CONDOMINIUM PROPERTY REGIME
Chapter 514A, Hawaii Revised Statutes

GENERAL INFORMATION

A Condominium is a special form of ownership of real property. To create a condominium project in Hawaii, the requirements of the Condominium Property Act, Chapter 514A, Hawaii Revised Statutes (HRS) shall be complied with. In addition, the condominium project shall comply with all applicable requirements and secure required approvals of the respective county in which the project is located.

A condominium project is created by recording in the Bureau of Conveyances and/or filing with the Office of the Assistant Registrar of the Land Court the master deed or lease, the declaration of Condominium Property Regime, the condominium map, and the bylaws of the Association of Apartment Owners. A condominium project is not created by the Real Estate Commission.

If a developer desires to offer and sell the condominium apartments, the developer shall submit the required documents and fees to the Real Estate Commission. The Commission does not approve or disapprove the condominium project but merely reviews the developer's proposed public report to determine whether the public report adequately discloses all material facts to prospective buyers based on the information and documents (application package) submitted by the developer.

No apartment in a condominium project shall be offered for sale prior to the issuance of an effective date for the developer's preliminary, contingent final or final public report.

Many condominium projects are created but not offered for sale. In such cases, the Commission has not received any information or documents (an application package) from the developer nor has the developer issued any public report.

Developers of a number of condominium projects have submitted incomplete initial filings with the Commission, but have not proceeded to complete the project.

Developers are subject to the applicable laws, requirements, fees, and forms in effect at the time of filing.

PROCESSING INFORMATION

The process for the issuance of an effective date for the public report takes approximately six weeks and is as follows:

1. The developer submits to the Commission a complete application package, including fees and supporting documents in accordance with instructions.
2. Upon receipt by the Commission, the application package is reviewed for organization and deficiencies. If incomplete or unorganized, the developer is so notified and the processing of the application is suspended until corrections are made by the developer.
3. If the application package is organized and without deficiencies, then the application is administratively processed and the project is assigned to a condominium consultant for review. The developer is notified that all further communications concerning the project should be directed to the assigned condominium consultant.
4. The condominium consultant will communicate directly with the developer with any questions, deficiencies, recommendations, etc.

5. Upon recommendation by the condominium consultant, the commission will issue an effective date for the public report. The developer will finalize the public report and provide the necessary copies to the Commission.

The processing time is dependent on the following factors, among others:

1. The organization, completeness, and accuracy of the filing;
2. The complexity and the number of non-traditional elements of the documents and the project;
3. The number of amendments, changes, or corrections initiated by the developer during the process;
4. Whether the project has problems or delays with the county review and approval process;
5. The backlog and volume of filings received by the Commission;
6. Whether the filing requires review and decision-making at the Commission's monthly meeting;
7. Whether the filing raises issues requiring an Attorney General opinion.

ADVERTISING INFORMATION

A condominium project shall not be offered for sale until the issuance of an effective date for a developer's preliminary, contingent final or final public report. "Offer(s) for sale" include(s), but is not limited to, any advertisement, inducement, solicitation of letters of intent to purchase, or any attempt of whatever nature to encourage any person to acquire any legal or equitable interest in any condominium apartment. The method used in offering for sale may include, but is not limited to, sales contracts, agreements of sale, reservation agreements, owner-occupant affidavit, options to purchase, solicitation or acquiring of interested parties list whether general or specific, posting of signs indicating that the project is a condominium project, or giving of the selling agent's name or address or telephone number.

Circulars, prospectuses, brochures, pamphlets, leaflets, and all other advertising and promotional materials regarding the condominium project shall not be issued, circulated or published prior to the Commission's issuance of an effective date for a developer's preliminary, contingent final or final public report.

SALES TO OWNER-OCCUPANTS INFORMATION

In summary, Part VI of Chapter 514A, HRS, requires that, except where excluded or inapplicable, a developer of a condominium project must designate at least fifty percent of the residential apartments in the project for sale to prospective owner-occupants through specifically described published announcements. Developers must review Part VI, Sales to Owner-Occupants, and Chapter 107, Hawaii Administrative Rules, thoroughly. If the published announcements do not comply with all applicable requirements, or if the announcements are for condominium projects not governed by or subject to Part VI, Chapter 514A, the developer and real estate broker shall:

1. Cease the reservation procedure immediately;
2. Refund all earnest money deposits and return all affidavits;
3. Rescind and cancel all reservations;
4. Terminate all "offers for sale"; and
5. Only for applicable projects, revise and republish the announcements in compliance with the law and rules.

EXTENSION OF A DEVELOPER'S PUBLIC REPORT EFFECTIVE DATE

A developer who desires to extend the expiration date of a developer's public report shall submit a written request for an extension to the Commission at least thirty days prior to the expiration date of the public report, together with such supporting information as may be required by the Commission. Requests shall be approved if there are no changes to the project and no changes to the information in the developer's public report that would render the public report misleading to purchasers in any material respect, and after payment of a $50 non-refundable fee. All approved extension requests shall extend the effective dates for a period of thirteen months.

Exceptions: Upon written request to the Commission at least thirty days prior to the expiration date of the developer's public report, together with evidence satisfactory to the Commission that one or both apartments are either retained by the developer, or conveyed to an irrevocable trust to benefit a spouse or family member (related by blood, descent or adoption) of the developer and payment of a $100 non-refundable fee, the Commission may issue an order that the final public report for a two apartment condominium project shall have no expiration date.

Developers obtaining this order shall provide written notification to the Commission within thirty calendar days of any subsequent sale and conveyance of each apartment.

If any material change subsequently occurs, the developer shall immediately comply with the laws and rules for obtaining an effective date for issuance of a developer's supplementary public report.

Unless approved as a "subdivision" by the county government, all documents relating to condominium property regime public reports, advertising of condominium projects and any other document either provided to a prospective purchaser or made part of the public record shall not have references or illustrations that may imply representation that the condominium project is a "subdivision" or that the lots are subdivided lots. In addition, the following guidelines shall be utilized:

1. All terminology shall be consistent with Chapter 514A, Hawaii Revised Statutes;
2. The words "lot" and "parcel" shall not be used to describe any limited common element area;
3. The descriptive terms "single family", "home" or "residence" may be used to describe individual apartments as long as it is used in conjunction with the word "condominium", e.g., "condominium homes", or "single family condominium residences";
4. Any metes and bounds descriptions or square footage figures of land areas shall be clearly and specifically identified as the condominium project's total land area, its common element land area, or as the limited common element land area;
5. Solid lines shall not be utilized to delineate limited common elements or common elements; and
6. Where dotted or dashed lines are utilized in drawings, illustrations, maps or plans to delineate limited common elements or common elements, a disclosure shall appear on the page where the dotted or dash lines appear. Such disclosure shall state that such lines do not represent subdivided lots and that they represent either a limited common element area or a common element area.
