulating not only the borrowing procedure but the usage of such revenue by private enterprises.

Secondly, if there is any public doubt as to whether the special purpose revenue bond fulfills a "public purpose," the State may be forced into costly and extensive litigation. The recent case of State ex rel. Amemiya v. Anderson, 56 Haw. 566, 545 P.2d 1175 (1973) amply demonstrates this contention. In that case, the validity of Act 161, which authorized the issuance of anti-pollution revenue bonds, was challenged by the attorney general almost immediately after its enactment by our legislature.

Lastly, even if the State has no legal obligation to shoulder the debt, popular pressures and moral obligations might force the State to assume liability in case of default. It would not be unreasonable to assume that the State may, in an effort to protect its name and general credit rating, bear the loss.

4. The use of special purpose revenue bonds constitutes a threat to the ability of the state and local governments to borrow funds at reasonable interest rates to meet their ever expanding obligations. The issuance of special type revenue bonds would decrease the available market of purchasers for general obligation bonds, thereby resulting in an increase in the State's general obligation bond interest rate. The increase in the interest rates on obligation bonds would have to be sufficiently high to attract an adequate number of investors. This fact was pointed out in a nationwide study conducted by the Investment Banker's Association in 1967.

5. Recent studies conducted by the federal government have revealed that the loss in federal income tax revenue is greater than the savings to the financed business. More specifically, these studies have shown that the federal government stands to lose approximately three times as much in tax revenues as the industry gains through the revenue bond financing program. Potentially the federal government could react to this loss in two ways. First, it could lessen the federal subsidies to states for certain public improvements, on the reasoning that private enterprises have been contracted to undertake these tasks. Otherwise, the federal government could restrict or eventually eliminate the tax benefits derived from the tax-exempt status of these bonds by private industries. This would decrease the financial incentive to industry and defeat the purposes and objectives of the special purpose revenue bond program as such. Legislation is presently pending in Congress to eliminate the tax-exempt provision from special purpose revenue bonds.

In summary, this minority of your Committee proposes that the people of Hawaii are best served by not opening up the State to the influx of a new type of debt. Although this minority is not deleting this entire section of the committee's proposal, it is introducing an amendment which places tighter controls over the authorization of such special purpose revenue bonds by including a provision for a two-thirds vote of the legislature. We urge your serious and favorable consideration of this amendment.

Signed by Delegates Marion Lee, Kono, Marumoto, Izu, DiBianco, Blake and Peterson.

MINORITY REPORT NO. 13

A minority of your Committee on Bill of Rights, Suffrage and Elections does not concur with that part of Stand. Com. Rep. No. 72 which recommends against amending the Constitution to include a primary election system different from the one which we now have.

We believe that both a blanket and an open primary system should be considered by this Convention and we submit two amendments to implement these systems.

To show the difference between the present system and the alternatives, we submit three previously used official state ballot samples and one newly proposed ballot sample designed by the director of elections, and also a chart showing all the official votes cast in Hawaii elections since 1950.

The people of Hawaii have indicated by polls that they favor a system that will not violate their privacy and not force them to reveal a political preference before being allowed to vote.

We urge your consideration of these amendments.

MINORITY REPORT NO. 14

A minority of your Committee on Bill of Rights, Suffrage and Elections does not concur with that portion of Stand. Com. Rep. No. 72 which recommends against the inclusion of a recall provision in our State Constitution.

After hearing all of the evidence presented at public hearings on the subject of recall, and after considering all arguments of the committee members, this minority believes that the public interest and welfare would be best served by including a provision in the Constitution to allow citizens to recall elected public officials through a petitioning process.

If our government is to function efficiently and effectively, the people must be provided with appropriate means to hold its elected officers responsible for proper performance of duties. Our State Constitution now provides for the removal of the governor and lieutenant governor upon conviction of impeachment and for the expulsion of a legislator "for misconduct, disorderly behavior or neglect of duty . . . [by] a two-thirds vote of all the members to which such house is entitled. . . ." These provisions, however, can only be invoked by the legislature and would ordinarily be for crime or gross misconduct, not for mere inefficiency, insensitivity to public need or incompetence. This minority, therefore, proposes that a recall provision similar to Oregon's requiring signatures of 25 percent of the qualified voters be included as a new section in Article II of the Constitution.

Oregon, one of 14 states providing for the recall of public officials in the Constitution, has had the recall provision since 1908 and its citizens have found it to be a successful means of keeping public officials responsive and honest in the execution of their official duties. During the period 1965-1976, petitions were filed against 158 officials, of which 38 were recalled from office. It should be noted, however, that most of the petitions were against local officials. History of recall usage in other states reveals that it has seldom been used.

The incorporation of a recall provision in our Constitution would not be a drastic or major change since over three-fourths of the State's population already have the power to recall elected county officials. The City and County of Honolulu has had a recall provision in its charter since 1959 for its mayor, and since 1973 for members of the council. The County of Maui has had a recall provision in its charter for the removal of all elective officers since 1969. Opponents of the recall have expressed fears of abusive use resulting in undue harassment and intimidation of elected officials. This, however, has not been the case in Honolulu and Maui. Neither county has used its recall power despite the presence of perhaps two of Hawaii's most outspoken and controversial mayors.

Furthermore, the fear of abusive use is a shallow-rooted argument because anything can be abused. Our representative form of government and the right to free speech, for example, are open to abuse by malicious people for personal gain, yet this mere possibility of abuse is not a valid reason to discard these ideals. A democratic society such as ours must rely upon the good sense, integrity and honesty of its citizens to make the system work. As evidenced by the unused recall provisions in Honolulu and Maui, our trust in our citizenry has not been misplaced.

This minority believes that a recall provision is necessary to protect the public in the same manner as a spare tire is kept in our cars, in case a tire fails to perform satisfactorily. While it is true that the public does have recourse at election time, this minority believes that the public should not be forced to tolerate and endure for any length of time an official who has violated its trust or has proven to be insensitive, inefficient or incompetent.

The issue of recall has received much publicity and has developed into one of the controversial issues of this Convention. As such, this minority believes that the ultimate decision as to whether recall should be included in our Constitution should rest with the people. We are confident in the people's ability to intelligently resolve the recall issue and therefore urge the delegates of this Convention to adopt such an amendment.

Signed by Delegates Hanaike, Goodenow, Dyer, Eastvold, Liu, Barnes, Peterson, Hale and Odanaka.

MINORITY REPORT NO. 15

A plurality of your Committee on Bill of Rights, Suffrage and Elections does not concur with that portion of Stand. Com. Rep. No. 72, which recommends against inclusion of the referendum in the State Constitution.

After hearing all the evidence presented at public hearings on the subject of direct legislation, such as the referendum, and after considering all arguments of the committee members, this plurality believes that the public interest and welfare would be best served by including a provision in the Constitution to allow for the referendum of laws passed by the legislature upon petition by the qualified voters of the State.

Presently, 34 states offer some form of referendum and 22 of those states provide for the petition referendum, which shall be the focus of this report. Various studies have revealed that the petition referendum is seldom used by the states that have it; however, it should be noted that no state has repealed the referendum provision from its constitution. Experts in the field attribute this to the public's desire to maintain the referendum as a safety valve or an avenue through which their concerns may be communicated to the legislature when and if the need arises. Moreover, the very availability of the referendum appears to serve as an inducement for the legislature to be responsive and to avoid the enactment of laws that might be vehemently opposed by the public.

Citizen participation is the essence of democracy and the value of the referendum as a participatory device was aptly described by Dr. John R. Haynes, one of the first dedicated advocates of direct legislation, when he said that "... more important than the building of an efficient and economical method of government is the upbuilding of civic wisdom, conscience and responsibility of the governed." Referendum petition drives and election campaigns generally publicize the pros and cons of issues and thus can provide invaluable voter education on contemporary issues and concomitant stimulation of public interest in the affairs of government. This plurality is confident that, given the opportunity to directly participate in the decision-making process, the people will prove to be trustworthy, judicious and cautious in the exercise of their power. In fact, according to a study conducted by the League of Women Voters of Hawaii in 1977, "... initiative measures are more likely to be turned down than referenda. It appears that decisions by the legislature are received more favorably than measures proposed by the citizenry."

The concept of direct citizen participation has long been established in our State Constitution. Constitutional amendments, such as those to be proposed by this Convention, are required to undergo a referendum election. This plurality believes that the people of Hawaii have accepted the referendum as an effective means of exercising their right to participate in decisions on how they are to be governed and have demonstrated responsible utilization of this power. If the citizenry can be entrusted with determining the fate of our State Constitution, they can also be entrusted with the approval of laws passed by the legislature.

The counties of Hawaii, Maui and Kauai provide for the referendum of ordinances. Opponents to the referendum have expressed fears that the referendum power will be used by well-financed groups for special interest gain and legal harassment of the legislature. It is interesting to note that the experience of our counties has shown that the people have not abused their power of referendum. Instead, the only referendum that made it to the ballot in the counties proved to be a valuable decision-making tool on a controversial issue which even lawmakers found difficult to resolve.

In 1974, the referendum was used to resolve the controversial fluoridation issue in Hawaii county. After more than a year of extensive public hearings and intensive debate on the fluoridation issue, the Hawaii county council voted 5 to 4 in favor of an ordinance to fluoridate the county's water. A referendum petition drive immediately followed and over 10,000 signatures, more than twice the required amount, were obtained. The leading proponents of the fluoridation ordinance, who were dentists, the state health department and the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU), conducted a massive advertising campaign and spent more money than all the candidates in any Hawaii county general election race at that time. The opposition, which brought together unusual alliances such as long-haired liberals with short-haired conservatives and the young with the elderly, had virtually no official backing and did not conduct an expensive, sophisticated campaign. At the election in November, the people voted by a margin of 4 to 1 to reject the fluoridation ordinance.

The referendum experience in Hawaii county demonstrated that: (1) the referendum can be effectively utilized to resolve issues that are highly controversial and possibly stalemated in a legislative body; (2) voters do want an opportunity to actively participate and have their say in the decision-making process; and (3) grass-roots campaigns are effective and groups with the most money will not always win.

The issue of direct legislation has received much publicity and has developed into one of the most controversial issues of this Convention, as evidenced by the close vote in committee. As such, this plurality believes that the ultimate decision as to whether the referendum should be included in our Constitution should rest with the people, as was done with the fluoridation issue in Hawaii county.

In conclusion, this plurality would like to point out that, prior to and during this Convention, many public opinion polls were conducted on constitutional issues and the people consistently voted in favor of amending the Constitution to include direct legislation provisions. A petition containing 20,000 signatures, or approximately 6 percent of the registered voters, was also submitted to this Convention to indicate strong public support for direct legislation. This Convention would be remiss if it did not heed the wishes of these voters by at least placing the question of the referendum on the ballot in November. We are confident in the people's ability to intelligently resolve the referendum issue and therefore urge the delegates of this Convention to adopt such an amendment.

Signed by Delegates Hanaike, Hale, Chong, Peterson, Barnes, Goodenow, Liu, Odanaka, Dyer, Campbell, Funakoshi and Eastvold.

Committee of the Whole Reports

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE REPORT NO. 1

Your Committee of the Whole, to which was referred Stand. Com. Rep. No. 26 of the Committee on Ethics and Com. P. No. 1 accompanying the report, entitled "A Proposal Relating to Code of Ethics," having held a meeting on August 14, 1978, and having fully debated and considered the report and proposal, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal covered amendments to Section 5 of Article XIV of the Hawaii Constitution. The action taken is set forth as follows.

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends the following amendment to paragraph 2 of Section 5:

"Each code of ethics shall be administered by a separate ethics commission, except that the code of ethics adopted by the constitutional convention shall be administered by the State Ethics Commission. [No member of an ethics commission shall, during his term of office, run for or hold any office in any political organization, or directly or indirectly make any political contribution, or take part in any political campaign. The members of commissions] The members of ethics commissions shall be prohibited from taking an active part in political management or in political campaigns. Ethics commissioners shall be selected in a manner which assures their independence and impartiality."

Considerable debate was held on this amendment. This amendment prohibits members of ethics commissions from taking an active part in political management or in political campaigns including becoming a partisan candidate and campaigning for an elective political office. The amendment does not, however, preclude the making of political contributions. Part of the language of the amendment is taken from Section 9(a) of the Hatch Act, 5 U.S.C. Section 7324. It is the intent of your Committee that judicial interpretations of the act be used to interpret this amendment. This amendment also eliminates any concern as to the constitutionality of the original proposal based on First Amendment considerations. The language of the Hatch Act has been declared constitutional.

Various other amendments were offered during the meeting, to amend, delete and add new paragraphs to Section 5 of Article XIV. Some of the amendments related to: the good faith and loyalty of officials; application to all public employees; definitions for some of the terms used in paragraph 3; nepotism and financial disclosure for justices and judges. Considerable debate was held on these amendments; none was adopted. It is your Committee's intent that this proposal sets forth only minimum standards and areas of concern for each legislative body. It is intended that each legislative body be able to interpret these provisions and expand them if necessary. Your Committee considers the Committee on Judiciary as appropriate to address the amendment relating to financial disclosure for justices and judges.

Your Committee of the Whole recommends the adoption of Com. Whole Rep. No. 1 and consideration of the passage of Com. P. No. 1, RD. 1, on second reading.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE REPORT NO. 2

Your Committee of the Whole, to which was referred Com. P. No. 2, entitled "A Proposal Relating to the State Boundaries and Motto," having held a meeting August 16, 1978, and having fully debated and considered the report and proposal, begs leave to report as follows:

Stand. Com. Rep. No. 30 covered amendments to Section 1 of Article XIII and to the title of the article, and added a new Section 4 to the article. Your Committee agrees with the recommendations of the Committee on Revision, Amendment and Other Provisions and, having passed Com. P. No. 2 on second reading, recommends the adoption of Com. Whole Rep. No. 2.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE REPORT NO. 3

Your Committee of the Whole, to which was referred Com. P. No. 3, entitled "A Proposal Relating to the Executive," having held a meeting August 17, 1978, and having fully debated and considered the proposal, begs leave to report as follows:

Stand. Com. Rep. No. 32 covered amendments to Sections 1 and 2 of Article IV and a new section to be appropriately designated in Article XVI. Your Committee agrees with the recommendations of the Committee on Executive and recommends the adoption of Com. Whole Rep. No. 3 and consideration of the passage of Com. P. No. 3 on second reading.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE REPORT NO. 4

Your Committee of the Whole, to which was referred Com. P. No. 4 from the Committee on Revision, Amendment and Other Provisions, having held its meeting on August 18, 1978, and having fully debated and considered the proposal, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal covered amendments to Section 3 of Article XIV and Section 2 of Article XV of the State Constitution, which sections were considered together with the unamended Preamble and unamended sections of Article XIV and Article XV. Section 5 of Article XIV relating to the code of ethics was considered by your Committee on Ethics. The action taken is set forth as follows:

An amendment to the Preamble, reading as follows, was offered:

"We, the people of [the State of] Hawaii, grateful for Divine Guidance, and mindful of our Hawaiian heritage [,] and uniqueness as an island State, dedicate our efforts to fulfill the philosophy decreed by the Hawaiian motto, 'Ua mau ke ea o ka aina i ka pono'.

"We reserve the right to control our destiny; to nurture the integrity of our people and culture; and to preserve the quality of life that we desire.

"We reaffirm our belief in a government of the people, by the people and for the people, and with an understanding and compassionate heart toward all the peoples of the earth, do hereby ordain and establish this constitution for the State of Hawaii."

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends adoption of this amendment. While the present Preamble is beautiful, it was adopted in 1950 at a time when the people of Hawaii were concerned about attaining statehood. It was the belief of your Committee that the Preamble should be amplified to address the concerns of Hawaii's people today and particularly their desire to determine their own destiny and quality of life in harmony with the United States and the world's other nations. In addition, the proposed Preamble proclaims Hawaii's island heritage and its dedication to its guiding principle, "Ua mau ke ea o ka aina i ka pono," the life of the land is perpetuated in righteousness.

An amendment to revise Section 2 of Article XIV, relating to the employees' retirement system, was introduced. The amendment would have prohibited any differentials in benefits provided by the retirement system based on class of employee or office. However, the amendment allowed the payment of differential benefits if such differences were reasonably related to individual contributions made by employees to the retirement system or were a form of additional compensation to those employees whose duties involved danger to life. Proponents of the proposal asserted that the present retirement system, which gives judges and elected officials retirement benefits in excess of those paid to other employees with similar years of service and contributions to the retirement system, is inequitable. Those who opposed the amendment claimed that judges and elected officials generally do not work in government service as long as other governmental employees and do not normally accumulate the same benefit rights as other employees. It was argued that in the case of judges differential benefit payments constituted another form of payment to compensate them for salaries which may not be competitive with those of attorneys in private practice. After much debate the proposed amendment was defeated.

Your Committee recommends that Section 3 of Article XIV, relating to disqualifications from public office or employment, be adopted as proposed by the Committee on Revision, Amendment and Other Provisions. The proposed Section 3 provides that a person may not be disqualified from holding public office or employment unless he has been convicted of the disqualifying acts specified in the section.

A new section to Article XIV requiring that all governmental writing be plainly worded was submitted for your Committee's consideration. It reads:

"PLAIN LANGUAGE

"Section 16. All governmental writing meant for the public, in whatever language, should be plainly worded, avoiding the use of technical terms."

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends that Section 16 be adopted as proposed. It was agreed that governmental writing should be concise, simple and understandable to assure the people have access to the government's resources and information. Nontechnical language should be used wherever possible. It is, however, the intent of your Committee that Hawaiian words used as technical terms, such as konohiki, be written in Hawaiian. Opponents of this measure argued that it might be expensive and difficult to implement and should not be given constitutional stature.

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends that the first paragraph of Section 2 of Article XV be amended to read as follows:

"Section 2. The legislature may submit to the electorate at any general or special election the question, 'Shall there be a convention to propose a revision of or amendments to the Constitution?' If any [ten] nine-year period shall elapse[, or if it would elapse if ten days were added to any period less than 10 years,] during which the question shall not have been submitted, the lieutenant governor shall certify the question, to be voted on at the first general election following the expiration of [or within 10 days of the expiration of] such period."

The revision as proposed by your Committee is a matter of style rather than substance. Your Committee agreed that the insertion of the word "nine-year" would be simpler and easier for the electorate to understand than the standing committee's proposal. It is the intent of your Committee that the question of whether there should be a constitutional convention to propose a revision of amendments to the Hawaii Constitution should be submitted to the electorate every tenth year.

Your Committee recommends that the second paragraph of Section 2 of Article XV, relating to the election of delegates, be adopted as proposed by the standing committee. The amendment mandates the legislature to determine the number of delegates to any future constitutional convention, the election districts for such delegates and the manner of convening such convention, as well as to provide for facilities and equipment for the convention.

Your Committee recommends that the new third paragraph of Section 2 of Article XV, relating to the convention meeting, be adopted as proposed by the standing committee. An amendment to require that the convention convene not less than 7 months before the next regularly scheduled general election was offered. The proponents of the amendment argued that a 7-month requirement would give delegates to a constitutional convention more time to thoughtfully and carefully consider constitutional amendments. However, a majority of your Committee agreed that a 5-month time period was sufficient and that a 7-month period would coincide with legislative sessions, thus diminishing the importance of the deliberations of both bodies.

Amendments were also offered (1) to require that future constitutional conventions convene in the State Capitol and (2) to create a constitutional revision commission. After much debate, these amendments were rejected.

Your Committee of the Whole recommends the adoption of Com. Whole Rep. No. 4 and consideration of the passage of Com. P. No. 4, RD. 1, on second reading.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE REPORT NO. 5

Your Committee of the Whole, to which was referred Stand. Com. Rep. No. 36 of the Committee on Public Health and Welfare; Labor and Industry, and Com. P. No. 5, entitled "A Proposal Relating to the Public Health and Welfare," having held meetings on August 21 and 22, 1978, and having fully debated and considered the report and proposal, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal covered amendments to Sections 1, 2, 3 and 5 of Article VIII and five new sections to Article VIII of the State Constitution, which sections were considered together with unamended Section 4 of Article VIII and Sections 1 and 2 of Article XII. The action taken is set forth as follows:

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends that Section 1 relating to the public health be amended as follows:

"Section 1. The State shall [have power to] provide for the protection and promotion of the public health."

The revision proposed maintains the status quo. It was felt that the removal of the mandate by inserting the words "have power to" would be a regressive step, especially when it took a struggle to have this mandate placed upon the State by the previous constitutional convention. It was further felt by your Committee that the State should not have discretion in this area and instead should be obligated to perform this vital function. It was pointed out that the inclusion of this mandate does not make the section inconsistent with other sections of the Constitution because a mandate is provided wherever vital services are involved. (For an example see Article IX.) Some members raised questions as to whether this change would mandate a health service plan. After discussion it was decided that this was not the case, that as long as some kind of services are provided the State would fulfill its obligations.

It was moved that the term "health" be defined as follows: "More than an absence of disease, health is a state of mental, social, environmental and physical well-being." Your Committee does not recommend the inclusion of this definition for it imposes an all-inclusive function so that practically no activity would escape coverage under this definition. Thus, if this comprehensive provision is fully implemented, it may result in an inequitable allocation of public funds so that other worthy public programs may have to be reduced. This proposed definition also fails to recognize that the individual is equally responsible for the promotion of his or her total well-being. It was further felt by your Committee that the definition of public health should be included in a statute and not a constitutional amendment.

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends that the new section to Article VIII relating to the preservation of a healthful environment be amended as follows:

"The State shall have the power to promote and maintain a healthful environment, [and to prevent] including the prevention of any excessive demands upon the environment and the State's resources."

The revision as proposed by your Committee is intended to clarify the intent and to eliminate any overlap with Article X. The words "and to prevent any excessive demands upon the environment and the State's resources" seem to grant a separate power under this section which should properly be governed by Article X. This change will now clarify the committee's intent to include such matters as being within the ambit of a healthful environment. The chairman of the Committee on Public Health and Welfare; Labor and Industry further clarified this section by pointing out that his committee did not intend to rule out standing to sue and considered that the Committee on Environment, Agriculture, Conservation and Land would review this matter as it related to their article, receive testimony and then decide.

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends that the new section to Article VIII relating to the management of state population growth be amended as follows:

"The State and its political subdivisions, as provided by general law, shall plan and manage the growth of the population to protect and preserve the public health and welfare, except that each political subdivision, as provided by general law, may plan and manage the growth of its population in a more restrictive manner than the State."

The revision as proposed by your Committee is intended to deal with the concerns of the counties. Uncontrolled growth creates problems at all levels of government. Thus your Committee felt that it would be best to set forth the extent of county power in this area.

The Committee of the Whole relied on the language "as provided by general law" to protect the superior authority of the State in this area. Members argued that the legislature will have to give the counties the power to act in this area. Moreover, the counties will not have to act in this area since the language of the amendment is discretionary. If the counties do not act in this area or do not receive the power to so act, they will be in the same position they are in today.

An amendment was offered to delete the entire section. Your Committee overwhelmingly rejected this amendment because there is such wide popular support for growth control. Some members argued that there may be constitutional problems. However, other members pointed out various potential solutions that could be enacted without constitutional infirmity. Your Committee reasoned that the State was challenged to come up with unique solutions to this problem and that a constitutional amendment will require the State to pursue such answers. Your Committee decided that this problem had reached such proportions that the costs of growth now clearly outweigh the benefits to the detriment of the citizens of the State. Due to the compelling situation, another amendment to give the State discretion in this area rather than mandating action was rejected.

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends that the new section relating to cultural resources be amended as follows:

"The State shall have the power to procure and develop the cultural, creative, and traditional arts, and historical places and objects of its various ethnic groups."

The revision proposed by your Committee is a minor editorial change that seeks to insert the word "creative" which was inadvertently left out of the committee proposal by the standing committee.

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends that the new section relating to the economic security of the elderly be amended as follows:

"The State shall have the power to provide for the [economic] security of the elderly [to assure retirement in health, honor and dignity.] by establishing and promoting programs to assure their economic and social well-being."

Your Committee did not want to discriminate between those elderly who have retired and those who have not. Moreover, there might be ambiguity in the original language as to the precise meaning of "retirement in health, honor and dignity." Your Committee felt that this was a very important amendment because they wished to show the concern of the State for the elderly and the desire and need to do more for them.

Article XII, as presently contained in the State Constitution and retained in Com. P. No. 5, was not amended by your Committee of the Whole. It was argued by some members that: (1) there is an absolute right to the continuity of public services, (2) public employees should be subject to binding arbitration, (3) public employee bargaining negotiations should be open to the public, (4) the legislature or county council should have the responsibility of conducting public employee collective bargaining negotiations.

It was argued that the absolute right to the continuity of public services was justified because Article XII is silent on the matter, many public services are monopolies and the people cannot refuse to pay taxes when they no longer have these vital services. Those opposing this absolute right argued that monopolies of vital services exist even in the private sector and employees in this sector are given collective bargaining rights and the right to strike. To be consistent, it was argued, there should also be an absolute right to the continuity of vital private services, especially when the private sector has a monopoly on the production of a vital public commodity.

It was further argued that it was not necessary to limit the right to strike by public employees at this time, that the legislature can place this limitation if a limitation becomes necessary.

After listening to these arguments, your Committee decided not to place a right to the continuity of public services within the Constitution.

Those expounding binding arbitration for public employees argued that binding arbitration is fair because the arbiter looks at both the employer's ability to pay and the employees' need. It was further argued that public employees can acquire better rights through binding arbitration and many states already provide for binding arbitration.

Those opposed to compulsory binding arbitration argued that it should be left up to the individuals involved to choose this form of dispute settlement. By making arbitration compulsory, final and binding by means of constitutional amendment, one's freedom of choice is severely infringed upon. Since we already have voluntary binding arbitration agreed to by one labor organization, it was argued that other public employee actions, as a result of this voluntary agreement, should be observed before a blanket strike prohibition for public employees is adopted.

After taking these arguments into consideration, your Committee decided not to include, within Article XII, Section 2, a provision providing for compulsory binding arbitration.

Those advocating open public employee collective bargaining negotiations argued this was necessary to prevent corruption, especially when there is an immense amount of public funds involved. It was further argued that openness was needed to ensure the prudent expenditure of public funds.

Those arguing against openness said that the legislature could provide this openness if it was really necessary and that openness is not practical. Sufficient studies have been done which indicate that open negotiations virtually never result in either side making significant concessions necessary to come to an agreement. Instead, the parties at the bargaining table use that place for public posturing in order to look good before the public and their various constituencies.

Those advocating giving the legislature or county councils, rather than the executive, the primary responsibility for conducting collective bargaining negotiations felt this was needed because it is the legislature or county council which has to balance the public employees' interests with the interests of the rest of the community. Your Committee concluded that the legislature or county council does balance the interests involved because it ultimately approves or disapproves the final outcome of the negotiation sessions.

Your Committee of the Whole recommends the adoption of Com. Whole Rep. No. 5 and consideration of the passage of Com. P. No. 5, RD. 1, on second reading.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE REPORT NO. 6

Your Committee of the Whole, to which was referred Com. P. No. 6 from the Committee on Education, having held its meetings on August 23 and 24, 1978, and having fully debated and considered the proposal, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal covered Article IX of the State Constitution. The action taken is set forth as follows:

An amendment to delete the sentence "[n]o member shall serve more than two consecutive terms of four years each" from the proposed Section 2 of Article IX was introduced. As amended, Article IX, Section 2, on the board of education, reads as follows:

"There shall be a board of education composed of members who shall be elected in a nonpartisan manner by qualified voters in accordance with law from two at-large units. The first unit shall be comprised of the island of Oahu and all other islands not specifically enumerated. The second unit shall be comprised of the islands of Hawaii, Maui, Lanai, Molokai, Kahoolawe, Kauai and Niihau. Each at-large unit shall be divided into school districts, as may be provided by law. There shall be at least one member residing in each school district. [No member shall serve more than two consecutive terms of four years each.]

Members elected in the 1978 general election shall serve for two-year terms."

Recommendation: Your Committee adopted the proposed deletion. Your Committee believes that board of education members who have developed expertise concerning public school matters should not be automatically foreclosed from serving more than two consecutive 4-year terms. Public schools may, for example, benefit from the experience of board members who have planned and monitored long-term educational programs. Further, board members who are ineffectual may be voted out of office. This amendment also allows the legislature to determine the length of terms for board members.

Several proposals to create a two-tiered board of education system were introduced. While the proposals differed slightly in their details, they called for the establishment of local boards of education composed of members elected by voters of the respective school districts. Each local board of education was to select from its membership a representative or representatives to serve as members of the state board of education.

Those favoring the two-tiered system claimed that such a system is the best method of assuring that members of the state board of education are accessible and accountable to the desires and needs of the people in their respective districts. Further, it was asserted that the two-tiered system would foster grass-roots participation of the public in the educational system.

After lengthy discussion, your Committee voted against adopting the two-tiered board of education system. There was concern that a two-tiered system would weaken Hawaii's centralized educational system, which has been nationally acclaimed. It was felt that members of a state board of education elected under a two-tiered system would advocate positions favoring their respective school districts rather than adopt policies beneficial to all state students. Further, the majority of your Committee believes that the direct method of electing board of education members suggested by the Committee on Education would result in board members who would be more visible and responsible to the public. Public opinion polls also indicated that the public favors a directly elected board. Your Committee also agrees with the other reasons cited in support of a directly elected board by the Committee on Education in Stand. Com. Rep. No. 39.

The Committee on Education proposed an amendment to Section 3 of Article IX which granted the board of education additional power with respect to rules to implement its policy and exercise control over the public school system.

The following amendment to Section 3 of Article IX, relating to powers of the board of education, was then offered by your Committee of the Whole:

"Section 3. The board of education shall have power, in accordance with law, to formulate policy, and to exercise control over the public school system through its executive officer, the superintendent of education, who shall be appointed by the board, except that the board shall have jurisdiction over the internal organization and management of the public school system, as provided by law, and shall exercise its jurisdiction in a manner consistent with general laws.

