

Section 1

POPULATION

This section presents statistics on the growth, geographic distribution, and composition of the population of Hawaii, and on the number and characteristics of migrants moving to and from the State.

Provisional estimates for 1995 indicate a resident population of 1,186,815, about 7.1 percent greater than the 1990 census count of 1,108,229. Earlier censuses reported 964,691 in 1980, 422,770 in 1940, 154,001 in 1900, and 69,800 in 1860. These estimates and census totals include members of the armed forces stationed in Hawaii and their local dependents, a group making up 9.1 percent of the resident total when last surveyed. The 1995 de facto population--which included 158,410 visitors present on an average day in that year but excluded 50,719 residents temporarily absent--was 1,294,506. The population of the State is mostly male (50.6 percent), relatively young--the median age in 1994 was 34.2 years--and racially diversified. The major unmixed groups, based on a 1992 sample survey, were Caucasians (23 percent of the non-barracks, non-institutional population) and Japanese (20 percent). In addition, 37 percent were of mixed race, half of them part Hawaiian. There were 381,000 households in the State in 1994, with an average size of 2.99. Immigrant arrivals in fiscal 1994 numbered 7,742, mostly from the Philippines. About 36,000 persons (many of them in the armed forces) moved to Hawaii from the Mainland during 1994.

The principal sources for these data are the decennial population censuses conducted by the U.S. Bureau of the Census, the estimates developed annually by the Federal-State Cooperative Program for Population Estimates, the Hawaii Health Surveillance Program conducted regularly since 1969 by the Department of Health, the ongoing series on visitors present and residents absent provided by the Hawaii Visitors Bureau, and the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service tabulations on immigration. Earlier figures on population and migration are given in Historical Statistics of Hawaii, Sections 1 and 3. Comparable national statistics on population and migration appear in Section 1 of Statistical Abstract of the United States: 1995.

[Population counts from missionary censuses of 1831-1832 and 1835-1836, censuses conducted by the Hawaiian government from 1850 to 1896, and censuses by the U.S. Bureau of the Census beginning in 1900. Data for 1831-1896 are on a de facto or unspecified basis; data for 1900 and later years are resident totals, including armed forces stationed in Hawaii. 1/ The resident population is defined as the number of persons whose usual place of residence is in an area, regardless of physical location on the estimate or census date. It includes military personnel stationed or homeported in the area but excludes persons of local origin attending school or in military service outside the area. See also table 1.03, footnote 1.

2/ 12-month moving averages.

3/ The de facto population is defined as the number of persons physically present in an area, regardless of military status or usual place of residence; it includes visitors present but excludes residents temporarily absent.

4/ The large increases in residents absent after 1991 and corresponding declines in visitors present may partly reflect changes in survey methods.
