Hawaii Film Studio

The stage is set.

If you're looking for the stability of a covered set, look no further than the Hawaii Film Studio. Located on a 7.5-acre lot at the foot of Diamond Head crater, the Studio offers a quiet, secure shooting environment conveniently located within 30 minutes of the Honolulu International Airport, 15 minutes from downtown Honolulu, and just a few minutes from the accommodations, restaurants and nightlife of Waikiki.

Managed by the Hawaii Film Office, the state-owned Studio complex consists of an air-conditioned, soundproof 16,500-square-foot soundstage with a clear span interior height of 29 feet; a new production office building and construction mill completed in May 2006; four production office bungalows; two office trailers; set dressing and props; warehouse storage; parking; space for caterers; restroom and shower facilities; and utility hookups for mobile dressing trailers.

Built in the mid-70s, the Hawaii Film Studio was home to two of television's longest running hits, Hawaii Five-0, and Magnum, P.I. It has also served as the headquarters for other TV series including Jake and the Fatman, Raven, The Byrds of Paradise, One West Waikiki, Baywatch Hawaii, Hawaii, North Shore, and Lost, as well as movies-of-the-week, episodic television shows such as Beverly Hills 90210 and ER (Africa episodes), documentaries, commercials, and feature films such as Fifty First Dates, Final Fantasy, The Rundown, Blue Crush, and Tears of the Sun.