"[The board may adopt, amend or repeal rules as provided by law to implement its policy and to exercise control over the public school system. If the adoption, amendment or repeal of a rule promulgated by the board is prescribed by law to be subject to the approval of a designated authority who disapproves, the board may proceed to reconsider the adoption, amendment or repeal of the rule so disapproved. If after such reconsideration, the adoption, amendment or repeal of the rule shall be approved by a two-thirds vote of all members of the board, the same shall be deemed approved by the designated authority.]"

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends adoption of Section 3 as amended. The purpose of this amendment is to give the board of education jurisdiction over the internal organization and management of the public school system to the fullest extent possible. The legislature is to define those matters relating to the internal organization and management of the public school system which will be within the jurisdiction of the board. Your Committee recognizes, however, that the department of education is an executive department subject to the governor's statewide policy-making and executive powers. It is therefore anticipated that the governor and board of education will have concurrent jurisdiction in certain matters affecting the public school system.

In addition, this proposed amendment would not affect the governor's authority over the board of education with respect to policy formulation affecting the public in budget preparation. In the budget-making process, the governor would continue to review the board's requests before its submission to the legislature. Nor would the budget-making powers or process of the legislature be altered.

The requirement that the board "shall exercise its jurisdiction in a manner consistent with general laws" is intended to assure that the board complies with general laws. Examples of such general laws include the civil service and collective bargaining laws.

Although there was some support for retaining the language of Com. P. No. 6 relating to rules, your Committee agreed to delete that provision. It was felt that the legislature should retain the power to determine the methods by which rules and regulations affecting the public school system as well as other governmental entities should be adopted, amended or repealed.

An amendment to establish an independent statewide system of public libraries was suggested. This amendment stemmed from frustration with the present library system, which is administered by the department of education. It was noted that the department of education is so large and overburdened that it cannot adequately attend to the needs of the libraries. Shortened library hours, insufficient funds and inequitable personnel policies were cited as some of the problems of the library system. Proponents of this amendment suggested that the independent library system might be given departmental stature or might be housed in a proposed department of lifelong learning.

Opponents of the amendment agreed that the library system could be operated more efficiently and provide better services to the public. But the majority of your Committee concluded that granting the libraries an independent status might be costly, might add to the state government's bureaucracy and might not remedy the problems. In addition, it was felt that establishing a statewide independent library system was not a constitutional matter. Your Committee therefore rejected this amendment and urges the legislature to provide a solution to this problem. More specifically, it was suggested that the Convention adopt a resolution strongly recommending that the legislature improve the library system.

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends that Section 5 of Article IX, relating to the board of regents, be amended as follows:

"Section 5. There shall be a board of regents of the University of Hawaii, the members of which shall be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the governor. At least part of the membership of the board shall represent geographic subdivisions of the State. The board shall have power, in accordance with law, to formulate policy, and to exercise control over the university through its executive officer, the president of the university, who shall be appointed by the board. [Notwithstanding any law relating to the power to formulate policy and to exercise control over the university, the] The board shall have exclusive jurisdiction over the internal organization and management of the university as provided by law; except that this Section shall not limit the power of the legislature to enact laws of state-wide concern."

The purpose of your Committee's amendment is to clarify, and not change, the substance of the standing committee's proposed Section 5 of Article IX. Your Committee believes that the University of Hawaii is a superior university and that its pursuit of excellence should be encouraged. This proposal is intended to effectuate the university's status as a body corporate and to grant it the necessary flexibility to successfully compete with other institutions of higher learning.

The exclusive jurisdiction over the internal organization and management of the university granted to the board of regents by this proposal is to be self-executing; the phrase "as provided by law" is to guarantee that the legislature shall implement to the extent necessary any of the board's jurisdictional powers to effectuate the grant herein of the exclusive jurisdiction over the internal organization and management of the university. To this end, the legislature shall amend or enact such laws as may be necessary to provide the board of regents with exclusive control of the internal organization and management over the university. This amendment is not, however, intended to affect the role of students, faculty and staff members in the affairs of the university.

Your Committee's amendment also states that Section 5 is "not [to] limit the power of the legislature to enact laws of state-wide concern." This provision is intended to re-affirm that laws of statewide concern are applicable to the university. Such laws include budgetary, civil service and collective bargaining laws.

Your Committee also considered proposals which would (1) provide for an elected superintendent of education, (2) require that members of the board of regents be elected, (3) establish school advisory councils, and (4) provide that the governor appoint the superintendent of education, who would be advised by local and state boards of education and who would have the power to exercise control over the public school system. After much debate these proposals were not adopted.

Your Committee of the Whole recommends the adoption of Com. Whole Rep. No. 6 and consideration of the passage of Com. P. No. 6, RD. 1, on second reading.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE REPORT NO. 7

Your Committee of the Whole, to which was referred Stand. Com. Rep. No. 42 of the Committee on Local Government and Com. P. No. 7, entitled "A Proposal Relating to Local Government," having held a meeting on August 25, 1978, and having fully debated and considered the report and proposal, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal covered amendments to Section 3 of Article VII and added new sections to Articles VII and XVI of the Hawaii Constitution. The action taken is set forth as follows.

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends the following amendment to Section 3 of Article VII, relating to taxation and finance:

"The taxing power shall be reserved to the State except so much thereof as may be delegated by the legislature to the political subdivisions [provided, that the power to levy a tax on]; except that all functions, powers and duties relating to the taxation of real property shall be exercised exclusively by the counties, [except] with the exception of the county of Kalawao. The legislature shall have the power to apportion state revenues among the several political subdivisions."

Your Committee changed this amendment to include the phrase "all functions, powers and duties relating to the taxation of real property" in order to clarify the standing committee's intent to grant all taxing powers relating to real property to the counties, except Kalawao. There was some question under the earlier language as to whether or not the counties would have the power to set exemptions. Although the mover of this amendment explained that the "power to levy" did include the lesser power of setting exemptions, this amendment was adopted as having the better language.

Your Committee of the Whole exempted Kalawao because the members felt that at this point Kalawao had no county government that could inherit these powers but that possibly in the future there would be a governmental organization for Kalawao, at which point it could assume its proper role. It is merely labelled a county today although in reality it does not rise to the level of a county.

Your Committee of the Whole defeated several other amendments to this section on taxation and finance. Your Committee rejected an amendment to grant the counties power to levy a general excise tax. Members reasoned that it would be adding taxes to the same people and would therefore be unfair; moreover, today when people are anti-tax, it could cause the entire proposal to be voted down. Your Committee rejected an amendment to return this section to its original language which rests all taxing powers with the State. Some members argued that this section should not be capriciously tampered with in light of the social policies already set forth by the State through its enactment of exemptions. Other members pointed out that the trend is toward more home rule and that the county governments want to take on more responsibility. That branch of government that is responsible for running certain affairs should have the responsibility and right to collect revenues. It is anticipated that county councils, with their daily contact with constituents, will be more responsive. Members concluded that exemptions for a particular group or groups should not determine who has this power. In any event, there is no guarantee that the State will continue to retain the same exemptions.

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends the following amendment to the new section to Article VII, relating to state and county land use:

"Reclassification of land to urban use shall be subject to approval by ordinance by the county in which the land exists."

Your Committee added the phrase "by ordinance" to clarify the meaning of this section by setting forth the method for its approval. Members stated that the procedures will be dependent on the requirements of the county charters. Members argued that the county councils would be the appropriate body to make these decisions because they are the closest to the people and are democratically elected, rather than appointed.

Your Committee rejected other amendments to this section. Some members moved to delete the entire section, pointing out that this might subrogate state power to the counties, which are supposed to be subordinate powers. Other members stated that it does not take power away from the State but merely allows the people more power in the form of another check over the encroaching urban growth.

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends the following amendment to the new section to Article XVI, relating to the effective date and application of Article VII, Section 3:

"The amendments to Section 3 of Article VII shall take effect on the first [day of January] of July after [three] two full calendar years have elapsed following such ratification. Upon the taking effect of the amendments Article VII as amended shall apply to all county charters irrespective of whether adopted before or after the admission of the State."

Your Committee of the Whole determined that the effective date should begin at the commencement of a fiscal year rather than upon an arbitrary date connected with the date of ratification. Your Committee of the Whole noted that it had the full concurrence of all counties on this new date.

Your Committee of the Whole recommends the adoption of Com. Whole Rep. No. 7 and consideration of the passage of Com. P. No. 7, RD. 1, on second reading.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE REPORT NO. 8

Your Committee of the Whole, to which was referred Com. P. No. 8 from the Committee on Legislature, entitled "A Proposal Relating to the Legislature," having held meetings on August 28 and 29, 1978, and having fully debated and considered the report and proposal, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal covered amendments to Sections 2, 3, 4, 10, 11, 13 and 16 of Article III and Sections 1 and 2 of Article XVI. The action taken is set forth as follows.

Under Com. P. No. 8, Article III, Section 4, relating to reapportionment was removed from Article III and placed within a proposed new article. Section 4 was removed from Article III because the powers of the reapportionment commission were enlarged to include the re-drawing of congressional districts in addition to the reapportionment of the state legislature. Inasmuch as the matter of congressional districting was a subject without the matter of the state legislature under Article III, the removal of the matter of reapportionment of state legislature and congressional districting from Article III to a new article was appropriate.

An amendment to Com. P. No. 8 was offered to amend said new article relating to reapportionment by adding the following:

"PLACEMENT OF HOLDOVER SENATORS

"If a senator is serving a term which will extend past the general election at which an apportionment plan becomes effective, the reapportionment commission shall designate in the plan the senatorial district the senator shall represent for the remaining period of the senator's term. In making such designation the senator need not live in the senatorial district which the senator is designated as representing during the remainder of the term which extends past the general election at which the reapportionment plan becomes effective; provided the reapportionment commission shall consider the following criteria:

1. The senatorial district from which the senator was elected.
2. The senatorial district in which the senator will reside under the reapportionment plan.
3. The requirement of continuing the staggered terms of senators in each district as established by Section 2 of Article XVI, the next paragraph in this article, and the number of senators in a senatorial district under the reapportionment plan of the commission.

"RETENTION OF STAGGERED TERMS FOR THE SENATE

"The senate shall be composed of senators who serve staggered terms of office as follows: senatorial districts with one member, the term of office shall end as provided by the constitution; senatorial districts with two members, each member shall serve a term ending on the date of a different general election; senatorial districts with three members, (A) two members shall serve a term ending on the date of the same general election and (B) one member shall serve a term ending on the date of a general election different than the other two members; senatorial election with four members, (A) two members shall serve a term ending on the date of the same general election and (B) two members shall serve a term ending on the date of a general election different than the other two members.

"If, in the first or second general election in which senators are elected after a reapportionment, the number of senators in a senatorial district whose terms would end on a date of a general election will be more than that set forth in the above paragraph, then at such general election the members of the senate shall be divided into two classes. The members of the first class shall hold office for a term of four years beginning with their election and ending on the day of the second general election held thereafter. The first class shall consist of that number of persons with the highest number of votes necessary to fulfill item (B) in the above paragraph for senatorial districts with three or four members or one person in senatorial districts with two members. The remaining persons shall constitute the second class and shall hold office for a term of two years beginning with their election and ending on the day of the next general election held thereafter." Additionally, a redistricting criterion for the apportionment within basic island units under said proposed new article was also added, to read as follows:

"9. No consideration shall be given to holdover senators in effecting redistricting."

Recommendation: Your Committee adopted the foregoing amendment to Com. P. No. 8. The amendment provides upon reapportionment for (1) the placement of holdover senators, (2) the retention of staggered terms for the senate and (3) the additional criterion that no consideration shall be given to holdover senators in effecting redistricting. If a senator is serving a term which will extend past the general election at which an apportionment plan becomes effective, it may become necessary to provide for the orderly placement of such holdover senators among the newly created districts. The amendment empowers the reapportionment commission to designate in the plan the senatorial district the senator shall represent for the remaining period of the senator's term. In making such designation, the senator need not live in the senatorial district which the senator is designated as representing during the remainder of the term which extends past the general election at which the reapportionment plan becomes effective. To this end, the reapportionment commission is mandated to consider the three criteria set forth above.

Your Committee intends that by the criteria aforesaid the reapportionment commission will, insofar as practicable, not make severe dislocations of a senator from the constituents of the district from which the senator was elected in designating a holdover senator to a district.

A mechanism to retain staggered terms within each senatorial district for the senate must also be provided upon reapportionment, which may reassign senators to different districts such that the senators whose terms would end at the same general election may end up in the same district and upset the stagger within a senatorial district. The amendment would provide this mechanism to reinstate the staggering of terms within each senatorial district.

An example will serve to illustrate the intent of the amendment. Under the staggered system established under the amendment, a 4-member senatorial district should always have 2 members with a term ending on the date of the same general election and 2 members with a term ending on the date of a general election different from the other 2 members. If upon reapportionment the 4 senators representing a 4-member senatorial district consist of 3 senators with terms ending on the date of the first general election after reapportionment and 1 senator with a term ending on the date of the second general election after reapportionment (3-1 situation) then at the first general election after reapportionment the 3 senators will be divided into 2 classes whereby 2 of the 3 senators with the highest votes shall be in the first class with 4-year terms and the remaining third senator shall be in the second class with a 2-year term to coincide with the 1 senator whose term ends on the date of the second general election after reapportionment. The staggered terms within the senatorial district are thus reinstated. If the situation were reversed--that is, if the term of 1 senator ended on the date of the first general election after reapportionment and the terms of 3 senators ended on the date of the second general election after reapportionment (1-3 situation)--then the division of the senators into 2 classes would take place at the second general election after reapportionment to reinstate the staggered terms.

This example uses 3-1, 1-3 situations in a 4-member senatorial district. Other possible situations requiring staggering under the amendment would be 4-0, 0-4 situations in a 4-member district; 3-0, 0-3 situations in a 3-member district; and a 2-0, 0-2 situations in a 2-member district.

The additional criterion that no consideration shall be given to holdover senators in effecting redistricting is injected to mandate the reapportionment commission to redistrict in an objective manner without concern over trying to accommodate a holdover senator.

An amendment was offered to delete in their entirety Sections 3, 4, 5 and 6 of Article XVI, all relating to transitional provisions for the 1968 reapportionment of the state legislature.

Recommendation: Your Committee adopted the amendment proposing to delete these sections. Section 3 has been ruled unconstitutional, and Sections 4, 5 and 6 are no longer applicable.

Amendments were offered relating to the following sections and subjects:

1. Amending Sections 1, 2 and 3 to provide for a unicameral legislature.
2. Amending Section 5 to limit the members of the legislature from serving more than a total of 12 years.
3. Adding a new section to provide for the establishment of a legislative commission to study and report on the various aspects of the legislature.
4. Amending Section 10 to provide for incremental annual salary increases of 4 percent, effective at the general election of 1980.
5. Amending Section 11 to alter the commencement date of the legislative session.
6. Amending Section 13 to preclude the establishment of standing committees in the legislature, which shall operate only as a committee of the whole; and to require a record of all committee decision-making sessions, floor action and public hearings.
7. Amending the redistricting criteria to provide for single-member districts in the house of representatives.

8. Amending Article XVI, Section 2, to provide for staggered terms for the senate, to commence in 1982.

After considerable debate on said amendments, all of these amendments were rejected by your Committee.

Your Committee of the Whole recommends the adoption of Com. Whole Rep. No. 8 and consideration of the passage of Com. P. No. 8, RD. 1, on second reading.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE REPORT NO. 9

Your Committee of the Whole, to which was referred Com. P. No. 9 of the Committee on Executive, entitled "A Proposal Relating to Executive and Administrative Offices and Departments," having met on August 30, 1978, and having fully debated and considered the committee proposal, begs leave to report as follows:

Stand. Com. Rep. No. 51 covered amendments to Sections 1, 2, 3 and 6 of Article IV. Your Committee agrees with the recommendations of the Committee on Executive that Section 6 be adopted as proposed and, having passed Com. P. No. 9 on second reading, recommends the adoption of Com. Whole Rep. No. 9.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE REPORT NO. 10

Your Committee of the Whole, to which was referred Com. P. No. 10 of the Committee on Judiciary, entitled "A Proposal Relating to the Judiciary," having met on August 30 and 31, 1978, and having fully and freely debated and considered the committee proposal, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal covered amendments to Sections 1, 2, 3 and 4, as well as additions of two new sections, to Article V of the Hawaii Constitution. No amendments were proposed for Sections 5 and 6 of Article V. Considerable debate was held on this proposal and several amendments were submitted. The action taken is set forth as follows.

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends that Section 1, relating to judiciary power, be adopted as proposed. The proposed Section 1 provides that the judicial power of the State shall be vested in one supreme court, circuit courts, district courts and a new intermediate appellate court. All of these courts are to establish time limits through their rule-making power for timely disposition of the cases before them.

Your Committee also recommends that Section 2 as proposed be adopted. This provides that judges from the newly created intermediate appellate court and circuit courts may be assigned by the chief justice for service on the supreme court as they are needed. Judges on the circuit and district courts may also be called upon to serve on higher courts if necessary.

Two of the amendments submitted to the committee called for the elimination of the proposed intermediate appellate court. In addition, one of the two amendments called for the expansion of the existing supreme court from five to seven members, and the power to sit in panels, or en banc, to hear its cases. After considerable debate, these amendments were rejected by your Committee.

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends that Section 3, paragraph 1, relating to the appointment of justices and judges; Section 3, paragraph 2, relating to qualification for appointment and Section 3, paragraph 3, relating to tenure, compensation and retirement, be adopted as proposed.

The proposed Section 3, paragraph 1, provides that candidates for all state court vacancies must apply to a judicial selection commission. This commission would screen the applicants and submit a list of not less than six of the most qualified candidates. The governor, or in the case of district court appointments the chief justice, is to pick a name from this list for appointment to the bench. Although all gubernatorial appointments are subject to senate confirmation, the district court appointments are not.

Numerous amendments to Section 3 were offered but failed to pass. Two of the amendments submitted called for the election of justices and judges, either in the initial phase of selection or upon retention. There were other amendments proposed which sought to eliminate senate confirmation from the proposed judicial selection plan and to reduce the number of nominees submitted to the appointing authority from six to three. These, however, were also rejected.

The proposed Section 3, paragraph 2, provides for the qualifications of all justices and judges in this State. Your Committee recommends that the language in Section 3, paragraph 2 as proposed be adopted. The proposed Section 3, paragraph 3 provides for the tenure, compensation and retirement of justices and judges. It retains 10-year terms of tenure for supreme court, intermediate appellate court and circuit court judges. District court terms are to be set by the legislature. In the event any of the justices or judges wish to remain in office, they must reapply to the commission for retention. The levels of justices' and judges' salaries are to be recommended by a salary commission as provided for by the legislature.

Recommendation: It is the recommendation of your Committee that Section 4, relating to retirement, removal and discipline, be adopted as proposed.

Section 4 as proposed gives the supreme court specific and broad powers to discipline any justice or judge. A judicial discipline commission is also created for the purpose of investigating and conducting hearings and making recommendations as to disciplinary measures to the supreme court. This procedure as contemplated would broaden the matters to be reviewed by the commission to include matters that would not warrant removal and yet simplify the present procedure. As authorized by statute, the present procedure utilizes a judicial qualifications commission which investigates complaints of judicial disability and misconduct and a board of judicial removal which reviews the results of investigations and makes the recommendations as to removal by the governor. The new procedure provides for a simpler process in that the new commission both investigates and makes recommendations directly to the supreme court.

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends the following amendments to the new section relating to the judicial selection commission:

1. Amend the first paragraph to read:

"There shall be a judicial selection commission that shall consist of nine members. The governor shall appoint three members to the commission, the initial appointments to be for terms of two, four and six years respectively. The president of the senate and the speaker of the house of representatives shall each respectively [elect] appoint one member to the commission, the initial appointments to be for a term of two years respectively. The chief justice of the supreme court shall [elect] appoint two members to the commission, the initial appointment to be for terms of four and six years respectively. Members in good standing of the bar of the state shall elect two of their number to the commission in an election conducted by the supreme court or its delegate, the initial election to be for terms of four and six years respectively."

The revision as proposed by your Committee would give the speaker of the state house of representatives, the president of the state senate and the chief justice of the state supreme court the responsibility of appointing their designated number of commission members to the judicial selection commission. It was felt that requiring the senate and house to act in their respective groups would be too cumbersome and create unneeded administrative delays. Although the responsibility to choose a commission member now lies in the hands of one individual within each group, it is intended that the leaders of the respective groups be responsive to the desires and feelings of each group as a whole and act accordingly.

2. Amend the second paragraph to read:

"The commission shall be selected and shall operate in a wholly nonpartisan manner. After the initial formation of the commission, elections and appointments to the commission shall be for staggered terms of six years each. No member of the commission shall serve for more than one full six year term on the commission. [The legislature shall by statute provide for the time and manner of appointments and elections to conform with this section.]"

The revision as proposed by your Committee deletes the last sentence in the paragraph. It was agreed that in light of the adoption of the amendment allowing the speaker of the house, president of the senate and the chief justice of the supreme court to choose their respective representatives on the commission, language referring to the holding of elections by such bodies was superfluous and should be eliminated.

3. Amend the fifth paragraph to read:

"Any attorney member of the commission or [his employer or] that member's law firm representing any party before any nominee for justice or judge, shall disqualify himself in any judicial proceeding before the nominee for the period the nominee is being considered. Any non-attorney member of the commission who is a party or if his employer or firm is a party in any judicial proceeding before any nominee for justice or judge shall disqualify himself from voting."

The amendment as passed by your Committee does two things. First, it improves stylistically the language concerning the disqualification of any lawyer member of the commission from appearing in court before any judge who is being considered for retention by the commission. Second, this amendment adds a sentence to cover conflicts of interest that may arise for non-attorney members of the commission. Your Committee recognizes that this new language does not cover every potential conflict that could arise but intends that the legislature more fully address the problem. Your Committee also recognizes that there are canons of professional ethics that affect all lawyers and which address problems of conflicts. However, your Committee feels that these minimum specific guidelines are necessary in the Constitution.

The chairman of the standing committee clarified the effect of this provision as to the situation in which a commission member may be an employee of the federal, state or county government which was involved in a lawsuit before the judicial nominee being considered by the commission. This provision was intended to be stringent, even to the extent that in the situation described the disqualification provisions would apply to that member.

4. Amend the seventh paragraph to read:

"No member of the judicial commission shall receive any compensation for commission services, but shall be allowed necessary expenses for travel, board and lodging incurred in the performance of commission duties. The legislature shall provide for [operation,] the staff and [other] operating expenses [incidental to the performance of commission duties.] of the commission in a separate budget. The Judicial Selection Commission shall be attached to the Judiciary Branch of the State government for purposes of administration."

The amendment proposed specifically states that other than certain types of expenses and staff costs the members of the commission shall not be paid. It also states that for purposes of administration only, the judicial selection commission is to be placed under the jurisdiction of the judiciary branch.

Your Committee decided that it was necessary to clarify proposed language regarding the nonpayment of compensation to commission members. In conjunction with this language, the chairman of the judiciary committee expressed his belief that the chairman of the commission would be required to appear before the appropriate legislative committees to report on commission expenses and funding needs.

The additional language regarding the placement of the commission within the judiciary branch of state government solely for the purposes of administration was also needed for purposes of clarification.

There were several amendments to the proposed language in this section which were either withdrawn or failed to obtain the necessary votes for passage. One of the amendments proposed related to the confidentiality of the actions of the judicial selection commission. After considerable debate this amendment was withdrawn, with the understanding that the judicial selection commission would have power by way of its own rules to determine its boundaries and limits on the confidentiality of its actions.

There were several other amendments introduced concerning the makeup of the commission and the qualifications of the commission members themselves, which did not pass.

Your Committee recommends that this new section relating to the judicial selection commission be adopted as amended.

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends the following amendments to the new section relating to the transition and effective date of the amendments:

"The current terms of justices and judges in office shall terminate as heretofore provided by law, subject to earlier termination and removal as provided in this article. The amendments to Article V shall take effect upon ratification. The Judicial Selection Commission shall be created no later than April 1, 1979."

The amendment proposed adds a sentence to indicate the last date the judicial selection commission is to be created. This provision is intended to ascertain a date certain by which time the legislature must act to carry out the provisions contained in the constitutional amendment. During the discussion on this subject, the chairman of the judiciary committee indicated that any gubernatorial appointment of justices or judges made after the proposal on the judicial selection commission was ratified by the public would be considered an interim appointment only. In such instances vacancies in judicial offices must be filled through the judicial selection process.

Your Committee recommends that this new section relating to transition and effective date be adopted as amended.

Accordingly, your Committee of the Whole recommends the adoption of Com. Whole Rep. No. 10, and consideration of the passage of Com. P. No. 10, RD. 1, on second reading.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE REPORT NO. 11

Your Committee of the Whole, to which was referred Stand. Com. Rep. No. 56 of the Committee on Hawaiian Affairs and Com. P. No. 11, entitled "A Proposal Relating to Hawaiian Affairs," having held a meeting on September 2, 1978, and having fully debated and considered the report and proposal, begs leave to report as follows:

This proposal covered amendments to Section 1 of Article XI and the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended. The action is set forth as follows.

No amendments were offered and no amendments were made.

Your Committee recognized that the intent and purpose of Com. P. No. 11 is to provide the means to locate more Hawaiians on the lands specified for them through the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended. Your Committee learned that the department of Hawaiian home lands must finance its own program through the general leasing of its lands and that it is the only one of 17 state departments which must fund itself. Therefore the land of any value through the years has been general leased for revenue purposes which are used by the department for its operating budget.

Members argued that, in its eagerness for statehood, the territory made promises regarding Hawaiians and the Act that it would soon forget. Members concluded that consequently it has taken all too long to even arrive at Com. P. No. 11.

There were no nay votes heard to this committee proposal. Your Committee of the Whole recommends adoption of Com. Whole Rep. No. 11 and consideration of the passage of Com. P. No. 11 on second reading.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE REPORT NO. 12

Your Committee of the Whole, to which was referred Stand. Com. Rep. No. 57 of the Committee on Hawaiian Affairs and Com. P. No. 12, having held a meeting on September 2, 1978, and having fully debated and considered the report and proposal, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal covered amendments in the form of new sections to Articles IX, XIII, XIV and I of the State Constitution. The action taken is set forth as follows.

Your Committee made no amendments to Com. P. No. 12. Your Committee did discuss the new sections proposed.

Your Committee decided to adopt the amendments relating to the Hawaiian education program. Your Committee found that there has been a strengthening of emphasis on the diversity of cultures in American society and a lessening of the emphasis on assimilation, or the "melting-pot" model, in America. Your Committee felt that the study of the Hawaiian language, culture and history was important to the diversity of cultures in the State of Hawaii. Moreover, this is the only place where Hawaiian studies is likely to occur since the State of Hawaii is the 'aina for Hawaiians; there is no other place. Other ethnic groups in Hawaii can return to their originating country, such as Japan, Korea, China, Portugal, England, the mainland, etc. to study. Finally, members of your Committee felt that it was imperative to begin such study today because we are losing the men and women who have significant information--the kupuna, who are dying.

Your Committee decided to adopt the amendment making Hawaiian and English the official languages of the State, in order to give full recognition and honor to the rich cultural heritage that Hawaiians have given to all ethnic groups of this State. Your Committee wanted to overcome certain insults of the past where the speaking of Hawaiian was forbidden in the public school system, and of today where Hawaiian is listed as a foreign language in the language department at the University of Hawaii.

Your Committee decided to adopt the amendment relating to traditional and customary rights. Your Committee found that this amendment does not attempt to grant unregulated, abusive and general rights to native Hawaiians; but rather it allows tenants of an ahupua'a, and not all native Hawaiians, access rights to the mountain and sea, as was traditionally and customarily asserted by their ancestors. This is very important since the large land-owners, who basically are 10 to 12 corporations and estates and who own almost 90 percent of all private lands, have intruded upon, interfered with and refused to recognize such rights. Sustenance, religious and cultural practices of native Hawaiians are an integral part of their culture, tradition and heritage, with such practices forming the basis of Hawaiian identity and value systems.

Although the enforcement problems require careful consideration of regulation changes in this area, it is possible, with work, to both protect the rights of private land-owners and allow for the preservation of an aboriginal people.

Delegates felt that this amendment would be an important and indispensable tool in preserving the small remaining vestiges of a quickly disappearing culture and in perpetuating a heritage that is unique and an integral part of our State. The members concluded that Hawaiian children need not be told to visit the Bishop Museum or see a tourist show if they want to learn about their Hawaiian culture, values and identity.

Amendments were offered to section 5 of Com. P. No. 12 relating to quieting title. Your Committee decided to follow the unanimous recommendation of the Committee on Hawaiian Affairs regarding this section.

One amendment offered read as follows:

"LAND TITLE ACTIONS

"Section . The State of Hawaii shall pay for all the expenses, including attorneys' fees, in securing land court titles to all estates or interests in real property when title to these lands is in dispute."

Members of your Committee argued that it would be too expensive for the State to cover the costs of all disputed land titles. An amendment was made to this amendment to add the words "for those people who can not afford to pay." Your Committee still concluded that it would be too expensive for the State. Moreover, some members pointed out that the attorneys' fees often force people to settle suits that otherwise might drag on for years. Both amendments were defeated.

Another amendment was offered to delete section 5 of Com. P. No. 12, relating to quieting title. This amendment was likewise defeated. Members argued that adverse possession was a legal means of thievery and that it had long been used by land barons against the small landowner, particularly the Hawaiians. There are 27 applications for seizing land through adverse possession before the courts today. Members offered examples where even today people often obtain only color of title and then settle their claim through adverse possession. Thus adverse possession is not a thing of the past. The committee concluded that it leaves Hawaii's people vulnerable. Although adverse possession is a concept that may have had validity on the mainland, where there are large tracts of undeveloped and unused land, we do not have that problem here in Hawaii. Your Committee defeated the amendment.

Your Committee of the Whole recommends the adoption of Com. Whole Rep. No. 12 and consideration of the passage of Com. P. No. 12 on second reading.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE REPORT NO. 13

Your Committee of the Whole, to which was referred Stand. Com. Rep. No. 59 of the Committee on Hawaiian Affairs and Com. P. No. 13, entitled "A Proposal Relating to Hawaiian Affairs," having held a meeting on September 2, 1978 and having fully debated and considered the report and proposal, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal covered a new title and four new sections to Article XI, which were considered together with a new section to Article XVI and amendments to Section 5 of Article X and Section 8 of Article XIV. Only one amendment was offered to Com. P. No. 13. The action taken is set forth as follows.

An amendment to the new Sections 4, 5, 6 and 7 of Article XI, reading as follows, was offered:

"PUBLIC TRUST

"Section 4. The lands granted to the State of Hawaii by Section 5(b) of the Admission Act and pursuant to Article XIV, Section 8 of the State Constitution, excluding therefrom lands defined as 'available lands' by Section 203 of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended, shall be held by the State as a public trust for [those] native Hawaiians [, as defined in the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended or may be amended,] and the general public."

"OFFICE OF HAWAIIAN AFFAIRS; ESTABLISHMENT OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES

"Section 5. There is hereby established an Office of Hawaiian Affairs. The Office of Hawaiian Affairs shall hold title to all the real and personal property now or hereafter set aside or conveyed to it which shall be held in trust for native Hawaiians and Hawaiians. There shall be a board of trustees for the Office of Hawaiian Affairs elected by qualified voters who are [native] Hawaiians, in accordance with law. The board members shall be [native] Hawaiians. There shall be not less than 9 members of the board of trustees; provided that each of the following Islands have one representative: Oahu, Kauai, Maui, Molokai and Hawaii. The Board shall select a chairman from its members."

"POWERS OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES

"Section 6. The board shall exercise power in accordance with law, to manage and administer the proceeds from the sale or other disposition of the lands, natural resources, minerals, and income derived from whatever sources for native Hawaiians and Hawaiians, including all income and proceeds from that pro rata portion of the trust referred to in Section 4 for [those] native Hawaiians [as defined in the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended or may be amended]; formulate policy relating to affairs of native Hawaiians and Hawaiians, and exercise control over real and personal property set aside by state, federal, or private sources and transferred to said Board for [Native] native Hawaiians and Hawaiians. The board shall have the power to exercise control over the Office of Hawaiian Affairs through its executive officer, the administrator of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs, who shall be appointed by the board."

"DEFINITION: HAWAIIAN; NATIVE HAWAIIAN

"Section 7. The term [Native] "Hawaiian" means any [individual any of whose ancestors were natives of the area which consisted of the Hawaiian Islands prior to 1778.] descendant of the races inhabiting the Hawaiian Islands, previous to 1778.

"[Native Hawaiians of one-half blood] The term "native Hawaiian" means any [individual] descendant of not less than one-half part of the blood of races inhabiting the Hawaiian Islands previous to 1778[.] as defined by the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended or may be amended."

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends adoption of this amendment. There was no objection to this amendment.

This amendment is considered housekeeping in nature. It clarifies the definitions in the amended Section 7 of Article XI. The amendment will assist the delegates and all readers in readily understanding this section. The term "Hawaiian" includes all Hawaiians. The group of Hawaiians traditionally referred to as "native Hawaiians" continues to follow the definition of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended. It is important to qualify that definition by including the phrase "or may be amended" so as to allow the Constitution to reflect any changes that could possibly occur in this Act.

The new Sections 4, 5 and 6 to Article XI have been conformed to this improved definitional section. There has been no change in content.

No other amendments were offered to Com. P. No. 13. However, your Committee did consider the merits of this proposal.

Members were impressed by the concept of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs which establishes a public trust entity for the benefit of the people of Hawaiian ancestry. Members foresaw that it will provide Hawaiians the right to determine the priorities which will effectuate the betterment of their condition and welfare and promote the protection and preservation of the Hawaiian race, and that it will unite Hawaiians as a people.

The present Hawaiian population is a young one. Approximately 50 percent of the total Hawaiian population is under the age of 70. The Hawaiian people today should be given the opportunity to provide for the betterment of the condition and well-being of these young Hawaiians and to address the contemporary problems that Hawaiians face--crime, inadequate housing conditions, welfare rolls and education. This proposal gives Hawaiians, a great and proud people, the opportunity and the means to do so. Your Committee feels that it is time the Hawaiians have more impact on their future.

Your Committee found that the Office of Hawaiian Affairs is appropriately modelled after that of the University of Hawaii so as to give it maximum independence. The most important aspect of this model is the power to govern itself. The public trust entity provides a democratic process for the beneficiaries in order to insure accountability and opportunity for scrutiny of the trustees by the beneficiaries. It is an umbrella organization that is designed to embrace native Hawaiians and Hawaiians, the management of their assets and resources, the receipt of any future benefits, and possibly the administration of the department of Hawaiian home lands.

Your Committee of the Whole agreed with the reasoning of the Committee on Hawaiian Affairs regarding the election of the board of trustees. Your Committee felt that the legislature could best handle the further details necessary for the apportionment scheme. Proof of ancestry could also be determined by the legislature, although members did suggest several methods: birth certificates, genealogies, sworn statements and testimony of others. Your Committee concluded the elections would be constitutional, for the beneficiaries should rightfully have control and influence over their assets and future.

Moreover, it appears that the Committee on Hawaiian Affairs closely examined this issue. If one looks to the precedent of other native peoples, one finds that they have traditionally enjoyed self-determination and self-government. They have power to make their own substantive rules in internal matters. Although no longer possessed of the full attributes of sovereignty, they remain a separate people with the power of regulation over their internal and social problems. The establishment of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs is intended to grant similar rights to Hawaiians. The qualification for office and for exercising the franchise does not constitute discrimination. Rather it is a criterion reasonably designed to further the cause of Hawaiian self-government and to make the Office of Hawaiian Affairs more responsive to the needs of its constituents. It is directed to participation by the governed in the governing agency. This qualification does not cover any other government agency or activity. In conclusion, these provisions are constitutional due to the unique legal status of Hawaiians. (See Santa Clara Pueblo, et al. v. Julia Martinez, et al., 46 L.W. 4412 (5/16/78); Morton v. Mancari, 417 U.S. 535 (1974).)

Your Committee of the Whole recommends the adoption of Com. Whole Rep. No. 13 and consideration of the passage of Com. P. No. 13, RD. 1, on second reading.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE REPORT NO. 14

Your Committee of the Whole, to which was referred Com. P. No. 14 from the Committee on Taxation and Finance, having held its meetings on September 6 and 7, 1978, and having fully debated and considered the proposal, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal covered Article VI of the State Constitution. The action taken is set forth as follows.

A. The State Debt Limit.

There were two amendments introduced which purported to strengthen the state debt limit provisions included in Com. P. No. 14. The first measure would have limited the total sum of authorized general obligation bonds to no more than 140 percent of the total amount of outstanding general obligation bonds includable within the debt ceiling. It was argued that such a measure was necessary to prevent the continued accumulation of appropriated but unissued bonds. However, your Committee agreed that a ceiling on authorized bonds was unnecessary because of the proposed lapsing provision. In addition, it was felt that the more restrictive debt ceiling would act as an indirect but effective deterrent to the authorization of an excessive amount of bonds. Finally, your Committee recognized that under the new proposed debt ceiling the emphasis on state debt is being shifted from the total amount of bonds authorized to the total amount of bonds issued. Consequently, your Committee did not feel compelled to place a specific constitutional limitation on the authorization of bonds.

The second proposal would have prevented the issuance of general obligation bonds unless such issuance was authorized by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house of the legislature is entitled. Proponents of the proposal claimed that incurring debt is an extraordinary matter which should require an extraordinary majority for approval. However, your Committee believed that less debt would be incurred if a simple majority were required for passage of general obligation bonds. Further, your Committee agreed that the requirement of a majority vote would adequately safeguard the State's financial interests.

B. Exclusions from the Debt Limit of the State and the Political Subdivisions.

An amendment to the new Section 3(h) of Article VI, reading as follows, was offered:

"(h) Bonds constituting instruments of indebtedness under which the State or any political subdivision incurs a contingent liability as a guarantor, but only to the extent the principal amount of such bonds does not exceed six percent of the principal amount of all outstanding general obligation bonds not otherwise excluded under this section; provided that the State or political subdivision shall establish and maintain a reserve in an amount in reasonable proportion to the outstanding loans guaranteed by the State or political subdivision as provided by law."

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends the adoption of this amendment. The new Section 3(h) exempts from the debt limit bonds used to guarantee loans, with "bonds" being defined in Section 3 as including instruments of indebtedness. Section 3(h) relates to contingent liabilities where the State or counties guarantee certain instruments of indebtedness involving special loan programs authorized by the legislature or the counties. Examples of these special loan programs include Hawaii Housing Authority projects, Hawaiian homes commission housing projects, aquaculture ventures and farm loans. Your Committee finds that these instruments of indebtedness represent a contingent liability which would only be used in case of default of the activity for which they were guaranteed. This amendment imposes a ceiling on the amount of these loans or instruments of indebtedness which may be excluded from the State's debt limit or any county's funded debt. Any Section 3(h) instruments of indebtedness in excess of six percent of the principal amount of the general obligation bonds not otherwise excluded under Section 3 will be counted against the debt limit of the State or the particular county. This amendment does not, however, limit the dollar amount of instruments of indebtedness which may be authorized by the State or any county for such projects. Rather, it merely states that if these authorized instruments of indebtedness exceed six percent of the outstanding general obligation bonds outstanding, such excess amount shall count against the debt service ceiling referred to earlier.

Your Committee agreed that this amendment provided another safeguard against the excessive incurrence of debt by the State or the counties. In contrast to revenue bonds and special purpose revenue bonds, which are issued on behalf of self-supporting entities, the bonds specified in Section 3(h) are issued for those activities or programs which have difficulty obtaining financing through normal financing methods. The State or a county therefore guarantees the loans provided for such activities or programs by financial institutions. Because of the contingent liability of the State and the counties, your Committee agreed that it was advisable to set a limit on the amount of such bonds which may be excluded from the debt limit. More particularly, your Committee was concerned that without such a ceiling, a method would be provided which would allow the State to circumvent the more restrictive debt ceiling suggested by your Committee. This amendment is also consistent with the new spending limit and lapsing provisions proposed for the State.

In addition, your Committee considered an amendment to the new Section 3(h) which would have required the State and each county to retain a reserve of at least 10 percent of the outstanding loans guaranteed. However, it was agreed that the provision of Com. P. No. 14 which requires that a reasonable reserve be established by the State and each county was a sufficient safeguard. It was noted that different ventures entail different risks; a rigid 10-percent-reserve requirement should not be imposed when a greater or smaller reserve might be appropriate for a particular venture. Rather, your Committee preferred to give the State and each county the flexibility to determine the reserve which would adequately protect their interests.

C. Special Purpose Revenue Bonds.

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends that this amendment be adopted. It requires the following:

1. That each authorization or enabling legislation for (1) manufacturing, processing or industrial enterprises, (2) utilities serving the general public, (3) health care facilities provided to the general public by not-for-profit corporations, and (4) low and moderate income housing programs be provided by separate general law, with a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house is entitled.

2. That each project for each such enterprise, utility, not-for-profit corporation and government housing program be provided by separate general law with a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house is entitled. Your Committee finds that the term "project" was not defined but was intended to be similar to the term "program," which is defined by statute as a combination of resources and activities designed to achieve an objective or objectives, and such a definition would serve well in implementing this amendment. Examples of such projects or programs include a single facility requiring improvement, anti-pollution facilities, a low and moderate income housing program consisting of various sites in the State, a housing loan program, a development of geothermal resources, or a capital improvement program over a period of years. Further, the authorization of bonds to provide projects or programs must be in a separate general law for each type of activity, enterprise, utility, not-for-profit corporation and housing program.

3. That such bonds are deemed in the public interest by the legislature.

The intent of this amendment is to tighten the controls with respect to the issuance of special purpose revenue bonds. While your Committee agreed that the four designated entities and their various types of projects or programs should be allowed to utilize special purpose revenue bonds, there was concern that such bonds be authorized only after careful scrutiny. The two-thirds vote requirement, for example, insures that there exists widespread agreement in the legislature that a particular approval is well-advised and that it is considered by itself on its own merits. Likewise, the requirement that each authorization or enabling legislation and also each type of project or program be included in a separate bill is designed to maximize public and legislative awareness in this area.

Your Committee also considered proposals (1) which would have deleted all of the provisions in Section 3 of Com. P. No. 14 relating to special purpose revenue bonds, or (2) which would have rendered manufacturing, processing or industrial enterprises ineligible for special purpose revenue bonds. There were several delegates who believed that government should not lend private businesses its name, particularly manufacturing enterprises, in order that such businesses can obtain funds in the bond market at a lower rate of interest. Your Committee, however, decided that special purpose revenue bonds should be available for the four enterprises and programs, or entities, specified in Com. P. No. 14. The requirement that the legislature find the issuance of such bonds to be in the public interest, the prohibition against the use of public funds to pay the principal and interest on any special purpose revenue bonds and the two-thirds authorization requirement discussed earlier in this report were considered sufficient safeguards against the issuance of bonds for questionable programs or entities.

D. Lapsing.

The following amendment to the lapsing provisions of Com. P. No. 14 was suggested:

Com. P. No. 14 is amended by amending section 5, paragraphs 3 and 4, to read:

"All appropriations for which the source is general obligation bond funds or general funds shall be for specified periods, and no such appropriation shall be made for a period exceeding [two] three years. Any such appropriation or any portion of any such appropriation which is unencumbered at the close of the fiscal period for which the appropriation is made shall lapse; provided that no appropriation for which the source is general obligation bond funds nor any portion of any such appropriation shall lapse if the legislature determines such appropriation or any portion of such appropriation is necessary to qualify for federal aid financing and reimbursement. Where general obligation bonds have been authorized for an appropriation, the amount of the bond authorization shall be reduced in an amount equal to the amount lapsed.

"Any appropriation for which the source is general obligation bond funds or general funds or any portion of any such appropriation which is effective on the date of ratification of this amendment and which is unencumbered on June 30, 1980 shall lapse on that date unless earlier lapsed by law; provided that no appropriation for which the source is general obligation bond funds nor any portion of any such appropriation shall lapse if the legislature determines such appropriation or any portion of such appropriation is necessary to qualify for federal aid financing and reimbursement. Where general obligation bonds have been authorized for an appropriation, the amount of the bond authorization shall be reduced in an amount equal to the amount lapsed on June 30, 1980."

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends the adoption of this amendment, which extends the lapsing period applicable to appropriations financed by general obligation bond funds or general funds from 2 years to 3 years. It does not, however, preclude the legislature from setting a shorter lapsing period for a particular appropriation. This amendment is not an attempt to weaken the lapsing provision but rather is a recognition of the practical difficulties encountered in complying with various governmental regulations and coordinating the efforts of numerous governmental agencies. It was feared that a 2-year lapsing period would result in the curtailment of funds for some worthwhile projects, particularly complex capital improvement projects. Your Committee agreed that the 3-year period would provide more flexibility in the implementation of projects and programs.

This amendment also provides that an appropriation for which the source is general obligation bond funds shall not lapse if the legislature determines that such appropriation is necessary to qualify for federal aid financing and reimbursement. This requirement is applicable both to appropriations which must be examined during the transitional period of the lapsing provision ending on June 30, 1980, and thereafter. The intent of this amendment is to require the legislature to positively determine that a particular federal aid project or program is deserving of not being lapsed. Your Committee wishes to emphasize that such a determination should not be made before the regular session of the legislature preceding the date of lapsing.

E. The State Spending Limit.

Your Committee's debates on the section of Com. P. No. 14 pertaining to the state spending limit focused on whether a specific index of state spending should be specified. Some members of your Committee asserted that the State's spending limit should be synchronized with the growth of the State's total personal income, pursuant to a standard developed and reported by the U.S. Department of Commerce, Bureau of Labor Statistics. An amendment which would have used the State's total personal income as the state spending standard, until provided otherwise by the legislature, was offered. Other members of your Committee felt strongly, however, that neither personal income nor any economic measure should limit government spending and that spending limits should be a matter for the legislature to decide.

However, a majority of your Committee voted to allow the State to develop or select a standard which could be tailored to Hawaii's needs. While total personal income may be the best indicator of economic growth today, it was noted that some of the advantages of that index are lost because of the considerable delay in the publication of its results. More importantly, your Committee believed that it would be unwise to tie Hawaii to a particular standard. Rather, the State should have the option of selecting a standard now and changing it at a later time, if that is advisable.

F. Disposition of Excess Revenues.

The following new section was proposed:

"DISPOSITION OF EXCESS REVENUES

"Section . Whenever the state general fund balance at the close of each of two successive fiscal years exceeds five percent of general fund revenues for each of the two fiscal years, the legislature in the next regular session shall provide for a tax refund or tax credit to the taxpayers of the State, as provided by law."

Recommendation: Your Committee recommends the adoption of this amendment. This amendment provides for a tax refund or tax credit to the State's taxpayers when the State's general fund balance in each of 2 successive fiscal years exceeds 5 percent of general fund revenues for each of the 2 years. Your Committee believes that it is proper for the State's taxpayers to benefit from any surplus in the State's general fund balance. On the other hand, this amendment is designed to assure that such refund is not triggered by short-term surpluses. Instead, it requires that the State enjoy a substantial surplus in each of two successive years. Three other favorable features of the amendment were noted: (1) it does not specify the amount of surplus to be refunded to the taxpayers but leaves that decision to the discretion of the legislature, (2) it permits the legislature to determine the most efficient and economical form of such rebate, whether by tax refund or tax credit, and (3) it complements the state spending limit proposed by your Committee.

Your Committee also approved the deletion of Article XVI, Section 8, which reads as follows:

"[START OF BIENNIAL BUDGETING AND APPROPRIATIONS

"Section 8. Anything in this constitution to the contrary notwithstanding, the provisions relating to biennial budgeting and appropriations in Article VI shall take effect for the biennial period beginning July 1, 1971.]"

Section 8 of Article XVI was a transitional provision designed to facilitate the introduction of the biennial budgetary system. That section is no longer necessary since the State has converted to such a system.

Amendments (1) to strengthen the balanced budget provision of Com. P. No. 14 by preventing any deficit spending by the State, even for emergencies, (2) to constitutionally guarantee grants-in-aid to the counties, (3) to set the counties' debt limits at 10 percent of the total of the assessed values for tax rate purposes of real property in each county, (4) to abolish taxes on food purchased for domestic preparation and consumption or prescription drugs and (5) to require the State to pay the costs of any transfer of mandated programs to the political subdivisions were also discussed and defeated.

Accordingly, your Committee of the Whole recommends the adoption of Com. Whole Rep. No. 14 and consideration of the passage of Com. P. No. 14, RD. 1, on second reading.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE REPORT NO. 15

Your Committee of the Whole, to which was referred Com. P. No. 15 from the Committee on Bill of Rights, Suffrage and Elections, having held its meetings on September 8 and 9, 1978, and having fully debated and considered the proposal, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal covered Article I of the State Constitution. The action taken is set forth as follows.

An amendment to Article I, Section 11, entitled "Rights of Accused," reading as follows, was offered:

"In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right of a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, or of such other district to which the prosecution may be removed with the consent of the accused; to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor; and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense. Juries, where the crime charged is serious, shall consist of twelve persons. The State shall provide counsel for an indigent defendant charged with an offense punishable by imprisonment."

Your Committee recommends the adoption of this amendment because a 12-person jury is essential for a fair trial. Your Committee recognizes that the right to a fair and impartial jury trial is an integral part of a just determination of a criminal case. Traditionally the number of members of a jury has been 12 persons, but the U.S. supreme court has ruled that states are free to have juries composed of less than 12 members (William v. Florida, 399 U.S. 78, 90 S. Ct. 1893, 26 L. Ed. 2d 446 (1970).)

Your Committee is concerned about the possibility of any reduction in the size of the jury because it would have a detrimental effect on the fairness of the jury system. Studies have demonstrated that a decrease in the membership of a jury tends to lessen the reliability of their verdict. A jury decision reflects the considered, independent opinion reached within the framework of a group discussion. There is evidence to indicate that the effective quality of group discussion is diminished when the size of the group is decreased. Jurors are not free to take notes during the trial and must rely on their collective memories. Given the unreliability and frailty of the human mind, a larger group stands a better chance of remembering many of the nuances that are presented through testimony. During the course of discussion, one mind may be jogged to remember an important fact that others have forgotten, and obviously a 12-person group is more conducive to this occurrence.

A smaller group also makes it easier for one person to dominate the group discussion which is inimical to the concept of a verdict reflective of the independent opinion of all members of the body.

Perhaps more importantly, a 12-person jury better fulfills the goal of interposing between the accused and the government the common sense of the community in determining guilt or innocence. Community participation must reflect a cross section of the community, and in the multi-ethnic society we enjoy today it is essential that the jury verdict reflect the considered viewpoints of the entire community. Your Committee believes that a 12-person jury enhances the opportunity for a jury representative of the community.

Your Committee also discussed the ramifications of the adoption of section 6 of Com. P. No. 15. Section 6 would amend Article I of the Constitution to include a separate and distinct section on the right to privacy.

To make clear its intent, your Committee would like to reiterate and elaborate on certain matters contained in Stand. Com. Rep. No. 69. Should this section of the proposal be approved by the electorate, the Constitution will have two provisions related to privacy. However, the provisions are not to be construed as identical in intent. The privacy provision within Article I, Section 5, should be construed in light of the language in Katz v. United States, 389 U.S. 347, 88 S.Ct. 507, 19 L.Ed. 2d 576 (1967), regarding reasonable expectation of privacy. Privacy as used in this sense is not a fundamental right but a test of whether the prohibition against unreasonable searches and seizures applies.

By amending the Constitution to include a separate and distinct privacy right, it is the intent of your Committee to insure that privacy is treated as a fundamental right for purposes of constitutional analysis. Privacy as used in this sense concerns the possible abuses in the use of highly personal and intimate information in the hands of government or private parties but is not intended to deter the government from the legitimate compilation and dissemination of data. More importantly, this privacy concept encompasses the notion that in certain highly personal and intimate matters, the individual should be afforded freedom of choice absent a compelling state interest. This right is similar to the privacy right discussed in cases such as Griswold v. Connecticut, 381 U.S. 479 (1965), Eisenstadt v. Baird, 405 U.S. 438 (1972), Roe v. Wade, 410 U.S. 113 (1973), etc. It is a right that, though unstated in the federal Constitution, emanates from the penumbra of several guarantees of the Bill of Rights. Because of this, there has been some confusion as to the source of the right and the importance of it. As such, it is treated as a fundamental right subject to interference only when a compelling state interest is demonstrated. By inserting clear and specific language regarding this right into the Constitution, your Committee intends to alleviate any possible confusion over the source of the right and the existence of it.

Accordingly, your Committee of the Whole recommends the adoption of Com. Whole Rep. No. 15 and consideration of the passage of Com. P. No. 15, RD. 1, on second reading.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE REPORT NO. 16

Your Committee of the Whole, to which was referred Com. P. No. 16 from the Committee on Bill of Rights, Suffrage and Elections, having held its meetings on September 11 and 12, 1978, and having fully debated and considered the proposal, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal covered Article II of the State Constitution. The action taken is hereinafter set forth.

An amendment to Article II, relating to registration and voting, and reading as follows, was proposed:

"Section 4. The legislature shall provide for the registration voters and for absentee voting; and shall prescribe the method of voting at all elections. The ballots for all elections shall offer, in addition to the names of the candidates for any office, the option to vote for 'NONE OF THE ABOVE.' Only votes cast for the named candidates shall be counted in determining nomination or election, but for each office the number of ballots on which 'NONE OF THE ABOVE' was chosen shall be listed following the names of the candidates and the number of their votes in every official posting, abstract and proclamation of the results of the election.

"Secrecy of voting shall be preserved."

Your Committee recommends the adoption of this amendment. The effect of this amendment would add "NONE OF THE ABOVE" below the names of candidates standing for election in any race for public office. Thus a voter could vote for a candidate(s) or, if dissatisfied with all the candidates, he could mark "NONE OF THE ABOVE." Any ballots marked thusly shall be excluded from any computation determining the outcome of the election but the number of ballots so marked in each particular race should be published with the election results by the chief election officer.

Your Committee believes that this would be one method of allowing voters disenchanted with candidates running for a particular office to register their lack of choice in a concrete and positive manner rather than withdrawing from the electoral process. Since voters can choose "NONE OF THE ABOVE" to register any negative feelings about a candidate or candidates, your Committee believes that votes for a candidate can be interpreted as a positive sign of support.

A large number of "NONE OF THE ABOVE" would clearly indicate a vote of nonsupport for those running for a particular office and encourage new candidates to enter that race to capitalize on such feelings.

An amendment to Article II, relating to registration, voting, and reading as follows, was proposed:

"Section 4. The legislature shall provide for the registration of voters and for absentee voting; and shall prescribe the method of voting at all elections. Secrecy of voting shall be preserved[.]; provided that no person shall be required to declare their party preference or nonpartisanship as a condition of voting in any primary or special primary election. Secrecy of voting and choice of political party affiliation or nonpartisanship shall be preserved."

Your Committee recommends the adoption of this amendment. No longer will prospective voters have to register as a Democrat, Republican or nonpartisan. However, voters will still be required to vote only for candidates of one political persuasion. Therefore any person who votes for candidates in both the Republican and Democratic primary shall not have his vote counted.

Your Committee believes that this change is warranted to encourage voters with minimal party affiliation or those without any party affiliation to participate in the electoral process.

Implementation is left to the appropriate body but your Committee wishes to make clear its intent that a person registering to vote need not state his political affiliation, be it a party preference or nonpartisan. Thus, the change from the current system is only in the fact that a voter's party preference or political affiliation need no longer be revealed.

Accordingly, your Committee of the Whole recommends the adoption of Com. Whole Rep. No. 16 and consideration of the passage of Com. P. No. 16, RD. 1, on second reading.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE REPORT NO. 17

Your Committee of the Whole, to which was referred Com P. No. 18 from the Committee on Style, having held its meeting on September 12, 1978, and having fully debated and considered the proposal, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal implemented the direction given to the Committee on Style to use non-discriminatory nouns, pronouns and adjectives in the Constitution of the State of Hawaii.

An amendment to delete sections 15, 16 and 17, relating to the judiciary, from Com. P. No. 18 and to renumber sections 18 to 21 as sections 15 to 18, respectively, was introduced. This deletion is a technical change. Your Committee noted that after the Committee on Style presented Com. P. No. 18 for the consideration of your Committee, the Committee on Judiciary altered Sections 2, 3 and 4 of Article V of the State Constitution, which were included in sections 15, 16 and 17, respectively, of Com. P. No. 18. Since sections 15, 16 and 17 of Com. P. No. 18 do not correspond with the Committee on Judiciary's proposal, they should be deleted. Your Committee, therefore, recommends adoption of this amendment of Com. P. No. 18.

Your Committee of the Whole recommends the adoption of Com. Whole Rep. No. 17 and consideration of the passage of Com. P. No. 18, RD. 1, on second reading.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE REPORT NO. 18

Your Committee of the Whole, to which was referred Com. P. No. 17 from the Committee on Environment, Agriculture, Conservation and Land, having held its meeting on September 14, 1978, and having fully debated and considered the proposal, begs leave to report as follows:

The proposal covered amendments to Articles X and XVI, Section 13, of the State Constitution.

The general intent of your Committee's efforts in the area of natural resources was clarified. In the present Constitution, the policy with regard to natural resources seems to be overly weighted by the emphasis on development and utilization. Though the use of our natural resources is necessary it must be done in such a manner as to ensure the optimum long-term benefits for the inhabitants of our State. The development and use of natural resources must be consistent with their conservation for future availability.

When considering use and development of our natural resources, economic and social benefits are major concerns. However, the broad definition of economics, that of "careful and thrifty" use of the resources, rather than in the narrow sense of immediate financial return, should be adopted.

An amendment to Com. P. No. 17, section 8, relating to water resources, was offered:

"Section . [All waters shall be held by the State as a public trust for the people of Hawaii.] The State has an obligation to protect, control and regulate the use of Hawaii's water resources for the benefit of its people.

"The Legislature shall provide for a water resources agency which shall, in accordance with law, set overall water conservation, quality and use policies; define beneficial and reasonable uses; protect [groundwater] ground and surface water resources, watersheds, and natural stream environments; establish criteria for water use priorities while assuring appurtenant rights and existing correlative and riparian uses; and establish procedures for regulating all [new] uses of Hawaii's water resources."

Your Committee has proposed the above amendment to clarify the intent behind the use of the term "public trust." Some confusion has been generated by the term because "trust" implies ownership. However, it was never intended that the proposal confront the question of ownership of water resources because that is more appropriately a matter for the courts. The question of ownership of the freshwater resources is irrelevant to the ability of the State to exercise its police powers with regard to water because the State has long possessed the police power to protect, control and regulate Hawaii's freshwater resources for the health and welfare of Hawaii's people. Because of the evergrowing population, the need to maintain present agricultural uses and develop some new ones and the diminishing freshwater supply, it is extremely important that the State act with a sense of fiduciary responsibility with regard to the use of water. Therefore, "public trust" was used to describe the nature of the relationship between the State and its people and the duty of the State to actively and affirmatively protect, control and regulate water resources, including the development, use and allocation of water.

The public trust theory holds that the public has certain important rights in water resources, including land underlying navigable water and fisheries. These resources are to be held in trust for the use and enjoyment of the people. The Hawaii supreme court has already imposed the public trust on navigable waters and the lands under them in the case of Bishop v. Mahiko, 35 Haw. 608 (1940). However, to avoid confusion and possible litigation, your Committee has substituted language which your Committee believes fully conveys the theory of "public trust."

In addition, your Committee recommends that surface waters be included among the water resources to be protected. Furthermore, since appurtenant rights and existing correlative and riparian uses are assured, it would not be warranted to restrict the water resource agency to regulating only new uses of water. To avoid any crisis in water supply, whether it be quantity or quality, the agency should have the flexibility to regulate existing as well as future water usage of Hawaii's water resources and the proposal has been appropriately amended.

A number of amendments to control or ban the construction of nuclear fission power plants and to regulate the disposal of radioactive materials were proposed. After much debate, your Committee voted to adopt the following amendment:

"NUCLEAR ENERGY

"Section . No nuclear fission power plant shall be constructed or radioactive material disposed of in the State of Hawaii without the prior approval by a two-thirds vote in each house of the legislature."

This proposal reflects your Committee's great concern with the potential health hazards and environmental damage which may result from power generated by nuclear fission power plants or the disposal of radioactive waste products. It has been noted, for example, that one speck of some radioactive products may cause cancer, long-term genetic defects or death. "Radioactive material," as used in this amendment, includes the products of the operation and maintenance of a nuclear power plant, such as fuel, waste materials or other contaminated items. This amendment is not, however, intended to limit the use of radioactive materials in medical research or treatment.

The intent of this amendment is to pose threshold questions with respect to the construction of nuclear fission power plants and the disposal of radioactive material in the State to the legislature; this amendment would require legislative approval of such construction or disposal. It should be emphasized, however, that this amendment is not intended to supersede the complex federal statutory and regulatory schemes wherever it has preempted the State from acting with respect to these matters.

The requirement of approval by a two-thirds vote of the legislature underscores your Committee's belief that these activities should be undertaken only if there is widespread agreement among the legislators that such activities are prudent. On the other hand, the development of nuclear fission power plants or the disposal of radioactive material is not completely banned. If sufficient safeguards are developed in the future, the State may wish to take advantage of such developments.

Accordingly, your Committee of the Whole recommends the adoption of Com. Whole Rep. No. 18 and consideration of the passage of Com. P. No. 17, RD. 1, on second reading.

Your Committee, to which were referred a letter dated June 6, 1978 from Joseph A. Ryan to the Convention and a letter dated June 26, 1978 from Clarence Ching to the Convention, reports thereon as follows:

The letter dated June 6, 1978 from Joseph A. Ryan requested that all of the 16 candidates from District 8A be declared elected as delegates to the Convention because no candidate in the district received a majority of the votes cast. Your Committee finds that the two delegates from District 8A have been legally elected pursuant to Act 17, Session Laws of Hawaii, Special Session of 1977, which provides in part that the "candidates receiving the highest number of votes in the election, not to exceed the number of delegates to which the respective district is entitled, shall be elected as delegates to the convention."

The letter dated June 26, 1978 from Clarence Ching alleged that Warner (Kimo) Sutton does not meet the residency requirements to be a qualified voter necessary to be a delegate from District 15B. Your Committee has examined the evidence presented to it by both Mr. Ching and Mr. Sutton and finds that Warner (Kimo) Sutton is a qualified elector of District 15B from which he has been duly elected.

For the reasons aforesaid, your Committee recommends that the persons named in the Certificates of Election of the Delegates to the Constitutional Convention of Hawaii of 1978 be seated as delegates from their respective constitutional convention districts as aforesaid.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE REPORT NO. 2

Your Ad Hoc Committee on Ethics to which was referred the matter relating to a Code of Ethics begs leave to report as follows:

The purpose of this Code of Ethics is to prescribe standards of conduct for the delegates and employees of the Convention and to provide enforcement provisions therefor.

There is presently no code of ethics prescribed for any constitutional convention in the nation. The Hawaii Constitution does not require nor provide for standards of conduct for either Convention delegates or Convention employees. This code of ethics will be the first such code in the nation for a constitutional convention.

Your Committee recognizes that a constitution is a document embodying fundamental principles that determine the powers and duties of the government and guarantee certain rights to the people; it is a document which perforce requires a broad application upon government and people as a whole. However, your Committee is in agreement that the Convention should avoid even an aura or appearance of conflict of interest or abuse of office so that public confidence in the efforts and work product of the Convention will be assured when the electorate is asked to ratify the constitutional amendments proposed. To this end, your Committee has fashioned a code which requires a standard of conduct among the delegates and employees of the Convention and which provides a disclosure mechanism by which the public has an opportunity to assess the performance of the delegates under that standard.

The code includes (1) a requirement of financial disclosure by a delegate reflecting the financial interests of the delegate, the delegate's spouse and dependent children, (2) a prohibition on delegates and employees receiving any gift under circumstances in which it can reasonably be inferred that the gift is intended to influence him in the performance of his official duties or is intended as a reward for any official action, (3) a prohibition on delegates and employees using or attempting to use his official position to secure unwarranted privileges, and (4) a prohibition on action by delegates and employees who have conflicts of interest by such action.

Your Committee also reviewed the matter of delegates hiring family members and relatives as Convention employees. The practice of hiring a family member or relative is not in itself against the Convention's interest. The family member or relative may be well qualified for and diligent on the job. Indeed, it should be noted that there have been no reports to the Committee's knowledge that any family member or relative hired in this Convention is not qualified for the job or is failing to perform his duties. Nepotism, however, does not serve the Convention's interest when the employee is not qualified for the job and takes unwarranted advantage of the family relationship. Not unmindful that the hiring of a family member or relative might draw criticism on the Convention, your Committee believes it would neither be fair nor be in the best interest of the Convention to require at this late date that family members or relatives lawfully hired in good faith now be replaced even if they are qualified and diligent. Delegates and staff are well underway in their organization and operation in this Convention, and any replacement of staff would severely disrupt and impede the Convention proceedings. Your Committee believes that the publicity generated by discussion on this matter will serve as a sufficient check against abuse in employment among those family members and relatives who have been hired. Accordingly, the Code of Ethics contains no reference to the matter of hiring of family members and relatives. It is hoped that future Conventions will note the concern experienced by your Committee on the matter.

Your Ad Hoc Committee on Ethics is in accord with the Code of Ethics in the form attached hereto and recommends its adoption.

PREAMBLE

The purpose of this Code of Ethics is to prescribe standards of conduct for the delegates and employees of the 1978 Constitutional Convention of the State of Hawaii and to provide enforcement provisions therefor so that public confidence in the Convention will be preserved.

Section 1. Definitions.

- (1) "Business" includes a corporation, a partnership, a sole proprietorship, a trust or foundation, or any other individual or organization carrying on a business, whether or not operated for profit.

(2) "Compensation" means any money, thing of value, or economic benefit conferred on or received by any person in return for services rendered or to be rendered by himself or another.

(3) "Controlling interest" means an interest in a business or other undertaking which is sufficient in fact to control, whether the interest be greater or less than fifty percent.

(4) "Convention" means the 1978 Constitutional Convention of the State of Hawaii.

(5) "Delegate" means any appointed or elected delegate to the 1978 Constitutional Convention.

(6) "Disclosure period" means the period from July 5, 1977 to July 5, 1978.

(7) "Employee" means any nominated officer or employee of the Convention, including any employee under contract to the Convention.

(8) "Employment" means any rendering of services for compensation.

(9) "Financial interest" means an interest held by an individual, his spouse or dependent children which is:

- (A) An ownership interest in a business.
- (B) A creditor interest in an insolvent business.
- (C) An employment, or prospective employment for which negotiations have begun.
- (D) An ownership interest in real or personal property.
- (E) A loan or other debtor interest.
- (F) A directorship or officership in a business.

(10) "Official act" or "official action" means a decision, recommendation, approval, disapproval, or other action, including inaction, which involves the use of discretionary authority.

Section 2. Gifts. No delegate or employee shall solicit, accept, or receive, directly or indirectly, any gift, whether in the form of money, service, loan, travel, entertainment, hospitality, thing or promise, or in any other form, under circumstances in which it can reasonably be inferred that the gift is intended to influence him in the performance of his official duties or is intended as a reward for any official action on his part.

Section 3. Confidential information. No delegate or employee shall disclose information which by law or practice is not available to the public and which he acquires in the course of his official duties, or use the information for his personal gain or for the benefit of anyone.

Section 4. Fair treatment. No delegate or employee shall use or attempt to use his official position to secure or grant unwarranted privileges, exemptions, advantages, contracts or treatment, for himself or others; including but not limited to the following:

(1) Seeking other employment or contract for services for himself by the use or attempted use of his office or position.

(2) Accepting, receiving, or soliciting compensation or other consideration for the performance of his official duties or responsibilities except as provided by law.

(3) Using convention time, equipment or other facilities for private business purposes.

Nothing herein shall be construed to prohibit a delegate from introducing proposals and resolutions, serving on committees or from making statements or taking action in the exercise of his Convention functions.

Section 5. Conflicts of interest.

(1) No delegate or employee shall assist any person or business or act in a representative capacity for a fee or other compensation or under a contingent compensation arrangement to secure passage or defeat of a proposal, or other transaction in which he has participated or will participate as a delegate or employee.

(2) Any delegate who in the discharge of his official duties would be required to take official action or make a decision which would substantially and directly affect his financial interests or those of a business with which he is associated, shall orally disclose how the action or decision would substantially and directly affect his financial interest.

(3) The chairman of the committee of which the delegate is a member or the presiding officer of the Convention may excuse the delegate from taking part in the action or decision in question only if the affect on that delegate is greater than on other members of his business classification, profession or occupation.

Section 6. Contracts. The Convention shall not enter into any contract with a delegate or an employer or with a business in which a delegate or an employee has a controlling interest.

Section 7. Requirements of disclosure.

(1) Every delegate shall file a public disclosure which shall state the financial interests of the delegate, the delegate's spouse and dependent children and shall include:

- (A) The source and amount of all income of $1,000 or more received, for services rendered, by the person in his own name or by any other person for his use or benefit during the disclosure period and the nature of the services rendered; provided that information that may be privileged by law or individual items of compensation that constitute a portion of the gross income of the business or profession from which the person derives income need not be disclosed.
- (B) The amount and identity of every ownership or beneficial interest held during the disclosure period in any business incorporated, regulated, or licensed to carry on business in the State having a value of $5,000 or more or equal to ten percent of the ownership of the business and, if the interest was transferred during the disclosure period, the date of the transfer; provided that an interest in the form of an account in a federal or state regulated financial institution, an interest in the form of a policy in a mutual insurance company, or individual items in a mutual fund or a blind trust, if the mutual fund or blind trust has been disclosed pursuant to this paragraph, need not be disclosed.
- (C) Every officership, directorship, trusteeship, or other fiduciary relationship held in a business during the disclosure period, the term of office and the annual compensation.
- (D) The name of each creditor to whom the value of $3,000 or more was owed during the disclosure period and the original amount and amount outstanding; provided that debts arising out of retail installment transactions for the purchase of consumer goods need not be disclosed.

- (E) The tax map key number and street address, if any, and the value of any real property in the State in which the person holds an interest whose value is $10,000 or more, and, if the interest was transferred or obtained during the disclosure period, a statement of the amount and nature of the consideration received or paid in exchange for such interest, and the name of the person furnishing or receiving the consideration.
- (F) The amount and identity of every creditor interest in an insolvent business held during the disclosure period having a value of $5,000 or more.
- (G) A description of every arrangement for compensation, including whether such compensation is being paid in full, in part, or suspended, by any business while receiving a salary as a Convention delegate.
- (H) Where an amount is required to be reported, the delegate disclosing may indicate whether the amount is at least $1,000 but less than $5,000, at least $5,000 but less than $10,000, at least $10,000 but less than $25,000, at least $25,000 but less than $50,000, at least $50,000 but less than $75,000, at least $75,000 but less than $100,000, at least $100,000 but less than $125,000, at least $125,000 but less than $150,000 or $150,000 or more. An amount of stock may be indicated by the number of shares instead of by market value.

(2) The disclosure shall be filed between July 14, and July 31, of 1978 with the President of the Convention.

(3) The disclosure shall be filed on a form provided by the Convention.

(4) An exact copy of the disclosure shall be available for public inspection at the office of the President of the Convention between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. daily, except on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. For purposes of public inspection, the copy of the disclosure shall not include the home address and telephone number of the delegate.

(5) Any person wishing to inspect the exact copy of the disclosure statement shall complete and file a form listing the name and address of the person requesting the inspection, the name and address of any person or organization for whom the person requesting the inspection is acting, the name of the person whose disclosure is to be inspected, and the date of the inspection. The disclosure statement or the exact copy shall not be reproduced nor removed from the office of the President.

(6) During the period between the date of a delegate's initial disclosure statement and October 31, 1978, a delegate shall file an updating statement with the office of the President within seven days of any deletion, addition, transfer or termination of any financial interest which is required to be disclosed by this section. Such updating statements shall indicate the nature and date of the change and shall be made available for public inspection in the same manner as the delegate's initial financial disclosure.

(7) After the date the proposals are put before the electorate, the disclosure form and all updating statements shall be returned to each delegate.

Section 8. Violation. Any delegate or employee who fails to comply with any provision of this code will be subject to public reprimand, censure, suspension or removal from office or employment by the Convention.

Governor's Messages

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE NO. 1

REMARKS BY GOVERNOR GEORGE R. ARIYOSHI
OPENING DAY CEREMONY OF THE
1978 CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION
OLD FEDERAL BUILDING

Wednesday, July 5, 1978

You are gathered here today for a very solemn and almost sacred task--the review of the Constitution of the State of Hawaii. Into the hands of a few has been placed the trust of many. You are the architects of our future. What you do, or choose not to do, will affect all our lives for many years to come.

I am sure that I do not need to impress upon you the importance of your tasks. Their magnitude was known to you when you sought election to this Convention, and I am sure have been further impressed upon you in your preliminary deliberations.

I do not intend to speak here this morning at any length. But permit me a few observations based upon my experience as a constitutional convention delegate ten years ago, and also as Governor of this State during some of the most trying and challenging years of our existence.

I hope that none of you come to this Convention with such a rigidity of ideas that you are inflexible. You all have convictions, and that is as it should be. You also have areas in which you feel very strongly, and again that is as it should be. But please do not be so strong either in convictions or areas of concern that you cannot approach the proceedings here with an open mind. Please do not be so convinced of the correctness of a certain position that you cannot listen to another side or a contrary point of view. It is the sharing of ideas and viewpoints and wisdom that will make this Convention a worthwhile exercise for the people of Hawaii. It is your flexibility to expand beyond what you now feel is possible that will determine the success or failure of this Convention.

I am not advocating that you abandon long-held beliefs and philosophies, but I am advocating a tolerance for contrary points of view and a spirit of cooperation. The democratic process is best served when we have free and open discussions, and when we have a willingness to consider points of view other than our own. No one at this Convention can afford to have tunnel vision. There must be a wide field upon which the issues of this Convention can be played. It would be tragic, in my view, if this Convention failed to consider all the alternatives to all of the issues. It just might be that an alternative not now in favor, or even considered, might be the best ultimate choice.

I do not feel that the success or failure of this Constitutional Convention will be measured either by how few or many changes are made. Rather, success or failure will be measured by the approach to the problems and the process by which decisions are made. The acceptance and rejection of ideas--that is what is important and that is what history will remember. Also, I hope that the delegates to this Convention will continue to recognize the uniqueness of our State. We are unique in so many ways. In geography. In people. In resources. In problems. And in solutions.

We have a unique approach to living. We have a unique concept of the dignity of all persons, regardless of ethnic origins or economic circumstances. We have a unique quality called the Aloha Spirit, which possibly is our most prized, but yet fragile, possession. Our uniqueness is precious and it must be preserved, and I hope that the document ultimately emerging from this Convention will reflect that. We are the only island State in this Union of States, and we have become accustomed--partly because of our geographical isolation--to finding our own solutions and developing our own style.

That independence of spirit and action and style must be continued. We must adopt Hawaiian solutions to Hawaiian problems. Certainly, we can borrow from the wisdom and the experiences of others, but we cannot and we should not blindly assume that something is good for Hawaii merely because it happens to be good for some other area.

At present, we have a very strong central government. For instance, we are alone in having a statewide school system and a statewide system for the delivery of health, social and other human services. Is that bad? The proponents of 'home rule' would say yes. The proponents of equal opportunities for all of our citizens, regardless of where they live, rural or urban, affluent or not, would say no. Home rule is a catch phrase with much appeal. But equal opportunities and equal services for all also have great appeal. Are the two philosophies inconsistent? Can they be reconciled? Should they be reconciled?

I will not attempt to answer these questions here today. I bring them up only as being illustrative of the issues you will confront. They are indeed worthy of your best efforts, and I urge once again that you approach the challenging tasks ahead of you with an open-mindedness that will do credit to this assembly and to this State.

The Preamble to our present Constitution notes that the people of Hawaii are "mindful of our Hawaiian heritage." This says volumes about our approach to government, and I hope that these words would become a living slogan for this Convention. The Preamble also says that we approach all the world with "an understanding heart." These are not just words. They represent a credo of life in these Islands, a credo that has served us so well over the years and one that can carry us forward into the years ahead.

During the course of your deliberations here in the coming weeks, you will hear, I am sure, many discussions of the rights of citizens. I have always cherished human rights--as a person, as an attorney and as an elected official. But at the same time, I also have cherished the collective and individual responsibilities that have made these rights possible. For every right, there has to be a counterbalancing responsibility. If there is not, anarchy will result.

We have a bill of rights, both in the federal and state Constitutions. This guarantee of rights sets our governments apart from all others and provides basic guarantees to our citizens that exist nowhere else. But somewhere in your deliberations, I feel it is very important to acknowledge that responsibilities go hand in hand with rights.

Today is the start of a significant event in the history of Hawaii. It merits the most extensive public input that can be obtained, and with that in mind, I am releasing funds to enable KHET-TV to provide news and interpretive coverage of this Constitutional Convention. You cannot and should not operate in a vacuum, and I feel that it is very important that the public share to the greatest possible extent in this important process of government. Also, I want you to know that my office and our departments will render every assistance to the delegates of this Convention. Please feel that state government is a resource for information and assistance whenever and wherever it is needed.

In closing, I would like to share a few words and thoughts of Thomas Jefferson. He is a man, without question, who was experienced in the ways of constitutions. In a letter written in 1816, President Jefferson said:

"Some men look at constitutions with sanctimonious reverence, and deem them like the ark of the covenant, too sacred to be touched. They ascribe to the men of the preceding age a wisdom more than human, and suppose what they did to be beyond amendment. . . . I am certainly not an advocate for frequent and untried changes in laws and constitutions. I think moderate imperfections had better be borne with. . . . But I know also, that laws and institutions must go hand in hand with the progress of the human mind. . . . [A]s new discoveries are made, new truths disclosed, and manners and opinions change with the change of circumstances, institutions must advance also, and keep pace with the times. . . . Each generation is as independent of the one preceding, as that was of all which had gone before. It has then, like them, a right to choose for itself the form of government it believes most promotive of its own happiness. . . ."

"I know of no safe depository of the ultimate powers of the society but the people themselves; and if we think them not enlightened enough to exercise their control with a wholesome discretion, the remedy is not to take it from them, but to inform their discretion by education."

These words were written 157 years ago, but they could have been written today.

Indeed, the power of our government rests with the people, and you, the delegates to this Constitutional Convention, are their chosen representatives. Exercise that power well. Seek to reflect the spirit and the ideals of this society rather than its instant problems and anxieties. Allow the Constitution to express Hawaii's unique relation to our environment, our nation and our world. Allow it to continue to set broad guidelines for the governance of this State, and allow it most of all to represent our philosophies, our hopes and our collective wisdom.

The challenges you face, beginning today, are great. But even greater is the opportunity to serve, in a unique way, our State and all of its citizens.

You have my prayerful support as you begin your deliberations.

Mahalo and aloha.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE NO. 2

EXECUTIVE CHAMBERS
Honolulu

July 7, 1978

The Honorable William W. Paty, Jr.
President 1978 Constitutional Convention of Hawaii

Dear President Paty:

This is to acknowledge your letter of July 6, 1978, in which you ask for approval to sign vouchers for the Constitutional Convention.

I am enclosing with this letter a copy of my memorandum to State Comptroller Hideo Murakami which advises him that I am delegating to you authority to expend funds appropriated by Section 7, Act 17, SSLH 1977, and so much thereof as may be necessary as authorized under Act 243, SLH 1978, to defray expenses of the Constitutional Convention. The memorandum authorizes the Comptroller to honor warrant vouchers signed by you.

With warm personal regards, I remain,

Yours very truly,

George R. Ariyoshi
Governor of Hawaii

Enclosure

MEMORANDUM

To: The Honorable Hideo Murakami, Comptroller
Department of Accounting and General Services

Subject: Authority to Sign Vouchers for the Constitutional Convention

Please be advised that I am hereby delegating to Mr. William W. Paty, Jr.,

who has been duly elected the president of the Constitutional Convention convened under the provisions of Act 17, SSLH 1977, the authority to expend funds appropriated by said Act and so much thereof as may be necessary as authorized under Act 243, SLH 1978, for defraying expenses of the Constitutional Convention.

In accordance with the above delegation of authority, warrant vouchers prepared and signed by President Paty are to be paid by your office.

July 13, 1978

The Honorable William W. Paty, Jr.
President
1978 Constitutional Convention of Hawaii

Dear President Paty:

I write in response to your letter of June 28, 1978, in which you support the request of the Hawaii Public Broadcasting Authority for funds to provide television coverage of the Constitutional Convention.

I am pleased to report that I have approved the Authority's request. I am in agreement with you that publicizing this significant political milestone is a valuable public service project providing for citizen education on the Constitutional Convention. I further believe that the State should play a major role in informing and educating the public on the issues introduced before the Constitutional Convention.

I wish you and your colleagues well as you enter into your important deliberations on the Constitution of Hawaii.

With warm personal regards, I remain,

Yours very truly,

George R. Ariyoshi
Governor of Hawaii

DEPARTMENTAL COMMUNICATION NO. 1

OFFICE OF THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR
Honolulu

July 13, 1978

Mr. William W. Paty, Jr.
President
1978 Constitutional Convention of Hawaii

Dear President Paty:

In response to your inquiry concerning the deadline for submission of amendments to the State Constitution proposed by the Con Con, we are requesting that all of the proposals, including the required translated material, be in our office on or before September 20, 1978.

I am sure that you are aware that our state has been covered under the minority-language provisions of the Voting Rights Act Amendments of 1975, whereby we are required to provide voting assistance in the Filipino, Chinese and Japanese languages. Diamond International Corporation will be awarded the contract for being the low bidder on the ballot printing job. Because their printing plant is in California, the translated material will have to be sent to California to be typeset, then sent back here for proofing before the actual printing can commence. If errors are caught, the process is again repeated. We will begin the process for the printing of the 1978 general election ballots on the 8th of October. By analyzing the aforementioned procedure, you could readily conclude that our office will need all of the eighteen preceding days to prepare for the printing.

Since we already have the experience and the contacts in having our voting instructions and election materials translated into the required languages, we would be happy to offer assistance to your committee which will be responsible for having your proposals translated. I would in fact further recommend that we coordinate our efforts in the following two areas:

- (1) Presentation of proposals on ballot. There is limited space on our ballot cards. The proposals should be as concise as possible but detailed enough to be understandable.
- (2) Voter Education. As thoroughly as possible, our voters need to know what amendments are being proposed and to understand them before entering the voting booths. Otherwise, voter confusion may result in an abundance of spoiled ballots and/or long voting lines which occurred at many polling places in the 1968 general election.

Should you have any detailed questions on the matter, please feel free to call Morris Takushi of my elections staff at 548-2517. I'm sure that he'll also be happy to meet with you if that is your desire.

With warmest aloha, I remain,

Yours very truly,

Nelson K. Doi
Lieutenant Governor of Hawaii

OFFICE OF THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

July 17, 1978

Mr. William W. Paty, Jr.
President
1978 Constitutional Convention of Hawaii

Dear President Paty,

I am writing to clarify any misunderstanding that may have arisen regarding the Constitutional Convention proposals and the general election ballots this November.

I am informed by my staff that the latest possible day for this office to have the proposals in hand in time to get them on the November ballots is September 20. We have, therefore, set September 20 as the absolute deadline for Con Con proposals to be physically in this office if they are to be a part of the November ballots.

This does not mean, of course, that the Con Con will have to adjourn on September 20 or earlier. It is not my intent to inhibit the Con Con in any way, merely to point out that if proposals are to be on the November ballot this office must have them by September 20. The placement of proposals on this year's ballots is the prerogative of the Con Con and we are eager to cooperate in any way, but we must have sufficient time to get the ballots printed and presented in accordance with the Voting Rights Act Amendments of 1975 (which require assistance in Filipino, Chinese and Japanese languages) and to be able to re-print in the event there are errors.

I hope this clears up any confusion. If I can be of any assistance, please let me know.

Yours very truly,

Nelson K. Doi

Honorable Karen H. Iwamoto, Chairperson
Committee on Submission and Information
1978 Constitutional Convention of Hawaii

Dear Delegate Iwamoto:

For your information, I have enclosed a copy of an Attorney General's Opinion which I had received regarding the legality of ignoring a vote in Part A of the ballot containing the proposed amendments to the State Constitution should a voter vote in both Parts A and B. In light of this opinion, your committee and the convention may wish to reconsider the matter of the vote tabulation.

With warmest aloha, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

Director of Elections

STATE OF HAWAII
DEPARTMENT OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

September 20, 1978

Mr. Morris T. Takushi
Director of Elections
Office of the Lieutenant Governor
Hawaii State Capitol

Dear Mr. Takushi:

This is in response to your letter dated September 18, 1978 requesting our opinion on the following questions:

"(1) Should we consider the ballot to be invalidated if a voter votes 'Yes' in Part A and 'No' for some or all of the items in Part B?"

We answer in the affirmative.

"(2) Should we consider the ballot to be invalidated if a voter votes 'No' in Part A and 'No' for some or all of the items in Part B?"

We answer in the affirmative with one exception to be discussed below.

"(3) Should we recognize only the votes in Part B, if the voter voted in both Parts A and B?"

We answer in the negative.

The foregoing questions arose as a result of a submission to the Lieutenant Governor's Office of a proposed ballot by the Submission and Information Committee of the 1978 Constitutional Convention, a copy of which is attached to your request.

Upon examination of the proposed ballot, it is clear that the choice of voting in Part A and Part B is mutually exclusive.

Relevant authorities indicate that where there is an inconsistency in the marking of the ballot, the voter's intent is not clearly manifested and the ballot must be discarded or the vote invalidated. (State v. Barber, 198 So. 49 (1940); Murray v. Waite, 94 A. 943 (1915).)

The difficulty in this case lies in the equivocal interpretation of an inconsistent vote in Parts A and B. It is our position that in the event a voter votes in Part A and Part B, his intention cannot be determined and his ballot must be invalidated.

In only one instance, where the voter marks "No" to Part A, then proceeds to mark "No" to all items in Part B will his intention be clear and unambiguous. In all other cases where both parts are marked, the ballots should be considered to be "spoiled" and invalid.

Please note that this opinion is limited to the questions posed by you in your letter of September 18, 1978. We express no opinion on the form of the ballot, the grouping and wording of proposals, or any other matter.

Very truly yours,

Maria Sousa

Memorandum

To: Committee on Submission and Information

From: Office of the Lieutenant Governor
Elections Division

Subject: 1978 Con Con Ballot Format

In prior discussions on ballot format, the use of more than one ballot card to accommodate a two or three part ballot was discounted because tabulation of votes would not be technically possible. The computer program currently in use is not capable of relating one ballot card to another card. Thus, once the voter drops his ballot into the ballot box there would be no way of determining whether or not he voted in more than one part. However, it is possible to utilize two or more ballot cards in the case where each ballot card submitted to the voter contains a blanket "YES" and a blanket "NO" vote covering the proposed amendments itemized on that ballot card. For example:

CARD 1

PART A	YES
Proposed Amendments 1-17	NO
PART B
Yes EXCEPT For:
1.	NO
2.	NO
3.	NO
17.	NO

CARD 2

PART A	YES
Proposed Ammdments 18-34	NO
PART B
Yes EXCEPT For:
18.	NO
19.	NO
20.	NO
34.	NO

Utilization of this method of submission raises the question of whether a two or three card ballot would confuse voters.

VIA TELECOPIER

Mr. William W. Paty, Jr., President
1978 Constitutional Convention of Hawaii

Permit me by this means to extend my fond aloha to all attendants at the opening ceremony of the 1978 Constitutional Convention and my heartiest congratulations to the elected delegates.

You and the delegates are about to undertake the portentous task of reviewing and amending Hawaii's State Constitution. Yours is a responsibility weightier than that of a legislator, for you will be shaping the very foundation of all future State laws. I am confident that you will assume this responsibility with a consciousness of past history and foresight of the future consequences of your actions, for only then will you be able to say that you have truly served Hawaii and its people.

I regret that I am unable to join you personally on this historic occasion, but my thoughts are with you for a most meaningful and successful Convention.

Me ke aloha pumehana.

Sincerely,

MISCELLANEOUS COMMUNICATION NO. 2

July 19, 1978

The Honorable William W. Paty, Jr.
President
1978 Constitutional Convention of Hawaii

Sir:

Re: Delegate Ledward's motion relating to discretionary power of the President to adjust budget

If a matter authorizes or contemplates the expenditure of money, the matter must be referred to the Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing for its consideration and report under Rule 20. Delegate Ledward's motion relating to the discretionary power of the President to adjust the budget covers a subject for referral to and report by the Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing under Rule 20. Thus, action by the Convention of such a motion would be in contravention of Rule 20.

Inasmuch as the subject of the motion was already reported on by the Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing under Standing Committee Report No. 9 which was duly adopted by the Convention, Delegate Ledward's motion is unnecessary.

Yours very truly,

James T. Funaki, Chief Attorney
Constitutional Convention of Hawaii of 1978

Petitions

PETITION NO. 1

August 14, 1978

WHEREAS, a secret meeting of certain delegates was apparently held on Sunday, August 13, 1978, at the Fort Delicatessen; and

WHEREAS, this meeting was apparently attended by President William W. Paty, Jr., and a member of the Convention legal staff; and

WHEREAS, some questions have arisen regarding this meeting; now, therefore,

We, the undersigned, respectfully petition and request that President William W. Paty, Jr. answer the following questions:

1. What was the purpose of the meeting of certain delegates at the Fort Delicatessen on August 13, 1978?
2. Who called the meeting?
3. Who attended? Who was invited?
4. Why wasn't an invitation extended to all delegates?
5. What was discussed at the meeting?
6. Why did you, President Paty, attend?
7. What was your role in this meeting?
8. Isn't it true that your position as President of the Convention requires a position of neutrality on your part?
9. Isn't it also true that attending secret meetings compromises your position of neutrality?
10. Have any other meetings of this sort been held? (When, where and why?)
11. Have any of the Convention staff or Convention attorneys attended these meetings? If so, at whose request and for what purpose?
12. Why was this meeting held off the Convention grounds?
13. Who paid for this meeting?
14. Were Convention funds used for any of these off-Convention meetings?
15. Were any non-Convention persons present or invited to the Fort Delicatessen meeting?
16. Why was this restaurant chosen for this meeting when the Convention Hall was empty and available for such meeting on Sunday?

17. Are any of these secret meetings scheduled for the future?

Signed by Delegates Kono, Peterson, Sterling, Barnes, Odanaka, Rachel Lee, Lacy, DiBianco, Chu, Miller, Campbell, Liu, Marumoto, Blean, Hale, O'Toole, Wurdeman, Goodenow, Hanaïke and Cabral.

PETITION NO. 2

To the Delegates to Hawaii's Third Constitutional Convention:

We, who are citizens of Hawaii, earnestly petition you to include Initiative and Referendum among your proposals for amendment to our Constitution.

[signed by over 20,000 citizens of the State]

PETITION NO. 3

We, the undersigned concerned citizens of Hawaii, are against any amendment to the State of Hawaii Constitution that permits initiative, referendum and recall.

[signed by over 18,000 citizens of the State]

FINAL STATUS OF MEASURES PROPOSED

Data in this section was prepared by the Legislative Reference Bureau, with the assistance of Computer Center 3, Kalanimoku Building.

Measures referred to are set forth in the preceding Documents section of this volume.

Total Number of Measures Introduced:

Proposals	835
Committee Proposals	18
Resolutions	53
	906

Guide to the Use of the Index:

Every measure introduced in the Convention is accounted for in the following Index of Proposals and Resolutions.

The General Index accounts for all measures and includes request measures of general interest. Principles common to most indexes have been employed, hence the entries are indexed generically by subject--the broader category first. The subject categories or subject headings of the index reflect, in most instances, the subject categories or article headings of the present Hawaii Constitution.

The following abbreviations have been employed:

DP	Delegate Proposal
CP	Committee Proposal
R	Resolution
CR	Committee Resolution

Final Status of Proposals and Resolutions

The status table gives an abbreviated history of all proposals and resolutions as they proceed through the Convention consideration process. There are three different types of tables and these are arranged by type of measure.

TYPE OF MEASURE

1. (P) Proposals
2. (CP) Committee Proposals
3. (R) Resolutions

TYPE OF INFORMATION GIVEN FOR EACH MEASURE

1. Proposals and Committee Proposals
 - a. Short and abbreviated title
 - b. Calendar day of introduction
 - c. Calendar day of readings
 - d. Committee referrals and committee report numbers
 - e. Calendar day and manner of final disposition
2. Resolutions
 - a. Short and abbreviated title
 - b. Calendar day of introduction
 - c. Committee referrals and committee report numbers
 - d. Calendar day and manner of final disposition

ABBREVIATIONS EMPLOYED

Amendments

An asterisk (*) in the "Day" column indicates that a new draft (or redraft) of the measure was adopted.

Committee Referrals

A comma (,) between committees indicates that the measure has been referred to the committees jointly.

APPENDIX

ACT 17, SESSION LAWS OF HAWAII

SPECIAL SESSION OF 1977

A Bill for an Act Relating to a Constitutional Convention.

Be It Enacted by the Legislature of the State of Hawaii:

SECTION 1. Election of delegates. The chief election officer shall issue a proclamation ordering an election which shall be held on May 20, 1978, for the special election of delegates to a constitutional convention, provided that the election day shall not be a holiday, notwithstanding the provisions of section 8-1, Hawaii Revised Statutes, as amended.

Except as otherwise provided by this Act, the candidates for delegates shall be nominated and their filing fees paid, the special election conducted, the returns made and results ascertained, and the certificates of election issued in the same manner as prescribed by chapter 11, Hawaii Revised Statutes, as amended, governing general elections except that there shall be no primary election.

Any person who is registered as a duly qualified elector shall be eligible to vote in these elections, and shall on the day of the election be entitled to absent himself from any service or employment in which he is then engaged or employed, pursuant to the provisions of section 11-95, Hawaii Revised Statutes, as amended. The general county register shall be closed before the election in the manner set forth in section 11-24, Hawaii Revised Statutes, as amended, for special elections.

Each candidate shall be a qualified elector of the constitutional convention district in which he is a candidate for delegate. The name of no candidate shall be printed upon any official ballot to be used at the special election unless at least 30 days prior to the special election, a nomination paper shall have been filed in his behalf as provided in part I of chapter 12, Hawaii Revised Statutes, as amended, except as modified below, signed by not less than fifteen qualified electors of the constitutional convention district in which he is a candidate. There shall be deposited with each nomination paper a fee of $25 which shall be paid into the treasury of the State. The lieutenant governor shall provide appropriate nomination papers.

No such nomination paper shall contain any reference to or designation of any political party, and the ballots used at the special election shall be nonpartisan and shall not contain any reference to or designation of the political party or affiliation of any candidate. The names of the candidates in each constitutional convention district shall be listed in alphabetical order on the ballot.

Each voter at the special election shall be entitled to receive a ballot notwithstanding section 12-31, Hawaii Revised Statutes, as amended.

The ballots submitted to the voters of each constitutional convention district shall instruct the voters that the number of candidates to be voted for by such voter shall not exceed the number of delegates to which the constitutional convention district is entitled. The candidates receiving the highest number of votes in the election, not to exceed the number of delegates to which the respective district is entitled, shall be elected as delegates to the convention.

The governor shall fill any vacancy by appointing a qualified voter from the constitutional convention district in which the vacancy occurs.

The convention shall consist of 102 delegates apportioned among the existing representative districts of the State as follows:

First representative district. Two delegates at large;

Second representative district. Four delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 12; and two delegates from combined precincts of 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 13 and 14;

Third representative district. Two delegates at large;

Fourth representative district. Two delegates at large;

Fifth representative district. Four delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8; and two delegates from combined precincts of 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14 and 15;

Sixth representative district. Four delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 10, 11, 12 and 13; and two delegates from combined precincts of 7, 8, 9, 14, 15 and 16;

Seventh representative district. Four delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 2, 3 and 4; and two delegates from combined precincts of 5, 6, 7 and 8;

Eighth representative district. Four delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 2 and 3; and two delegates from combined precincts of 4, 5, 6 and 7;

Ninth representative district. Four delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 3, 7 and 8; and two delegates from combined precincts of 2, 4, 5 and 6;

Tenth representative district. Four delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 2 and 3; and two delegates from combined precincts of 4, 5, 6 and 7;

Eleventh representative district. Four delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 2 and 4; and two delegates from combined precincts of 3, 5 and 6;

Twelfth representative district. Four delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 3 and 5; and two delegates from combined precincts of 2, 4, 6 and 7;

Thirteenth representative district. Six delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 2 and 3; two delegates from combined precincts of 4, 5 and 9; and two delegates from combined precincts of 6, 7 and 8;

Fourteenth representative district. Four delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 2, 3 and 6; and two delegates from combined precincts of 4, 5 and 7;

Fifteenth representative district. Four delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 2, 3 and 4; and two delegates from combined precincts of 5, 6, 7 and 8;

Sixteenth representative district. Four delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 6, 7 and 8; and two delegates from combined precincts of 2, 3, 4 and 5;

Seventeenth representative district. Four delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 2 and 3; and two delegates from combined precincts of 4, 5, 6 and 7;

Eighteenth representative district. Four delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 2, 3 and 5; and two delegates from combined precincts of 4, 6, 7 and 8;

Nineteenth representative district. Four delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 2 and 3; and two delegates from combined precincts of 4, 5 and 6;

Twentieth representative district. Four delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 2, 3 and 4; and two delegates from combined precincts of 5, 6, 7 and 8;

Twenty-first representative district. Four delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 2 and 3; and two delegates from combined precincts of 4, 5 and 6;

Twenty-second representative district. Four delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 2, 3 and 4; and two delegates from combined precincts of 5, 6, 7 and 8;

Twenty-third representative district. Two delegates at large;

Twenty-fourth representative district. Four delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 2 and 3; and two delegates from combined precincts of 4, 5 and 6;

Twenty-fifth representative district. Four delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 2 and 3; and two delegates from combined precincts of 4, 5, 6 and 7;

Twenty-sixth representative district. Two delegates at large;

Twenty-seventh representative district. Six delegates to be elected. Two delegates from combined precincts of 1, 10, 11, 12 and 13; two delegates from combined precincts of 8 and 9; and two delegates from combined precincts of 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7.

SECTION 2. Convening of convention. The delegates to the convention thus selected shall meet at Honolulu on the 5th day of July 1978, at a suitable place designated by the governor, and the delegates shall proceed with the organization of the convention, provided that the legislative offices in the State Capitol Building shall not be used for the purposes of the convention. The delegate with the highest number of votes from the first representative district shall serve as temporary chairman.

SECTION 3. Powers. In addition to its inherent powers under the Constitution, the Convention may exercise the powers of the legislative committees as provided for by chapter 21, Hawaii Revised Statutes, as amended, and may appoint staff members without regard to chapters 76 and 77, Hawaii Revised Statutes, as amended, and contract for the legal and consultative services of qualified persons as it may require.

Officers and employees of the State shall have the same duty to the convention as prescribed by section 21-16, Hawaii Revised Statutes, with respect to legislative committees.

SECTION 4. Immunity. Delegates to the convention shall in all cases, except felony or breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during attendance at the convention and in going to and returning from the same.

SECTION 5. Salaries and allowances for delegates. Delegates to the convention shall be entitled to a salary of $1,000 a month, but not more than $4,000 for the convention, plus allowance of $10 per diem for Oahu delegates and $30 per diem for neighbor island delegates.

The salary payments to delegates shall be $500 semi-monthly, the first payment for the period beginning May 21, 1978. State and county employees who are elected and serve as delegates shall have leave, without pay, from their employment from the day after the election until the convention adjourns, and they shall be entitled to the salaries and allowances for delegates hereunder.

SECTION 6. Ratification election. Unless the convention determines otherwise, any constitutional revision or amendment proposed by the convention shall be submitted to the electorate at the general election of November, 1978.

SECTION 7. Appropriations. There is appropriated out of the general revenues of the State of Hawaii the sum of $1,500,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to the office of the governor, or to the officers elected by the delegates if so designated by the governor, for defraying the pre-session, session, and post-session expenses of the constitutional convention, including the payment of compensation to the delegates to the convention, and for such other expenses or purposes pursuant to this Act as may be necessary.

There is appropriated out of the general revenues of the State the sum of $485,599, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to the office of the lieutenant governor for the purpose of conducting the election of delegates to the constitutional convention.

There is appropriated out of the general revenues of the State the sum of $8,500, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to the campaign spending commission for the purpose of supervising campaign contributions and expenditures.

There is appropriated out of the general revenues of the State the sum of $72,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to the office of the legislative reference bureau for the expenses of providing the necessary services and assistance for the convention, including the updating of the Hawaii Constitutional Convention Studies.

SECTION 8. If any provisions of this Act, or the application thereof to any person or circumstances is held invalid, the invalidity does not affect other provisions or applications of the Act which can be given effect without the invalid provision or application, and to this end the provisions of this Act are severable.

SECTION 9. This Act shall take effect on July 1, 1977. (Approved June 27, 1977.)

ACT 42 OF 1978

SESSION LAWS OF HAWAII

A Bill for an Act Relating to the Constitutional Convention.

Be It Enacted by the Legislature of the State of Hawaii:

SECTION 1. Act 17, Session Laws of Hawaii First Special Session of 1977, is amended by amending Section 5 to read as follows:

SECTION 5. Salaries and allowances for delegates. Delegates to the convention shall be entitled to a salary of $1,000 a month, but not more than $4,000 for the convention, plus allowance of $10 per diem for Oahu delegates and $30 per diem for neighbor island delegates. The salary payments to delegates shall be $500 semi-monthly, the first payment for the period beginning May 21, 1978.

A State, county or Judiciary employee who is elected and who serves as a delegate, shall be granted a leave of absence without pay, or shall be entitled to take accumulated vacation leave as provided under chapter 79, Hawaii Revised Statutes, in lieu of the delegate's salary, from the day after the election until the convention adjourns. Any State, county or Judiciary employee who elects to take a leave of absence without pay shall be entitled to the delegate's salary provided hereunder, and shall not suffer any loss of seniority.

SECTION 2. Statutory material to be repealed is bracketed. New material is underscored. In printing this Act, the revisor of statutes need not include the brackets, the bracketed material, or the underscoring.

SECTION 3. This Act shall take effect upon its approval. (Approved May 5, 1978.)

Rules of the Convention

OFFICERS

RULE 1. The officers of the Convention shall be a President, eight Vice-Presidents (one from each of the eight senatorial districts), a Secretary and an Assistant Secretary. The President, Secretary and Assistant Secretary shall be elected from the delegates by the affirmative vote of at least fifty-two delegates, and such election shall be by ballot. Each Vice-President from a senatorial district shall be elected from the delegates who reside within that senatorial district by a majority vote of such delegates.

The election for each of the officers, except the office of each of the Vice-Presidents, shall be as follows:

(a) Nominations shall be made from the floor.

(b) If only one candidate is nominated for an office, it shall be deemed that the candidate received the affirmative vote of at least fifty-two delegates, and the presiding officer shall declare the candidate elected.

(c) If two candidates are nominated for an office, the candidate who receives the affirmative vote of at least fifty-two delegates shall be elected.

(d) If more than two candidates are nominated for an office:
(i) the name of the candidate who receives the least number of votes cast on the first ballot shall be removed from the second ballot; (ii) the name of the candidate who receives the least number of the votes cast on the second ballot and on each subsequent ballot shall be removed from the ballot next succeeding until only the names of two candidates shall remain on the last ballot; and (iii) the candidate who receives the affirmative vote of at least fifty-two delegates on the last ballot shall be elected, provided that any candidate who receives the affirmative vote of at least fifty-two delegates on any ballot shall be elected for that office and further balloting shall be terminated.

(e) The presiding officer shall appoint an election committee to prepare the ballots, inspect the same and count the votes.

EMPLOYEES

RULE 2. The President shall appoint a Chief Clerk, an Assistant Clerk and all other employees subject to the approval of the Convention.

THE PRESIDENT AND VICE-PRESIDENTS

RULE 3. The President shall take the chair each day at the hour to which the Convention shall have adjourned. S/He shall call the Convention to order, and, except in the absence of a quorum, shall proceed to business in the manner prescribed by these rules.

RULE 4. The President shall possess the powers and perform the duties herein prescribed, viz:

(a) S/He shall preserve order and decorum and, in debate, shall prevent personal reflections and confine members to the question under discussion. When two or more members arise at the same time, s/he shall name the one entitled to the floor.

(b) S/He shall decide all questions of order, subject to appeal to the Convention. On every appeal s/he shall have the right, in his/her place, to assign his/her reason for his/her decision. In case of such appeal no member shall speak more than once.

(c) S/He shall appoint all committees, except where the Convention shall otherwise order.

(d) S/He may substitute any member to perform the duties of the chair while s/he is present but for no longer period than that day, except by special consent of the Convention.

(e) When the Convention shall be ready to go into Committee of the Whole, s/he shall name a chair to preside therein.

(f) When necessary or required, s/he shall, with the Secretary, certify all official acts and all vouchers for payment of expenditures of the Convention.

(g) S/He shall designate and assign to seats or authorize the designation and seating of the persons who shall act as reporters for the public press, television and radio within the Convention hall.

(h) S/He shall be a member ex officio without vote of the several committees to which s/he is not specifically appointed.

(i) S/He shall declare the vote and announce the result according to the fact on all questions and divisions.

(j) S/He shall not engage in any debate, or propose his/her opinion on any question, except the assigning of his/her reasons for his/her decision on appeal therefrom, without first calling some delegate to occupy the chair.

RULE 5. In the event of a vacancy in the office of President by death, resignation or otherwise, the Convention shall, by the affirmative vote of at least fifty-two delegates, elect a President to fill such vacancy.

In the case of the temporary absence of the President, his/her duties shall devolve from day to day upon the Vice-Presidents present in alphabetical rotation.

RULE 6. In the event of a vacancy in the office of a Vice-President by death, resignation or otherwise, s/he shall be replaced as set forth in Rule 1 above.

In the case of the temporary absences of all Vice-Presidents to discharge the duties of their offices, the Convention shall have the power to designate and appoint some other delegate to discharge the duties of the office during such temporary absence.

SECRETARY AND ASSISTANT SECRETARY

RULE 7. The Secretary shall keep a journal of the proceedings of the Convention, and, under the direction of the President, shall prepare and place on the desk of the President each day a calendar of the business of the Convention, as provided by these rules.

RULE 8. The Secretary shall prepare for printing all proposals and other documents which are required to be printed under these rules under the direction of the Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing and shall see to it that they are properly and correctly printed.

RULE 9. The Secretary shall number consecutively each proposal of subject matter to be incorporated into the Constitution when introduced. When a proposal is introduced by a committee, the Secretary shall number such proposal consecutively in a separate series.

RULE 10. The Secretary shall preserve all proposals, reports of committees and all other records, books, documents and papers of the Convention and after the adjournment of the Convention shall deliver them to the Archives Division, Department of Accounting and General Services, State of Hawaii, or shall make such other disposal of them as the Convention shall direct.

RULE 11. When necessary or required, the Secretary shall, with the President, certify all official acts and all vouchers for payment of expenditures of the Convention, and s/he shall perform such other duties as are required of him/her by these rules and as from time to time shall be required of him/her by the Convention.

RULE 12. One copy of the final draft of any proposal or committee report presented to or prepared by the Convention shall be delivered by the Secretary to the Archives of the State of Hawaii.

RULE 13. S/He may delegate his/her duties to the Assistant Secretary, and other than certification of official acts, documents and vouchers by the Secretary, s/he may also delegate his/her duties to the Chief Clerk.

In the event of a vacancy in the office of Secretary by death, resignation or otherwise, the Convention shall, by the affirmative vote of at least fifty-two delegates, elect a new Secretary.

In the case of the temporary absence of the Secretary to discharge the duties of his/ her office, the Assistant Secretary shall discharge the duties of the office during such temporary absence.

In the case of the temporary absences of the Secretary and Assistant Secretary to discharge the duties of the office, the Convention shall have the power to designate and appoint some other delegate to discharge the duties of the office during such temporary absence.

QUORUM AND MAJORITY

RULE 14. The presence of at least fifty-two delegates shall be necessary to constitute a quorum of the Convention but a lesser number may meet and adjourn the Convention from day to day when necessary and may require the attendance of absent members.

RULE 15. A quorum being present, an affirmative majority vote of delegates present adopts any motion unless it is one of the particular motions that require a larger vote under parliamentary law or the rules of the Convention.

STANDING COMMITTEES

RULE 16. The standing committees of the Convention shall be appointed by the President unless the Convention shall otherwise order.

The person first named shall be the chair, and the next two persons named shall be the vice-chairs of the committee.

RULE 17. The standing committees of the Convention and the number of members thereof, respectively, shall be as follows:

General Standing Committees

1. Committee on Bill of Rights, Suffrage and Elections. Not less than twenty-three members.

2. Committee on Legislature. Not less than twenty-three members.
3. Committee on Executive. Not less than twenty-three members.
4. Committee on Judiciary. Not less than twenty-three members.
5. Committee on Taxation and Finance. Not less than twenty-three members.
6. Committee on Local Government. Not less than twenty-three members.
7. Committee on Public Health and Welfare; Labor and Industry. Not less than twenty-three members.
8. Committee on Education. Not less than twenty-three members.
9. Committee on Environment, Agriculture, Conservation and Land. Not less than twenty-three members.
10. Committee on Hawaiian Affairs. Not less than twenty-three members.
11. Committee on Ethics. Not less than twenty-three members.
12. Committee on Revision, Amendment and Other Provisions. Not less than twenty-three members.
13. Committee on Style. Not less than seventeen members.
14. Committee on Submission and Information. Not less than sixteen members and, in addition, the Vice-Presidents, Secretary, Assistant Secretary and the chairs of the standing committees shall be members ex officio.

Administrative Standing Committees

1. Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing. Not less than fifteen members.
2. Committee on Rules. Not less than fifteen members.

RULE 18. Functions of standing committees:

(a) It shall be the duty of the standing committees to consider all matters which may be referred to them.

Each standing committee shall submit to the Convention a report or reports, in writing, setting forth the results of its deliberations and its recommendations on all matters referred to it, in the same number and form as prescribed in these rules for proposals.

(b) The Committee on Style shall examine and correct the proposals which are referred to it for the purpose of avoiding inaccuracies, repetitions and inconsistencies and shall arrange the same in the proper order in the Constitution and shall report thereon to the Convention.

The Committee shall have the authority to rephrase but shall have no authority to change the sense or purpose of any proposal referred to it.

Where the proposal referred to the committee appears inconsistent or in conflict with a proposal already acted on favorably by the Convention at Second Reading, the committee shall so notify the Convention and wait upon its instructions.

(c) The Committee on Submission and Information shall consider and report to the Convention the method and manner of submitting the revised Constitution or proposed amendments to the Constitution to the people; shall prepare and present to the Convention for its approval the plan or method of informing the people of the changes in the Constitution or the proposed amendments to the Constitution; shall prepare and present to the Convention for its approval a report to the people outlining the results of the Convention's work, and shall make such other reports as may be required by law and by the instructions of the Convention.

(d) The Committee on Rules shall consider and report upon such changes in the rules of the Convention and changes in its organization as shall be referred to it by the Convention from time to time.

(e) The Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing shall be in charge of the business affairs of the Convention and shall supervise all printing for the Convention.

(f) No public hearing shall be had by any standing committee except after notice is given to the Secretary, in writing, who shall give 72 hours' public notice; provided that notice may be waived with the approval of the President upon good cause shown.

(g) All committee meetings shall be open to the public.

RULE 19. All resolutions for the printing of an extra number of documents shall be referred, as of course, to the Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing for its report thereon before final action by the Convention.

RULE 20. All resolutions authorizing or contemplating the expenditure of money shall be referred, as of course, to the Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing for its report thereon before final action by the Convention.

RULE 21. No committee shall sit during the sessions of the Convention without special leave.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

RULE 22. The Convention may upon motion resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole for the consideration of any matter. In forming the Committee of the Whole, the President of the Convention shall appoint a chair to preside.

RULE 23. Upon consideration of the report or proposal of any standing committee by the Committee of the Whole, consideration of all matters on the same subject shall be in order. All amendments made to proposals, reports, resolutions and other matters submitted to the Committee of the Whole shall be noted and reported.

RULE 24. The rules of the Convention shall be observed in the Committee of the Whole so far as they may be applicable except that the Committee of the Whole cannot adjourn the Convention; no question may be laid on the table; the previous question shall not be ordered; and the motion to postpone indefinitely shall not be in order.

RULE 25. Fifty-two delegates shall be a quorum for the Committee of the Whole to do business.

RULE 26. A motion for the rising of the Committee of the Whole shall always be in order unless a member of the committee is speaking or a vote is being taken, and shall be decided without debate.

ORDER OF BUSINESS, MOTIONS, DECORUM AND DEBATE

RULE 27. At meetings of the Convention the order of business shall be as follows (except at times set apart for the consideration of special orders):

1. Calling Convention to order.
2. Invocation.
3. Determination of quorum.
4. Reading of journal.
5. Presentation of petitions, memorials and communications.
6. Reports of standing committees.
7. Reports of select committees.
8. Introduction and first readings of proposals.
9. Reference of proposals.
10. Motions and resolutions.
11. Unfinished business.
12. Special orders of the day.
13. General orders of the day.

RULE 28. Consideration of the general orders of the day shall be in the following order:

1. Consideration by Committee of the Whole.
2. Reports of the Committee of the Whole.
3. Committee reports and proposals reported from committees.
4. Second Reading.
5. Action on reports of the Committee on Style, as to arrangement and phraseology only.
6. Third Reading and agreement.

If the matter is not considered in its order, it shall lose its precedence for the day, but shall appear on the calendar on the following day in its regular order. Any matter may be made a special order of business for any particular day or time by a majority vote of the delegates present.

RULE 29. Any subject matter having been made the special order for a particular day, and not having been reached on that day, shall be upon the order of "Unfinished Business" on the next succeeding Convention day.

RULE 30. Upon calls of the Convention, the names of the delegates shall be called alphabetically.

In the case of the absence of delegates, the delegates present shall take such measures as they shall deem necessary to secure the presence of absentees.

RULE 31. After a question has been stated by the President, and the calling of the roll has begun, the President shall not recognize a delegate for any purpose whatever until the call is completed; but nothing in this rule shall abridge the right of any delegate to change or record his/her vote on any question previous to the announcement of the result.

RULE 32. The vote upon any question shall be taken by the ayes and noes and entered on the journal, on motion made and seconded before the question is put and upon the request of at least ten delegates.

A delegate may pass the first time his/her name is called by the clerk on any vote, but if s/he remains silent on the next call of his/her name, his/her vote shall be recorded as voting with the affirmative.

RULE 33. The rules of parliamentary practice comprised in Robert's Rules of Order Newly Revised shall govern in all cases in which they are not inconsistent with the standing rules and orders of the Convention.

RULE 34. Any rule of the Convention may be suspended by a vote of at least two-thirds of the delegates present or repealed or amended by a vote of at least fifty-two delegates and any repeal or amendment offered shall lay on the table twenty-four hours before being voted upon.

RULE 35. When a motion is made it shall be stated by the President or, being in writing, it shall be read aloud before being debated.

RULE 36. When a question is under consideration by the Convention, a motion to close debate at a specified time is permissible; it is not debatable but is amendable and shall require a two-thirds vote of the delegates present.

The motions to adjourn, to take a recess, and to adjourn for a longer period than one day shall always be in order, and the last motion shall be amendable and debatable.

Calls for information, for reading a paper, for division of a divisible question, for division of the house, for the ayes and noes, and a motion for reconsideration shall always be in order, but shall not be amendable or debatable.

An appeal from the decision of the chair may be taken at any stage of the proceedings.

RULE 37. A motion to reconsider any vote must be made before the end of the second convention day after the day on which the vote proposed to be reconsidered was taken, and by a delegate who voted in the majority and the same majority shall be required to adopt a motion to reconsider as was required to take the action to be reconsidered.

RULE 38. Any delegate may call for the division of a question which is in its nature divisible. A motion to strike out and insert shall be deemed indivisible; but a motion to strike out being lost, shall neither preclude amendment nor a motion to strike out and insert.

RULE 39. No delegate shall speak more than twice on one question, or longer than ten minutes the first, or longer than five minutes the second time, or more than once until other delegates who have not spoken shall speak if they so desire, without first obtaining leave of the Convention; and the mover of the proposition shall have the right to close the debate, provided that the person in charge of a proposal on Third Reading and final agreement shall have the right, if s/he desires, to close the debate and s/he may announce such desire at any time before the taking of the vote on the question.

RULE 40. No delegate rising to speak shall proceed until s/he shall have addressed the President and been recognized by him/her as entitled to the floor.

RULE 41. While the President is putting a question or a count is being had, no delegate shall speak or leave his/her place, and while a member is speaking no delegate shall engage in any private discourse or pass between him/her and the chair.

RULE 42. When a motion to adjourn, or for recess, shall be carried, no delegate or officer shall leave his/her place until the adjournment or recess shall be declared by the President.

RULE 43. A proposal may be recalled from a committee by the affirmative vote of thirty-one delegates, provided that the committee has reported on the subject matter of such proposal for passage on Second Reading.

RULE 44. Any delegate may at any time rise and speak to a question of personal privilege.

PROPOSALS, SUBMISSION AND INFORMATION

RULE 45. Each proposal shall receive three separate readings in the Convention previous to being agreed upon, but no proposal shall be read twice on the same day or be considered on Third Reading until after at least forty-eight hours' notice of the day upon which it is to be so considered has been given by announcement made in open session.

All proposals may be read by their titles but on Third Reading all proposals shall be read throughout. No amendment shall be received to any proposal on its third reading unless by unanimous consent of the delegates present.

All proposals shall, after the first reading, be printed for the use of the members. Printed copies of proposals shall be used on their second and third readings.

RULE 46. The regular order to be taken by proposals shall be as follows:

(a) Introduction, First Reading, and printing of sufficient copies of each proposal.

(b) Reference to a general standing committee by the President.

(c) Report by committee and printing of sufficient copies thereof.

Four Convention days after the printing of said report it shall be placed on the general orders.

(d) Second Reading: Consideration by the Committee of the Whole and by the Convention and action on amendments offered by delegates.

(e) Reference to the Committee on Style for report within five Convention days.

(f) Report of the Committee on Style and printing of sufficient copies, if necessary.

(g) Action on report of Committee on Style: Consideration and action on amendments as to phraseology only; action on the report as amended and printing of sufficient copies, if necessary.

(h) Third Reading and agreement.

(i) Reference to the Committee on Style for arrangement of sections and article or articles and for form.

(j) Report of Committee on Style as to arrangement of sections and article or articles and printing of sufficient copies, if necessary.

RULE 47. Any subject matter to be incorporated in the Constitution shall be by proposal. A proposal shall be introduced by one or more delegates or by a committee.

RULE 48. Each proposal shall be typewritten on white paper which is 8-1/2" wide and 11" long with one original and seven copies thereof, and shall be dated and signed by the introducer or by the chair of the committee introducing it.

RULE 49. The caption of each proposal shall be:

Constitutional Convention of Hawaii

of 1978

PROPOSAL

Introduced by _____ (Name of delegate or chair of committee)

RULE 50. Each proposal shall contain a short title stating concisely the general nature of its subject matter.

RULE 51. Each proposal shall be in the form of a resolution as follows:

Resolved, That the following be agreed upon as (amending Article(s) _____ of) (adding a new article to) the State Constitution.

RULE 52. Each proposal shall be delivered to the Secretary for introduction. The Secretary shall number and list all proposals as presented. At each session of the Convention, the Secretary shall read the number and title of each proposal so delivered to him/her for introduction, which shall be taken as the first reading of the proposal and as the ordering thereof to a second reading, and the President shall thereupon refer it to a general standing committee.

RULE 53. The President shall refer each proposal introduced to the appropriate committee. Where a proposal embraces subject matter which falls within the proper consideration of several committees, the President, where practicable, shall divide the proposal and refer the parts to the appropriate committees; but if it is not subject to such division, the President shall refer it to an appropriate committee with instructions to consult with other committees on related matters.

Any proposal which does not comply with the provisions of these rules as to form shall be referred to the appropriate committee as a petition.

RULE 54. A copy of each proposal introduced shall be delivered by the Secretary to the Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing. The original shall be retained by the Secretary and one copy shall be delivered to the chair of the committee to which the proposal has been referred.

Each successive reprint of a proposal differing from the previous print or reprint of the same proposal, which is presented to the Convention for consideration, shall bear a consecutive redraft number on the top of the first or title page thereof, as follows:

"Redraft No. 1," or "RD. 1"
"Redraft No. 2," or "RD. 2," etc.

RULE 55. The Convention may set a date after which no proposal shall be introduced, except by a committee.

RULE 56. Each general standing committee may originate and report without specific reference any committee proposal, the subject matter of which properly falls within the consideration of such committee under these rules.

RULE 57. Each committee report recommending any matter for incorporation in the Constitution shall be accompanied by a committee proposal containing a complete article or other appropriate subdivision or group of articles or subdivisions of the Constitution. Such committee proposal need not be referred to the committee introducing the same.

RULE 58. Each amendment offered to a proposal shall be in writing and delivered to the Secretary and shall be entered on the journal. A copy of such amendment shall be delivered by the Secretary to the Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing. The original shall be retained by the Secretary. One copy shall be delivered to the chair of the committee to which the proposal concerned has been referred.

RULE 59. Any proposal which has passed its second reading shall be referred to the Committee on Style for consideration as provided by these rules and when reported by said committee shall be subject to consideration and amendment as to arrangement and phraseology only and, if any such amendment be adopted, shall be again referred to the Committee on Style for similar consideration and report thereof, and, if said committee's report shall be adopted, it shall be ordered to be printed and to Third Reading.

RULE 60. Proposals which have passed two readings shall be prepared by the Secretary in proper form for printing for Third Reading and when the Secretary receives from the Committee on Budget, Accounts and Printing any proposal ordered to a third reading and the same shall be found correct, s/he shall affix his/her signature to each page of the copy to be used as the official copy.

RULE 61. On the question of the agreement upon any proposal on Third Reading, the vote shall be taken by ayes and noes and entered on the journal, and no proposal shall be declared adopted unless at least fifty-two delegates to the Convention shall have voted in favor of the adoption of the same.

RULE 62. After the revised Constitution or proposed amendments to the Constitution have been framed and before final agreement thereon, the Convention shall refer the same to the Committee on Style for proper form and, if necessary, for arrangement in proper order in the Constitution and report thereon, and, upon receipt of the report, the Convention shall by the affirmative vote of at least fifty-two delegates agree upon the final form of the Constitution or proposed amendments to the Constitution.

RULE 63. The final form of the revised Constitution or proposed amendments to the Constitution as agreed upon by the Convention shall be referred to the Committee on Submission and Information. Such committee shall consider and report to the Convention recommending the method and manner of submitting them to the people in accordance with law, and shall give such notices and make such reports as may be required by law and the instructions of the Convention. The manner of submission to the people of the final form of the revised Constitution or proposed amendments to the Constitution shall be agreed upon by resolution of the Convention by the affirmative vote of at least fifty-two delegates.

RULE 64. When the Convention shall have agreed upon the final form of the revised Constitution or proposed amendments to the Constitution and the manner of submission to the people according to law, the original thereof shall be prepared and signed by the President and Secretary and by the concurring delegates desiring to do so. Photostatic copies thereof (white prints) shall be prepared and then be certified by the President and Secretary of the Convention and delivered to the Governor, each delegate, each house of the legislature and to any other officers designated by law or the instructions of the Convention.

State Constitution

As amended and in force January 1, 1979

REVISION NOTE

On November 7, 1978, amendments to the Constitution proposed by the Constitutional Convention of 1978 were presented to the electorate for its approval. The Lieutenant Governor's computer report showed that all of the proposed amendments passed by the necessary constitutional margin. However, the Supreme Court of Hawaii in Kahalekai v. Doi, 60 H. 324, 590 P.2d 543 (1979), held that a number of the proposed amendments were not validly ratified. The revisor has deleted from the Constitution these invalid amendments and added explanatory notes to the sections concerned. This deletion has been done under the authority of Resolution No. 29 of the 1978 Constitutional Convention authorizing the revisor "to effect such necessary rearrangement, renumbering and technical changes of the sections within the articles of the State Constitution, as may be affected for proper form and arrangement and proper order in the State Constitution in the event that any or some of the amendments to the State Constitution proposed by the Constitutional Convention of Hawaii of 1978 are not ratified by the electorate."

In addition to the abovementioned amendments, removed from the text of the Constitution, there appear to be other proposed amendments that may have failed of ratification. A number of unspecified amendments, involving technical, stylistic, and incidental changes, were submitted for approval by the electorate under Question 34. As to these, the court stated:

The question of whether any amendment submitted for approval by Question No. 34 was in fact approved... depends on its effect upon substantive law. If the amendment is purely stylistic and technical in nature, and does not alter the sense, meaning or effect of any provision of the Constitution, it was approved by the electorate and has become a part of the revised Constitution. On the other hand, if the amendment alters the sense, meaning or effect of any provision of the Constitution, it was not ratified and is not effective to change the language of the Constitution. Obviously, we are not now in a position to make these line by line determinations.

The revisor does not consider that the authority granted him under Resolution 29 embraces the elimination of proposed amendments as having failed of ratification where the issue has not been adjudicated. Thus the text of the Constitution includes all the proposed amendments submitted for ratification under Question 34. As an aid to the readers, however, an attempt has been made to identify all such amendments--except those obviously purely technical and stylistic and clearly nonsubstantive (which have been ratified)--and explanatory notes have been appended thereto.

PREAMBLE

We, the people of Hawaii, grateful for Divine Guidance, and mindful of our Hawaiian heritage and uniqueness as an island State, dedicate our efforts to fulfill the philosophy decreed by the Hawaii State motto, "Ua mau ke ea o ka aina i ka pono."

We reserve the right to control our destiny, to nurture the integrity of our people and culture, and to preserve the quality of life that we desire.

We reaffirm our belief in a government of the people, by the people and for the people, and with an understanding and compassionate heart toward all the peoples of the earth, do hereby ordain and establish this constitution for the State of Hawaii.

FEDERAL CONSTITUTION ADOPTED

The Constitution of the United States of America is adopted on behalf of the people of the State of Hawaii.

ARTICLE I BILL OF RIGHTS

POLITICAL POWER

Section 1. All political power of this State is inherent in the people and the responsibility for the exercise thereof rests with the people. All government is founded on this authority.

RIGHTS OF INDIVIDUALS

Section 2. All persons are free by nature and are equal in their inherent and inalienable rights. Among these rights are the enjoyment of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and the acquiring and possessing of property. These rights cannot endure unless the people recognize their corresponding obligations and responsibilities.

EQUALITY OF RIGHTS

Section 3. Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the State on account of sex. The legislature shall have the power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this section.

FREEDOM OF RELIGION, SPEECH, PRESS, ASSEMBLY AND PETITION

Section 4. No law shall be enacted respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

DUE PROCESS AND EQUAL PROTECTION

Section 5. No person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor be denied the equal protection of the laws, nor be denied the enjoyment of the person's civil rights or be discriminated against in the exercise thereof because of race, religion, sex or ancestry.

RIGHT TO PRIVACY

Section 6. The right of the people to privacy is recognized and shall not be infringed without the showing of a compelling state interest. The legislature shall take affirmative steps to implement this right.

SEARCHES, SEIZURES AND INVASION OF PRIVACY

Section 7. The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches, seizures and invasions of privacy shall not be violated; and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched and the persons or things to be seized or the communications sought to be intercepted.

RIGHTS OF CITIZENS

Section 8. No citizen shall be disfranchised, or deprived of any of the rights or privileges secured to other citizens, unless by the law of the land.

ENLISTMENT; SEGREGATION

Section 9. No citizen shall be denied enlistment in any military organization of this State nor be segregated therein because of race, religious principles or ancestry.

INDICTMENT; DOUBLE JEOPARDY; SELF-INCRIMINATION

Section 10. No person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the armed forces when in actual service in time of war or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy; nor shall any person be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against oneself.

GRAND JURY COUNSEL

Section 11. Whenever a grand jury is impaneled, there shall be an independent counsel appointed as provided by law to advise the members of the grand jury regarding matters brought before it. Independent counsel shall be selected from among those persons licensed to practice law by the supreme court of the State and shall not be a public employee. The term and compensation for independent counsel shall be as provided by law.

BAIL; EXCESSIVE PUNISHMENT

Section 12. Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel or unusual punishment inflicted. The court may dispense with bail if reasonably satisfied that the defendant or witness will appear when directed, except for a defendant charged with an offense punishable by life imprisonment.

Validity of amendment. A proposal of the 1978 Constitutional Convention deleted the former section 12, which read: "No person shall be disqualified to serve as a juror because of sex." This deletion appears to be one of the unspecified changes submitted for ratification under Question 34. On whether any of the changes submitted under Question 34 was in fact approved by the electorate, see Kahalekai v. Doi 60 H. 324 (1979) excerpted in the note preceding the Preamble to the Constitution.

TRIAL BY JURY, CIVIL CASES

Section 13. In suits at common law where the value in controversy shall exceed one thousand dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved. The legislature may provide for a verdict by not less than three-fourths of the members of the jury.

RIGHTS OF ACCUSED

Section 14. In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury of the district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, or of such other district to which the prosecution may be removed with the consent of the accused; to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against the accused; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in the accused's favor; and to have the assistance of counsel for the accused's defense. Juries, where the crime charged is serious, shall consist of twelve persons. The State shall provide counsel for an indigent defendant charged with an offense punishable by imprisonment.

HABEAS CORPUS AND SUSPENSION OF LAWS

Section 15. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended unless, when in cases of rebellion or invasion, the public safety may require it.

The power of suspending the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, and the laws or the execution thereof, shall never be exercised except by the legislature, or by authority derived from it to be exercised in such particular cases only as the legislature shall expressly prescribe.

SUPREMACY OF CIVIL POWER

Section 16. The military shall be held in strict subordination to the civil power.

RIGHT TO BEAR ARMS

Section 17. A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

QUARTERING OF SOLDIERS

Section 18. No soldier or member of the militia shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house, without the consent of the owner or occupant, nor in time of war, except in a manner provided by law.

IMPRISONMENT FOR DEBT

Section 19. There shall be no imprisonment for debt.

EMINENT DOMAIN

Section 20. Private property shall not be taken or damaged for public use without just compensation.

LIMITATIONS OF SPECIAL PRIVILEGES

Section 21. The power of the State to act in the general welfare shall never be impaired by the making of any irrevocable grant of special privileges or immunities.

CONSTRUCTION

Section 22. The enumeration of rights and privileges shall not be construed to impair or deny others retained by the people.

ARTICLE II
SUFFRAGE AND ELECTIONS

QUALIFICATIONS

Section 1. Every citizen of the United States who shall have attained the age of eighteen years, have been a resident of this State not less than one year next preceding the election and be a voter registered as provided by law, shall be qualified to vote in any state or local election.

DISQUALIFICATION

Section 2. No person who is non compos mentis shall be qualified to vote. No person convicted of a felony shall be qualified to vote except upon the person's final discharge or earlier as provided by law.

RESIDENCE

Section 3. No person shall be deemed to have gained or lost residence simply because of the person's presence or absence while employed in the service of the United States, or while engaged in navigation or while a student at any institution of learning.

REGISTRATION; VOTING

Section 4. The legislature shall provide for the registration of voters and for absentee voting and shall prescribe the method of voting at all elections; provided that no person shall be required to declare a party preference or nonpartisanship as a condition of voting in any primary or special primary election. Secrecy of voting and choice of political party affiliation or nonpartisanship shall be preserved.

CAMPAIGN FUND, SPENDING LIMIT

Section 5. The legislature shall establish a campaign fund to be used for partial public financing of campaigns for public offices of the State and its political subdivisions, as provided by law. The legislature shall provide a limit on the campaign spending of candidates.

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS LIMITS

Section 6. Limitations on campaign contributions to any political candidate, or authorized political campaign organization for such candidate, for any elective office within the State shall be provided by law.

RESIGNATION FROM PUBLIC OFFICE

Section 7. Any elected public officer shall resign from that office before being eligible as a candidate for another public office, if the term of the office sought begins before the end of the term of the office held.

GENERAL, SPECIAL AND PRIMARY ELECTIONS

Section 8. General elections shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November in all even-numbered years. Special and primary elections may be held as provided by law; provided that in no case shall any primary election precede a general election by less than forty-five days.

PRESIDENTIAL PREFERENCE PRIMARY

Section 9. A presidential preference primary may be held as provided by law.

CONTESTED ELECTIONS

Section 10. Contested elections shall be determined by a court of competent jurisdiction in such manner as shall be provided by law.

ARTICLE III THE LEGISLATURE

LEGISLATIVE POWER

Section 1. The legislative power of the State shall be vested in a legislature, which shall consist of two houses, a senate and a house of representatives. Such power shall extend to all rightful subjects of legislation not inconsistent with this constitution or the Constitution of the United States.

COMPOSITION OF SENATE

Section 2. The senate shall be composed of twenty-five members, who shall be elected by the qualified voters of the respective senatorial districts. Until the next reapportionment, the senatorial districts and the number of senators to be elected from each shall be as set forth in the Schedule.

Validity of amendment. A proposal of the 1978 Constitutional Convention rewriting this section was not validly ratified. Kahalekai v. Doi, 60 H. 324 (1979). The revisor has deleted the textual changes under the authority of Resolution No. 29 of the 1978 Constitutional Convention.

COMPOSITION OF HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Section 3. The house of representatives shall be composed of fifty-one members, who shall be elected by the qualified voters of the respective representative districts. Until the next reapportionment, the representative districts and the number of representatives to be elected from each shall be as set forth in the Schedule.

Validity of amendment. A proposal of the 1978 Constitutional Convention rewriting this section was not validly ratified. Kahalekai v. Doi, 60 H. 324 (1979). The revisor has deleted the textual changes under the authority of Resolution No. 29 of the 1978 Constitutional Convention.

ELECTION OF MEMBERS; TERM

Section 4. The members of the legislature shall be elected at general elections. The term of office of members of the house of representatives shall be two years beginning with their election and ending on the day of the next general election, and the term of office of members of the senate shall be four years beginning with their election and ending on the day of the second general election after their election.

VACANCIES

Section 5. Any vacancy in the legislature shall be filled for the unexpired term in such manner as may be provided by law, or, if no provision be made by law, by appointment by the governor for the unexpired term.

QUALIFICATIONS OF MEMBERS

Section 6. No person shall be eligible to serve as a member of the senate unless the person shall have been a resident of the State for not less than three years, have attained the age of majority and be a qualified voter of the senatorial district from which the person seeks to be elected. No person shall be eligible to serve as a member of the house of representatives unless the person shall have been a resident of the State for not less than three years, have attained the age of majority and be a qualified voter of the representative district from which the person seeks to be elected.

PRIVILEGES OF MEMBERS

Section 7. No member of the legislature shall be held to answer before any other tribunal for any statement made or action taken in the exercise of the member's legislative functions; and members of the legislature shall, in all cases except felony or breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the sessions of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same.

DISQUALIFICATIONS OF MEMBERS

Section 8. No member of the legislature shall hold any other public office under the State, nor shall the member, during the term for which the member is elected or appointed, be elected or appointed to any public office or employment which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased, by legislative act during such term. The term "public office," for the purposes of this section, shall not include notaries public, reserve police officers or officers of emergency organizations for civilian defense or disaster relief. The legislature may prescribe further disqualifications.

SALARY; ALLOWANCES; COMMISSION ON LEGISLATIVE SALARY

Section 9. The members of the legislature shall receive allowances reasonably related to expenses as provided by law, and a salary prescribed pursuant to this section.

There shall be a commission on legislative salary, which shall be appointed by the governor on or before November 30, 1978, and every eight years thereafter. Not later than the fortieth legislative day of the 1979 regular legislative session and every eight years thereafter, the commission shall submit to the legislature and the governor recommendations for a salary plan for members of the legislature, and then dissolve. The salary plan submitted shall become effective as provided in the plan unless the legislature disapproves the plan by adoption of a concurrent resolution prior to adjournment sine die of the legislative session in which the plan is submitted or the governor disapproves the plan by a message of disapproval transmitted to the legislature prior to such adjournment. Any change in salary which becomes effective shall not apply to the legislature to which the recommendation for the change in salary was submitted.

SESSIONS

Section 10. The legislature shall convene annually in regular session at 10:00 o'clock a.m. on the third Wednesday in January.

At the written request of two-thirds of the members to which each house is entitled, the presiding officers of both houses shall convene the legislature in special session. The governor may convene both houses or the senate alone in special session.

Regular sessions shall be limited to a period of sixty days, and special sessions shall be limited to a period of thirty days. Any session may be extended a total of not more than fifteen days. Such extension shall be granted by the presiding officers of both houses at the written request of two-thirds of the members to which each house is entitled or may be granted by the governor.

Each regular session shall be recessed for not less than five days at some period between the twentieth and fortieth days of the regular session. The legislature shall determine the dates of the mandatory recess by concurrent resolution. Any session may be recessed by concurrent resolution adopted by a majority of the members to which each house is entitled. Saturdays, Sundays, holidays, the days in mandatory recess and any days in recess pursuant to a concurrent resolution shall be excluded in computing the number of days of any session.

All sessions shall be held in the capital of the State. In case the capital shall be unsafe, the governor may direct that any session be held at some other place.

ADJOURNMENT

Section 11. Neither house shall adjourn during any session of the legislature for more than three days, or sine die, without the consent of the other.

ORGANIZATION; DISCIPLINE; RULES; PROCEDURE

Section 12. Each house shall be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members and shall have, for misconduct, disorderly behavior or neglect of duty of any member, power to punish such member by censure or, upon a two-thirds vote of all the members to which such house is entitled, by suspension or expulsion of such member. Each house shall choose its own officers, determine the rules of its proceedings and keep a journal. The ayes and noes of the members on any question shall, at the desire of one-fifth of the members present, be entered upon the journal.

Twenty days after a bill has been referred to a committee in either house, the bill may be recalled from such committee by the affirmative vote of one-third of the members to which such house is entitled.

Every meeting of a committee in either house or of a committee comprised of a member or members from both houses held for the purpose of making decision on matters referred to the committee shall be open to the public.

By rule of its proceedings, applicable to both houses, each house shall provide for the date by which all bills to be considered in a regular session shall be introduced. This date shall be after the nineteenth day of the session and shall precede the commencement of the mandatory recess of not less than five days as provided in section 10 of this article.

QUORUM; COMPULSORY ATTENDANCE

Section 13. A majority of the number of members to which each house is entitled shall constitute a quorum of such house for the conduct of ordinary business, of which quorum a majority vote shall suffice; but the final passage of a bill in each house shall require the vote of a majority of all the members to which such house is entitled, taken by ayes and noes and entered upon its journal. A smaller number than a quorum may adjourn from day to day and may compel the attendance of absent members in such manner and under such penalties as each house may provide.

BILLS; ENACTMENT

Section 14. No law shall be passed except by bill. Each law shall embrace but one subject, which shall be expressed in its title. The enacting clause of each law shall be, "Be it enacted by the legislature of the State of Hawaii."

PASSAGE OF BILLS

Section 15. No bill shall become law unless it shall pass three readings in each house on separate days. No bill shall pass third or final reading in either house unless printed copies of the bill in the form to be passed shall have been made available to the members of that house for at least forty-eight hours.

Every bill when passed by the house in which it originated, or in which amendments thereto shall have originated, shall immediately be certified by the presiding officer and clerk and sent to the other house for consideration.

Any bill pending at the final adjournment of a regular session in an odd-numbered year shall carry over with the same status to the next regular session. Before the carried-over bill is enacted, it shall pass at least one reading in the house in which the bill originated.

APPROVAL OR VETO

Section 16. Every bill which shall have passed the legislature shall be certified by the presiding officers and clerks of both houses and shall thereupon be presented to the governor. If the governor approves it, the governor shall sign it and it shall become law. If the governor does not approve such bill, the governor may return it, with the governor's objections to the legislature. Except for items appropriated to be expended by the judicial and legislative branches, the governor may veto any specific item or items in any bill which appropriates money for specific purposes by striking out or reducing the same; but the governor shall veto other bills, if at all, only as a whole.

The governor shall have ten days to consider bills presented to the governor ten or more days before the adjournment of the legislature sine die, and if any such bill is neither signed nor returned by the governor within that time, it shall become law in like manner as if the governor had signed it.

RECONSIDERATION AFTER ADJOURNMENT

The governor shall have forty-five days, after the adjournment of the legislature sine die, to consider bills presented to the governor less than ten days before such adjournment, or presented after adjournment, and any such bill shall become law on the forty-fifth day unless the governor by proclamation shall have given ten days' notice to the legislature that the governor plans to return such bill with the governor's objections on that day. The legislature may convene at or before noon on the forty-fifth day in special session, without call, for the sole purpose of acting upon any such bill returned by the governor. In case the legislature shall fail to so convene, such bill shall not become law. Any such bill may be amended to meet the governor's objections and, if so amended and passed, only one reading being required in each house for such passage, it shall be presented again to the governor, but shall become law only if the governor shall sign it within ten days after presentation.

In computing the number of days designated in this section, the following days shall be excluded: Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and any days in which the legislature is in recess prior to its adjournment as provided in section 10 of this article.

PROCEDURES UPON VETO

Section 17. Upon the receipt of a veto message from the governor, each house shall enter the same at large upon its journal and proceed to reconsider the vetoed bill, or the item or items vetoed, and again vote upon such bill, or such item or items, by ayes and noes, which shall be entered upon its journal. If after such reconsideration such bill, or such item or items, shall be approved by a two-thirds vote of all members to which each house is entitled, the same shall become law.

PUNISHMENT OF NONMEMBERS

Section 18. Each house may punish by fine, or by imprisonment not exceeding thirty days, any person not a member of either house who shall be guilty of disrespect of such house by any disorderly or contemptuous behavior in its presence or that of any committee thereof; or who shall, on account of the exercise of any legislative function, threaten harm to the body or estate of any of the members of such house; or who shall assault, arrest or detain any witness or other person ordered to attend such house, on the witness' or other person's way going to or returning therefrom; or who shall rescue any person arrested by order of such house.

Any person charged with such an offense shall be informed in writing of the charge made against the person and have opportunity to present evidence and be heard in the person's own defense.

IMPEACHMENT

Section 19. The governor and lieutenant governor, and any appointive officer for whose removal the consent of the senate is required, may be removed from office upon conviction of impeachment for such causes as may be provided by law.

The house of representatives shall have the sole power of impeachment of the governor and lieutenant governor and the senate the sole power to try such impeachments, and no such officer shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members of the senate. When sitting for that purpose, the members of the senate shall be on oath or affirmation and the chief justice shall preside. Subject to the provisions of this paragraph, the legislature may provide for the manner and procedure of removal by impeachment of such officers.

The legislature shall by law provide for the manner and procedure of removal by impeachment of the appointive officers.

Judgments in cases of impeachment shall not extend beyond removal from office and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust or profit under the State; but the person convicted may nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment as provided by law.

ARTICLE IV REAPPORTIONMENT

REAPPORTIONMENT YEARS

Section 1. The year 1973, the year 1981, and every tenth year thereafter shall be reapportionment years.

REAPPORTIONMENT COMMISSION

Section 2. A reapportionment commission shall be constituted on or before March 1 of each reapportionment year and whenever reapportionment is required by court order. The commission shall consist of nine members. The president of the senate and the speaker of the house of representatives shall each select two members. Members of each house belonging to the party or parties different from that of the president or the speaker shall designate one of their number for each house and the two so designated shall each select two members of the commission. The eight members so selected shall, promptly after selection, be certified by the selecting authorities to the chief election officer and shall within thirty days thereafter select, by a vote of six members, and promptly certify to the chief election officer the ninth member who shall serve as chairperson of the commission.

Each of the four officials designated above as selecting authorities for the eight members of the commission shall, at the time of the commission selections, also select one person from each basic island unit to serve on an apportionment advisory council for that island unit. The councils shall remain in existence during the life of the commission and each shall serve in an advisory capacity to the commission for matters affecting its island unit.

A vacancy in the commission or a council shall be filled by the initial selecting authority within fifteen days after the vacancy occurs. Commission and council positions and vacancies not filled within the times specified shall be filled promptly thereafter by the supreme court.

The commission shall act by majority vote of its membership and shall establish its own procedures, except as may be provided by law.

Not more than one hundred fifty days from the date on which its members are certified, the commission shall file with the chief election officer a reapportionment plan for the state legislature and a reapportionment plan for the United States congressional districts which shall become law after publication as provided by law. Members of the commission shall hold office until each reapportionment plan becomes effective or until such time as may be provided by law.

No member of the reapportionment commission or an apportionment advisory council shall be eligible to become a candidate for election to either house of the legislature or to the United States House of Representatives in either of the first two elections under any such reapportionment plan.

Commission and apportionment advisory council members shall be compensated and reimbursed for their necessary expenses as provided by law.

The chief election officer shall be secretary of the commission without vote and, under the direction of the commission, shall furnish all necessary technical services. The legislature shall appropriate funds to enable the commission to carry out its duties.

CHIEF ELECTION OFFICER

Section 3. The legislature shall provide for a chief election officer of the State, whose responsibilities shall be as provided by law and shall include the supervision of state elections, the maximization of registration of eligible voters throughout the State and the maintenance of data concerning registered voters, elections, apportionment and districting.

APPORTIONMENT AMONG BASIC ISLAND UNITS

Section 4. The commission shall allocate the total number of members of each house of the state legislature being reapportioned among the four basic island units, namely: (1) the island of Hawaii, (2) the islands of Maui, Lanai, Molokai and Kahoolawe, (3) the island of Oahu and all other islands not specifically enumerated, and (4) the islands of Kauai and Niihau, on the basis of the number of voters registered in the last preceding general election in each of the basic island units and computed by the method known as the method of equal proportions; except that no basic island unit shall receive less than one member in each house.

MINIMUM REPRESENTATION FOR BASIC ISLAND UNITS

Section 5. The representation of any basic island unit initially allocated less than a minimum of two senators and three representatives shall be augmented by allocating thereto the number of senators or representatives necessary to attain such minimums which number, notwithstanding the provisions of Sections 2 and 3 of Article III shall be added to the membership of the appropriate body until the next reapportionment. The senators or representatives of any basic island unit so augmented shall exercise a fractional vote wherein the numerator is the number initially allocated and the denominator is the minimum above specified.

Validity of amendment. A proposal of the 1978 Constitutional Convention deleting this provision from the Constitution was not validly ratified, Kahalekai v. Doi, 60 H. 324 (1979). In view of the holding, the revisor has restored this provision (formerly a part of section 4 of the old article III), with a necessary change in reference, and renumbered it as section 5 under the authority of Resolution No. 29 of the 1978 Constitutional Convention.

APPORTIONMENT WITHIN BASIC ISLAND UNITS

Section 6. Upon the determination of the total number of members of each house of the state legislature to which each basic island unit is entitled, the commission shall apportion the members among the districts therein and shall redraw district lines where necessary in such manner that for each house the average number of registered voters per member in each district is as nearly equal to the average for the basic island unit as practicable.

In effecting such redistricting, the commission shall be guided by the following criteria:

1. No district shall extend beyond the boundaries of any basic island unit.
2. No district shall be so drawn as to unduly favor a person or political faction.
3. Except in the case of districts encompassing more than one island, districts shall be contiguous.
4. Insofar as practicable, districts shall be compact.
5. Where possible, district lines shall follow permanent and easily recognized features, such as streets, streams and clear geographical features, and, when practicable, shall coincide with census tract boundaries.
6. Where practicable, representative districts shall be wholly included within senatorial districts.
7. Not more than four members shall be elected from any district.
8. Where practicable, submergence of an area in a larger district wherein substantially different socio-economic interests predominate shall be avoided.

Validity of amendment. A proposal of the 1978 Constitutional Convention adding to the second paragraph an item 9 reading: "9. No consideration shall be given to holdover senators in effecting redistricting." was not validly ratified. Kahalekai v. Doi, 60 H. 324 (1979). In view of the holding, the revisor has deleted the provision under the authority of Resolution No. 29 of the 1978 Constitutional Convention.

PLACEMENT OF HOLDOVER SENATORS

Section 7. If a senator is serving a term which will extend past the general election at which an apportionment plan becomes effective, the reapportionment commission shall designate in the plan the senatorial district the senator shall represent for the remaining period of the senator's term. In making such designation, the senator need not live in the senatorial district which the senator is designated as representing during the remainder of the term which extends past the general election for which the reapportionment plan becomes effective; provided the reapportionment commission shall consider the following criteria:

1. The senatorial district from which the senator was elected.
2. The senatorial district in which the senator will reside under the reapportionment plan.
3. The requirement of continuing the staggered terms of senators in each district as established by Section 2 of Article XVIII, the next section in this article and the number of senators in a senatorial district under the reapportionment plan of the commission.

RETENTION OF STAGGERED TERMS FOR THE SENATE

Section 8. The senate shall be composed of senators who serve staggered terms of office as follows: senatorial districts with one member, the term of office shall end as provided by the constitution; senatorial districts with two members, each member shall serve a term ending on the date of a different general election; senatorial districts with three members, (A) two members shall serve a term ending on the date of the same general election and (B) one member shall serve a term ending on the date of a general election different than the other two members; senatorial districts with four members, (A) two members shall serve a term ending on the date of the same general election and (B) two members shall serve a term ending on the date of a general election different than the other two members.

If, in the first or second general election in which senators are elected after a reapportionment, the number of senators in a senatorial district whose terms would end on a date of a general election will be more than that set forth in the above paragraph, then at such general election the members of the senate shall be divided into two classes. The members of the first class shall hold office for a term of four years beginning with their election and ending on the day of the second general election held thereafter. The first class shall consist of that number of persons with the highest number of votes necessary to fulfill item (B) in the above paragraph for senatorial districts with three or four members or one person in senatorial districts with two members. The remaining persons shall constitute the second class and shall hold office for a term of two years beginning with their election and ending on the day of the next general election held thereafter.

CONGRESSIONAL REDISTRICTING FOR UNITED STATES HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Section 9. The commission shall, at such time as may be required by this article and as may be required by law of the United States, redraw congressional district lines for the districts from which the members of the United States House of Representatives allocated to this State by Congress are elected.

MANDAMUS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW

Section 10. Original jurisdiction is vested in the supreme court of the State to be exercised on the petition of any registered voter whereby it may compel, by mandamus or otherwise, the appropriate person or persons to perform their duty or to correct any error made in a reapportionment plan, or it may take such other action to effectuate the purposes of this section as it may deem appropriate. Any such petition shall be filed within forty-five days of the date specified for any duty or within forty-five days after the filing of a reapportionment plan.

ARTICLE V THE EXECUTIVE

ESTABLISHMENT OF THE EXECUTIVE

Section 1. The executive power of the State shall be vested in a governor.

The governor shall be elected by the qualified voters of this State at a general election. The person receiving the highest number of votes shall be the governor. In case of a tie vote, the selection of the governor shall be determined as provided by law.

The term of office of the governor shall begin at noon on the first Monday in December next following the governor's election and end at noon on the first Monday in December, four years thereafter.

No person shall be elected to the office of governor for more than two consecutive full terms.

No person shall be eligible for the office of governor unless the person shall be a qualified voter, have attained the age of thirty years and have been a resident of this State for five years immediately preceding the person's election.

The governor shall not hold any other office or employment of profit under the State or the United States during the governor's term of office.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Section 2. There shall be a lieutenant governor who shall have the same qualifications as the governor. The lieutenant governor shall be elected at the same time, for the same term and in the same manner as the governor; provided that the votes cast in the general election for the nominee for governor shall be deemed cast for the nominee for lieutenant governor of the same political party. No person shall be elected to the office of lieutenant governor for more than two consecutive full terms. The lieutenant governor shall perform such duties as may be provided by law.

COMPENSATION: GOVERNOR, LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Section 3. The compensation of the governor and of the lieutenant governor shall be as provided by law, but shall not be less than thirty-three thousand five hundred dollars, and twenty-seven thousand five hundred dollars, respectively, a year. Such compensation shall not be increased or decreased for their respective terms, unless by general law applying to all salaried officers of the State. When the lieutenant governor succeeds to the office of the governor, the lieutenant governor shall receive the compensation for that office.

SUCCESSION TO GOVERNORSHIP; ABSENCE OR DISABILITY OF GOVERNOR

Section 4. When the office of governor is vacant, the lieutenant governor shall become governor. In the event of the absence of the governor from the State, or the governor's inability to exercise and discharge the powers and duties of the governor's office, such powers and duties shall devolve upon the lieutenant governor during such absence or disability.

When the office of lieutenant governor is vacant, or in the event of the absence of the lieutenant governor from the State, or the lieutenant governor's inability to exercise and discharge the powers and duties of the lieutenant governor's office, such powers and duties shall devolve upon such officers in such order of succession as may be provided by law.

In the event of the impeachment of the governor or of the lieutenant governor, the governor or the lieutenant governor shall not exercise the powers of the applicable office until acquitted.

EXECUTIVE POWERS

Section 5. The governor shall be responsible for the faithful execution of the laws. The governor shall be commander in chief of the armed forces of the State and may call out such forces to execute the laws, suppress or prevent insurrection or lawless violence or repel invasion. The governor shall, at the beginning of each session, and may, at other times, give to the legislature information concerning the affairs of the State and recommend to its consideration such measures as the governor shall deem expedient.

The governor may grant reprieves, commutations and pardons, after conviction, for all offenses, subject to regulation by law as to the manner of applying for the same. The legislature may, by general law, authorize the governor to grant pardons before conviction, to grant pardons for impeachment and to restore civil rights denied by reason of conviction of offenses by tribunals other than those of this State.

The governor shall appoint an administrative director to serve at the governor's pleasure.

EXECUTIVE AND ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICES AND DEPARTMENTS

Section 6. All executive and administrative offices, departments and instrumentalities of the state government and their respective powers and duties shall be allocated by law among and within not more than twenty principal departments in such a manner as to group the same according to common purposes and related functions. Temporary commissions or agencies for special purposes may be established by law and need not be allocated within a principal department.

Each principal department shall be under the supervision of the governor and, unless otherwise provided in this constitution or by law, shall be headed by a single executive. Such single executive shall be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the governor. That person shall hold office for a term to expire at the end of the term for which the governor was elected, unless sooner removed by the governor; except that the removal of the chief legal officer of the State shall be subject to the advice and consent of the senate.

Except as otherwise provided in this constitution, whenever a board, commission or other body shall be the head of a principal department of the state government, the members thereof shall be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the governor. The term of office and removal of such members shall be as provided by law. Such board, commission or other body may appoint a principal executive officer who, when authorized by law, may be an ex officio, voting member thereof, and who may be removed by a majority vote of the members appointed by the governor.

The governor shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint all officers for whose election or appointment provision is not otherwise provided for by this constitution or by law. If the manner of removal of an officer is not prescribed in this constitution, removal shall be as provided by law.

When the senate is not in session and a vacancy occurs in any office, appointment to which requires the confirmation of the senate, the governor may fill the office by granting a commission which shall expire, unless such appointment is confirmed, at the end of the next session of the senate. The person so appointed shall not be eligible for another interim appointment to such office if the appointment failed to be confirmed by the senate.

No person who has been nominated for appointment to any office and whose appointment has not received the consent of the senate shall be eligible to an interim appointment thereafter to such office.

Every officer appointed under the provisions of this section shall be a citizen of the United States and shall have been a resident of this State for at least one year immediately preceding that person's appointment, except that this residency requirement shall not apply to the president of the University of Hawaii.

ARTICLE VI THE JUDICIARY

JUDICIAL POWER

Section 1. The judicial power of the State shall be vested in one supreme court, one intermediate appellate court, circuit courts, district courts and in such other courts as the legislature may from time to time establish. The several courts shall have original and appellate jurisdiction as provided by law and shall establish time limits for disposition of cases in accordance with their rules.

SUPREME COURT; INTERMEDIATE APPELLATE COURT; CIRCUIT COURTS

Section 2. The supreme court shall consist of a chief justice and four associate justices. The chief justice may assign a judge or judges of the intermediate appellate court or a circuit court to serve temporarily on the supreme court, a judge of the circuit court to serve temporarily on the intermediate appellate court and a judge of the district court to serve temporarily on the circuit court. As provided by law, retired justices of the supreme court also may serve temporarily on the supreme court at the request of the chief justice. In case of a vacancy in the office of chief justice, or if the chief justice is ill, absent or otherwise unable to serve, an associate justice designated in accordance with the rules of the supreme court shall serve temporarily in place of the chief justice.

APPOINTMENT OF JUSTICES AND JUDGES

Section 3. The governor shall, with the consent of the senate, fill a vacancy in the office of the chief justice, supreme court, intermediate appellate court and circuit courts, by appointing a person from a list of not less than six nominees for the vacancy, presented to the governor by the judicial selection commission.

If the governor fails to make any appointment within thirty days of presentation, or within ten days of the senate's rejection of any previous appointment, the appointment shall be made by the judicial selection commission from the list with the consent of the senate. If the senate fails to reject any appointment within thirty days thereof, it shall be deemed to have given its consent to such appointment. If the senate shall reject any appointment, the governor shall make another appointment from the list within ten days thereof. The same appointment and consent procedure shall be followed until a valid appointment has been made, or failing this, the commission shall make the appointment from the list, without senate consent.

The chief justice shall fill a vacancy in the district courts by appointing a person from a list of not less than six nominees for the vacancy presented by the judicial commission. If the chief justice fails to make the appointment within thirty days of presentation, the appointment shall be made by the judicial selection commission from the list. The chief justice shall appoint per diem district court judges as provided by law.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR APPOINTMENT

Justices and judges shall be residents and citizens of the State and of the United States, and licensed to practice law by the supreme court. A justice of the supreme court, a judge of the intermediate appellate court and a judge of the circuit court shall have been so licensed for a period of not less than ten years preceding nomination. A judge of the district court shall have been so licensed for a period of not less than five years preceding nomination.

No justice or judge shall, during the term of office, engage in the practice of law, or run for or hold any other office or position of profit under the United States, the State or its political subdivisions.

TENURE; COMPENSATION; RETIREMENT

The term of office of justices and judges of the supreme court, intermediate appellate court and circuit courts shall be ten years. Judges of district courts shall hold office for the periods as provided by law. At least six months prior to the expiration of a justice's or judge's term of office, every justice and judge shall petition the judicial selection commission to be retained in office or shall inform the commission of an intention to retire. If the judicial selection commission determines that the justice or judge should be retained in office, the commission shall renew the term of office of such justice or judge for the period provided by this section or by law.

There shall be a salary commission to review and recommend salaries for justices and judges of all state courts. Justices and judges shall have salaries as provided by law. Their compensation shall not be decreased during their respective terms of office, unless by general law applying to all salaried officers of the State. They shall be retired upon attaining the age of seventy years. They shall be included in any retirement law of the State.

JUDICIAL SELECTION COMMISSION

Section 4. There shall be a judicial selection commission that shall consist of nine members. The governor shall appoint three members to the commission. No more than one of the three members shall be a licensed attorney. The president of the senate and the speaker of the house of representatives shall each respectively appoint one member to the commission. The chief justice of the supreme court shall appoint two members to the commission. No more than one of the two members shall be a licensed attorney. Members in good standing of the bar of the State shall elect two of their number to the commission in an election conducted by the supreme court or its delegate. No more than four members of the commission shall be licensed attorneys.

The commission shall be selected and shall operate in a wholly nonpartisan manner. After the initial formation of the commission, elections and appointments to the commission shall be for staggered terms of six years each. No member of the commission shall serve for more than one full six-year term on the commission.

Each member of the judicial selection commission shall be a resident of the State and a citizen of the United States. No member shall run for or hold any other elected office under the United States, the State or its political subdivisions. No member shall take an active part in political management or in political campaigns. No member shall be eligible for appointment to judicial office of the State so long as the person is a member of the judicial commission and for a period of three years thereafter.

No act of the judicial selection commission shall be valid except by concurrence of the majority of its voting members.

The judicial selection commission shall select one of its members to serve as chairperson. The commission shall promulgate rules which shall have the force and effect of law. The deliberations of the commission shall be confidential.

The legislature shall provide for the staff and operating expenses of the judicial selection commission in a separate budget. No member of the judicial selection commission shall receive any compensation for commission services, but shall be allowed necessary expenses for travel, board and lodging incurred in the performance of commission duties.

The judicial selection commission shall be attached to the judiciary branch of the state government for purposes of administration.

RETIREMENT; REMOVAL; DISCIPLINE

Section 5. The supreme court shall have the power to reprimand, discipline, suspend with or without salary, retire or remove from office any justice or judge for misconduct or disability, as provided by rules adopted by the supreme court.

The supreme court shall create a commission on judicial discipline which shall have authority to investigate and conduct hearings concerning allegations of misconduct or disability and to make recommendations to the supreme court concerning reprimand, discipline, suspension, retirement or removal of any justice or judge.

ADMINISTRATION

Section 6. The chief justice of the supreme court shall be the administrative head of the courts. The chief justice may assign judges from one circuit court to another for temporary service. With the approval of the supreme court, the chief justice shall appoint an administrative director to serve at the chief justice's pleasure.

RULES

Section 7. The supreme court shall have power to promulgate rules and regulations in all civil and criminal cases for all courts relating to process, practice, procedure and appeals, which shall have the force and effect of law.

ARTICLE VII TAXATION AND FINANCE

TAXING POWER INALIENABLE

Section 1. The power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away.

INCOME TAXATION

Section 2. In enacting any law imposing a tax on or measured by income, the legislature may define income by reference to provisions of the laws of the United States as they may be or become effective at any time or from time to time, whether retrospective or prospective in their operation. The legislature may provide that amendments to such laws of the United States shall become the law of the State upon their becoming the law of the United States. The legislature shall in any such law set the rate or rates of such tax. The legislature may in so defining income make exceptions, additions or modifications to any provisions of the laws of the United States so referred to and provide for retrospective exceptions or modifications to those provisions which are retrospective.

TAX REVIEW COMMISSION

Section 3. There shall be a tax review commission, which shall be appointed as provided by law on or before July 1, 1980, and every five years thereafter. The commission shall submit to the legislature an evaluation of the State's tax structure, recommend revenue and tax policy and then dissolve.

APPROPRIATIONS FOR PRIVATE PURPOSES PROHIBITED

Section 4. No tax shall be levied or appropriation of public money or property made, nor shall the public credit be used, directly or indirectly, except for a public purpose. No grant shall be made in violation of Section 4 of Article I of this constitution. No grant of public money or property shall be made except pursuant to standards provided by law.

EXPENDITURE CONTROLS

Section 5. Provision for the control of the rate of expenditures of appropriated state moneys, and for the reduction of such expenditures under prescribed conditions, shall be made by law.

No public money shall be expended except pursuant to appropriations made by law. General fund expenditures for any fiscal year shall not exceed the State's current general fund revenues and unencumbered cash balances, except when the governor publicly declares the public health, safety or welfare is threatened as provided by law.

DISPOSITION OF EXCESS REVENUES

Section 6. Whenever the state general fund balance at the close of each of two successive fiscal years exceeds five percent of general fund revenues for each of the two fiscal years, the legislature in the next regular session shall provide for a tax refund or tax credit to the taxpayers of the State, as provided by law.

COUNCIL ON REVENUES

Section 7. There shall be established by law a council on revenues which shall prepare revenue estimates of the state government and shall report the estimates to the governor and the legislature at times provided by law. The estimates shall be considered by the governor in preparing the budget, recommending appropriations and revenues and controlling expenditures. The estimates shall be considered by the legislature in appropriating funds and enacting revenue measures. All revenue estimates submitted by the council to the governor and the legislature shall be made public. If the legislature in appropriating funds or if the governor in preparing the budget or recommending appropriations exceeds estimated revenues due to proposed expenditures, this fact shall be made public including the reasons therefor.

THE BUDGET

Section 8. Within such time prior to the opening of each regular session in an odd-numbered year as may be provided by law, the governor shall submit to the legislature a budget in a form provided by law setting forth a complete plan of proposed expenditures of the executive branch, estimates as provided by law of the aggregate expenditures of the judicial and legislative branches, and anticipated receipts of the State for the ensuing fiscal biennium, together with such other information as the legislature may require. A complete plan of proposed expenditures of the judicial branch for the ensuing fiscal biennium shall be submitted by the chief justice to the legislature in a form and within such time prior to the opening of each regular session in an odd-numbered year as shall be provided by law. The budget prepared by the governor and the plan of proposed expenditures prepared by the chief justice shall also be submitted in bill form. The governor shall also, upon the opening of each such session, submit bills to provide for such proposed expenditures and for any recommended additional revenues or borrowings by which the proposed expenditures are to be met. The proposed general fund expenditures in the plan of proposed expenditures, including estimates of the aggregate expenditures of the judicial and legislative branches, submitted by the governor shall not exceed the general fund expenditure ceiling established by the legislature under section 9 of this article; provided that proposed general fund expenditures in the plan may exceed such ceiling if the governor sets forth the dollar amount and the rate by which the ceiling will be exceeded and the reasons therefor.

LEGISLATIVE APPROPRIATIONS; PROCEDURES; EXPENDITURE CEILING

Section 9. In each regular session in an odd-numbered year, the legislature shall transmit to the governor an appropriation bill or bills providing for the anticipated total expenditures of the State for the ensuing fiscal biennium. In such session, no appropriation bill, except bills recommended by the governor for immediate passage, or to cover the expenses of the legislature, shall be passed on final reading until the bill authorizing operating expenditures for the ensuing fiscal biennium, to be known as the general appropriations bill, shall have been transmitted to the governor.

In each regular session in an even-numbered year, at such time as may be provided by law, the governor may submit to the legislature a bill to amend any appropriation for operating expenditures of the current fiscal biennium, to be known as the supplemental appropriations bill, and bills to amend any appropriations for capital expenditures of the current fiscal biennium, and at the same time the governor shall submit a bill or bills to provide for any added revenues or borrowings that such amendments may require. In each regular session in an even-numbered year, bills may be introduced in the legislature to amend any appropriation act or bond authorization act of the current fiscal biennium or prior fiscal periods. In any such session in which the legislature submits to the governor a supplemental appropriations bill, no other appropriation bill, except bills recommended by the governor for immediate passage, or to cover the expenses of the legislature, shall be passed on final reading until such supplemental appropriations bill shall have been transmitted to the governor.

GENERAL FUND EXPENDITURE CEILING

Notwithstanding any other provision to the contrary, the legislature shall establish a general fund expenditure ceiling which shall limit the rate of growth of general fund appropriations, excluding federal funds received by the general fund, to the estimated rate of growth of the State's economy as provided by law. No appropriations in excess of such ceiling shall be authorized during any legislative session unless the legislature shall, by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house of the legislature is entitled, set forth the dollar amount and the rate by which the ceiling will be exceeded and the reasons therefor.

AUDITOR

Section 10. The legislature, by a majority vote of each house in joint session, shall appoint an auditor who shall serve for a period of eight years and thereafter until a successor shall have been appointed. The legislature, by a two-thirds vote of the members in joint session, may remove the auditor from office at any time for cause. It shall be the duty of the auditor to conduct post-audits of the transactions, accounts, programs and performance of all departments, offices and agencies of the State and its political subdivisions, to certify to the accuracy of all financial statements issued by the respective accounting officers and to report the auditor's findings and recommendations to the governor and to the legislature at such times as shall be provided by law. The auditor shall also make such additional reports and conduct such other investigations as may be directed by the legislature.

LAPSING OF APPROPRIATIONS

Section 11. All appropriations for which the source is general obligation bond funds or general funds shall be for specified periods, and no such appropriation shall be made for a period exceeding three years. Any such appropriation or any portion of any such appropriation which is unencumbered at the close of the fiscal period for which the appropriation is made shall lapse; provided that no appropriation for which the source is general obligation bond funds nor any portion of any such appropriation shall lapse if the legislature determines such appropriation or any portion of such appropriation is necessary to qualify for federal aid financing and reimbursement. Where general obligation bonds have been authorized for an appropriation, the amount of the bond authorization shall be reduced in an amount equal to the amount lapsed.

Any appropriation for which the source is general obligation bond funds or general funds or any portion of any such appropriation which is effective on the date of ratification of this amendment and which is unencumbered on June 30, 1980 shall lapse on that date unless earlier lapsed by law; provided that no appropriation for which the source is general obligation bond funds nor any portion of any such appropriation shall lapse if the legislature determines such appropriation or any portion of such appropriation is necessary to qualify for federal aid financing and reimbursement. Where general obligation bonds have been authorized for an appropriation, the amount of the bond authorization shall be reduced in an amount equal to the amount lapsed on June 30, 1980.

DEFINITIONS; ISSUANCE OF INDEBTEDNESS

Section 12. For the purposes of this article:

1. The term "bonds" shall include bonds, notes and other instruments of indebtedness.
2. The term "general obligation bonds" means all bonds for the payment of the principal and interest of which the full faith and credit of the State or a political subdivision are pledged and, unless otherwise indicated, includes reimbursable general obligation bonds.
3. The term "net revenues" or "net user tax receipts" means the revenues or receipts derived from a public undertaking, improvement or system remaining after the costs of operation, maintenance and repair of such public undertaking, improvement or system and the required payments of the principal of and interest on all revenue bonds issued therefor have been made.
4. The term "person" means an individual, firm, partnership, corporation, association, cooperative or other legal entity, governmental body or agency, board, bureau or other instrumentality thereof, or any combination of the foregoing.
5. The term "rates, rentals and charges" means all revenues and other moneys derived from the operation or lease of a public undertaking, improvement or system, or derived from any payments or return on security under a loan program or a loan thereunder.
6. The term "reimbursable general obligation bonds" means general obligation bonds issued for a public undertaking, improvement or system from which revenues, or user taxes, or a combination of both, may be derived for the payment of the principal and interest as reimbursement to the general fund and for which reimbursement is required by law, and, in the case of general obligation bonds issued by the State for a political subdivision, general obligation bonds for which the payment of the principal and interest as reimbursement to the general fund is required by law to be made from the revenue of the political subdivision.
7. The term "revenue bonds" means all bonds payable from the revenues, or user taxes, or any combination of both, of a public undertaking, improvement, system or loan program and any loan made thereunder and secured as may be provided by law.
8. The term "special purpose revenue bonds" means all bonds payable from rental or other payments made to an issuer by a person pursuant to contract and secured as may be provided by law.
9. The term "user tax" means a tax on goods or services or on the consumption thereof, the receipts of which are substantially derived from the consumption, use or sale of goods and services in the utilization of the functions or services furnished by a public undertaking, improvement or system.

The legislature, by a majority vote of the members to which each house is entitled, shall authorize the issuance of all general obligation bonds, bonds issued under special improvement statutes and revenue bonds issued by or on behalf of the State and shall prescribe by general law the manner and procedure for such issuance. The legislature by general law shall authorize political subdivisions to issue general obligation bonds, bonds issued under special improvement statutes and revenue bonds and shall prescribe the manner and procedure for such issuance. All such bonds issued by or on behalf of a political subdivision shall be authorized by the governing body of such political subdivision.

Special purpose revenue bonds shall only be authorized or issued to finance facilities of or for, or to loan the proceeds of such bonds to assist, manufacturing, processing or industrial enterprises, utilities serving the general public, health care facilities provided to the general public by not-for-profit corporations or low and moderate income government housing programs, each of which is hereinafter referred to in this paragraph as a special purpose entity. The legislature, by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house is entitled, may enact enabling legislation for the issuance of special purpose revenue bonds separately for each special purpose entity, and, by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house is entitled and by separate legislative bill, may authorize the State to issue special purpose revenue bonds for each single project or multi-project program of each special purpose entity; provided that the issuance of such special purpose revenue bonds is found to be in the public interest by the legislature. The legislature may enact enabling legislation to authorize political subdivisions to issue special purpose revenue bonds. If so authorized, a political subdivision by a two-thirds vote of the members to which its governing body is entitled and by separate ordinance may authorize the issuance of special purpose revenue bonds for each single project or multi-project program of each special purpose entity; provided that the issuance of such special purpose revenue bonds is found to be in the public interest by the governing body of the political subdivision. No special purpose revenue bonds shall be secured directly or indirectly by the general credit of the issuer or by any revenues or taxes of the issuer other than receipts derived from payments by a person under contract or from any security for such contract or special purpose revenue bonds and no moneys other than such receipts shall be applied to the payment thereof. The governor shall provide the legislature in November of each year with a report on the cumulative amount of all special purpose revenue bonds authorized and issued, and such other information as may be necessary.

DEBT LIMIT; EXCLUSIONS

Section 13. General obligation bonds may be issued by the State; provided that such bonds at the time of issuance would not cause the total amount of principal and interest payable in the current or any future fiscal year, whichever is higher, on such bonds and on all outstanding general obligation bonds to exceed: a sum equal to twenty percent of the average of the general fund revenues of the State in the three fiscal years immediately preceding such issuance until June 30, 1982; and thereafter, a sum equal to eighteen and one-half percent of the average of the general fund revenues of the State in the three fiscal years immediately preceding such issuance. Effective July 1, 1980, the legislature shall include a declaration of findings in every general law authorizing the issuance of general obligation bonds that the total amount of principal and interest, estimated for such bonds and for all bonds authorized and unissued and calculated for all bonds issued and outstanding, will not cause the debt limit to be exceeded at the time of issuance. Any bond issue by or on behalf of the State may exceed the debt limit if an emergency condition is declared to exist by the governor and concurred to by a two-thirds vote of the members to which each house of the legislature is entitled. For the purpose of this paragraph, general fund revenues of the State shall not include moneys received as grants from the federal government and receipts in reimbursement of any reimbursable general obligation bonds which are excluded as permitted by this section.

A sum equal to fifteen percent of the total of the assessed values for tax rate purposes of real property in each political subdivision, as determined by the last tax assessment rolls pursuant to law, is established as the limit of the funded debt of such political subdivision that is outstanding and unpaid at any time.

All general obligation bonds for a term exceeding two years shall be in serial form maturing in substantially equal installments of principal, or maturing in substantially equal installments of both principal and interest. The first installment of principal of general obligation bonds and of reimbursable general obligation bonds shall mature not later than five years from the date of issue of such series. The last installment on general obligation bonds shall mature not later than twenty-five years from the date of such issue and the last installment on general obligation bonds sold to the federal government, on reimbursable general obligation bonds and on bonds constituting instruments of indebtedness under which the State or a political subdivision incurs a contingent liability as a guarantor shall mature not later than thirty-five years from the date of such issue. The interest and principal payments of general obligation bonds shall be a first charge on the general fund of the State or political subdivision, as the case may be.

In determining the power of the State to issue general obligation bonds or the funded debt of any political subdivision under section 12, the following shall be excluded:

1. Bonds that have matured, or that mature in the then current fiscal year, or that have been irrevocably called for redemption and the redemption date has occurred or will occur in the then fiscal year, or for the full payment of which moneys or securities have been irrevocably set aside.
2. Revenue bonds, if the issuer thereof is obligated by law to impose rates, rentals and charges for the use and services of the public undertaking, improvement or system or the benefits of a loan program or a loan thereunder or to impose a user tax, or to impose a combination of rates, rentals and charges and user tax, as the case may be, sufficient to pay the cost of operation, maintenance and repair, if any, of the public undertaking, improvement or system or the cost of maintaining a loan program or a loan thereunder and the required payments of the principal of and interest on all revenue bonds issued for the public undertaking, improvement or system or loan program, and if the issuer is obligated to deposit such revenues or tax or a combination of both into a special fund and to apply the same to such payments in the amount necessary therefor.

3. Special purpose revenue bonds, if the issuer thereof is required by law to contract with a person obligating such person to make rental or other payments to the issuer in an amount at least sufficient to make the required payment of the principal of and interest on such special purpose revenue bonds.

4. Bonds issued under special improvement statutes when the only security for such bonds is the properties benefited or improved or the assessments thereon.

5. General obligation bonds issued for assessable improvements, but only to the extent that reimbursements to the general fund for the principal and interest on such bonds are in fact made from assessment collections available therefor.

6. Reimbursable general obligation bonds issued for a public undertaking, improvement or system but only to the extent that reimbursements to the general fund are in fact made from the net revenue, or net user tax receipts, or combination of both, as determined for the immediately preceding fiscal year.

7. Reimbursable general obligation bonds issued by the State for any political subdivision, whether issued before or after the effective date of this section, but only for as long as reimbursement by the political subdivision to the State for the payment of principal and interest on such bonds is required by law; provided that in the case of bonds issued after the effective date of this section, the consent of the governing body of the political subdivision has first been obtained; and provided further that during the period that such bonds are excluded by the State, the principal amount then outstanding shall be included within the funded debt of such political subdivision.

8. Bonds constituting instruments of indebtedness under which the State or any political subdivision incurs a contingent liability as a guarantor, but only to the extent the principal amount of such bonds does not exceed seven percent of the principal amount of outstanding general obligation bonds not otherwise excluded under this section; provided that the State or political subdivision shall establish and maintain a reserve in an amount in reasonable proportion to the outstanding loans guaranteed by the State or political subdivision as provided by law.

9. Bonds issued by or on behalf of the State or by any political subdivision to meet appropriations for any fiscal period in anticipation of the collection of revenues for such period or to meet casual deficits or failures of revenue, if required to be paid within one year, and bonds issued by or on behalf of the State to suppress insurrection, to repel invasion, to defend the State in war or to meet emergencies caused by disaster or act of God.

The total outstanding indebtedness of the State or funded debt of any political subdivision and the exclusions therefrom permitted by this section shall be made annually and certified by law or as provided by law. For the purposes of section 12 and this section, amounts received from on-street parking may be considered and treated as revenues of a parking undertaking.

Nothing in section 12 or in this section shall prevent the refunding of any bond at any time.

ARTICLE VIII LOCAL GOVERNMENT

CREATION; POWERS OF POLITICAL SUBDIVISIONS

Section 1. The legislature shall create counties, and may create other political subdivisions within the State, and provide for the government thereof. Each political subdivision shall have and exercise such powers as shall be conferred under general laws.

LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT; CHARTER

Section 2. Each political subdivision shall have the power to frame and adopt a charter for its own self-government within such limits and under such procedures as may be provided by general law. Such procedures, however, shall not require the approval of a charter by a legislative body.

Charter provisions with respect to a political subdivision's executive, legislative and administrative structure and organization shall be superior to statutory provisions, subject to the authority of the legislature to enact general laws allocating and reallocating powers and functions.

A law may qualify as a general law even though it is inapplicable to one or more counties by reason of the provisions of this section.

TAXATION AND FINANCE

Section 3. The taxing power shall be reserved to the State, except so much thereof as may be delegated by the legislature to the political subdivision, and except that all functions, powers and duties relating to the taxation of real property shall be exercised exclusively by the counties, with the exception of the county of Kalawao. The legislature shall have the power to apportion state revenues among the several political subdivisions.

MANDATES; ACCRUED CLAIMS

Section 4. No law shall be passed mandating any political subdivision to pay any previously accrued claim.

TRANSFER OF MANDATED PROGRAMS

Section 5. If any new program or increase in the level of service under an existing program shall be mandated to any of the political subdivisions by the legislature, it shall provide that the State share in the cost.

STATEWIDE LAWS

Section 6. This article shall not limit the power of the legislature to enact laws of statewide concern.

ARTICLE IX PUBLIC HEALTH AND WELFARE

PUBLIC HEALTH

Section 1. The State shall provide for the protection and promotion of the public health.

CARE OF HANDICAPPED PERSONS

Section 2. The State shall have the power to provide for the treatment and rehabilitation of handicapped persons.

PUBLIC ASSISTANCE

Section 3. The State shall have the power to provide financial assistance, medical assistance and social services for persons who are found to be in need of and are eligible for such assistance and services as provided by law.

ECONOMIC SECURITY OF THE ELDERLY

Section 4. The State shall have the power to provide for the security of the elderly by establishing and promoting programs to assure their economic and social well-being.

HOUSING, SLUM CLEARANCE, DEVELOPMENT AND REHABILITATION

Section 5. The State shall have the power to provide for, or assist in, housing, slum clearance and the development or rehabilitation of substandard areas. The exercise of such power is deemed to be for a public use and purpose.

MANAGEMENT OF STATE POPULATION GROWTH

Section 6. The State and its political subdivisions, as provided by general law, shall plan and manage the growth of the population to protect and preserve the public health and welfare; except that each political subdivision, as provided by general law, may plan and manage the growth of its population in a more restrictive manner than the State.

PUBLIC SIGHTLINESS AND GOOD ORDER

Section 7. The State shall have the power to conserve and develop objects and places of historic or cultural interest and provide for public sightliness and physical good order. For these purposes private property shall be subject to reasonable regulation.

PRESERVATION OF A HEALTHFUL ENVIRONMENT

Section 8. The State shall have the power to promote and maintain a healthful environment, including the prevention of any excessive demands upon the environment and the State's resources.

CULTURAL RESOURCES

Section 9. The State shall have the power to preserve and develop the cultural, creative and traditional arts of its various ethnic groups.

PUBLIC SAFETY

Section 10. The law of the splintered paddle, mamala-hoe kanawai, decreed by Kamehameha I - Let every elderly person, woman and child lie by the roadside in safety - shall be a unique and living symbol of the State's concern for public safety.

The State shall have the power to provide for the safety of the people from crimes against persons and property.

ARTICLE X EDUCATION

PUBLIC EDUCATION

Section 1. The State shall provide for the establishment, support and control of a statewide system of public schools free from sectarian control, a state university, public libraries and such other educational institutions as may be deemed desirable, including physical facilities therefor. There shall be no discrimination in public educational institutions because of race, religion, sex or ancestry; nor shall public funds be appropriated for the support or benefit of any sectarian or private educational institution.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Section 2. There shall be a board of education composed of members who shall be elected in a nonpartisan manner by qualified voters, as provided by law, from two at-large school board districts. The first school board district shall be comprised of the island of Oahu and all other islands not specifically enumerated. The second school board district shall be comprised of the islands of Hawaii, Maui, Lanai, Molokai, Kahoolawe, Kauai and Niihau. Each at-large school board district shall be divided into departmental school districts, as may be provided by law. There shall be at least one member residing in each departmental school district.

POWER OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Section 3. The board of education shall have the power, as provided by law, to formulate policy and to exercise control over the public school system through its executive officer, the superintendent of education, who shall be appointed by the board; except that the board shall have jurisdiction over the internal organization and management of the public school system, as provided by law, and shall exercise its jurisdiction in a manner consistent with general laws.

HAWAIIAN EDUCATION PROGRAM

Section 4. The State shall promote the study of Hawaiian culture, history and language.

The State shall provide for a Hawaiian education program consisting of language, culture and history in the public schools. The use of community expertise shall be encouraged as a suitable and essential means in furtherance of the Hawaiian education program.

UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII

Section 5. The University of Hawaii is hereby established as the state university and constituted a body corporate. It shall have title to all the real and personal property now or hereafter set aside or conveyed to it, which shall be held in public trust for its purposes, to be administered and disposed of as provided by law.

BOARD OF REGENTS; POWERS

Section 6. There shall be a board of regents of the University of Hawaii, the members of which shall be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the governor. At least part of the membership of the board shall represent geographic subdivisions of the State. The board shall have the power, as provided by law, to formulate policy, and to exercise control over the university through its executive officer, the president of the university, who shall be appointed by the board; except that the board shall have exclusive jurisdiction over the internal organization and management of the university. This section shall not limit the power of the legislature to enact laws of statewide concern.

ARTICLE XI CONSERVATION, CONTROL AND DEVELOPMENT OF RESOURCES

CONSERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT OF RESOURCES

Section 1. For the benefit of present and future generations, the State and its political subdivisions shall conserve and protect Hawaii's natural beauty and all natural resources, including land, water, air, minerals and energy sources, and shall promote the development and utilization of these resources in a manner consistent with their conservation and in furtherance of the self-sufficiency of the State.

All public natural resources are held in trust by the State for the benefit of the people.

Validity of amendment. A proposal of the 1978 Constitutional Convention deleted the former section 1 of the old article X, which read: "Section 1. The legislature shall promote the conservation, development and utilization of agricultural resources, and fish, mineral, forest, water, land, game and other natural resources." This deletion appears to be one of the unspecified changes submitted for ratification under Question 34. On whether any of the changes submitted under Question 34 was in fact approved by the electorate, see Kahalekai v. Doi, 60 H. 324 (1979), excerpted in the note preceding the Preamble to the Constitution.

MANAGEMENT AND DISPOSITION OF NATURAL RESOURCES

Section 2. The legislature shall vest in one or more executive boards or commissions powers for the management of natural resources owned or controlled by the State, and such powers of disposition thereof as may be provided by law; but land set aside for public use, other than for a reserve for conservation purposes, need not be placed under the jurisdiction of such a board or commission.

The mandatory provisions of this section shall not apply to the natural resources owned by or under the control of a political subdivision or a department or agency thereof.

AGRICULTURAL LANDS

Section 3. The State shall conserve and protect agricultural lands, promote diversified agriculture, increase agricultural self-sufficiency and assure the availability of agriculturally suitable lands. The legislature shall provide standards and criteria to accomplish the foregoing.

Lands identified by the State as important agricultural lands needed to fulfill the purposes above shall not be reclassified by the State or rezoned by its political subdivisions without meeting the standards and criteria established by the legislature and approved by a two-thirds vote of the body responsible for the reclassification or rezoning action.

PUBLIC LAND BANKING

Section 4. The State shall have the power to acquire interests in real property to control future growth, development and land use within the State. The exercise of such power is deemed to be for a public use and purpose.

GENERAL LAWS REQUIRED; EXCEPTIONS

Section 5. The legislative power over the lands owned by or under the control of the State and its political subdivisions shall be exercised only by general laws, except in respect to transfers to or for the use of the State, or a political subdivision, or any department or agency thereof.

MARINE RESOURCES

Section 6. The State shall have the power to manage and control the marine, seabed and other resources located within the boundaries of the State, including the archipelagic waters of the State, and reserves to itself all such rights outside state boundaries not specifically limited by federal or international law.

All fisheries in the sea waters of the State not included in any fish pond, artificial enclosure or state-licensed mariculture operation shall be free to the public, subject to vested rights and the right of the State to regulate the same; provided that mariculture operations shall be established under guidelines enacted by the legislature, which shall protect the public's use and enjoyment of the reefs. The State may condemn such vested rights for public use.

WATER RESOURCES

Section 7. The State has an obligation to protect, control and regulate the use of Hawaii's water resources for the benefit of its people.

The legislature shall provide for a water resources agency which, as provided by law, shall set overall water conservation, quality and use policies; define beneficial and reasonable uses; protect ground and surface water resources, watersheds and natural stream environments; establish criteria for water use priorities while assuring appurtenant rights and existing correlative and riparian uses and establish procedures for regulating all uses of Hawaii's water resources.

NUCLEAR ENERGY

Section 8. No nuclear fission power plant shall be constructed or radioactive material disposed of in the State without the prior approval by a two-thirds vote in each house of the legislature.

ENVIRONMENTAL RIGHTS

Section 9. Each person has the right to a clean and healthful environment, as defined by laws relating to environmental quality, including control of pollution and conservation, protection and enhancement of natural resources. Any person may enforce this right against any party, public or private, through appropriate legal proceedings, subject to reasonable limitations and regulation as provided by law.

FARM AND HOME OWNERSHIP

Section 10. The public lands shall be used for the development of farm and home ownership on as widespread a basis as possible, in accordance with procedures and limitations prescribed by law.

Validity of amendment. This is the former section 5 of the old article X. A proposal of the 1978 Constitutional Convention deleting this provision from the Constitution was not validly ratified. Kahalekai v. Doi, 60 H. 324 (1979). In view of the holding, the revisor has restored the provision and designated it as section 10 of this article under the authority of Resolution No. 29 of the 1978 Constitutional Convention.

ARTICLE XII HAWAIIAN AFFAIRS

HAWAIIAN HOMES COMMISSION ACT

Section 1. Anything in this constitution to the contrary notwithstanding, the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, enacted by the Congress, as the same has been or may be amended prior to the admission of the State, is hereby adopted as a law of the State, subject to amendment or repeal by the legislature; provided that if and to the extent that the United States shall so require, such law shall be subject to amendment or repeal only with the consent of the United States and in no other manner; provided further that if the United States shall have been provided or shall provide that particular provisions or types of provisions of such Act may be amended in the manner required for ordinary state legislation, such provisions or types of provisions may be so amended. The proceeds and income from Hawaiian home lands shall be used only in accordance with the terms and spirit of such Act. The legislature shall make sufficient sums available for the following purposes: (1) development of home, agriculture, farm and ranch lots; (2) home, agriculture, aquaculture, farm and ranch loans; (3) rehabilitation projects to include, but not limited to, educational, economic, political, social and cultural processes by which the general welfare and conditions of native Hawaiians are thereby improved; (4) the administration and operating budget of the department of Hawaiian home lands; in furtherance of (1), (2), (3) and (4) herein, by appropriating the same in the manner provided by law.

Thirty percent of the state receipts derived from the leasing of cultivated sugarcane lands under any provision of law or from water licenses shall be transferred to the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund, section 213 of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, for the purposes enumerated in that section. Thirty percent of the state receipts derived from the leasing of lands cultivated as sugarcane lands on the effective date of this section shall continue to be so transferred to the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund whenever such lands are sold, developed, leased, utilized, transferred, set aside or otherwise disposed of for purposes other than the cultivation of sugarcane. There shall be no ceiling established for the aggregate amount transferred into the native Hawaiian rehabilitation fund.

ACCEPTANCE OF COMPACT

Section 2. The State and its people do hereby accept, as a compact with the United States, or as conditions or trust provisions imposed by the United States, relating to the management and disposition of the Hawaiian home lands, the requirement that section 1 hereof be included in this constitution, in whole or in part, it being intended that the Act or acts of the Congress pertaining thereto shall be definitive of the extent and nature of such compact, conditions or trust provisions, as the case may be. The State and its people do further agree and declare that the spirit of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act looking to the continuance of the Hawaiian homes projects for the further rehabilitation of the Hawaiian race shall be faithfully carried out.

COMPACT ADOPTION; PROCEDURES AFTER ADOPTION

Section 3. As a compact with the United States relating to the management and disposition of the Hawaiian home lands, the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended, shall be adopted as a provision of the constitution of this State, as provided in section 7, subsection (b), of the Admission Act, subject to amendment or repeal only with the consent of the United States, and in no other manner; provided that (1) sections 202, 213, 219, 220, 222, 224 and 225 and other provisions relating to administration, and paragraph (2) of section 204, sections 206 and 212 and other provisions relating to the powers and duties of officers other than those charged with the administration of such Act, may be amended in the constitution, or in the manner required for state legislation; but the Hawaiian home-loan fund, the Hawaiian home-operating fund and the Hawaiian home-development fund shall not be reduced or impaired by any such amendment, whether made in the constitution or in the manner required for state legislation, and the encumbrances authorized to be placed on Hawaiian home lands by officers other than those charged with the administration of such Act, shall not be increased, except with the consent of the United States; (2) that any amendment to increase the benefits to lessees of Hawaiian home lands may be made in the constitution, or in the manner required for state legislation, but the qualifications of lessees shall not be changed except with the consent of the United States; and (3) that all proceeds and income from the "available lands," as defined by such Act, shall be used only in carrying out the provisions of such Act.

PUBLIC TRUST

Section 4. The lands granted to the State of Hawaii by Section 5(b) of the Admission Act and pursuant to Article XVI, Section 7, of the State Constitution, excluding therefrom lands defined as "available lands" by Section 203 of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended, shall be held by the State as a public trust for native Hawaiians and the general public.

OFFICE OF HAWAIIAN AFFAIRS; ESTABLISHMENT OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Section 5. There is hereby established an Office of Hawaiian Affairs. The Office of Hawaiian Affairs shall hold title to all the real and personal property now or hereafter set aside or conveyed to it which shall be held in trust for native Hawaiians and Hawaiians. There shall be a board of trustees for the Office of Hawaiian Affairs elected by qualified voters who are Hawaiians, as provided by law. The board members shall be Hawaiians. There shall be not less than nine members of the board of trustees; provided that each of the following Islands have one representative: Oahu, Kauai, Maui, Molokai and Hawaii. The board shall select a chairperson from its members.

POWERS OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Section 6. The board of trustees of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs shall exercise power as provided by law: to manage and administer the proceeds from the sale or other disposition of the lands, natural resources, minerals and income derived from whatever sources for native Hawaiians and Hawaiians, including all income and proceeds from that pro rata portion of the trust referred to in section 4 of this article for native Hawaiians; to formulate policy relating to affairs of native Hawaiians and Hawaiians; and to exercise control over real and personal property set aside by state, federal or private sources and transferred to the board for native Hawaiians and Hawaiians. The board shall have the power to exercise control over the Office of Hawaiian Affairs through its executive officer, the administrator of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs, who shall be appointed by the board.

TRADITIONAL AND CUSTOMARY RIGHTS

Section 7. The State reaffirms and shall protect all rights, customarily and traditionally exercised for subsistence, cultural and religious purposes and possessed by ahupua'a tenants who are descendants of native Hawaiians who inhabited the Hawaiian Islands prior to 1778, subject to the right of the State to regulate such rights.

Validity of amendment. A proposal of the 1978 Constitutional Convention adding a section 7 defining the terms "Hawaiian" and "native Hawaiian" was not validly ratified. Kahalekai v. Doi, 60 H. 324 (1979). In view of the holding, the revisor has deleted the section and renumbered section 8 as section 7 under the authority of Resolution 29 of the 1978 Constitutional Convention.

ARTICLE XIII ORGANIZATION; COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

PRIVATE EMPLOYEES

Section 1. Persons in private employment shall have the right to organize for the purpose of collective bargaining.

PUBLIC EMPLOYEES

Section 2. Persons in public employment shall have the right to organize for the purpose of collective bargaining as provided by law.

ARTICLE XIV
CODE OF ETHICS

The people of Hawaii believe that public officers and employees must exhibit the highest standards of ethical conduct and that these standards come from the personal integrity of each individual in government. To keep faith with this belief, the legislature, each political subdivision and the constitutional convention shall adopt a code of ethics which shall apply to appointed and elected officers and employees of the State or the political subdivision, respectively, including members of the boards, commissions and other bodies.

Each code of ethics shall be administered by a separate ethics commission, except the code of ethics adopted by the constitutional convention which shall be administered by the state ethics commission. The members of ethics commissions shall be prohibited from taking an active part in political management or in political campaigns. Ethics commissioners shall be selected in a manner which assures their independence and impartiality.

Each code of ethics shall include, but not be limited to, provisions on gifts, confidential information, use of position, contracts with government agencies, post-employment, financial disclosure and lobbyist registration and restriction. The financial disclosure provisions shall require all elected officers, all candidates for elective office and such appointed officers and employees as provided by law to make public financial disclosures. Other public officials having significant discretionary or fiscal powers as provided by law shall make confidential financial disclosures. All financial disclosure statements shall include, but not be limited to, sources and amounts of income, business ownership, officer and director positions, ownership of real property, debts, creditor interests in insolvent businesses and the names of persons represented before government agencies.

ARTICLE XV
STATE BOUNDARIES; CAPITAL; FLAG; LANGUAGE AND MOTTO

BOUNDARIES

Section 1. The State of Hawaii shall consist of all the islands, together with their appurtenant reefs and territorial and archipelagic waters, included in the Territory of Hawaii on the date of enactment of the Admission Act, except the atoll known as Palmyra Island, together with its appurtenant reefs and territorial waters; but this State shall not be deemed to include the Midway Islands, Johnston Island, Sand Island (offshore from Johnston Island) or Kingman Reef, together with their appurtenant reefs and territorial waters.

CAPITAL

Section 2. Honolulu, on the island of Oahu, shall be the capital of the State.

STATE FLAG

Section 3. The Hawaiian flag shall be the flag of the State.

OFFICIAL LANGUAGES

Section 4. English and Hawaiian shall be the official languages of Hawaii, except that Hawaiian shall be required for public acts and transactions only as provided by law.

MOTTO

Section 5. The motto of the State shall be, "Ua mau ke ea o ka aina i ka pono."

ARTICLE XVI
GENERAL AND MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

CIVIL SERVICE

Section 1. The employment of persons in the civil service, as defined by law, of or under the State, shall be governed by the merit principle.

EMPLOYEES' RETIREMENT SYSTEM

Section 2. Membership in any employees' retirement system of the State or any political subdivision thereof shall be a contractual relationship, the accrued benefits of which shall not be diminished or impaired.

DISQUALIFICATIONS FROM PUBLIC OFFICE OR EMPLOYMENT

Section 3. No person shall hold any public office or employment who has been convicted of any act to overthrow, or attempt to overthrow, or conspiracy with any person to overthrow the government of this State or of the United States by force or violence.

OATH OF OFFICE

Section 4. All public officers, before entering upon the duties of their respective offices, shall take and subscribe to the following oath or affirmation: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States, and the Constitution of the State of Hawaii, and that I will faithfully discharge my duties as . . . to the best of my ability." The legislature may provide further oaths or affirmations.

INTERGOVERNMENTAL RELATIONS

Section 5. The legislature may provide for cooperation on the part of this State and its political subdivisions with the United States, or other states and territories, or their political subdivisions, in matters affecting the public health, safety and general welfare. Funds may be appropriated to effect such cooperation.

FEDERAL LANDS

Section 6. The United States shall be vested with or retain title to or an interest in or shall hold the property in the Territory of Hawaii set aside for the use of the United States and remaining so set aside immediately prior to the admission of this State, in all respects as and to the extent set forth in the act or resolution providing for the admission of this State to the Union.

COMPLIANCE WITH TRUST

Section 7. Any trust provisions which the Congress shall impose, upon the admission of this State, in respect of the lands patented to the State by the United States or the proceeds and income therefrom, shall be complied with by appropriate legislation. Such legislation shall not diminish or limit the benefits of native Hawaiians under Section 4 of Article XII.

Validity of amendment. A proposal of the 1978 Constitutional Convention added the last sentence of the section. This addition appears to be one of the unspecified changes submitted for ratification under Question 34. On whether any of the changes submitted under Question 34 was in fact approved by the electorate, see Kahalekai v. Doi, 60 H. 324 (1979), excerpted in the note preceding the Preamble to the Constitution.

ADMINISTRATION OF UNDISPOSED LANDS

Section 8. All provisions of the Act of Congress approved March 18, 1959 reserving rights or powers to the United States, as well as those prescribing the terms or conditions of the grants of lands or other property therein made to the State of Hawaii are consented to fully by the State and its people.

TAX EXEMPTION OF FEDERAL PROPERTY

Section 9. No taxes shall be imposed by the State upon any lands or other property now owned or hereafter acquired by the United States, except as the same shall become taxable by reason of disposition thereof by the United States or by reason of the consent of the United States to such taxation.

HAWAII NATIONAL PARK

Section 10. All provisions of the act or resolution admitting this State to the Union, or providing for such admission, which reserve to the United States jurisdiction of Hawaii National Park, or the ownership or control of lands within Hawaii National Park, are consented to fully by the State and its people.

JUDICIAL RIGHTS

Section 11. All those provisions of the act or resolution admitting this State to the Union, or providing for such admission, which reserve to the United States judicial rights or powers are consented to fully by the State and its people; and those provisions of such act or resolution which preserve judicial rights and powers for the State are hereby accepted and adopted, and such rights and powers are hereby assumed, to be exercised and discharged pursuant to this constitution and the laws of the State.

QUIETING TITLE

Section 12. No person shall be deprived of title to an estate or interest in real property by another person claiming actual, continuous, hostile, exclusive, open and notorious possession of such lands, except to real property of five acres or less. Such claim may be asserted in good faith by any person not more than once in twenty years.

PLAIN LANGUAGE

Section 13. Insofar as practicable, all governmental writing meant for the public, in whatever language, should be plainly worded, avoiding the use of technical terms.

TITLES, SUBTITLES; CONSTRUCTION

Section 14. Titles and subtitles shall not be used for purposes of construing this constitution.

Validity of amendment. A proposal of the 1978 Constitutional Convention deleted a second paragraph which read: "Whenever any personal pronoun appears in this constitution, it shall be construed to mean either sex." This deletion appears to be one of the unspecified changes submitted for ratification under Question 34. On whether any of the changes submitted under Question 34 was in fact approved by the electorate, see Kahalekai v. Doi, 60 H. 324 (1979), excerpted in the note preceding the Preamble to the Constitution.

GENERAL POWER

Section 15. The enumeration in this constitution of specified powers shall not be construed as limitations upon the power of the State to provide for the general welfare of the people.

PROVISIONS ARE SELF-EXECUTING

Section 16. The provisions of this constitution shall be self-executing to the fullest extent that their respective natures permit.

ARTICLE XVII REVISION AND AMENDMENT

METHODS OF PROPOSAL

Section 1. Revisions of or amendments to this constitution may be proposed by constitutional convention or by the legislature.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

Section 2. The legislature may submit to the electorate at any general or special election the question, "Shall there be a convention to propose a revision of or amendments to the Constitution?" If any nine-year period shall elapse during which the question shall not have been submitted, the lieutenant governor shall certify the question, to be voted on at the first general election following the expiration of such period.

ELECTION OF DELEGATES

If a majority of the ballots cast upon such a question be in the affirmative, delegates to the convention shall be chosen at the next regular election unless the legislature shall provide for the election of delegates at a special election.

Notwithstanding any provision in this constitution to the contrary, other than Section 3 of Article XVI, any qualified voter of the district concerned shall be eligible to membership in the convention.

The legislature shall provide for the number of delegates to the convention, the areas from which they shall be elected and the manner in which the convention shall convene. The legislature shall also provide for the necessary facilities and equipment for the convention. The convention shall have the same powers and privileges, as nearly as practicable, as provided for the convention of 1978.

MEETING

The constitutional convention shall convene not less than five months prior to the next regularly scheduled general election.

ORGANIZATION; PROCEDURE

The convention shall determine its own organization and rules of procedure. It shall be the sole judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its members and, by a two-thirds vote, may suspend or remove any member for cause. The governor shall fill any vacancy by appointment of a qualified voter from the district concerned.

RATIFICATION; APPROPRIATIONS

The convention shall provide for the time and manner in which the proposed constitutional revision or amendments shall be submitted to a vote of the electorate. The revision or amendments shall be effective only if approved at a general election by a majority of all the votes tallied upon the question, this majority constituting at least thirty-five percent of the total vote cast at the election, or at a special election by a majority of all the votes tallied upon the question, this majority constituting at least thirty percent of the total number of registered voters.

The provisions of this section shall be self-executing, but the legislature shall make the necessary appropriations and may enact legislation to facilitate their operation.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED BY LEGISLATURE

Section 3. The legislature may propose amendments to the constitution by adopting the same, in the manner required for legislation, by a two-thirds vote of each house on final reading at any session, after either or both houses shall have given the governor at least ten days' written notice of the final form of the proposed amendment, or, with or without such notice, by a majority vote of each house on final reading at each of two successive sessions.

Upon such adoption, the proposed amendments shall be entered upon the journals, with the ayes and noes, and published once in each of four successive weeks in at least one newspaper of general circulation in each senatorial district wherein such a newspaper is published, within the two months' period immediately preceding the next general election.

At such general election the proposed amendments shall be submitted to the electorate for approval or rejection upon a separate ballot.

The conditions of and requirements for ratification of such proposed amendments shall be the same as provided in section 2 of this article for ratification at a general election.

VETO

Section 4. No proposal for amendment of the constitution adopted in either manner provided by this article shall be subject to veto by the governor.

CONFLICTING REVISIONS OR AMENDMENTS

Section 5. If a revision or amendment proposed by a constitutional convention is in conflict with a revision or amendment proposed by the legislature and both are submitted to the electorate at the same election and both are approved, then the revision or amendment proposed by the convention shall prevail. If conflicting revisions or amendments are proposed by the same body and are submitted to the electorate at the same election and both are approved, then the revision or amendment receiving the highest number of votes shall prevail.

ARTICLE XVIII SCHEDULE

DISTRICTING AND APPORTIONMENT

Section 1. [Omitted as obsolete. For current districts and apportionment, see note appended to HRS Chapter 25.]

Validity of amendment. A proposal of the 1978 Constitutional Convention rewriting this section was not validly ratified. Kahalekai v. Doi, 60 H. 324 (1979). In view of the holding, the revisor has restored the former version of the section under the authority of Resolution No. 29 of the 1978 Constitutional Convention.

1978 SENATORIAL ELECTIONS

Section 2. Article III, Section 4, to the contrary notwithstanding, the terms of office of the members of the senate elected in the 1978 general election shall be as follows: members of the senate shall be divided into two classes. The first class shall consist of the following number elected with the highest number of votes from their respective senatorial districts: first district, one; second district, one; third district, one; fourth district, two; fifth district, two; sixth district, two; seventh district, two; eighth district, one. Members of the first class shall hold office for a term of four years beginning with their election and ending on the day of the second general election held thereafter. The remaining members elected shall constitute the second class and shall hold office for a term of two years beginning with their election and ending on the day of the next general election held thereafter.

SALARIES OF LEGISLATORS

Section 3. Until otherwise provided by law in accordance with Section 9 of Article III, the salary of each member of the legislature shall be twelve thousand dollars a year.

EFFECTIVE DATE FOR TERM LIMITATIONS FOR GOVERNOR AND LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Section 4. The amendments to Sections 1 and 2 of Article V shall limit the term of any person elected to the office of governor or lieutenant governor in the 1978 general election to two consecutive full terms commencing from noon on the first Monday in December, 1978.

JUDICIARY: TRANSITION; EFFECTIVE DATE

Section 5. The three members initially appointed to the judicial selection commission by the governor shall serve for terms of two, four and six years respectively. The members initially appointed to the commission by the president of the senate and the speaker of the house of representatives shall serve for two years. The two members initially appointed to the commission by the chief justice of the supreme court shall serve terms of four and six years respectively. The two members initially elected to the commission by the members of the bar of the State shall serve for terms of four and six years respectively. The current terms of justices and judges in office shall terminate as heretofore provided by law, subject to earlier termination and removal as provided in Article VI. The amendments to Article VI shall take effect upon ratification. The judicial selection commission shall be created no later than April 1, 1979.

EFFECTIVE DATE AND APPLICATION OF REAL PROPERTY TAX TRANSFER

Section 6. The amendment to Section 3 of Article VIII shall take effect on the first day of July after two full calendar years have elapsed following the ratification of such amendment; provided that for a period of eleven years following such ratification, the policies and methods of assessing real property taxes shall be uniform throughout the State and shall be established by agreement of a majority of the political subdivisions. Each political subdivision shall enact such uniform policies and methods of assessment by ordinance before the effective date of this amendment, and in the event the political subdivisions fail to enact such ordinances, the uniform policies and methods of assessment shall be established by general law. Any amendments to the uniform policies and methods of assessment established by the political subdivisions may only be made by agreement of a majority of the political subdivisions and enactment thereof by ordinance in each political subdivision.

Real property tax exemptions and dedications of land for specific use for assessment at its value in such use as provided by law and in effect upon ratification of the amendment to Section 3 of Article VIII shall be enacted by ordinance and shall not be eliminated or diminished for a period of eleven years following such ratification; provided that increases in such exemptions, or the additions of new and further exemptions or dedications of lands, may be established or granted only by agreement of a majority of the political subdivisions, and such increases or additions shall be enacted by ordinance in each political subdivision.

1978 BOARD OF EDUCATION ELECTIONS

Section 7. Members elected to the board of education in the 1978 general election shall serve for two-year terms.

EFFECTIVE DATE FOR OFFICE OF HAWAIIAN AFFAIRS

Section 8. The legislature shall provide for the implementation of the amendments to Article XII in Sections 5 and 6 on or before the first general election following ratification of the amendments to Article XII in Sections 5 and 6.

CONTINUITY OF LAWS

Section 9. All laws in force at the time amendments to this constitution take effect that are not inconsistent with the constitution as amended shall remain in force, mutatis mutandis, until they expire by their own limitations or are amended or repealed by the legislature.

Except as otherwise provided by amendments to this constitution, all existing writs, actions, suits, proceedings, civil or criminal liabilities, prosecutions, judgments, sentences, orders, decrees, appeals, causes of action, contracts, claims, demands, titles and rights shall continue unaffected notwithstanding the taking effect of the amendments and may be maintained, enforced or prosecuted, as the case may be, before the appropriate or corresponding tribunals or agencies of or under the State or of the United States, in all respects as fully as could have been done prior to the taking effect of the amendments.

DEBTS

Section 10. The debts and liabilities of the Territory shall be assumed and paid by the State, and all debts owed to the Territory shall be collected by the State.

RESIDENCE, OTHER QUALIFICATIONS

Section 11. Requirements as to residence, citizenship or other status or qualifications in or under the State prescribed by this constitution shall be satisfied pro tanto by corresponding residence, citizenship or other status or qualifications in or under the Territory.

EFFECTIVE DATE

This constitution shall take effect and be in full force immediately upon the admission of Hawaii into the Union as a State. Done in Convention, at Iolani Palace, Honolulu, Hawaii, on the twenty-second day of July, in the year one thousand nine hundred fifty and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and seventy-fifth.

INDEX

NOTE: This is an index to the materials contained in the Journal and Documents sections of this volume, and has been indexed according to general subject matter. Frequent references are made to committee reports, communications and other documents because much of the substantive discussion of important issues before the Convention is to be found in these materials. The individual delegate proposals have not been included in this index due to the substantive number and duplication of these documents, and resolutions have only been included where pertinent. A complete index of the resolutions and delegate proposals may be found in the Status section of this book.

The following abbreviations are used in the index:

CP	Committee Proposal
CWR	Committee of the Whole Report
DC	Departmental Communication
GM	Governor's Message
MR	Minority Report
Misc	Miscellaneous Communication
P	Petition
R	Resolution
SCR	Standing Committee Report
SpCR	Special Committee Report

The numbers preceding colons indicate the convention days, numbers following are the pages. The letters fn following a page number indicates the reference is in the footnote on the page.
